2 Dogs Aboard Space Ship Put In Orbit By Russia

Size, Equipment Closely Match August Flight

Dr. G. F. Fisher Arrives in Rome To Meet Pope

The supreme ruler of the Roman Catholic church and the primate of the Church of England will meet Friday at the Vatican—the first such meeting in more than 400 years.

The archbishop said that he "looked forward with great interest and delight to the conversations with His Holiness, the Pope."

Before that he had a similar meeting with the Patriarch of the Orthodox Church at Jerusalem.

Both the Vatican and the archbishop's London headquarters have described the meeting with the Pope as a "courtesy visit."

But, at least unofficially, it has raised hopes that it will serve at least as a step toward the eventual unity of Christians throughout the world.

MOSCOW (AP)—A third Soviet space ship carrying animal passengers was launched into orbit today. The Russian news agency Tass said.

Two dogs were aboard the first-ever orbiting vehicle, Tass said. There was no word on whether Soviet scientists will try to bring either the dogs or the ship back to earth. The capsule carrying them was launched from an unspecified spot two years ago, perhaps in Kazakh.

The announced aims of today's vehicle, its equipment and even its weight were described closely by the August space flight.

The weights of analytical chimes, traditional for important astronautical flights, preceded a mid-day broadcast of the space flight communique over Radio Moscow. The announcement also was carried in the overseas service of the Soviet news agency Tass.

PLANTS ABOARD TOO

Besides the animals, Tass said, also carried "other animals, insects and plants" for Soviet scientists to study their reactions to radio-television and other telemetric equipment aboard the space ship.

Both the Vatican and the archbishop's London headquarters have described the meeting with the Pope as a "courtesy visit."

But, at least unofficially, it has raised hopes that it will serve at least as a step toward the eventual unity of Christians throughout the world.

TASS announced at 8:30 a.m. EST that the dogs, latest in a series of Russian canine space travelers starting with the space-dog Laika, and including Belka (Little Bee) and Mishka (Little Fir), were aboard a vehicle described as the "third space ship" by Tass.

(BBC monitors in London had first reported the launching, brought back to earth. It later developed the ship was still in orbit.)

RECOVERED EVENTUALLY

The launching announced today was the first space exploit announced by Moscow since Aug. 25 when the Russians announced they had sent a 41/2-ton space ship into orbit and recovered a "huge" cargo of two dogs and some rats and plants, plants.

The two dogs, Belka and Strelka, were later exhibited in their space suits before newsmen in Moscow. The Russians said the dogs had been recovered from the space ship and were landed safely in a capsule at a speed of 15-to 18 miles an hour.

Altogether the Soviet Union has launched 12 space ships into orbit around the earth since it opened the space age 30 months ago. In addition the Russians have a cosmic payload orbiting the sun.

Delegates Fear Car Makers May Shift Production

PARIS (Reuters) — Labor union delegates of 15 nations Wednesday expressed fears that international car and truck manufacturers might shift production overseas to areas of low labor costs to the detriment of work-ers elsewhere.

A statement issued at the end of the conference called for policies of full employment and the harmonizing of wages and social benefits on an international scale as a reply to outright invisible in the automobile industry.

The statement was issued by conference chairman Jacques Saint-Jean, vice-president of the International Metalworkers' Federation, United States, British, West Germany, France and Italy were among the countries represented.

The federation called on the international automobile corporations to use their "enormous power" responsibly.

The statement criticized the Ford Motor Company for its decision to arrange "full and frank discussions" with the unions in affected countries before deciding earlier this month to buy up all stock in its British subsidiary.

Vigorous Protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Wednesday vigorously protested as wanton and unprovoked the shooting of a U.S. Embassy staff employee by a Cuban army officer in a Havana night club Nov. 19.

The state department announced a formal protest after the shooting of Ernest Wayne Henderson of Pasadena, Calif., who was wounded seriously.

A note delivered to the Cuban ministry of foreign affairs also called for punishment of Capt. Jorge Robreno-Mariegue.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: A pronounced high pressure ridge which extends from Hudson Bay southward across Lake Superior is expected to move across eastern Ontario late tonight and early Friday. The approach of the ridge should bring an end to the extensive snowflurry condition followed by gradually moderating temperatures Friday.

SPACE ROCKET FRAGMENTS FALL NEAR CUBAN CITY

Fired at Canaveral, Destroyed in Flight

HAVANA (AP) — Military authorities at Matanzas, in eastern Cuba, said early today parts of U.S. space rocket fell near the city Wednesday without causing any damage.

A military headquarters spokesman said rocket fragments, some weighing as much as 40 pounds, fell on a hillside about 10 miles from the centre of the city. Cuba's third largest, at about 3 p.m.

Residents in the area reported the incident to authorities. They said no one was hurt by the fragments, which they said looked like pieces of a falling airplane but larger and slow down.

A two-headed U.S. space rocket was fired from Cape Canaveral, Fla., at 2:30 p.m. EST Wednesday. The rocket later was destroyed by the pilots.

Sources at Cape Canaveral were concerned lest the rocket fall on Cuban soil and provide a new occasion for Prime Minister Fidel Castro's government to assail the United States for "aggression" against Cuba.

CUBA IN PATH

Meantime the Castro government today was seeking a small band of counter-revolutionaries believed to have killed Maj. Manuel Fajardo, commander of rural militia in the Escambray Mountains. Fajardo was shot down by Castro's forces, in the fighting days of last November and named the prime minister through pneumonia, it was announced.

The clash coincided with 10 hours of fighting in Havana Wednesday and the night before when a bomb called the sabotage attacks used by Castro to undermine the former dictator Fulgencio Batista. Only one person was injured by the bombs, but electric power for much of the business district was knocked out and was not restored until Wednesday night.

PICK ROSE BOWL QUEEN

PASADENA (AP)—The Tournament of Roses committee has picked Queen Wednesday, a tall, beautiful brunette whose nose has been broken four times, once by a boy with a rock. Carole Ann Washburn, 18, will reign over the annual rose parade and the Minnesota-California Rose Bowl football game Jan. 2. Carole is 5 feet, 9 inches tall, 140 pounds, hazel eyes and 36½, 24, 36.

Leftist Students Hold Out In 'Stalingrad' Dormitory

CARACAS (AP) — Hardcore leftist students, trading gunfire with troops, still held out in their self-styled "Stalingrad" dormitory at Caracas University today as disorders spread to half-a-dozen other cities.

President Romulo Betancourt's moderate Socialist government cracked down hard on its leftist enemies in an effort to crush the weekend insurrection which has resulted in eight persons killed.

Police grabbed about 200 persons in raids on labor movements to prevent a bank strike and other threatened work stoppages. Communist headquarters also were raided.

The government said disorders, mainly rioting by high school students, broke out in Maracaibo, the oil centre, Barquisimeto, Venezuela's third largest city, Maracay, Portuguesa, Merida, Tachira and San Juan de los Morros, a Spanish resort 50 miles southwest of the capital.

Six persons, including the local Communist leader, Jesus Anda, were arrested at Maracaibo in connection with the bombing of the newspaper La Panorama and shots at arms. Maracaibo authorities closed the schools after some students held demonstrations in favor of Prime Minister Fidel Castro of Cuba.

Betancourt, who charges that the rebels want to replace his government with a Castro-style regime, Wednesday decided to disregard the traditional Latin American respect for universities as sanctuaries from police interference. He ordered police and militiamen to halt an Caracas University renewed.

But the band of defiant students, who still use their dormitory in the pharmacy school there as "Stalingrad," again exchanged gunfire with a battalion of guard troops.

Dairy Council Recommends Govt. Subsidy of 2 Cts. Quart

TORONTO (CP) — A government subsidy of two cents a quart of milk should be recommended by the dairy industry to stimulate flagging consumption, President Pierre Cote of the National Dairy Council of Canada said today.

The cost probably wouldn't be any steeper than the government now pays out to assist dairy farmers and it would be a great deal less than extending the present system of aid, Mr. Cote declared.

The billion-dollar-a-year dairy industry was in jeopardy unless changes were made, he said. There would be consumed 36,000,000 more pounds of butter than in 1957 and consumption of substitutes would be up 38,000,000 pounds above domestic need.

Mr. Cote spoke to the Ontario Creamery Association.

His remarks were contained in a text of his address issued to the Canadian Press in advance.

He urged the government to reduce the retail price spread between butter and margarine. Now butter is as high as 56 cents a pound, and margarine is no question whatsoever but that if both products were on problem stems from this cause," Mr. Cote said. Government action as it did during the Second World War, consumption would increase by more than 1,300,000,000 pounds of milk or 20 per cent greater than present domestic sales.

"Even if it resulted in a consumption gain of just one - half that additional previously, it would wipe out our entire butter surplus and would provide a market for the equivalent of 2,000,000 in milk output." Mr. Cote said

But it would cost money, costs and provide assistance like that long handed out to coal mines, railroads, industry, construction and coal.

JUNKS TO FLY THAMES

LONDON (AP)—The Thames, with its pomp, ceremony, swans and grimy barges, will take on a Chinese air if the plans of a Scottish engineer materialize. The engineer, John Johnston, plans to import 50 Chinese junks, with sails like the wings of dragon flies and ornamented with carved peacocks and Oriental dragons. The first junk arrived Wednesday aboard a steamship and it will sail before it was unloaded.

Bus Operation In Alberta To Be Probed

The crash, which took the lives of 11 Chipman district schoolchildren and injured 25 others, will be investigated by a three-man committee appointed by a special order-in-council passed by the provincial cabinet.

Meanwhile, the fight to save the survivors continues here with seven children still in critical condition. None of the injured have been released from hospital and some are reported improving.

A death toll climbed to 17 Wednesday morning when Gordette Haydock, 16, died of head injuries. Eleven other boys, six girls, and two boys, all in their teens.

Funeral services have been arranged for Saturday morning. The community has been the scene of a mass prayer meeting Tuesday night.

A message of sympathy from the government and people of Alberta, was received by officials of Premier Manning.

Bus driver Frank Budney, 31, a father of five, is also in hospital. Authorities would not reveal his injuries or allow any interviews with him.

18 Inches Snow Seen at Buffalo

BUFFALO (AP)—A paralyzing storm that brought up to 18 inches of snow and drifts 3½-feet deep struck the suburbs on Buffalo's Northside Wednesday, then swung to the south of New York State's second, largest city.

Another foot of snow was forecast for the area south of Buffalo and southeast of Lake Ontario by tonight.

Scores of schools and industries were closed. Buffalo International Airport was out of operation. Buses, even on city streets, were stalled.

One death was attributed to the storm.

SHIPPING RACES TO BEAT SEAWAY CLOSING DEADLINE

Progress Slowed By Heavy Winds

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ships still plying the St. Lawrence Seaway system have until midnight tonight to clear the seaway locks, but at least one won't make it.

The high winds that drove the Liberian freighter Francisco Morazan aground Tuesday in upper Lake Erie continued to pound the stricken vessel against the rocks where she lodged.

U.S. Coast Guard ships, a plane and helicopter were keeping guard over the stranded ship and the 26 persons aboard—13 crewmembers and the captain's pregnant wife. Two unsuccessful attempts were made Wednesday to remove the 36 by 300-foot vessel.

At least eight other ocean-going ships Wednesday were still churning their way through the locks in an attempt to beat the closing deadline set Tuesday by the Seaway Authority.

STILL IN CANADA

How many of the eight would beat the clock was still in doubt. Three ships were caught between the Eisenhower and Iroquois locks, but five others were still upstream from the Iroquois Dam, 30 miles west of Cornwall.

Progress was slowed by high winds and blizzard conditions according to Seaway officials who moved into Ontario Tuesday, bringing to 14 the number of ships in southwestern parts of the province.

At Port Weller drivers and landbased machinery were being moved from the Welland Canal. $25,000 research and diving vessel Provo Wallis, which has been on 50-hour winds hampered progress.

The Cabo H, owned by Steitner Development and Manufacturing Company of St. Catharines, were adrift Monday from her berth at Port Dalhousie. It was found on the rocks Tuesday.

Meanwhile, at Port Arthur port warden Capt. P. C. Cowell announced 56 ocean vessels loaded with 2,000,000 bushels of grain at Lakehead during the shipping season which ended Nov. 26. 51 vessels loaded some 18,300,000 bushels for foreign ports.

The last of the ocean ships to call at the Lakehead left last week, but 14 ships left Nov. 26 to Dec. 12 to clear the Sault Ste. Marie locks. Eight of the ships were reported still in operation in Lake Superior in a late-season dash for loading before the ice set in.

CONVICT SUES HOSPITAL

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Convict Willie Sues has filed a $250,000 suit against Western Psychiatric Hospital for $250,000, charging a stomach without permission and used as evidence against him.

Sues was convicted in Criminal Court Wednesday. It charged he and Galio Sr. violated the terms for robbing the home of a policeman and wounding him in a gun duel.

Tension Mounts As House Races To Stop Strike

Govt. Fighting Stiff Attack by Opposition

OTTAWA (CP) — With tension mounting and time running out, Parliament resumes its race today against the onrushing threat of a national railway strike—or just two days away.

Warnings of massive unemployment problems resulting from a rail walkout, the government is pressing ahead in the Commons with its top-priority labor law.

But before legislative action will legally forbid 111,000 "non-operating" railroaders from walking off their jobs at 8 a.m. Saturday, the government first must surmount a Liberal kill-the-bill amendment, finish second and third readings in the Commons, speed the legislation to the Senate and finally get royal assent.

The government is fighting a stiff attack from both Liberal and CCF-New Party critics on its emergency powers bill aimed at deferring the railway wage guidelines dispute itself—until May 15.

Should the strike be allowed to take place, Labor Minister Starr forecast an enormous increase in unemployment—perhaps 111,000 striking railwaymen, another 60,000 rail workers out of work because of a shutdown of the CPR, and four other smaller railways, plus coal miners, grain and other workers dependent on rail transport.

Mr. Starr said Wednesday that the effects of a rail strike would be "the only possible action" to be taken at this time to avert a calamity of "unprecedented proportions."

But instead of a fast, smooth path in the Commons for the emergency law the government found only criticism and opposition benches.

Liberal Lesslie Pearson moved a technical amendment to block second reading of the legislation on the grounds it imposes "compulsory and discriminatory wage freeze" on the workers involved — employees who do not have the right to strike and would make continued rail service impossible.

A vote on the Liberal amendment was expected some time after the 2 p.m. resumption of today's Commons sitting.

Armed Peronists Are Repulsed

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Armed Peronists attacked a big inland trial city of Rosario and in the oil fields of northern Argentina Wednesday but the government announced.

The government communique said several persons were killed in an attack on the guard house of the 11th Infantry Regiment at Rosario. Witnesses said at least 10 persons were killed and 50 wounded.

The attack was led by Miguel Angel Iniguez, an ousted general who was the leader of dictator Juan Peron, who fled in the country leaving one of his lieutenants among the dead.

Kasavubu Ends Congo Relations With Nasser

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—President Joseph Kasavubu announced today that diplomatic relations between the Congo and the United Arab Republic have been severed.

Kasavubu demanded the immediate recall of the U.A.R. ambassador, Mourad Ghaleb, and the rest of the Embassy staff and asked that they should not be replaced for the time being.

The demand was contained in a letter to U.A.R. President Nasser.

Kasavubu said Ghaleb had "tried to overthrow the established authority in the Congo and sought to encourage rebellion" against the former premier Patrice Lumumba.

Ghaleb said he would not oppose any order from Kasavubu to quit the Congo.

Meanwhile, Congolese army spokesmen said their forces have found the bodies of thousands of supporters of Lumumba — but Lumumba's whereabouts remained a mystery.

"We get him finally," vowed army strongman Joseph Mobutu. Mobutu. "He will have trouble escaping us. Stanleyville.

(Moscow Radio said Wednesday night Lumumba had reached "friendly territory" east of Leopoldville and was "out of reach" of Mobutu's forces.)

Patrick Seddo, latest Ghanaian diplomat to be expelled by the Congolese authorities, returned by air today to Accra with six other Ghana diplomats who all were declared persinalized to stay in Leopoldville.

Seddo, Ghanaian envoy in Accra said Seddo, first secretary of the mission, was given 30 minutes in which to leave the country. He explained after incidents around the Ghana Embassy residence Wednesday night.

Ontario Had Unusual Snowfall And Faces More Wintry Weather

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario, recovering from an unusual October snowfall, faces more wintry weather. The outlook for the rest of Canada is for moderating influences.

The weather office in Toronto said the pattern "with unusually cold in the east . . . pattern," with 4.2 inches recorded at Malton airport, on the west side of the city, and 2.2 on the eastern outskirts.

Ontario was the coldest province west of Lake Superior, but forecasters said it could get cold again within a day or two.

Environment Canada was due to get cooler temperatures, but none was predicted for some areas in Quebec.

Three persons were reported to have died in traffic accidents as a result of the snow which fell in all but the eastern section of the province.

In the Prairies temperatures rose slightly Wednesday from earlier in the week, but were still lower than normal for the time of the year. The Maritimes had rain and drizzle accompanied by warm air and stiff winds as the storm moved over into Newfoundland. Vancouver was wet and chilly.

Ontario victims in the snow were Harvey Manning Mason, 68, Bradford, who collapsed and died while pushing his car in a snow-covered driveway; Eugene Fichault, 16, of Bonfield, who crashed to death near North Bay when his car left the road and overturned; truck and Ralph Palmer, 21, of Bracebridge, died when his car skidded into a tractor-trailer.

The storm dumped 20 inches of snow at Fort Erie, Ont., but only a few miles away, reported only one inch.

In Northern Ontario, Hearst measured eight inches, and Timmins measured eight inches, bringing 12 and White-River 13½.

Southern areas escaped the full brunt but London was blanketed with almost two inches. Traffic was snarled by winds up to 60 miles an hour in the area bounded by London, Goderich and Strathroy.

At Barrie, provincial police reported traffic turmoil. Twenty-five vehicles were involved in one pileup. No serious persons required hospital treatment.

WALKING PERSONNEL CAN PICK UP COSTUMES FRIDAY

Walking personnel in Saturday's Santa Claus parade can pick up their costumes at No. 2 Fire Hall after 4.00 p.m. Friday, Deputy Fire Chief Harry Brien said today.

Incidentally, the latest word from the Northside says Santa was seen this afternoon loading his toy sack in preparation for his long trip to this city overnight Friday. The weatherman says Santa will have good flying and should have no trouble getting to Belleville in time for the parade at 10.00 a.m. Saturday.

FREE SKATING FOR STUDENTS WILL RESUME

Free skating sessions for public and separate school pupils sponsored by the Belleville Recreation Committee will be started again on Friday, December 2nd.

Free skating sessions will be held each Wednesday and Friday from 3.30 p.m. to 5.30 p.m. through the months of December, January and February except during Christmas school holidays.

Recreation Committee through the co-operation of manager Jack Dickens and the Arena Commission also announces that all facilities will be made available for these sessions, such as canteen, skate sharpening and supervision of children, while they are skating.

ADVANCE POLL FOR WARD 4 NOW OPENED

The advance poll for residents of Ward 4 only who will be out of town on election day Monday, opened at the city hall this morning. The poll will be open Friday and Saturday from 9.00 to 6.00 p.m. Regular polls will be open from 9.00 a.m. to 7.00 p.m. on Monday in Ward 4.

Deputy Returning Officer Frank Bateman said that by noon today only one voter had cast his ballot. However, the returning officer reported that a few people still phoned asking the location of the advance poll.

Monday's election affects only Ward 4 (Herchimer Ave. east-Dundas) with candidates Alfred and Francis P. Clarke are running for public school trustee.

Wharf Street Debating Club Members Given Little Chance To Exercise Vocal Chords

Over the years Belleville's famous Wharf Street Debating Club has become known as a place from which men can train for aspiring municipal politician has been seen crawling away to hide under a stone. But last night's 50th anniversary meeting of the club was quite unlike the old days. Instead of a picnic than a gathering place for veteran hecklers and orators of the city.

Club president Herb Collins, meeting chairman Jim Matthews and secretary - treasurer Munro Callaghan, all expressed disappointment at the few (34) members who turned out and at the few (3) men who offered themselves as targets. Attendance was low, they said, because of the quiet municipal election scene this year in which the mayor, all seven aldermen, the PUC commissioner and most school trustees in the city were the only men who showed up for an argument. Add Jack Wilson's three but he left before the meeting started because of ill health, Mayor McLean Hicks sent his regrets at being unable to attend and wished the club every success in its next 50 years of operation.

A minute's silence was observed for the late Mrs. Ella Cecil, Fred Hart, Eddie George, William Hamilton and Harry Smith, veteran members of the club, who died since last year's meeting. Mrs. Cecil was credited as the deceased members with having always referred for their contributions to democracy and noted that each of them was a master orator in his own right.

VERBAL BOUQUETS

The handing out of verbal bouquets was the order of the night, rather than verbal attacks on Aid. Temple, Mr. Rollins and Mr. Hart.

Aid. Temple was cited for his contributions to the city over eight years on council and for his chairmanship of the traffic committee which implemented a one-way traffic system on Pinnacle and Front Streets. Mr. Temple said that it shouldn't be long before pedestrian overpasses are installed in the downtown area. This, he felt, would remove the last bit of confusion on downtown one-way streets.

Other club members said Mr. Rollins was to be congratulated for the efficient way in which the Public Utilities Commission is operated. The taxpayers of Belleville, they said, should be proud to have Mr. Rollins at the helm of the PUC. Mr. Rollins, known for his spunk and love of an argument, tried several times to start a debate and once or twice managed to draw Joe Seames into a short-lived contest on current affairs.

Mr. Harvey was accused of costing the taxpayers of the city some $10,000 so that a mere 46 voters in Ward 4 could cast their ballots on Monday for a public school trustee. At this, the other members of the club told the lone member to sit down. Mr. Harvey said a check at city hall would show that the election would cost about $300 and that more than 1,000 voters were eligible to vote. The club congratulated him for having enough backbone to stick to his guns in an uncomfortable situation. Voters in solar Grove Forbes said the city needed more young men with intellectual fortitude.

Following the meeting, everyone sat around chewing the fat and munching on hot dogs prepared by Matt Wells.

TENSION MOUNTS

Both Mr. Pearson and CCF-New Party spokesman Douglas Fisher (Port Arthur) argued against a government-proposed postponement of the date of strike vote that does nothing about the multi - million - dollar wage disputes underlying it.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker defended the government action. He said it will not prejudice either the unions or the railways. In trying to halt the strike, the government was preserving its "complete neutrality."

Said Mr. Starr, when he introduced the bill for second reading, approval in principle:

CAN ACT THEN

By heading off a strike until March 15, the government hopes to be able to act on a report from the MacPherson royal commission on the transportation and give new life to the ailing Canada Labor Code which have lifted its ban on further freight rate increases, thus leaving the railways free to go after more money to meet any final settlement terms.

Both Mr. Pearson and Mr. Fisher criticized the government for destroying the normal processes of industrial-disputes legislation — conciliation and a mediation followed by strike so as to bring the parties to terms.

They also said that by sidestepping the usual conciliation machinery, the government may be encouraging irresponsible union leadership.

The Liberals said they would reject conciliation and mediation on the 14 - cent - hourly pay increase recommended by the railway conciliation board that spent several months investigating the dispute, saying it was not the best labor dispute.

Mr. Diefenbaker called this "unfortunate."

ASKS FEDERAL AWARD

The CCF New Party group also based its proposed solution on the board report, but called for the federal power to put up the money to meet the initial part of the settlement.

"Here are railway employees whose situation is affected by the lowering of freight rates in the public interest," said Mr. Fisher. "Is it not right that you feel somewhat about a subsidy in this particular case?"

The dispute was dumped in the lap of Parliament after two days of last - ditch negotiations here, sponsored by the government, failed to bring the parties together.

TB Christmas Seals Mailed

For Mrs. A. N. Hallam, 311 Bleecker Avenue, the Christmas rush came early this year. She had to mail 18,703 Christmas cards, how would you feel when that was completed? Happy? Well, that is how Mrs. Hallam feels, only the 18,703 Christmas were addressed in her basement combined Christmas and Seal Christmas cards — and she had lots of willing help in the task of preparing the cards for mailing.

Mrs. Hallam is executive secretary of the County of Hastings Tuberculosis Association, of which Mr. Murray Allaman is president. This year, as in the past, Mrs. Hallam had the help of the members of several organizations, the BCIVS Boys' Key Club, the BCI Girls, the Hi-Y Boys and the Women's Auxiliary of the RCAF Association, besides a large number of interested individuals, in preparing the seals. Several firms gave assistance in providing refreshments for the workers or necessary equipment to handle the flood of mail. For all this assistance the Association appreciative is most grateful.

Each of the 18,703 envelopes mailed to homes throughout Hastings County, contained at least two sheets of seals, for which, the nominal charge would be $2. However, the Association will welcome any contributions, as well as larger ones. Even if the recipient is unable to make any donation, the members of the Association hope the seals will be used as a means of spreading the message of the work of the Association in the prevention and detection of TB. If any person did not receive seals, they can obtain them at the Belleville branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, where donations will be accepted, or by telephoning Mrs. Hallam at WO 2-2186.

Bay of Quinte Basketball

Belleville Crawford Metals widened their lead at the top of the Bay of Quinte Basketball league standings last night with a 67 - 57 triumph over Picton Prospects in Picton. The game was a thrilling shootout for the lead. Crawfords led by an injured Teddy Batchelor, held a 32-27 lead at the game's halfway mark then added to their margin in the second half.

Hopkins topped the Picton Prospects (47) with Bob Lawrence getting 14, Leandry 10, Vanalstine 6, Fawcett 4, Reynolds, Scott.

Captain Indicates Concern Over Plight of Freighter And 14 Persons Aboard

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) Water rose higher and higher in the hold of a stricken freighter today, and her captain indicated concern about the fate of his ship and the 14 persons aboard.

Twelve seamen, Capt. Edward Trimmer and his wife, pregnant two months, have spent two nights aboard the Finnish Merikasan in gale-lashed Lake Michigan. She piled onto the reefs of South Manitou Island about 22 air miles northwest of this Michigan city Tuesday night.

The U.S. coast guard hoped the weather would improve enough today to allow rescue and salvage operations.

Shortly before dawn, the coast guard cutter Mackinaw, patrolling nearby, radioed the Liberian freighter asking her status. The captain answered:

"Water in the hold is coming higher and higher and we have 14 people with us. We have always still pounding on the bottom. It stopped for awhile but now through the night it was pretty bad."

Then he added, "I'm afraid we can't . . ." and static cut off the remainder from shore stations.

There was no immediate reaction from the Mackinaw and the cutter Mesquite, both steaming nearby.

The coast guard cutter Sundew was en route with breeches buoy equipment. Lt.-Cmdr. Richard Pen, duty officer at the air station late Wednesday, said the rope-sling gear was brought on standby basis to evacuate the stricken vessel's crew members if the need arose.

The 346 - foot Morazan was bound from Chicago to Rotterdam with a general cargo. She was racing to beat a St. Lawrence Seaway closing deadline when gale winds struck last Tuesday night.

The cause for help indicated she was blown off course in the Manitou Straits channel.

'Nation Is in Great Danger' Warning of U.S. Commission

While recommending goals for increased growth at home, a U.S. presidential commission said means must be found to "contain" the aggression and subversion of world communism in other nations. This phase of the commission's report is discussed in the second of three articles.

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation is in great danger . . . Communist aggression and subversion exist all over the world . . . we seek to do both at home and abroad."

That warning, first heard in President's commission on national goals has underscored its call to Americans to shoulder still heavier burdens of armament and foreign aid in the 1960s.

In a section titled Goals Abroad, the committee's report — released this week in the hands of both President Eisenhower and President-elect John Kennedy — recommends this posture for the United States:

Be very stronger than Russia "at whatever cost"; hold firm in Berlin and wherever else the cause of freedom is menaced.

But strive constantly for peaceful solutions; stand ready to negotiate "on any reasonable basis"; and seek to establish control over nuclear weapons — "disarmament should be our ultimate goal."

The report proposed no sharp deviations from the present policies of the Eisenhower administration in the military or diplomatic areas, except in the output of money and effort.

It moved into highly controversial ground, however, in the realm of trade, tariffs and foreign aid. The commission took an internationalist view on issues over which legislators are bound to clash in the new Congress as they have in the last several Congresses.

The 11-member commission of leaders in industry, science, labor and education in public affairs, called for these measures to bolster the economy of the West under cold war conditions:

1. Free substantially increased foreign aid, shared equitably by the larger free nations.

2. A step-by-step, reciprocal lowering of tariffs and import quotas by the United States and other industrial powers.

3. Correction of the U.S. deficit in international payments, which caused a net outflow of $1,500,000,000 of capital last year, perhaps more in 1930.

Kennedy Picks Mennen Williams For High Post

In announcing the appointment, Kennedy called the job second in importance to no other position in the new administration. It was his first major appointment.

Williams, who has served six terms, will retire as governor of Michigan Jan. 1.

Kennedy also had appointments at his home today with Robert A. Lovett, former secretary of defence; Connecticut's Governor Abraham Ribicoff, and representative Stuart L. Udall, (Dem. Ariz.). All have figured in cabinet and sub-cabinet talk.

Kennedy read a statement saying: "I have asked Governor Williams to accept a position of responsibility second to none in the new administration—assistant secretary of state for Africa.

"African countries make up one quarter of the nations in the General Assembly of the United Nations. The continent of Africa is now a giant testing ground to determine whether freedom can be maintained in conditions somewhere great masses of people live on the marginal edge of existence, struggling against illiteracy, disease, malnutrition and civil division."

The president-elect went on to say that the fate of Africa must be the object of "a giant Communist offensive," and that its future "will affect vitally the security of every citizen of the United States."

Police Chief Lectures Group On Life Saving

TRENTON — Chief Constable F. J. Taylor lectured to members of the department and a number of interested persons, including members of a boy scout troop, on the subject of mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, Tuesday night.

Sgt. Gordon Steenburg showed a 30-minute colored film, "That They Might Live." The film told the story of a young newspaper reporter enquiring into details of this form of life-saving. The narrator of the film was a doctor who advocates this method, which may be used in cases of asphyxiation, drowning, electrical shock, choking, heart attacks and other accidents which almost can cause death.

Mouth-to-mouth resuscitation is as old as recorded history. The application of this method is mentioned several times in the Bible. A fact which few people know s that the life of Abraham Lincoln was prolonged for several hours by this type of resuscitation.

Lt.-Gov. Weaver Installed by His Predecessor

Lt.-Gov. Weaver praised the work of his predecessor, Lt.-Gov. McNeely, and voiced the hope that he might follow in the footsteps of previous lieutenant-governors in upholding the fine reputation Division 6-A holds in the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime District.

He introduced the members of his faculty to the delegates. These included Past Lt.-Gov. Ted Parker; Past Lt. Gov. William Slade of Belleville; Past Lt.-Gov. Murray Dryden of the Kingsway club, Division 4-A; Past Lt.-Gov. William McNeely, Bath-Milhaven; President Cap Davis of the Kingston club and President Dick Burnet of Trenton, who is secretary of Division 6-A for the 1960-61 term.

Lt. Gov. Weaver urged all delegates to attend the International convention which will be held in Toronto July 2-6. International convention has not been held in Canada since 1934. He said that each club should be represented by at least two delegates.

The district convention will be held at Quebec City, Sept. 4-27.

Chamber Urges Parents to Get Out and Vote

TRENTON — Tomorrow the Chamber of Commerce will distribute 4,000 letters urging parents to set a good example to their children by getting out to vote on Monday.

Chamber president, Douglas Whitley suggests that parents sit down and explain to their children the significance and importance of voting.

"We don't care how you vote," the letters say. "We merely ask you to review the candidates carefully and vote for the people whom you think will do the job best."

Similar letters were distributed by the chamber to school children last year. The voting was increased by 50 per cent over the previous year.

Moving Towards Unity

Monday's news brought two reports of moves, one political and one economic, one from awakening Africa and one from old Europe, which could be signposts to future developments.

In Africa President Kwame Nkrumah announced that his country, Ghana, had agreed with Mali on the setting up of a common parliament. Even if these two newly-independent African nations had no firm ties with the outside world, this move would have been important, as a concrete step towards the ideal of a United States of Africa, to the achievement of which many of the leaders of independence movements have pledged their efforts.

Even greater significance, however, attaches to the fact that Ghana is a member of the British Commonwealth, while Mali is a state in the French Community, established by General de Gaulle in the past couple of years as he has gone quietly but efficiently about the task of turning the former French colonies into counterparts of the self-governing dominions and republics of the Commonwealth. Rather obviously, the decision of Ghana and Mali to establish a common parliament raises difficult constitutional questions.

The Commonwealth, however, has shown such remarkable flexibility in the period of readjustments since the end of the Second Great War that there is really no reason to believe it incapable of hurdling the unorthodox hurdle, and the Commonwealth, new and duplicated by the French Community, there will come into existence a permanent bond between Commonwealth and Community which could easily set a pattern for future links between members of the two great organizations.

Meanwhile, back in Europe, the Western European Consultative Assembly was preparing to consider a resolution which would recommend that Britain be invited to join the six-nation European Common Market, if this proposal should, in the course of time, be fully implemented, it will almost certainly involve an agreement between the latter bloc of the Common Market and the Outer Seven of the European Free Trade Association, of which Britain is a member. Thus trade organizations which came into being as rivals may eventually be transformed into collaborators. This possibility is even greater interest when it is noted that the Belgian who is sponsoring the recommendation for Britain's admission to the Common Market says this membership "could never be and should never be" at the cost of Britain cutting its links with the Commonwealth.

Wendell Willkie's "One World" may still be a long way off, but on different fronts different nations are cautiously feeling their way along paths which, if they prove passable, will materially close the gaps which separate nations of greatly varying histories and cultures.

Quite A Present

Sir Alan Herbert, noted British author and playwright, has suggested that Britain should accrap the British North Ageerica Act in Canada's centennial year, 1967.

To quote Sir Herbert:

"On July 1st, 1967, Canada will be celebrating her centennial year . . . We might well give notice now that on that day we propose to tear the act from our statute book."

This certainly sounds like an original idea. Sir Herbert's good intentions and magnanimity are not to be questioned, but we wonder if he considered just what would be the real result if the British North America Act were to be "torn from our statute book."

It would mean that Canadians would not know where they stood on many matters. Up for reconsideration would be many of the problems which confronted the Fathers of Confederation, for, in taking away the BNA Act, the foundation on which many of our current Canadian laws stand would be no more.

With the disappearance of the BNA Act there would be open for our consideration the question of the division of federal and provincial rights. What a wonderful opportunity it would be for our political parties to acquire a definite character and new suit of clothes for the next one hundred years.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WE NEED TO HURRY

The attic!
What a place it is. Clothes that were in style twenty years ago may still be in some of the hangers. Books are piled up to the rafters, furniture which will undoubtedly be carted away to the dump is stored as carefully as if the pieces were precious antiques. Then when we pass away and the children come in to settle the affairs, they will ring for the trash man to bring his largest truck and begin carting down about 98 per cent of what they find in the attic.

We carry an attic about with us all the time. It is our upper story. Here we put things away in form of memory, conviction, and all too often prejudice and bigotry. Oh, no, we could not disturb things in the attic under any consideration. Now listen to the chatter: "What do you mean when you speak about prejudices? Don't you know that every decent person believes this, that or something else and we are just following the line of common decency? Bigotry? I'll have you know that I am a person of high and unyielding beliefs. Distortion, indeed! I have none of these things. I think straight. I say no one. All I have is the environment we do without anything stirred up!"

Friend, get up into that attic before your heirs come in and discover what a junk pile you have created. There are many precious memories there which they will carry away with them, but the rest will go to the dump heap.

Gravity and Curved Space

By HON. ROBERT W. MACAULAY
Ontario Minister of Energy Resources

ARTICLE 46

When you let go of an object in mid-air, why does it fall to earth?

Why does the moon go around the earth, or the earth around the Sun? Why does the Milky Way move around in a group with 15 other galaxies? Why are all the galaxies moving in the universe at such speeds as to suggest that the universe is expanding in most directions, possibly up to 320,000,000 miles an hour?

In that the earth spins, why does it not spin off into space? Einstein has the answer to these with his law of gravitation in 1907. He said in effect:

Newton said that gravitation accounts for the paths that the planets take over and over again. Those paths, be they circles or ellipses, are travelled over and over again by each planet and the paths do not change.

AN ERROR HOWEVER IN NEWTON'S LAW WAS SOON TO BE KNOWN AS THE FATHER'S BLAME

Newton said all the planets follow their own particular paths year after year. Einstein said they do not! Their paths are slightly altered by all the time and that accounts for the gradual shifting in the path of the planet Mercury.

Earth's path hardly changes at all during the century. In fact, it would take 34 million years for it to change as much as Mercury's path, however, changes Einstein's theories have also showed mathematically that the path of each planet forms a spiral.

The second part of Einstein's law involved light. Einstein said, in 1911, that if this principle is correct, then light would bend as it passed near a body subject to space, and he predicted the degree of the bend.

Light had not been thought of as bending out in space, prior to Einstein. He predicted that if he was correct that light given off by a star hidden from our view by the Sun, could nevertheless be seen bending around the Sun during a total eclipse of the Sun by the moon. (Remember, the moon comes between Earth and Sun in such a way that the Sun is blocking out moonlight.) There will be much light but through a place of darkness which you can see the moon pass across the face of the Sun.) It is for a short moment that the Sun's intensity is sufficiently reduced that the Sun can be seen to bend and the light of a star can be seen to bend as it curves around the Sun.

Light will not bend unless something influences it — under normal conditions it will go in a straight line.

THEORY PROVED

In 1919 during a total eclipse, astronomers saw the light of a distant star, which was not in a direct line of sight with the earth. This could only be accounted for by the drawing as Einstein predicted. The light bent or was bent.

Why?

Light had been described in such a way that it would perhaps respond to Newton's law of gravitation. Could the light bend around the Sun because of the Sun's gravitational pull? But what then, pray tell, was surely, light was "matter" because Newton's law of gravitation was accounted for the attraction between "matter". Einstein was forced to ponder, yet again about the composition of light, whether it was matter or not, and came to the understanding of light by the fact that the Sun's gravitation as an area had invisible contours created in space because of the presence of the Sun. And the light simply followed the invisible contours that the Sun and was in this way bent off its straight course.

Thus, Einstein said that the light was bent because the space through which it passed was warped. Other scientists say this is the same thing as gravity, actually, as Einstein put it forth, does not account for Mercury's path, Einstein's curved space does so. It is difficult to say that two equations which produce different results are the same thing.)

In any event, Einstein saw the cause of the bending of light as "curved space" and not gravitation. It is now much too clever to be caught in a description of "waves of light" which can be defined mathematically, for, sometimes light has the characteristics of a particle and sometimes the characteristics of a wave.

SPACE GETS BENT

Einstein says that the space around a large object gets bent or is curved. When light comes near this large object, it must pass through the space ahead of it. But the space ahead has been bent by the object's shape and by the presence of the large object. As the light approaches this invisible bend, it follows the invisible rim of the bowl thereby bending its course before it goes again on its way.

Another example might be to stretch a thin rubber sheet over the top of a kettledrum. Send a heavy shot onto the rubber sheet, it will travel on the flat surface in a straight line across the sheet.

Now, place a few lead weights on the rubber sheet and then send the bee across the rubber. In this case, I think this bee-bee will start out in a straight line, then, as the propelling force of the lead weight, it will curve around it and pass on, sometimes, I think, curving off its original course. This is how light acts as it goes by Newton's law of gravitation was close to that of Einstein's. In the end difference accounted for Mercury's odd behavior.

EINSTEIN'S LAW TO BLAME

Newton said all the planets follow their own particular paths year after year. Einstein said they do not! Their paths are slightly altered by all the time and that accounts for the gradual shifting in the path of the planet Mercury.

Three Guesses Who Has Got A Better Car

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices:

The fact that the car manufacturers pretend to become sophisticated as quickly as possible — and realizing that the sophisticate spends much of his time in ostentation — is an indictment of the young and the naive; no other goal, once achieved, is so ephemeral as that of "worldliness."

Nations, like individuals, often don't know where their best interests lie: they went to war with Napoleon when Napoleon was beaten at Waterloo, but his defeat was the best thing for the modern French nation.

Similarly, we are most unlovely (and unlovable) of all human emotions; while anger, effective in discharging, can cleanse the soul,self pity merely clogs the emotional arteries and gives you self.

People who repeat the tired statement that "dogs don't belong in the city" forget that the city is the first civilized creature, and that dogs today are no longer dogs, but exist in a real state of nature than mankind is. The dog cannot exercise a sentence of humor to God; yet I am convinced that humor is one of God's most cherished graces, and therefore must reflect a quality that which is ignored by the devoutly solemn.

America is the only country in the world where your maid's husband can, and does, drive a better and newer car than you.

Those who are honest only because they believe honesty is the best policy have not read the ancient words of Chuang-Tse, who said: "There is no greater injury to one's character than practicing virtue with motives."

When we are young we cannot make conversation without contradicting. Then, as we grow, we learn that the true art of conversation consists in sitting on the floor or a wing to the structure, not in demolishing what has been built by others.

If love doesn't increase vitality, there is something wrong with it; a love that makes one listless, ingrown and dissatisfied is not love but a form of stomachic, hearts, bowels, and the other fallow organs of the brain.

The hardest thing for a lazy man who is listen to what people say about us, and when to disregard what they say about us; for there is always something in the most unfair criticism, and always something false in the most sincere compliment.

Letter To The Editor

Suggests Bus Route Pass by Two Schools

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Having read an article which appeared in your paper ago, that helped straighten out the bus route in the West Street route, here's hoping this letter will help iron out the flaws in your workable route.

First, I wish to state I do appreciate having the bus service out here and use it to advantage.

Now the bus comes down Sidney, crosses Auburn, goes up Dundas and down Bell and back up Sidney and down town again. Many children attend both of the Quinte High School and King George school, and thereby make a big demand on the area who could use it on days such as Nov. 30 when classes were dismissed.

Both of my children have been under treatment medical treatment for bronchitis since they started school. I feel that both of them should be out in the miserable weather and it seems to me the only time I do not have our car is when I need it most. Also there are other children in the area with the same thing and I am sure they would like to get school on a bus if one passed their way at 8.20 am. and 10 after 12 and 3.30 p.m. and 5 after 4.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

PITTSBURGH ROSEA DOES NOT ALARM DOCTORS

"Dear Dr. Molner: I had a disease called pityriasis rosea recently. It stayed on me for about three weeks. The doctor said it isn't unusual, but he had never seen it before. Can you tell me about it? — Mrs. D. E. C."

Well, it's not as common as a stubbed toe, but it isn't as rare as having triplets, which in my way of admitting that I don't happen to have any statistics on it. Besides, I've never encountered surprised when a patient comes in and says, "What's dogging me all these pink spots?"

Pityriasis rosea (pity-RI-uh-SIS-ROZE-uh) is a mild skin disease which is most often seen in the spring, summer and autumn, and the patient is surprised and alarmed, but his doctor isn't.

It usually starts with a single spot, variously described as "red-brown or "salmon or "pinkish" in color. It also is rather big, from 1 to 2 inches. The likeliest place for the first spot to occur is the chest, but it can appear where it might be elsewhere. This first spot is known as the "herald patch."

Thereafter other spots develop, usually in crops, in various ways on the trunk) until there is quite a few of them present. Wherefer the spots occur, there's one fortunate thing. The face, the palms of the hands and the soles of the feet are usually spared.

Many times the spots in some area will spread until they form a large discolored patch of skin. The "growing stage" of the spots may last for a week or two, after which the whole business begins to fade. Some experts say that the trouble has run its course in as little as three weeks. I'd rather be optimistic and say that the discolovation will be gone somewhere between one and three months.

It isn't an especially itchy dis ease, but some folks may sometimes itch a little. The patient, as a rule, doesn't feel ill. In a severe case, he may feel sick but since we are interested in talk about anything we can see to cover handling.

Several readers have written to protest the Packsack's suggestion that the annual brain fix merely another giblet to be kept simmering in the pot-pourri of and an occasional resort to medicine. Just as we control our stomachs, hearts, bowels, and the other fallow organs of the brain.

The hardest thing is to know when to listen to what people say about us, and when to disregard what they say about us; for there is always something in the most unfair criticism, and always something false in the most sincere compliment.

QUINTE

By LYNNE BROWN
and HELEN VOZOBULE

How are your tango, rhumba, waltz and cha-cha? Have you got two left feet or one of each? This week the physical education department at Quinte commenced the latest attempt at developing two or three periods to dancing. Put fun in your life — try dancing! It will be a pleasure as long as you keep your own toes upon your own soles.

Wednesday's assembly revealed new (to most of us) and old (to some of us) aspects of "plastic." The speaker was Mr. Douglas Walkington, whose interest in chemistry has occupied his hours for the past 40 years.

The "Romance of Chemistry" as he named his presentation, explained the relationship of certain metals or materials to very important chemicals in order to produce a reaction. The product which is then two different provides us with toys and clothes. Some of the materials which he showed us were polythene, terylene, nylon and dacron. By the time we left the assembly everyone had discovered something new and very helpful to our everyday actions.

HELPING CARDS

The Keyette Club is selling Christmas cards again this year. The cards are designed especially for Quinte students for they consist of a sketch of "dear, old" Quinte and the school crest. Be sure and order enough cards—and order them now!

Our school band deserves a great deal of credit for its participation and entertainment at many special occasions. They played at all of our home football games, at Home and School meetings, at assemblies and in the Remembrance Day parade. We will all look forward to seeing the band in the Santa Claus parade, too! We are sure that none of this, as a great aid to our "school spirit", would have been possible without "Mac-Band", B. Chenard the band's musicians. All of Quinte expresses appreciation and good luck to the band. We hope you do well in the competitions at the Kiwanis Festival in Toronto.

MOIRA

By Carole McDougall and Eleanor Flindall

The subject of having cadets at Moira this year was looked into before exams. About 75 boys showed interest and an army cadet corps is now being formed. A band will take shape along with the corps if there is a sufficient number interested and if the instruments can be borrowed from another school.

To keep up the athletic record at Moira the junior girls' basketball team was organized and they now are practising. The senior team has not yet been chosen. From the fine show of contesting among the boys, able teams are guaranteed. Equally keen supporters are awaiting the beginning of the inter-school games.

It looks as though our teachers are trying to outdo our school team! We students are proud of their prowess in the field bowling. Amid the encouraging cheers of supporters coming from the balcony, the physical education staff started up enough points to win a volleyball match against the boys' volleyball team.

Although we seem more aware of the boys' sports at Moira, we realize that the girls are busy choosing basket, soccer and senior basketball teams.

Since September we have been looking forward to the first publishing (this year) of the Moirambler. It's out! Congratulations to the Moirambler staff for producing the best school newspaper in Ontario. To celebrate the success of their paper, Moirambler Society is holding the most unusual rollicking dance of the school year. As well as dancing, there promise to be games and a floor show. So, whatever your interest, come to Mickey's dance and have a "wild time" this Friday night at the Moirambler Mayhem!

RICHARD D. JONES

Guest Speaker At Banquet Of Cheesemakers

Widely travelled Methodist minister and long associated with the National Conference of Canadians and Jews, Richard D. Jones of Toronto, will be the guest speaker at the annual Cheesemakers' banquet to be held at the Mastbaum Temple next Wednesday evening.

The Cheesemakers' banquet will conclude the annual Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Convention to be held at the Hotel Quinte on December 6th and 7th.

In conjunction with the convention the British Empire Dairy Show is being held at the same time in the market room at city hall. This year, for the first time in the year history of the show prize cheese will be sold in consumer sized packages.

Born in New Jersey, Wednesday evening's banquet speaker is a graduate of Wesleyan and Boston University and prior to his ordination into the Methodist ministry in 1934 taught languages at Athens College, at Athens.

He was appointed director of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews in 1947 and was a member of the Canadian delegation to the World Brotherhood Conferences held in Paris in 1950 and in Brussels in 1951. He has been a Canadian citizen since 1957.

Student Tells Of Teacher's Summer Trip

By HELEN VOZOBULE
(Quinte S.S.)

This summer, a lot of travelling seemed to be in order, and the activities of Miss Stuart of our dear old alma mater, Quinte, were no exception. During a few short months on her tour of South America, Miss Stuart visited such countries as Peru, Uruguay, Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Bolivia, Ecuador and Panama. So with my pad and pencil in hand, I set about the task of finding out something about this excursion from Miss Stuart herself.

It seems that the rest of the group with which Miss Stuart was to travel left on June 30, and she (because of the mail papers she had to mark) followed later. She says that all of the South Americans treated the members of the party like kings and queens, and when ever the badge which identified them as part of this teachers' party was flashed around, they were given as much luxury as there was to offer.

The group arrived in Venezuela (still in time for the 4th of July) and was held up at the airport while the plane was being checked for engine trouble. There were 3,000 miles of headhunter country to fly over, so a nice section didn't have been enjoyed very much. Miss Stuart was glad that the scenery was beautiful throughout the country, and when I said how about Brasilia, the capital of Brazil, she acknowledged that it is indeed a beautiful city.

Next, I asked her how food had been. The food decreased her face and her answer was the same as those of my thoughts. "Hot" is the word", she said, "and my stomach didn't agree with one bill"

I could feel the sechildaas, or whatever they were stinging my palate, so I changed the subject and asked about the most important thing of the whole trip from the South America Conference held in Paris in 1959 at the Sorbonne. Miss Stuart said that they are much more eager to study than we Canadians are. Because of the scarcity of libraries and lack of facilities, the highest of the average Peruvian or Brazilian can go in school is up to grade 5. Imagine that! The majority of the children of South America get no education at all, but spend their days tilling the poor soil and watching their sheep or goats and grass on the barren hillsides. They have to do all of these heavy manual labor and they get no education. We grumble and complain about the studying we have to do in order to get a good job, but our fast-growing society, while they would give their right arm to be able to study hard and just to get an education. The typical South American lives in a one room hut and tries to earn his bread by tending his little farm. He gets barely enough to eat. There is nothing for him in his barren land of lack. With it he seems content.

Then do you know what Miss Stuart said? I'm sure you can guess; you've heard it often enough, but here it is again. She said, "Thank God, thank Him for the blessings of your heart that you have the abundance and opportunity that this great country has to offer — this country, Canada!"

'Religious' Souvenirs Annoy Woman Writer

TORONTO —"Religious" souvenirs and novelties are the curse for a shellacking by Jean Shilton, writing in the current issue of The United Church Observer.

Admitting that she can see some sense in religious texts to hang on the wall, Mrs. Shilton says she can't see much sense in buying a comb and mirror set with a colorful picture of Jesus on the words "Jesus Never Failed" embossed on it.

She does she like the idea of a mulated pearl bracelet on which hangs a rhodium-plated emblem which tell the world "I Am a Protestant!"

Mrs. Shilton says that manufacturers of religious novelties are offering a set of drop earrings with the clef symbol, for choir members.

Then, too, there is "the teen commandments" bracelet. Mrs. Shilton suggests that the manufacturers remember one of the ten Commandments about not taking the name of God in vain.

Other religious novelties offered the public today, Mrs. Shilton says include a necktie embroidered with small gold crowns; a praying hands tieback; an artificial white carnation for ushers, and balloons that have "Rally Day" printed on them.

The religious value of that is all but nil," Mrs. Shilton writes. "Whatever meaning might attach to leaf texts and symbols in the beginning is lost by over-exposure."

JAILED FOR RIOT

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—Ten men and one woman were convicted Wednesday on charges of unlawful assembly and riot, the result of a wild melee early Nov. 13 outside the Hungarian hall at the edge of downtown Lethbridge. The men were sentenced to four months each and the woman, Mary Tonjay, to a one-month sentence.

Pleads Guilty To Procuring

NEWMARKET (CP) — Ronald Charles Baker, 21, of Stouffville, was convicted on three charges Wednesday involving sexual relations with juvenile girls.

Baker pleaded not guilty to a charge of having intercourse with a juvenile and to two charges of procuring, but when three Stouffville men testified against him he changed his plea to guilty on the procuring charges.

The girls involved were aged between 17 and 18.

Chairman of Special Fund Awarded Regimental Cane

Mr. W. G. Spencer, formerly principal of Trenton High School, now retired and living at Port Colborne, was presented with a special cane at the annual meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Association's scholarship fund committee held last Monday evening at the regimental armouries.

The fun was initiated in 1947 with the purpose of helping the children of veterans of the regiment, who had died overseas, to attain a higher education. The only other qualification was that the recipient have the ability and the energy to prove that he was benefiting by this assistance.

Mr. Spencer was appointed chairman and administrator of this fund in autumn of 1948, by which time over $6,000 had been raised. Over the past years some 11 students have benefited from the fund. Of these one is currently in second year at the University of Western Ontario, three are in grade 13 at various Ontario high schools and one is attending grammar school in England. The other recipients have completed their education.

The fund is expected to have completed its purpose during the next two years, by which time its monies will have been completely used up. Due to his faithful service in administering the fund, Mr. Spencer was honored by the association with a cane bearing the regimental crest. The presentation was made by Major Howard M. Reid of Picton.

INFORMATION TO THURLOW TOWNSHIP VOTERS

As there have been more than the required number of candidates qualify for the three vacant positions on Council, an Election will be held on

MONDAY, Dec. 5th 1960

POLLING HOURS ARE FROM
9.00 a.m. to 7.00 p.m.

Due to changes caused by annexation, since the last Election, it has been found necessary to create two new Polling Subdivisions and to renumber and re-arrange the boundaries of several others. The following information is for the guidance of those persons qualified to vote and who live in the areas where changes have been made.

Poll No. 1—POINT ANNE

No change in boundaries. The voting is to take place in the Orange Hall at Point Anne.

Poll No. 2—FRONT ROAD

This Poll now includes all that area (with the exception of Point Anne) extending from the easterly boundary of the Township of Ameliasburg and south of the C.P.R. main line, to the easterly boundary of the Township of Sidney, including is to take place in the residence of Mr. Fred Pope.

Poll No. 3—SECOND CONCESSION

Includes all that area east of the City of Belleville, north of the Canadian Pacific Railway main line, south of Provincial Highway No. 401 and extending to the easterly boundary of the Township of Sidney. It is to take place in the Douglas R. Aikins Public School.

Poll No. 4—MOIRA WEST

This is a new Poll and comprises the area bounded on the south by Provincial Highway 401, on the west by the west boundary of the Township of Thurlow, on the north by Moira River and on the north by the Fifth Concession Road. Mr. Harold Fairfield's Garage is to take place in the residence of Mr. Harry Twamley.

Poll No. 5—CANNIFTON

There have been some changes in the boundaries of this Poll. The boundaries of that area bounded on the west by the Moira River, on the south by Provincial Highway No. 401, on the east by the Canadian National Railways line to Corbyville as far as the new Highway No. 37 and then north along the said Highway No. 37 as far as the Hydro Electric Power Line for the transmission of Natural Gas. The right-of-way for this pipe line is the northerly boundary of the Poll. Voting is to take place in the Township Hall at Canniffon.

Poll No. 6—BETHANY

This is a new Poll and includes all the area north of Provincial Highway No. 401 and east of Provincial Highway No. 37 as relocated, except the north half on Lot 10 in Con. 2, the whole of lots 10 and 11 in Con. 4 and the north half of Lot 12 in Con. 4, which are in Poll No. 7—Corbyville. Voting is to take place in the residence of Mr. Vernon Hamilton.

Poll No. 7—CORBYVILLE

The boundaries of this Poll have also been changed, and it now comprises all of the area in Con. 5 from the aforesaid Section Lot 2 and 3 to the east boundary of the Township. In addition, the whole or the north part of Lots 7 to 11 in Con. 4 lying north east of the Moira River, and the north half of Lot 12 in Con. 4. Also those portions of Lots 8 to 10 in Concession 3 lying east of the Moira River and north of The Trans Canada Pipe Line for the transmission of Natural Gas. Voting is to take place in the residence of Mr. Lorne Wellman.

Poll No. 8—FOXBORO

There has been little change in this Poll with the south boundary now being the Fifth Concession road (at Fairfield's Bridge) west of the river and extending easterly to the sideroad between lots 8 and 7 east of the river. The other boundaries are as they have been for some time. Voting is to take place at the residence of Mr. G. V. Ducette.

Poll No. 9—ZIONS

There has been no change in the boundaries of this Poll. Voting is to take place in the residence of Mr. W. Donald Sills.

Poll No. 10—PLAINFIELD

There has been no change in the boundaries of this poll. Voting is to take place in the Plainfield Orange Hall.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian W.G. Sponsors Yuletide Tea

Yesterday was noted for two outstanding events, St. Andrew's Day," in honor of Scotland's patron saint, and the tea and bazaar sponsored by the Women's Guild of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The minister of the church, the Reverend R. D. MacLean, officially opened the bazaar open after reading a portion of Scripture from I Chronicles and Matthew.

Everywhere the eye turned the theme of Christmas was evident in the colorful booths, and especially in the beautifully decorated tea room with its glistening white yuletide trees decked with crimson globes, the long row of lighted candles on the platform used for the serve-the tea guests, and the gorgeous gleaming five-pointed star in the east. Added to these were the little white decorated trees in each window, and the lovely tea tables with their red cloths, each centred with a white tree, flanked with the lighted red candles whose flickering flames were reflected on the silver serviettes. Gay, festive, and adorned servitrices added to the general effect.

MANY BOOTHS

Hither and yon the booths were placed, some upstairs, and others in the lower auditorium. The first booth to greet the eye was that of the aprons, where a splendid assortment was for sale. There were dishcloth aprons with crochet lace edges; pretty prints in half and all-over styles; organdy and other materials, in gay colors of yellow, green, blues, reds and many in combination colors and materials.

On the fancy cottons and handcrafts many pretty and useful articles drew the attention, especially the finely embroidered tea table cloths, and pillow cases, crochet doilies; bottles of bath salts; fragrance candles and many others.

CANDIES

The candy booth with its bottle of colored globes was replete with nicely packaged maple creams, divinity fudge, chocolate fudge, all of which were eagerly picked up.

In the lower auditorium the Canadian Girl Guides had a white elephant table, prettily canopied in silver and blue. There were several pieces of costume jewellery, variety plants, wall pla ques, games and knits.

One of the busiest booths was that of the "children's" table, where relatives congregated to select something for the kiddies. Request the home from the various sweater sets; bonnets; aprons; booties; dress-lengths; sets consisting of toy broom, mops, and other gadgets used in the home; little warm flannelette pyjama sets in colorful designs; tea and upholstered easy chairs for dolls; cudly rag dolls; a fine desk and matching chair, to mention a few of the nice articles, each suitable for a gift.

DELICIOUS CONFECTIONS

As usual the home baking room bowned with weight-by purchasers and the delicious pies of every type, chocolate and coconut covered layer and loaf cakes; taffy-tarts; mouth-melting short breads; the tempting tie cup cakes; muffins, were soon a thing of the past.

In the delicatessen room more mouth-watering viands met the eye, fragrant carrot puddings; potato salads; rory cheeked Mcintosh apples; sausage rolls; meat pies and a couple of new comers, in the form of bacon bits and other tasty viands in egg sauce, something like an omelet, only in pie shells; pickles, and relishes, jelly and jams, and almost anything needed for a hearty snack, and the "unexpected".

FINE TEA, BAZAAR

An unexcedingly fine tea and bazaar bringing a "well done" to the committees with a long and Mrs. H. Freebron, as well as to Mrs. W. D. Cook and Mrs. G. Robertson for delightful decorating effects.

Others taking part in the tea and bazaar included the following whose efforts are to be commended:

Wedding

FOSTER — EHMANN

FRANKFORD — On Saturday, November 19th, the Very Rev. Matthew G. Meehan officiated at the ceremony in St. Patrick's Church, Tuam, uniting in marriage Miss Dorothea Elaine Ehmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred John Ehmann, and Mr. Wilfred George Foster, son of Mr. and Mrs. John William Foster of Frankford.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of peau de soie and Brussels lace in Wedgwood white. The bodice was fashioned with a long torso and featured a circlet neckline and lily-pointed sleeves. The bouffant skirt, pouffed at the hipline, swept to a chapel train. A matching satin crown caught her finger-tip veil and she carried a white prayer book crested with a white orchid and stephanotis streamers. Miss Doreen Ehmann, sister of the bride was maid of honor. Her gown, in American Beauty rose peau de soie, was fashioned the bouffant skirt, pouffed at the hipline, swept to a chapel train. A matching satin crown caught her finger-tip veil and she carried a white prayer book crested with a white orchid and stephanotis streamers. Miss Doreen Ehmann, sister of the bride was maid of honor. Her gown, in American Beauty rose peau de soie, was fashioned the bouffant skirt, pouffed at the hipline, and featured a Sabrina neckline with cap sleeves. She carried a Colonial bouquet of carnations and pink Sweetheart roses.

Miss Ehmann, sister of the bride, was Miss Sharon Gardiner, cousin of the bride, as flower girl. She too had a cherry pink sash and she carried a Colonial bouquet.

Mr. Victor Cuba was best man and the ushers were: Mr. John LeClaire, Mr. William Ehmann, brother of the bride.

Out-of-town guests were present from Montreal; Trenton; Glen Miller; Frankford; Burlington and Guelph.

Medical W.A. Told About Heart Group

A short review of the "Heart Foundation" was given by Dr. William Hipwell of Sidney, at the meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary and Prince Edward Medical Society Women's Auxiliary, in the Nurses' Education Hall. This Foundation saw its inception in 1952 and in 1956 became a national organization. Each province has a foundation of its own, but all work together in the main office.

A film, "The Valiant Heart," was also shown, depicting the story of a nine-year-old boy who had a rheumatic heart; its treatment and care and his ultimate recovery.

Thanks were extended to Dr. Hipwell for his enlightening talk and to Mrs. A. Elliott for showing the film.

Mrs. Neiles announced the Christmas party for the Arthritics would be held on December 7th and asked for volunteers to serve and donate pies and jelled salads.

WINTER SALADS

Fresh fruits and vegetables are available for healthful and appetizing salads all year round.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The Women of the Moose held their last meeting of November in the Moose Hall with Senior Regent, Bernice Prindle, presiding.

One new candidate was enrolled.

Get-well cards and gifts were sent to those who were ill in hospital.

Rudy Morris and Alice Woodcox thanked the Chapter for cards and gifts received while they were ill.

There will be a euchre held at Bessie Prindle's on Thursday night.

Tickets were sold on a basket of groceries and won by Althea Craighead of Trenton. The draw was donated by Dorothy Potter and Selina Jales.

Euchre was played after the meeting. Prizes and refreshments were served by Pearl Welch and her committee.

Roslin Couple Mark 59th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Perry (Edna) Arnold, Miss Velma Chapman, Miss Edith Wright and Miss Elsie Wright of Toronto, spent Sunday with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chapman, Roslin, who celebrated their 59th wedding anniversary on November 27.

Rose and yellow 'mums decorated the table, gifts of the United Church and Eastern Star. Other gifts were presented, also many beautiful cards were received in keeping with the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Chapman received the congratulations of their many friends.

Divorce Laws' Topic at Women's S.G.

Canada's divorce laws were examined in the November meeting of the Women's Study Guild at the home of Mrs. G. H. Trill, 211 George Street.

Mrs. G. Meades conducted the meditation titled, 'Love and Marriage,' reading the words of Jesus on the subject as recorded in St. Mark 10.

Mrs. A. A. Fleming and Miss J. Tickell led the program, "Should Canada's Divorce Laws be Changed?" Examples of some of the divorce laws were read from Standing Rules and Orders of the Senate of Canada Regarding Divorce". It was pointed that connivance at, or condonation of adultery, or collusion in proceedings for divorce is always sufficient 'grounds for refusing a Bill of Divorce, yet this law is often flouted.

Each province, except Quebec and Newfoundland, has its own divorce laws. These laws have not been changed since Confederation, though those of Great Britain were broadened in 1937.

SUGGESTIONS FOR CHANGE

Definite reforms suggested were: (1) Quebec and Newfoundland should have a National Divorce Court, thus getting divorce cases out of Parliament. (2) Grounds for divorce should be broadened in line with those in keeping with the flouting of present laws. (3) Some legislation other than the Senate and Parliament should deal with divorce cases.

During the discussion, it was pointed out that the welfare of children should be carefully guarded. An interesting statement was made that in societies where marriages were arranged by parents, there was a low rate of bridegroom, there were few divorces.

Many Guild members felt that there should be much more marriage counselling at home, and by trained counsellors, and from the churches.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. F. A. Orr and Mrs. H. C. Sidon.

Fiancee of King Baudoin Comes of Wealthy Family

By HENRY BUCKLEY

MADRID (Reuters) — Dona Fabiola de Mora, 32-year-old auburn - haired Spanish noblewoman who wed King Baudouin of Belgium Dec. 15, comes of a wealthy family that has titles dating from the last century and whose riches have come mainly from banking.

Fabiola is the daughter of the second Count Mora, who also was the fourth Marquis of Casa Riera. The Marquis of Casa Riera was a banker and he left a fortune when he died in 1925 at the age of 80.

The Moras are not one of Spain's great feudal families. But they are wealthy and of high social standing. Fabiola's title carries with it grandeship of Spain, the hallmark of the old-established, leading aristocratic houses.

The dowager Countess of Mora, mother of Fabiola, belongs to a noble family of Navarre, in northern Spain whose lineage runs back nearly 1,000 years.

SOCIETY WEDDING

Quiet and ordered indeed was the life of this slender young beauty before King Baudouin entered it. Her day began with Mass and the only recreation at the church of Santa Barbara, near Madrid's law courts.

She would walk back to her apartment with a maid and with her personal maid, Violeta, and a cook in an apartment of her own for about a mother died tragically in automobile and in Switzerland.

Then she would see needy people who came to her door to ask for help or, occasionally, go with other noblewomen to scrub floors or peel potatoes at soup kitchens for the patients at a Madrid hospital.

Every other day she would have at home for old people run by nuns in another part of Madrid.

Then there were visits, though not frequent, to her dressmaker and to her milliner.

Fabiola often goes to lunch with her mother, who lives in the Palacio de Liria on the Zurbano Street. She likes steaks rare and also has a taste for such Basque country dishes of northern Spain as a boiled codfish with green peas.

Fabiola often attended the private services of beatification at some church nearby, and after lunch she would rest. She rarely went to receptions or entertained guests and spent the evening writing letters, knitting or reading.

Alpha Lambda Holds Dessert, Theatre Party

Members of Alpha Lambda Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held a delightful coffee and dessert party on November 28th at the home of Mrs. S. Kneeshaw, in McDonald Gardens. This was preceded by the group's attendance at the Belleville Theatre Guild's play, "The Heiress" in which sorority member, Mrs. G. Thompson, gave an excellent performance as "Catherine". The two new pledges, Mrs. V. Simmons and Mrs. J. Thomson were honored guests at this social event.

LONG LIVES

The longevity of parrots may be over-estimated, but one cockatoo was still in fine feather when it died in Washington at age 70.

Mead Johnson Firm Holds Yuletide Party

The annual Christmas party of Mead Johnson's Employees' Association was held in the Army and Navy Hall on November 26.

A delicious turkey dinner was served to approximately 160 members and their friends, under the direction of Mrs. Audrey Davies and Mrs. Frank Douglas of the Tabernacle Church.

Guests of honor were: Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Wishart; Mr. and Mrs. P. McWilliams; Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Lacy; Mr. and Mrs. R. Hoff.

'Coming Out' Party Held By Labor Unique in Land

By JANET WILSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Seventeen-year-old Montreal dressmakers will be presented at a big "coming out" party that is unique in Canada.

They will appear at the "Ball des Midinettes" Dec. 3. But they won't be presented to the lieutenant - governor. Instead they will make their curtsies to Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labor Congress.

One of the 17 will be chosen "Queen of the Midinettes" and crowned with a thimble. Her sceptre will be an oversized sewing needle.

The event was organized before the Second World War by the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, to give—in the words of ILGW's education director Yvette Charpentier—"poor kids who work in shops an opportunity to go to a really big ball."

Discontinued for the duration of the war, it was resumed in 1946 and has been going strong ever since.

POPULAR FUNCTION

The ball is attended by as many of the union's 12,000 Montreal members as can afford ball gowns, by union officials, by city dignitaries—the city provides the candlelight buffet—and by the employers of the contestants.

It is held at a downtown hotel and contestants arrive early to be interviewed by a panel usually composed of three well-known Quebec radio and TV personalities.

This year, actor Paul Dupuis and actresses Andree Champagne and Antoinette Giroux will select the girl considered to best symbolize workers in the needle trade.

All the contestants are chosen by their fellow-workers on the basis of intelligence, appearance and personality.

GOWNS PROVIDED

They are given the necessary while formals by their employers, who often try to out-do each other in magnificence.

The ball is roughly patterned after the celebrations held by midinettes in Paris to mark the feast day of their patron, St. Catherine, which, when convenient, on the same day as the Parisian celebrations.

"But the midinettes here are usually younger," said Miss Charpentier." Between 17 and 18 they are called: "les petites" — a term roughly equivalent to apprentices.

The girl chosen queen is usually given a small gift—traditionally a string of pearls—by her co-workers, and the honor of presiding at union functions until her successor is crowned the following year.

Contact Club Elects 1960-1 Officers

On Monday, members of the Contact Club of Christ Church gathered for the weekly meeting and annual election of officers. President Doris Stewart opened the meeting and secretary Sadie Honey read a letter from the Bishop of Moosonee, thanking the club for layettes sent for use in his diocese.

Mary Fletcher presented the report of the nominating committee and Rev. E. P. Smith kindly presided during the election of officers.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Following is a list of those elected.

President, Joan Ford; 1:t vice-president, Trudy Sand:; 2nd vice-president, Mickey Lisz; secretary, June Fisher; treasurer, Myra Cresswell; social convenor, Dorothy Kelly; nursery convenor, Nadine Thorne; layette convenor, Irene Weatherstone; Sunshine convenor, Greta Moult; press reporter, Joan Masslah; prayer group leader, Shirley Stephens; immediate past president, Doris Stewart.

The evening's business having been completed, members spent an enjoyable hour working together on costumes for the Sunday School Christmas pageant.

Refreshments were served by hostesses Marg Sharpee, Mary Phillips and June Woodley.

MORE BANANAS

The West Indies Islands of Trinidad and Tobago exported nearly 10,000,000 pounds of bananas in 1958, compared with 70,000 pounds in 1947.

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Hargrave Shaw

CONCERNING CHIVALRY AND COMMUTING

A very pompous Senator used to preface all his remarks with the comment "I wish to make a statement." It always made me feel that he was being overbearing and self-important. But somehow it expresses my feeling, at the moment, with regard to the question of whether or not a man should offer his seat to a woman when riding in a public vehicle.

My "statement" is definitely in the affirmative, in most instances. How a man can remain seated, calmly reading his newspaper, when an elderly woman, or one carrying a child in her arms, is standing is beyond my comprehension. This same man will stay rooted to his seat if a cripple enters the vehicle. Even if a young woman rises to give her seat in this case, it doesn't seem to penetrate to this character that he is indicating to the world at large that he is a complete boor, and most certainly a gentleman!

I have seen men act in this manner, who, at home and among their friends, prove themselves on their ability to follow the code of a gentleman. This is a glaring example of those who use their manners to further themselves in their personal or business life, but disregard them entirely when they think no one they know is around to observe their actions.

As in everything else, there are two sides to this subject. After all, the men have some rights on their side when they express themselves, as several have, as follows:

"We work all day, side by side with women who demand our rights in the business world. Why shouldn't this equality work all the way? We are just as tired at the end of the day, so why should we bow to the edict laid down by our grandfathers that a man should always stand the frail (so-called) sex?"

I, for one, would certainly not presume to argue this point! Perhaps they really have something there, so let's not judge too harshly under regular circumstances. Maybe, by their so-called emancipation, women have brought this on themselves.

Regardless of whether a man subscribes to the above belief, it can be honestly put himself on the back for "sticking to his principles" the next time he doesn't stand when an elderly woman, or one with a baby in her arms — or a cripple — enters a crowded bus on which he is a passenger? If he does, he can know that he is fouling the dictates of dececht consideration for the other fellow.

Tailored Lounge Coat

By TRACY ADRIAN

For breakfast or after-dinner relaxing around the house, here's a lounge coat that's as smart as it is practical.

Tailored on classic lines it is comfortably full, with a classic collar, over-sized pockets, cuffed sleeves and a single-breasted gilt four-button closing.

Butter Adds Zip to Baking

The heavenly fragrance of Christmas baking will soon be in the air. Nuts and fruits, sugar and spice and all things nice are going into your delicious cookies, cakes and mincemeat.

But a tip, however, to insure mellow goodness. When you're making your fruit cakes and cookies, use plenty of butter. Good cooks know that butter brings out the fine flavor and the full goodness of those costly ingredients.

• • •

Hot buttered popcorn is not just for the children but for everybody. It's especially appetizing in winter. You can pop it in minutes in a fry pan or popper. Just turn your hot popcorn into a bowl, sprinkle with salt, drizzle generously with melted butter. Hot buttered popcorn is always a welcome treat when the family's watching TV, popular as a nibbler at your parties.

• • •

Here's a tip for the busy hostess. Fruit bread takes on preholiday glamor when you spread each slice with Orange Butter Cream. For one loaf of fruit bread, cream 1-3 cup soft butter; blend in 1-4 cups confectioners' sugar, 2 teaspoons grated orange rind and 1 tablespoon orange juice. Spread and it adds flavor to a quick snack.

• • •

Homemade goodies, especially good butter shortbread and butter roasted nuts, are always popular at bazaars, as gifts to your business friends or for just about anyone on your list. Here's an idea for the homemaker who loves to bake. Just mention the wide assortment of wicker basket shapes and sizes for attractive and useful containers in which to pack holiday treats. Decorate a gift box with ribbon and wrap the filled basket in gay paper.

• • •

There's nothing more tantalizing than hot buttered nuts from your own oven. Here's how: Spread nuts in shallow pan with butter in a shallow baking pan. Add one-half pound of blanched almonds, pecans, walnuts or filberts and a sprinkle of salt. Toast in a 325 degree oven, stirring occasionally with a fork. Don't forget them — don't talk too long on the telephone while they're roasting. They're wonderful to nibble. When prettily packaged your own buttery toasted nuts make a delightful gift.

Shortbread is a traditional Christmas treat, which had its origin in old Scottish kitchens. The first Scotch shortbread was made with oatmeal, but time and modern milling processes have changed many old recipes. Today, around the world, rich butter, white flour and sugar are combined in the making of what is considered the most important of all Christmas cookies.

• • •

Don't be afraid to experiment with new butter ideas. Mixing herbs with butter is one of them. Garlic or celery seed or a touch of celery salt gives a different and exciting flavor to breads. It's delicious spread on French-type bread or rolls, plain or toasted.

FAT FOR BRIDES

On some South Pacific islands brides are still purchased with shell money, porpoise teeth, tobacco, canoes or pigs.

Crown Princess Visits Vaniers At Govt. House

OTTAWA (CP) — Crown Princess Beatrix of The Netherlands took time off Wednesday from preparations for her best friend's wedding to visit the Governor-General.

Governor-General Vanier and Mme. Vanier entertained Princess Beatrix and Renee Roell, step-daughter of Canada's chief of protocol, H. F. Feaver, at luncheon.

The 22-year-old princess arrived Tuesday for a five day visit to attend the quiet family wedding of her life long friend Miss Roell, at whose Rockcliffe home she is staying.

The blue-eyed blonde princess and Miss Roell became fast friends during the Second World War when they came to Ottawa from Holland as war refugees.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers.

Thomas H. — What does she want to hear Mother Goose?

• • •

Mabel H. — My husband is a lawyer ,but his vocabulary seems to be gwindling to a string of choice cuss — and two-syllable. words that are taboo in polite society. He says he only talks that way when he's angry and it that's the case, Paul Muni wasn't the last angry man. It's Tom.

When I go for a drive with him, I come back a wreck. He has a word for every driver who passes him, and obscene "commands" on where to go and what to do for anyone who blows a horn at him or gets in his way.

I'm sensitive to profanity. To me it's blasphemous and sacrilegious. It's bad enough to hear him call strangers things, but once in a while he'll direct a filthy epithet my way too. They say names can't break your bones, but they can break your heart all right. I'm afraid he's at a point of no return. He's now it's such a habit I don't think he can stop. I can't take a chance visiting our friends with him for fear he'll humiliate them, and me, with his dirty words.

• • •

Thomas H. — Mabel is very immature. She likes to think the world is all sweetness and light. She reminds me of those wood nymphs in the legends who go around tootling baby tunes to cheer everybody up. But she doesn't cheer me up. It worries me to see a grown woman so willing to let people walk all over her.

Talk about driving, if it were up to her she'd give everyone the right of way. She'd like to pull over to one side and wait until no one else wanted to use the road. She's not a pedestrian. I say it's no guts.

When I was courting Mabel she was a kindergarten teacher and I guess I flowered up my talk a bit. But it's about time she admitted that there are some perfectly good Anglo-Saxon words in circulation, with plenty of well-founded intent on them.

I never swear when I'm at a gathering, except maybe to say hell or damnedi. To her those are terrible words!

• • •

The Council: It looks as though Tom can stop worrying that Mabel let people walk all over her. She's holding up the transgressors at last, starting with Tom himself.

He should be grateful for being tripped up in time. Speech patterns become automatic and hard to change. And finding relief or gaining attention by cursing can become an insidious habit. Many a man, prominent in public life, has made a slip and an ass of himself through slips of this nature.

So restraint, as urged by Mabel, is very much in order for Tom. The man who indulges in profanity to a tiresome extent reveals several things about himself. He may be a weakling who's fighting with strong language instead of brave ideas or muscles. He may be the victim of an impoverished vocabulary. Or he may simply be shouting out the words he was never allowed to say as a child, releasing his hostility against parents and teachers in general. But he winds up a bore.

For her part, Mabel might try to enjoy and employ a few literary words in conversation with Tom and other adults. Much of the reviving that's done by revivalists is accomplished by words with a bit of fire. There's no point in her standoffish disdain of Tom as a vulgarian. Refined, cultivated people try out a blustery now and then to add color and expressiveness to their talk.

But we agree with Mabel that Tom's spate of billingsgate is in danger of flooding his talk and, unless checked, his personality. The best place to start building the floodgates is at home, in the presence of a lady who, although his wife, spends for the civilizing forces outside.

We don't think Tom's tongue will be hurt by his biting it more often!

Desserts for Christmas Buffet

By Mary Moore

Yesterday I suggested a menu (and gave some recipes) for a Christmas party buffet and promised to give you the recipes for the dessert items today.

The Fruit Salad Wreath is so beautiful it could be your edible centrepiece.

FRUIT SALAD WREATH:

On an outside round shop platter or canape tray arrange a bed of mixed assorted lettuce. Place decorated fruits (see below) in a circle around edge of platter and in center place a bowl of Pineapple Dressing for dipping (see below).

1) Grapes: Dip medium-sized bunches of firm green or blue grapes into slightly beaten egg white. Drain off excess egg white then dip in or sprinkle with granulated sugar so that grapes are coated with sugar. Allow to dry, then arrange symmetrically on platter.

2) Pears and Peaches: Chill 6 drained perfect canned peach and pear halves (6 halves of each). Fill hollows of half the pear and peach halves with balls of white or orange cream cheese. Cover with remaining halves, pressing firmly. Cream white cream cheese with a little milk to make of piping consistency and force through icing tube around the split part of the pears and peaches and stand [illegible] alternately between inches of grapes. For a silver [illegible] cut the pears cut a green gum drop into strips and insert at top. If you have more room on your platter, fill empty spaces with pickled crab apples, nut-or cheese-stuffed figs and dates. This is a grand conversation piece and a blessing to the dieters and health fiends.

PINEAPPLE DRESSING:

One-third cup sugar, 4 teaspoons cornstarch, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 cup unsweetened pineapple juice, 1-4 cup orange juice, 2 1-3 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 well-beaten eggs, 2 3-oz. packages cream cheese, softened, cornstarch and salt; stir in fruit juices. Cook in double boiler 20 minutes, stirring constantly. Slowly stir into eggs. Return to double boiler and cook 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Cool slightly. Gradually cream cheese; beat in cooked mixture. Chill. Makes 3 cups.

SANGE-GLAZED DATE PUDDINGS:
(Serves 30).

Three-quarters cup soft shortening, 2 cups sifted, all-purpose flour, 1-2 cups sugar, 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 2-4 teaspoon soda, 1 cup buttermilk, 1 egg, 3 tablespoons grated orange rind, 2 cups pitted dates cut in pieces. Cream shortening; sift in dry ingredients. Add buttermilk, egg and orange rind. Beat until smooth, about 2 minutes. Stir in dates. Spoon into 3 well-greased baking dishes. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 35 to 45 minutes. Turn out and pour over hot Orange Glaze: Slowly stir 2 cups orange juice into 3 tablespoons cornstarch. Add 6 tablespoons honey and dash of salt. Cook and stir until thick. Serve warm.

"Lines on Life"

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

The greatest gift you can ever give is the gift of yourself — that's love. Without the love of the world and God, we begin working on a rough edged life. This is a lesson from the life of David, the father and Solomon, the son.

Solomon's wisdom brought forth an era of peace and prosperity; thus he could make easily build the Temple unto the Lord. Solomon built the Temple but this was David's idea, his dream, his hope.

David lived in times more precious. The shepherd and sweet singer had to become the warrior and defender; Philistines were on the march.

The Temple of Solomon, however, is first and foremost the House of David. Never privileged to build it, no longer alive to see it, it was yet David who was its real builder. To Solomon he gave the inspiration to do what he wanted to do but could not do.

We are, many of us, not unlike David. We, too, are constrained not to do many things we would want to do, because of circumstances and situations which are beyond control. We dream; but often the hard realities of life destroy our real purposes, denying us our deepest fulfillments. We never seem able to touch the sacred soil of our promised lands; we can only dimly perceive them from afar.

In a profound sense, however, David did build the Temple. The parable of Thomas Aquinas, the Bible suggests, is not resolved through what we ourselves may personally achieve; rather, is it to be discovered in the immortality of our influence, the manner in which the spirit of our lives abides in lives we have shaped and molded.

This is the eternal problem of every teacher, every parent, every thoughtful person. How can we justify our lives? How may we find blessing for our travail, our hard and bitter labors which are sanctified? The answers come only with maturity. The teacher goes on teaching, the scientist searching, the parent loving, in the fervent belief that their own lives may yet be justified in the lives of others, whose hearts and minds they will touch and exalt.

"Who is the hero?" asked an ancient sage. And he answered: "He who masters himself." We may not get to the land of promise except through the lives of those we may influence. But how shall we influence others if we do not first become capable of emulation — heroes for others, because we are leaders of ourselves.

Sunday Graphic Being Closed By Thomson

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Publisher Roy Thomson, who has just added to his string of national newspapers in the United Kingdom, Tuesday night announced he is closing down one of his English journals.

The Sunday Graphic, a tabloid with a circulation of more than 800,000, must close before the end of January, Thomson said. He acquired the paper last year when he purchased the British Kemsley newspaper group.

His latest acquisition in the national newspaper field is the British Telegraph, Northern Ireland's only evening newspaper. This gave him ownership of national newspapers in Northern Ireland, Scotland and Wales and a national Sunday newspaper in England.

HAS HIGH REPUTATION

The purchase price for The Telegraph was £2,000,000. Four weeklies are included in the deal as well as The Telegraph, a paper of high reputation.

The weeklies are Ireland's Saturday Night, the Larne Times, the Ballymena Telegraph and the Belfast Weekly Telegraph.

Thomson, 68, purchased the five properties from the W. and W. Hiard group in a straight cash transaction, announced Monday night.

The latest deal boosts the Thomson properties to 89 newspapers in seven countries, not counting printing plant and television interests.

What's the total circulation?

"I never stopped to count 'em," the Toronto publisher said.

The Belfast Telegraph, an evening paper, has a circulation of 195,000.

OWNS THE SCOTSMAN

Among nationals, Thomson owns The Scotsman, published in Edinburgh; The Western Mail, published in Cardiff, Wales; The Sunday Times, published in London; and now the Belfast Telegraph.

Thomson told a group of Conservatives that newspapers have to consider the impact of television. TV has brought changes that have had something to do with the deaths of some newspapers, he said.

"We are all aware that three national newspapers have died during the last three weeks.

"Another is going to die very soon—I ought to know, it is one of mine," Thomson continued, referring to the tabloid Sunday Graphic.

The three newspapers that have closed are The News Chronicle, The Star and The Empire News.

Gore

GORE — A number of Victoria school children are at home with the mumps.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Pulver accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Montgomery to Picton on Monday evening and were guests at the warden's banquet at the Palomar Hall. The ladies of Bloomfield United Church W.A. catered.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Trounce, Beverly and Patsy, motored to Toronto, and spent the weekend.

50 Years Ago Attempt Made To Cross Atlantic by Airship

By PATRICK MASSEY

LONDON (AP) — Fifty years ago six pioneer aviators took an airship aloft from Atlantic City, N.J., on the first attempt to fly the Atlantic.

"Everybody thought we were lunatics," reminisced Cmdr. F. Murray Simon, only known survivor of the six-man crew that set out aboard the dirigible America.

Simon, an Englishman from the seafaring county of Devon, was navigator aboard the America. With him were an Australian radioman and four Americans headed by Capt. William Wellman.

Now a bluff and hearty 78, Simon laughed boisterously as he recalled memories of the trip half a century ago.

"We sailed in dense fog and with little wind," he said. "Next day heavy weather hit us and we were forced down to within 200 feet. We jettisoned gasoline to get clear."

Radio contact was weak in those days. The crews could hear messages from Cape Cod but they could not call back. The airship insistently caged towards the ocean.

"We started to dismantle the engines for ballast," Simon said. "But on Monday the sun came out hot and we shot up to 2,800 feet before we could stop her.

"So we valved the ship to lose hydrogen and down we came again. Then the wind shifted and, without enough gas to get back to land, the ship started to drift back east.

"Three days after we started we sighted the British steamer Trent. We told her by wireless we wanted to come down and she stood by while we abandoned ship.

The operation, Simon reckoned, was the forerunner of all later air-sea rescue techniques.

A footnote to the voyage came in 1912. An explorer emerged from the Brazilian jungles with stories told by native tribes of a huge, white bird that drifted soundlessly from the sky and disappeared over the mountains. Simon said this could have been the America after she was abandoned. Nobody ever saw her after that.

Foxboro

FOXBORO — Mr. and Mrs. Milton Watson and Lynn of Peterborough were weekend guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stewart.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Mitts and Dale, Stirling, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kelly.

Mrs. J. W. Daniels left this week to spend a holiday with her daughter and son-in-law, Rev. and Mrs. A. L. Shorten and Mary Ruth, of Ottawa.

Mr. M. C. Reynolds, Mr. Clifford Wilcox and Mr. Fred Prindle were recent callers of Mr. Arthur Wait, who is under the doctor's care. All wish him a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Elliott were Tuesday guests of her niece and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. A. Beaudrie and family.

Eastern Cuba's Workers Have Many Complaints

Harold K. Milks, chief of The Associated Press Caribbean services, visited Cuba's cash export and cattle areas to find out how things are going under the Castro regime. Here is his report.

By HAROLD K. MILKS

CAMAGUEY (AP) — Thousands of eastern Cuba's sugar and cattle workers are finding Soviet-style collectivization under Fidel Castro a bitter pill to swallow.

Many of them are saying so openly despite the menace of Castro's Communist-armed militiamen, who are penetrating every segment of life in Oriente and Camaguey provinces.

A tour of these key provinces in Cuba's economy showed growing dissatisfaction among rural workers as well as businessmen.

FIND IT HARD

"We supported Fidel when he was fighting Batista and many of us joined in fighting on his side," said one tall Camaguyean outside one of the huge packing plants where collective farm or ranch workers may buy from the government on carefully controlled credits. "But we are finding it harder every day to live on pesos."

Frequently bare essentials such as beans and rice, the traditional food of Cuban rural workers for years, are hard to find and the tall ranch worker and his companion complained that the quality of the goods in the people's stores is low and the prices high.

LITTLE ACTIVITY SEEN

A survey through Oriente, Camaguey, Las Villas and Matanzas provinces reflects little business or industrial activity.

"Castro's government doesn't know how to grow cattle," said a cattle rancher. "They drive them too hard and they feed them wrong." He says a big meat shortage is coming up next year.

Why, if so many people are against Castro, is he still in power?

"We have complaints but Castro has guns."

Most opponents of Castro say the time is still too early.

"Give us a few more months, until more people are hungry, then see what happens," they said.

One of Northland Pioneers, Bush Pilot Roy Brown, Dies

WINNIPEG (CP)—Roy Brown, 64, one of the rollicking band of bush pilots who flew by the seat of their pants to help open up Canada's vast northland, died Wednesday.

He died in hospital of a kidney ailment which developed after he underwent heart surgery last week.

It was a faltering heart that at the age of 58 grounded him as a pilot, ending the 37-year flying career of one of Canada's most colorful aviation pioneers.

He then turned to politics and represented the northern constituency of Rupert's Land as a Liberal-Progressive member of the Manitoba legislature from 1953 to 1958. There, he spoke for all the friends he had made in the North as a pilot and always executive.

PLUNKED EXAM

The chain of events that led up to a career in the air for the native of Stockton, Man., began when he flunked a high school Latin examination in 1914.

After 30 months in France he was wounded and sent to England. There he transferred to the Royal Flying Corps. In September, 1918, he was shot down by anti-aircraft fire in Belgium, suffering a minor leg wound. After the war he married Edith Peverette and returned to Canada in 1923.

He had to explain to the curious that he was not the late Roy Brown of Carleton Place, Ont., the man who shot down the famous German ace Baron von Richthofen.

Later he signed on as a bush pilot for Western Canada Airways, operating out of Flin Flon and The Pas in northern Manitoba.

IN BIG AIR SEARCH

In 1929, he and seven other renowned bush pilots took part in the long search for the late Col. Cyril D. H. MacAlpine and a seven-man party who had set out to explore the Arctic coast.

Guided by little else but instinct, the eight pilots swept over the uncharted wilderness for 56 days before finding the missing party. During the hunt, Roy Brown's Fokker cracked up. He and two mechanics were stranded on Aylmer Lake, just south of the Arctic Circle, for 15 days.

Later, he worked on the first airmail route operated in Western Canada.

In 1934 with three friends he formed Wings Limited, operating over Northwestern Ontario and northern Manitoba. The operation was purchased by the CPR in 1941 and became part of Canadian Pacific Airlines.

Roy took time off from an executive post with CPA to become Winnipeg's only test pilot during the Second World War. He tested 2 475 planes here during a four-year period.

Following the war, Roy Brown and three other men combined to form Central Northern Airways. This later was purchased by Transair Limited.

When Mr. Brown died, he was assistant manager of a petroleum company. He is survived by his wife and two daughters.

STORK SHOWER

Mrs. Ted Evans was hostess at a surprise stork shower on Monday evening at her home in honor of Mrs. Bob Hart. About 15 ladies enjoyed a pleasant evening. A couple of contests were given for the entertainment, after which a large decorated bassinette was brought in, the gift of the hostesses, filled with prettily wrapped parcels. After the lovely gifts were admired Mrs. Hart thanked all for their kindness. Mrs. Evans and her helpers served tea, cakes and sandwiches.

Confirmation was held in the Orange hall on Friday with a small attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris called on Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pound on Friday afternoon. Master Dale Pound returned home with them and spent the weekend.

Glad to report Mrs. Harold Marshall, who has been confined to her home for the past two weeks with chickenpox, is improving. Her many friends wish her a speedy recovery.

White Railroaders Refused Co-operation by Congolese

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP) — A team of railroaders—four Canadians and one American—is going home, frustrated because they were rebuffed everywhere they tried to help the Congolese.

The team, which arrived here Oct. 10 under United Nations auspices, was to help get the Congo's diesel locomotives running again. But they weren't permitted to do an hour's work.

After some six weeks of sitting around their hotel, fearful of going around the railway shops because they were threatened with violence if they did, the members of the team are packing up.

"We're fed up," said Ed Fordham of Montreal. "Everywhere we tried to help we were told we were not wanted, so there's no point in staying here."

Their case is a prime example of some of the difficulties the UN has encountered—in the face of Belgian competition and often open hostility—in trying to bring order and assistance to The Congo.

Franklin already has left for Peterborough, but the three Montrealers were waiting for Mattingly to get out of hospital, where he is recovering from dysentery, before going home.

Fordham said in an interview the group was received "with open arms" when they arrived at the head office of Otraco, the Belgian-owned rail and river transportation monopoly.

"But is," he corrected himself. "By all but one Belgian there."

The next day, he said, the group was driven to the rail yards and shops here to be introduced to the Congolese workers.

"They all walked out on us, saying they did not want us," Fordham said. "they threatened to burn our car if we showed up again. But they weren't permitted to do an hour's work.

ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER, Thursday, December 1, 1960

ONLY HALF RUNNING

Belgian and Congolese spokesmen for Otraco say the Canadians were not wanted because they were not needed and that the company's rolling stock was well serviced.

Fordham estimated that half the company's power—34 diesel locomotives and 20 yard engines —were out of service.

Last month, Otraco's top management posts here were filled by hastily-promoted Congolese head clerks, each backed by a team of experienced Belgian railway experts to do the work.

McDougall said that the Otraco equipment and facilities he has seen are as modern and complete as anything in Canada.

"We take off our hats to the Belgians," Fordham said. "they have built much and well."

He said Congolese workers told him: "If you want us to, we second us the Belgian technicians who were here before."

This referred to the mass exodus of Belgians who fled the Congo during the post-Independence riots of July.

"The Congolese apparently feel they can work better alongside Belgians," Mattingly said. "They know the Belgians and apparently trust them."

BELGIANS AFRAID

He saw two Belgians around the shops and said he believes that they feared their jobs would be lost if the Canadians came in to help.

Otraco's locomotives and cars are of the type well known to the veteran railroaders. Some were made by Montreal Locomotive Works, subsidiary of Alco Products Inc., for which Fordham and McDougall work.

Fordham said that after the Leopoldville difficulties, the UN proposed to send the team to the Boma shipyards. They could not land because of fog the day they flew to the Congo River port, near the Atlantic, and the assignment was cancelled.

"It's just as well," Mattingly said. "We're railroaders, not shipping men."

Next, the team was scheduled to go to Thysville, about 100 miles south of Leopoldville, but on the eve of their departure a delegation of Congolese workers from the rail yards arrived here to say the Canadians were not wanted. So, that, too, was cancelled.

A UN progress report in early November said the 22 - mile Otraco railway, "between Leopoldville and the p. . . Malebd, is operating "erratically."

The report refers to the team and adds: "Unfortunately, there has been a difficulty in obtaining their acceptance . . . at the same time, the return of some European mechanics has alleviated the emergency situation of rail maintenance."

POLICIES AND LAND USE PLAN

TAKEN FROM THE PROPOSALS OF URBAN PLANNING CONSULTANTS

—PROPOSED POLICIES—

ECONOMIC POLICY—

Agriculture will always form the background of a healthy economic framework and Belleville should encourage agricultural marketing as well as agricultural production in the Moira River Valley and Prince Edward County. Any measure of effective assistance will reflect itself in economic stability.

A program of Industrial development based upon new techniques and new discoveries should be instituted. This would, through proper planning, public relations, and scientific research, assist in retaining the skilled and educated youth in the City through local employment. This program should be the result of a report or reports prepared at the request of the City of Belleville and should be the basis of a POLICY OF ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT FOR BELLEVILLE.

RESIDENTIAL POLICY—

1. That development of the vacant lands in the whole municipality will be subject to rigid subdivision control.

2. That a Zoning By-law be passed establishing the residential density, yard requirements, height of buildings and other restrictions desirable for pleasant living conditions, which will be amended from time to time to keep up with prevalent conditions affecting implementation of the Official Plan for the whole City.

3. That the approval of a residential plan of subdivision will be subject to complete servicing of the area including storm and sanitary sewers, paved roads, street lights, sidewalks, as established by municipal policy and all of which services shall be constructed and installed at no cost to the municipality.

4. That phasing of development will be subject to the availability of services which be constructed and installed by the person wishing to develop the land.

Downtown Commercial Policy—

The downtown commercial area requires improvement. It would be possible to encourage such improvement by restricting its use to small and definite areas with a strict policy of permitting expansion only after the existing commercial space is substantially used up. The residential use will be discouraged and such upper spaces as are presently vacant should be improved and occupied for commercial purposes.

In order to encourage redevelopment in the downtown area, concentration of commercial use will be kept high. To compensate, the municipality will acquire land for off-street parking facilities as the municipality becomes able to do so.

Proposed downtown commercial area—41 acres.

Other Commercial Policy—

It is agreed that certain commercial facilities will be required and will prove an asset in the general area other than downtown. With regard to these commercial areas the following is the policy:

1. That the preparation of a zoning by-law be passed establishing the minimum size of the proposed shopping centres, yard requirements, parking, building height, buffer and construction requirements applicable to such a project.

2. That the requirements for registered plans of subdivision for shopping centre projects be established which will be a condition of approval for such plans will include the deeding of sufficient road allowance for the paving of all parking areas, and access can be controlled, and all any other requirements as deemed necessary by the municipality.

3. That the municipality will make such special studies as may be required to determine the commercial establishments required by the Tourist Industry. These studies will result in recommendations concerning location of hotels, motels, restaurants and other tourist facilities.

INDUSTRIAL POLICY—

1. That a zoning by-law be passed establishing the lands for industrial use and regulations concerning their use.

2. That servicing of these areas with sewer, water and other municipal services will be subject to the availability of these services.

3. That a program of Industrial Development will be established in order to encourage industry to locate in the new industrial areas.

OPEN SPACE POLICY—

In general the greenbelt lands will be those along the Moira River banks and those along the shore of the Bay of Quinte.

The only development permitted on the lands designated as open space is those lands which are presently owned by the municipality and also all privately owned lands so designated which will be zoned "Rural Residential" and "Commercial Protempore" in the zoning by-law until such time as the municipality acquires them, will be public buildings used for recreation under the auspices of a public authority.)

Ontario Begins Full-Scale Drive to Secure Better Export Market in Europe

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government has begun a full-scale drive to increase employment at home by increasing sales abroad, Richard H. Stapleford, industrial commissioner of Ontario House in London, England, said Wednesday.

Called home last week by Planning and Development Minister Nickle, Mr. Stapleford has sent 200 telegrams in a cross-section of Ontario industry to advise that he and his staff are ready to try to find export markets for Ontario companies.

The telegrams are being followed by personal letters to the remaining industries, possibly as many as 3,000.

Previously, the industrial section of Ontario House spent most of its time locating European industry for the province.

But with increasing unemployment the stress is being placed on the export market. The general government also has called home its trade and industrial commissioners for briefings.

The mission — now involving, in addition to Britain, Holland, Belgium, France, Germany and the Scandinavian countries, started Sept. 1.

Letters were sent to more than 5,000 concerns in Europe to determine whether items of materials which could be supplied in Ontario. The companies were asked if they wanted to represent Ontario firms for the expanding overseas market.

"Ontario manufacturers on the whole don't know what the government has facilities to look after them in Europe," Mr. Stapleford said in an interview.

"It's all confidential and it doesn't cost them a penny."

Mr. Stapleford said a rich market for Ontario manufactured goods yet businessmen were discouraged too easily.

"A manufacturer assumes automatically that his products cost too much for export sale because of high labor costs," he said. "They see the price of German and Japanese goods selling here and become discouraged."

Mr. Stapleford, industrial commissioner for the last eight years, said Canadians at European industrial fairs such as the one at Hanover, Germany, where there are as many as 4,500 exhibitors, left "conspicuous by their absence."

"I've seen only one small Ontario manufacturer at a fair while there and I have been attending for the last 10 years," he said. "Canada becomes discouraged."

Europe ... We're sticking too much to the States.

He said he has seen German industries waiting five months for an order, and Japan for quicker order.

There is a big European market for canned fruits and vegetables, he said.

"We shouldn't be afraid of distance. . . . You can fly to Europe from Montreal in the same time as Vancouver."

Ontario firms operating on manufacturing licences from U.S. companies should try to get a share of the European market by renegotiating their contracts so they would be permitted to sell outside of Canada or their particular region.

Record Field Seeking Office In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—A record field of 61 candidates is running for 25 council seats in the December 5 municipal elections.

The stars are the three men and a woman seeking a two-year term in the $15,200-a-year job as mayor.

Main issues, to be solved in referendums, are whether the city is to have commercial Sunday sport and whether all residents aged 21 may have the vote.

Personal color was added with the return to the mayoralty race of fiery Charlotte Whitton, who gave up the post 12 years ago, and the entry into politics of Jim Simpson, sports editor of the Ottawa Rough Riders' Grey Cup championship team. Miss Whitton, 64, has been writing a column for the Ottawa Citizen.

Mr. Simpson's entry was left wide open with the resignation from civic politics of Mayor George Nelms, 55.

HAS THREE OPPONENTS

Three other candidates for mayor are Controller Sam Berger, 60, a lawyer and president of the Big Four Football Union; Lorne Dube, 62, a retired school teacher who likes to quote Shakespeare, and Ernest Jones, 54, a business agent.

Mr. Berger, past president of the Rough Riders and a one-time newspaper man, finds himself in the enviable position of being supported by all three of the city's daily newspapers, including the Citizen, which says Miss Whitton is loave of absence to run for mayor, along with Mr. Simpson and the French-language Le Droit.

Miss Whitton, the capital's first Jewish mayoralty candidate has been lifting hard at the city's beer-by-the-glass ban. He has deplored "religious bigotry" which he blames for failure to reach agreement with a Roman Catholic hospital order offered to build a hospital here on condition it receive a $1,000,000 subsidy.

There are five women candidates besides Miss Whitton. The five are contesting aldermanic seats.

All Provincial Governments Are Represented at Parley Convening Today in Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Representatives of all the provincial governments meet today to consider Quebec proposal for national cooperation at the provincial level.

"We, the 10 provinces have a host of things in common and it is time for us to determine how we can work together for the benefit of all Canada," said Quebec's Premier Frost yesterday night as he arrived for the two-day Interprovincial conference. He is expected to be named conference chairman.

Premier Bennett of British Columbia said: "I want the province to come closer together. I think it is necessary. In fact the only reason we are coming to Quebec conference is that we want to do everything to build Canada together."

The closed conference, first since Confederation to bring together cabinet ministers of provincial governments to discuss general provincial issues, has aroused interest from provincial governments.

The most exception, said it be must be made clear that there is no question of "special privileges 'gauging up" on the federal government. Prime Minister Diefenbaker, however, has sent Ottawa to the conference but sent no delegation.

Provincial representatives said they had an open mind on Quebec proposal by Premier Lesage of Quebec for establishment of a permanent council of provincial governments and the organization of a secretariat. But Premier Bennett said he does not want to have "our relations with the sister provinces bogged down in officialdom, red tape and written words."

Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland and Mr. Bennett said they liked the idea of periodic meetings of provincial premiers.

Mr. Lesage is known to have in mind provincial co-operation to ease the tight credit situation municipalities face in Canada.

Premier Bennett said Ontario is not looking for any particular benefits from the conference.

"We have intentions of some without any agenda. Our position is entirely flexible.

"One great objective, that of greater harmony, commercial understanding, stands out above everything else . . . I see no long term in favor of a conference of this kind and I tried some years ago to get all the provinces together but it was not possible to do it at this time."

He expected the conference to be "very helpful" but perhaps not purely exploratory in nature.

It was his understanding that the conference was not going to put out a fixed agenda, leaving delegates to select latitude in formal matters they consider important.

"The 10 provinces have a host of things in common," Mr. Frost said, "and it is time for us to determine how we can work together for the benefit of all Canada."

Million More Jobs Will Be Needed by '65

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will need 1,000,000 more jobs by 1965 than it does at present and the natural increase in population must reduce the backlog of unemployment, a Senate committee was told Wednesday.

In a brief applauded by the Senators as the best they had heard made of the subject, F. T. Denton of Toronto said his target is a 30-per-cent increase in employment opportunities was "a rather large increase for a five-year period."

Mr. Denton, a former government economist and his objective was based on reducing the present level and unemployment about 6 1-2 per cent of the labor force to about 5 per cent, and keeping immigration to about 100,000 a year — the present rate.

John J. Deutsch, vice-principal of Queen's University, Kingston and leading Canadian economist hired by the committee to direct its study of economic power and employment problems, said seven other studies will be presented at later meetings.

Reviewing the brief, Mr. Deutsch said the most striking feature of the current economic problem is that about half the increase in the labor force in the last 10 years came from immigration. Most immigrants have had above a higher degree of skilled and professional training.

FOUND LARGE GAP

The greatest gap in employment is created by the fact that the majority of Canadians seek jobs in the insufficiently educated and lack the necessary skills, he said.

There has also been a 50-per cent increase in 10 years in the number of women in the labor force, largely married women over 35. The female labor force has grown three times as rapidly as the male labor force.

Agriculture is losing young people to the cities, and industrial employment is becoming more concentrated in Ontario and Quebec.

Haze Covering Prospects For Second TV Network May Be Removed After Meeting

OTTAWA (CP)—Some of the haze that has covered prospects of Canada's second television network may be removed today.

Maurice Caldwell of Toronto was scheduled to appear before the Board of Broadcast Governors to seek permission to form a network company. He has submitted the only application.

Mr. Caldwell's proposals for the new and controversial TV operation—the first private venture of its kind in Canadian broadcasting—were kept secret at the first time.

In previous BBG appearances he expressed confidence in the financial potential of such an enterprise. But this has been balanced with skepticism by some private broadcasters and also by the publicly-owned CBC, now operating the country's only network.

Joseph Sedgwick, counsel for CFRB, cautioned that the market is big enough to support both stations, and give them "modest profits." He said CHFT-FM has a monopoly.

Before Mr. Sedgwick began his statement, he was critic cized by Dr. Andrew Stewart, board chairman, for questioning the integrity of the board in a letter written to a Toronto newspaper published last March's hearing of nine applications for the second TV licence here.

Mr. Sedgwick, who was CFRB counsel at the original TV application, criticized in the letter the award of the licence to Baton Broadcasting Incorporated Limited, a company controlled by the Toronto Telegram.

Dr. Stewart said he and his 13 colleagues stand by Mr. Sedgwick's appearance before them Wednesday "to mean that, since the board was last March, confidence in the integrity of the board has been restored."

House Briefs

BILL IS READ

OTTAWA (CP)—The Conservative majority overcame a last-minute obstacle thrown up by the CCF Wednesday and enabled third reading to be given in the Commons to a bill providing government guarantees of loans to small businesses. The bill now goes to the Senate. A CCF amendment calling for the bill to be referred back to committee for clarification was defeated 103 to 41.

WON'T ACCEPT

Prime Minister Diefenbaker reiterated in Canada will not accept nuclear weapons "unless it has joint control over them, under present U.S. law, such joint control is impossible.

CONGRATULATE WINNER

An applauding Commons acclaimed quickly and unanimously passed a motion extending congratulations and best wishes to Miss Marion Churchill on his 86th birthday.

MARKS THE DAY

"Canada is what the French and Scots have made it," declared Grant Campbell (PC—Stormont). Wearing the kilt, Mr. Campbell made the remark to mark St. Andrew's Day.

Church Opposes Changing Name Of Federation

TORONTO (CP) — A United Church official said Wednesday that temperance organizations will have to face hard realities, no matter what they choose to call themselves.

Dr. Ben Berry, associate secretary of the United Church Canada Board of Christian Education Service of Manitoba, addressed the Manitoba Temperance Federation, to have the name of the national body changed. Dr. Berry suggested a title along the lines of Ist new name.

AVOIDS 'EXPLOSIVENESS'

William Potoroka, executive secretary of the Manitoba branch, said the suggestion for a new name would avoid the "explosiveness involved in the word temperance.

The convention did not approve a name change, but did go along with a Manitoba resolution to review the federation's purposes, objectives and goals at the 1961 or 1962 conventions.

A resolution adopted urged that drivers suspected of intoxication be forced to take breath-analysis tests.

Delegates complained of jingles sponsored by a brewery being used in radio spots during the Grey Cup game in Vancouver last Saturday. They decided to write the board of Broadcast Governors asking an explanation. The jingle did not mention beer or a brewery name.

Royal E. Shillington, general secretary of the Ontario federation described the $12,000,000 O'Keefe Centre for the Performing Arts in Toronto as "one of the most powerful liquor advertising schemes on the continent."

President of Exchange Would Like to Be Called Howard

By FORBES SHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

LL-Gen. Howard D. Graham, former chief of staff of the Canadian army overseas, is now host for his new job as president of the Toronto Stock Exchange.

At a press reception, he said: "I know nothing about the exchange." But I was a private soldier and a private citizen before I was a general. Perhaps because that's a custom. However, I hope before long to be on a first-name basis."

Gen. Graham replied: "I would be delighted."

Gen. Graham, or Howard, will have the job of interpreting the exchange to the Canadian people and interesting their thinking of the Canadian people to the exchange.

He will presumably try to tell people who, through informed thinking of securities and the exchange, they may participate in and profit from Canada's growth; and he will presumably tell the public what are the reasonable safeguards the people expect.

In the words of Eric D. Scott, chairman of the exchange's public relations committee, the chairman's appointment is "a completely new departure."

Such an appointment had been discussed for four or five years, said Mr. Scott, a problem has been finding the right man.

Prime responsibility, Mr. Scott said, "were that he should have no connection with the securities business; that he should have had wide experience and been a public figure; that he be a good salesman; and that he should be able to speak authoritatively on Canada's economic and in other countries.

"In Gen. Graham we have found such a man, and we think his appointment means two things, for Canada, for the exchange, and for ourselves.

"He will be the chief executive officer of the exchange and its official spokesman. His appointment will be like that of a president to the board of directors. His main duty will be to lead us in the direction best calculated to serve the public interest.

"The economic and social thinking of the public is changing and we must keep abreast of it."

Gen. Graham, a youthful 62, whose military background shows chiefly in an erect bearing, immaculate grooming and a decisive manner, lives in suburban Buffalo, N.Y., and brought up in Hamilton, Ont.

He served overseas as a private in the First World War. After the war he studied and practised in Trenton, became mayor of that city, and was active in the militia.

In 1939 he went on active service and was successively commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment; commander of the 7th Canadian infantry Brigade, in which he landed in Sicily and Italy. He was vice-chief of the General Staff from 1945 to 1946, and chief of staff from 1946 to 1948, when he retired.

Subsequently he made a study of civilian defence in Canada for the federal government and organized and conducted the Canada Centennial Exhibition in Queen's Park, Toronto.

Dave of Edinburgh is also known recently he has been president of the Great Lakes Waterway Development Association and recently chairman of Argus Corporation.

The Toronto exchange's position of a president from outside the securities business is in line with the action of several other exchanges.

The exchange had one other full-time member, Arthur J. Trebilcock, who became a vice-president of the exchange," having served it for many years as secretary, manager, vice-president and Mr. Trebilcock's president until his retirement in 1958.

Urges Company To Consider Modifying Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) —United States Treasury Secretary Robert Anderson has appealed personally to Henry Ford II to reconsider the drain on U.S. gold-dollar reserves before carrying out plans to buy full ownership of the English Ford company.

Anderson, it was learned Wednesday, is deeply concerned about the impact of the Ford Motor Company proposed transaction and has urged Ford to consider modifying the purchase plan.

If Ford goes through with the purchase, U.S. balance of payments deficit which leads directly to gold sales would be increased by some $200,000,000.

The U.S. payments deficit is expected to run about $3,000,000,000 for 1960.

Anderson has no legal power to block the deal.

"It was a lovely party. I was stick three times."

Soviet, Chinese Intervention Most Distasteful in Algeria

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Don't let word get around to Nikita Khrushchev or Mao Tse-Tung, belligerent champions of Islam — strange as it seems — that could be a peace-promoting factor in Algeria.

The prospect of Russian and Chinese intervention becomes more imminent now than ever. It is distasteful to Tunisia and other countries bordering Algeria that they would be almost anything to avert it.

The new mood apparently includes strong confidence in the decision of Premier Fredrich Abbas to make one final effort to reach a negotiated settlement.

CHANGED VIEW

This is a change of attitude. A few weeks ago Bourguiba of Tunisian parliament he was powerless to help.

"I cannot oppose any force likely to help in the solution of the conflict, even if the devil himself enters it," he said.

Now Tunisia, along with other former French territories in Africa, is begging for the release of the rebels to take a less intransigent stand. These countries also make their presence felt in the United Nations, where France fears an early debate on the Algerian issue.

Nigeria has also believed politics not quiet peace feelers. The newly respected country and newly independent African state, Sir Abubakar Balewa, is understood to have had discussions with British ministers in London this week.

MODERATION NEEDED

Moderation is Sir Abubakar's great virtue, and moderation is desperately needed now. Distaste for the futile Algerian war is seldom been, more pronounced.

But, always, extreme calls to arms for the rebels have launched a new series of bloody outrages, and the extreme European reprisals have respected vengeance.

Thus the war drags on into its seventh year.

But there is a feeling in Paris that it cannot last much longer. The idea of "Algeria francaise" is slowly dying. The question remains how a lasting settlement is to be achieved. Instead of holding a referendum, without any choice between the rebels and General de Gaulle and the rebels.

Mother Dies With Infant In House Fire

EAGLE RIVER, Ont. (CP) — A mother died with her infant son Wednesday when she ran into her burning home in an attempt to rescue him.

Dead are Mrs. Florence Margaret Bell, 23, and her son, Ronald Albert, 2.

Neighbors tried to restrain Mrs. Bell as the woman, surrounded that her baby was inside the one-story frame house and she broke away.

Mrs. Berg was visiting her mother's neighbor, Mrs. Winifred Korzinski, in this community 30 miles east of Kenora when another woman friend ran up and reported her house was on fire. Mrs. Korzinski said she tried to hang onto her, but we couldn't hold her. "She was like a few seconds." Mrs. Korzinski said, "was frantic, and she was strong."

Alcoholism Will Be Studied

TORONTO (CP)—H. David Archibald, executive director of the Alcoholism Research Foundation of Ontario and president of the North American Association of Alcoholism Programs, Tuesday urged the Canadian Temperance Federation to "call a spade a spade" and stop confusing people with "double-talk about research foundations."

"What is the matter with the good old word temperance? It has a long and honorable history in this country and has the added virtue of being understandable to the public."

Mrs. Archibald was speaking to the annual meeting of the new ,U.S.-Canadian joint commission set up with an initial $1,000,000 from the United States government to study alcoholism during the next five years. He was chosen as interim director to begin the study and appoint a scientific director. 1858.

U.S. Objectives in Sixties Are Outlined by Commission

A study by a presidential commission has set up a number of recommendations for U.S. national goals. These and other proposals almost certainly will be debated sharply in the months ahead as a new Democratic administration takes over. The commission's domestic goals are discussed in this first of three articles.

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several hundred goals for the 1960s were set before Americans this week by a White House commission. Yet one word told the story—growth.

Growth to provide at least 13,200,000 new jobs, growth to avoid higher taxes, growth to support guns multi-million-dollar outlays for research and education, growth to rebuild decayed downtown, growth to arm more strongly against "grave danger."

Without economic growth, at a rate apparently not less than one-sixth faster than American production has increased during the last 30 years, the commission believes some of the United States' vital objectives will be lost, its security and leadership endangered.

In such a case, said the president's commission on national goals, Americans are going to have to sacrifice—perhaps by tax increases, loss of leisure time, a slower rise in living standards and unaccustomed controls.

The commission report filed with President Eisenhower by its 15 leading Americans after months of study was released Sunday.

INVESTMENT URGED

The central theme was that the United States must make a greater investment—of both private and public money—in its own future, or it will risk the loss both of world leadership and its own cherished freedoms.

The growth goal, many stated mainly in terms of jobs. The target, said the commission, should be the fastest possible rate which is "consistent with primary dependence upon free enterprise and the avoidance of marked inflation."

What will that rate be? The commission was hesitant. One study, it said, suggests that the total output of goods and services can be boosted by 3.4 per cent a year—if unemployment is held consistently below four per cent and if a climate favorable to investment and research is maintained.

Yet other studies indicate that a five-per-cent growth can be achieved "without extraordinary stimulating measures," said the report.

The average increase in gross national product recorded since 1920 has been 2.9 per cent.

Education—Yearly U.S. outlays must be doubled by 1970, to $40,000,000,000.

TAX REVISION URGED

Taxes—As "overhaul of the tax system" is necessary, whether tax rates go up or down, to improve its climate for new business investment.

Automation — Technological change should be encouraged but with careful advance planning to avoid hardship to those displaced by new machines and processes.

Agriculture — Supply and demand must be brought into balance so that the market will provide farmers a fair return. There should be "much increased retirement of farm land, with emphasis on whole farms."

The cities — Slum conditions must be remedies and the process of decay in big cities arrested, the commission said. It called for more urban renewal programs "costing as much as $4,000,000,000 a year."

PRAISES CAMBODIA

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev praised neutralist Cambodia Tuesday as a country that has shown it is a wise master of its own wealth "than the colonial plunderers." Khrushchev spoke at a reception in the Kremlin for the visiting chief of the Asian state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the official news agency Tass reported.

Stirling

STIRLING — The home of Mrs. J. E. Whitehead, 19 Chisholm Street, Stirling was decorated in autumn colors on Saturday afternoon November 26th on the occasion of the tea and bake sale, sponsored by Laurel Rebekah Lodge No. 211, Stirling.

Visitors were in attendance from Campbellford and Belleville.

The guests were served afternoon tea and bite-size sandwiches and cookies created in quartet tables, which were decorated for the occasion.

The guests were invited to the tea room by Sisters Mrs Isobel Good and Mrs. Allen MacNeil. Those who served were: Sisters Mrs. Eileen Woodcock, Mrs. Helen Bailey, Mrs. Verna Woodcock, Mrs. Mickey Johnson, Mrs. Hilda Rose and Mrs. Helen Hulin. The tea room was convened by Mrs. Joyce Richardson and the kitchen assistants were: Meadames Ethel Duffin, Audrey Elliott, Marion Carter, Gladys Sine, Gladys Elliott and Miss Mary Hulin.

The bake table was laden with an array of delectable food, which was soon disposed of. The proceeds of the tea $45. The convenor and her assistants were: Meadames Edith Ulman, Helen Williams, Margaret Bush and Florence Dafoe.

The afternoon was a decided success.

Pollution Meet Hears Plea To Make Haste With Caution

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Mark Hollis, assistant surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service, has advised Canadians to "make haste with caution" in combatting water pollution.

Dr. Hollis, speaking Tuesday night to delegates to the two-day Ontario conference on co-ordinated water pollution control, said one common problem is the recent introduction of new pollutants such as chemical detergents which do not respond to ordinary sewage treatment.

At the same time, he added, there is an increasing public demand for usable water.

"We must recognize that we cannot enjoy the great advantages of modern technology without accepting some of the concomitant diseases," he said.

WELL SEEK SHARE

Municipal Affairs Minister W. K. Warrender of Ontario told the conference the province will seek a share of the recently-created $100,000,000 federal fund in aid of municipal sewage treatment plant construction.

However, Mr. Warrender said he is not sure whether the Ontario Water Resources Commission would fix the terms of reference for the fund.

A. M. Solder, of Kitchener, chairman of the OWRC, told the 143 delegates and 72 Ontario communities have water services but no sewer or disposal systems.

He said action is being taken by the OWRC to deal with the factor, a "major cause" of local pollution.

Since the OWRC was formed, he said, 89 sewage treatment plants have been built to serve a total population of 1,000,000; another 17 are under construction to serve 450,000, and 80 more projected to serve 650,000 people.

ASKS REGULATION

J. W. Murphy, member of Parliament for Lambton West, suggested a motion should be passed asking for regulations against garbage dumping by ocean ships plying using the St Lawrence Seaway.

Prof. A. W. Baker of Beaverton, former head of entomology at the Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph, said indiscriminate dumping of ship garbage might introduce costly insect pests into the province.

Mayor Garnet Nowkirk of Chatham said adequate control of industrial pollution is a municipality is possible only through rigid local enforcement and the aid of trained OWRC investigators.

Graduates Today Need Loyalty, Tenacity of Purpose' Declares Professor at H.S. Commencement

CAMPBELLFORD — Professor Fred Bartlett, director of physical education at Queen's University, was the guest speaker at the annual Commencement at the Campbellford High School, on Friday night. He was introduced by Mr. E. E. Darling, principal, who said that Professor Bartlett had been director of physical education for Toronto schools, and had been appointed to the community Programs Branch by the Department of Education before going to Queen's. He is president of the Ontario School Trustees' Council.

Introducing his talk, directed primarily to the graduating class, Professor Bartlett called attention to the beautiful valley of the Trent where, in 1604, Champlain, the first white man to view its beauty, had travelled. As an explorer he exhibited large degrees of loyalty, tenacity, vision, love of adventure, and other attributes essential to any adventurer.

He recalled that since his graduation, the aeroplane had become common, it had motor cars, and the League of Nations had been born and failed. Today signals are bounced off the moon, and a submarine can carry more explosives than were used in the whole of World War II.

CHARACTERISTICS NEEDED

The graduate of today must have the characteristics of the explorer, Champlain. He must be able to tell the difference between the trivial and the worthwhile. He must have loyalty and tenacity of purpose; be honest and true, recognizing the difference between putting in time and hard work. He must strive for excellence to the limit of his capacity, abhorring mediocrity. Above all, one must think of men as people.

"Meet the challenge of the day; your generation must provide the leaders, and also have a community of solid citizens devoid to the strength of their home, their nation and the world."

He ended with a number of quotations, one of which was the hymn "Creations, Lord, we give thee thanks,

That this Thy world is incomplete,

That battle calls our marshalled ranks,

That work awaits out hands and feet."

Also W. Hay expressed thanks to the speaker.

Mr. George Wilks, president of the Students' Council, was chairman for the evening and W. Brown was pianist.

PROGRAM

The program was as follows: Hail Glee Club (directed by Mr. J. Clynowski), "They Call It Canada" and "Bless This House"; Greetings from Class by George Wilks, president of Students' Council; Intermediate certificates, presented by Mr. Don Meyers; fall fair prizes, presented by Mr. Jesse Locke; Glee Club; "Nathan Fit the Battle" and "Listen the Lambs"; Literary Society scholarships, presented by Sharon Brown, Grade 13, to Rosella Campbell; Stephen Riddall and Ruth Gibson.

Special awards were presented by William Bowen as follows: J. E. Hicks Shield, grade 9 — Sherrill Smith; F. F. Long Shield, grade 10 — Norma Tinney; A. D. Bennett Shield, grade 11 — Linda Grills; W. Booth Shield, grade 12 — Murdi Clark; H. A. MacArthur Shield, grade 13, Rosella Campbell; grade 11 — Linda Grills; grade 12 — Muriel Clark.

SCHOLARSHIPS

J. E. Hicks Memorial Scholarship, presented by William Mc-Comb to Margaret Catherine Hammond; bursary given by the Registered Nurses' Association presented by Frances Berry to Margaret Ellen Wilks; Campbellford Wholesale (R. J. Locke and Son) presented by Murray Locke to Leo Quinn; Warkworth Community Service Club Scholarship presented by Mr. Murray Hutchinson to Sandra Money.

Field Day Trophies presented by Mr. Robt. Thomson: girls' junior champion — Heather Watson; girls' intermediate champion — Sharon Buckles; girls' senior champion — Wilma Blumer; boys' junior champion — Doug. Jaques; boys' intermediate champion — John Vine and Tom Thompson (tied); boys' senior champion — Ralph Erskine.

CERTIFICATES PRESENTED

Presentation of graduation certificates by Mr. W.R. Loucks, Area Board Scholarships presented by Mr. W. Rutherford; Warkworth, grade 9 — Willy Jorgensen; grade 11 — Sandra Lackey; grade 12 — Carsten Jorgensen, Campbellford, grade 9-1 — Sherrill Smith; 2 — Gaylene Dodger; 3 — Glen Bennett; grade 10 — Norma Tinney, Barbara Watson, Mary Breen;

Walker Broke But Gets Job In Hospital

VANCOUVER (CP) — Kevin Griffin of Cape Breton, N.S., who walked across Canada for $15,000 has hired Tuesday as an orderly at Vancouver General Hospital at a salary of $255 a month.

He said he applied for the job when the prize money was not waiting for him when he walked into Vancouver last week with his pacer, Matt Deane, 34, of Toronto.

"I'm broke, I don't know whether I'll get the money at all, so I've got to work," he said.

Griffin said $5,000 was to have been waiting for him, when he took Deane arrived and another $10,000 was to have been provided over a six-year period to finance him through medical school. He and Deane were going to split the $5,000.

The award was to have been given by an Atlantic chiropodist.

"I've got a lawyer handling my claim for this money now, and for the time being I plan to work at the hospital until next fall, then I'll enter the University of B.C.," Griffin said.

Frankford

FRANKFORD — Mr. and Mrs. Fred Charlesworth spent the weekend in Toronto with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Anderson.

Mr. Bob Carlisle of Oshawa, spent the weekend with his mother, Mrs. A. A. Carlisle.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Bushey and family, of Trenton, were Saturday supper guests with Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Elliott and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Elliott were Sunday dinner guests with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Flood and family in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Treneer and son; Mr. and Mrs. Doug Gee and family; Mr. and Mrs. Wally Cleveland and family all of Kingston; and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sharpe and son, Dennis of Oshawa, were Sunday guests with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cleveland and Marlene.

Mr. Billy Tadoe, of Teacher's Training College, Peterborough, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Merrin Dafoe.

Miss Helen Patrick, of Belleville, and Mr. Charlie Wright of Wallbridge, were Sunday supper guests with Mr. and Mrs. Mary Patrick and son Richard.

Mrs. J. Johns spent Monday in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Parks and daughter, Heather of Belleville, were Sunday guests with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wood.

Concert Orch. Group Holds First Rehearsal

BATAWA — Stephen Chorna, advocate, and leader in the movement for the establishment of an Eastern Ontario concert orchestra, was delighted with the response of musicians at the first rehearsal, held Sunday afternoon in the Batawa Recreation Hall. It was a display of real enthusiasm and exceptional musical talent. About 30 musicians were present and the number used for trial purposes to produce a symphonic arrangement of the song from "Moulin Rouge." There was a good number of strings, first and second violin, viola, cello and a fine brass and woodwind section.

Indications are that the number of participants will reach 40 for the next rehearsal planned for Sunday afternoon in the Recreation Hall.

Expressing his enthusiasm for the support given the project and the calibre of talent that has already come to light, Mr. Chorna said this is something that could have been a reality long ago.

Asked about meeting the cost of such preparation, Mr. Chorna said these people come because they like to play, like good music and are themselves ready to make the time and effort to make it possible. Several people have offered tangible support.

Defeats Greaves

Tiger Seeks World Title

EDMONTON (CP) — Nigeria's Dick Tiger punched his way back to the British Empire middleweight boxing title here Wednesday night with a technical knockout in the ninth round.

Tiger was behind on points when he connected with a right to the jaw in the third round and moved on to win for the second time in the fight with a series of rights and lefts that rocked the defending champion into helplessness in the ninth round.

The Nigerian kept up a tremendous pace throughout the fight, continually wearing Greaves down, and could say it was a question of how long Greaves could last.

LOST LAST BOUT

Tiger lost his title to Greaves last June when the decision was changed in Greaves' favor an hour after the contest had been declared a draw. The referee's card was examined again, a figure changed from a seven to that of a pencil the title went to Greaves.

Manager Jersey Jones who calls himself "my boy's hardest critic" said after the fight, "he was 100 per cent Tiger this time, he look every round. In the last fight there was some doubt. He was only 75 per cent Tiger, but this time he took it all the way."

Jones said he was never in any doubt about the outcome.

"Now it is the world title we are after," said Jones. "We lost five valuable months through postponements, and now we have to make it up.

GOING ALL OUT

"If necessary we will wade through all the top ten contenders. We will go after the winner of either the Fullmer - Robinson fight or the Power-Downs affair —or both if necessary. We are going all out for a crack at the world crown."

Of the fight the Tiger said "It was a good fight, and close, but I was just warming up when the ref stopped it.

Greaves, his short-lived reign ended, showed little emotion as he admitted "I just couldn't seem to get on top." He would say nothing of his plans for the future.

Follows 'Shag' As Minor League Head

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Thomas H. Richardson, 65, president of the Eastern League for 26 years, Wednesday was elected president of the International League. He was given a one-year contract at $25,000.

Richardson said the league office would be moved from Montreal to one of the other league cities to be determined later.

Harry Simmons, league secretary, said that a group from Syracuse, which is trying to get the Montreal league franchise, attended Wednesday's meetings. A league committee will go to Syracuse to look the situation over.

The minor league baseball map in 1961 probably will stretch from Honolulu to San Juan, Puerto Rico.

The Pacific Coast League announced Wednesday it plans to operate in Honolulu next season.

The league has an option to use the Sacramento club for $25,000. This would be transferred to Honolulu when the ownership problem is settled.

The International League announced earlier the transfer of its Miami franchise to San Juan.

World Soccer

WOLVERHAMPTON, England (AP) — Wolverhampton Wanderers defeated Austria's 5-0 Wednesday night and qualified for the quarter-finals of the European Soccer Cup on a 5-2 aggregate score.

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP)—Glasgow Rangers crushed Borussia of Germany 8-0 in the European Soccer Cup tournament Wednesday night and advanced to the quarter-finals on an aggregate score of 11-0.

PARIS (AP)—Reims of France defeated Barnley of Britain 3-2 Wednesday night but Burnley moved into the quarter-finals of the European Soccer Cup with an aggregate score of 4-3. Burnley won the first match three weeks ago, 2-0.

Irish Nip Marlies 7-5

TORONTO (CP)—Dave Draper triggered three goals and added one assist to lead Toronto St. Michael's College Majors to a 7-5 victory over Toronto Marlboros in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series Tuesday night.

Linemates Gerry Keenan and Bruce Draper combined for six goals and seven assists. Bruce scored two goals and added three assists, while Keenan scored once and aided in three.

St. Michael's, with their nine wins in 12 games, lead the league by three points over the Mic Niagara Falls Flyers, Marlboros, with seven points, are in sixth place in the seven-team loop.

NEEDS SPEEDUP

TILLSONBURG (CP)—The Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Growers' Marketing Board Wednesday indicated selling of the record 1960 crop may not end before the second week in March. Board chairman Stanley Smith appealed to growers to speed up shipments to auction exchanges to help clear the crop.

Sugar Sees Handwriting On the Wall

What are the immediate plans of the Sugarman, who is 39—or is it 40?

"If I am successful and win from Fullmer," Robinson said Wednesday, "I will give him a return match, according to the contract. If I win again, I hope to fix things up with Mr. Pender."

Robinson and Fullmer, 29, the champion recognized by the National Boxing Association, battle Saturday night in the Sports Arena in a nationally televised 15-rounder for the NBA title.

"Mr. Pender" is Paul. of Boston, who is recognized in his home state and New York as the world champion, and who twice earlier this year outpointed Robinson.

"If I am successful in these matches, and clear up the championship, I would then retire," concluded Sugar Ray.

Suppose, Robinson was asked, he loses to Fullmer, a point that the betting people think will happen at odds of around 5-1?

FOUND NO BLAME

TORONTO (CP)—A coroner's jury Wednesday night attached no blame in the Oct. 18 death of Isaac Mandl, 46, who died after he was struck by a car driven by Sollie Rich, 43.

TRUCK DRIVER KILLED

COOKSVILLE (CP) — Truck driver Rodolph Pfeiffer, 32, was killed Wednesday night when his tractor-trailer was struck by a CPR Dayliner about six miles northwest of here. The trucker from nearby Streetsville, a native of Germany, had been in Canada eight years.

Anyway The Game Was Played!

By HAL R. COOPER

"LONDON (AP)—They played the Eton wall game again Wednesday. The score was College 0, Oppidans 0, and let's face it."

The Duke of Wellington must have been kidding.

The wall game occurs every St. Andrew's Day, and has for hundreds of years. The last time a goal was scored was in 1909.

The old Iron Duke is said to have stated that the Battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton.

If they had patterned that historic hassle in 1815 after the wall game, the forces of England and France still would be locked in mortal combat.

The playing field is a strip of ground running along one of the school walls. In order to score, a ball must be got to be nursed along the wall with the feet. Hits may be no more known as "good calx" and "bad calx."

The side having reached a calx is then entitled to a "shy" which . . . you don't really want to go on with this, do you?

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan played for the Collegers in 1936. He failed to score, but has done all right since.

Milt Graham May Retire

OTTAWA (CP)—Milt Graham, a standout tackle with Ottawa Rough Riders since 1956, indicated Thursday he might not be back in football next season.

Graham told a reporter he might leave the Grey Cup champions to devote all his time to his plumbing and heating business in Sorton.

"I'll think it over during the winter. If I feel as I do now and decide to give up the game, I want to contact Frank Clair first."

Ifm 36 now, have had five good years of football in the Big Four and it's time to think seriously of getting into business permanently."

LACROSSE COACH DIES

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Mel Soper, 46, one of St. Catharines' most successful Lacrosse trainers and coaches, died Wednesday after a long illness. Soper coached St. Catharines Athletics to Ontario junior championships in 1935, 1947 and 1948 and was trainer of the senior Athletics when they became Ontario titlists in 1938, 1939, 1940 and 1941. The 1947 junior team and the 1938, 1940 and 1941 senior teams went on to win Canadian championships.

Lions Won't Accept Loop Gate Split

VANCOUVER (CP)—President Ralph Henderson of British Columbia Lions said Wednesday the club definitely will not accept a Union ruling increasing the gate-receipt split.

He said this is an interview after releasing a statement that said Lions have protested the ruling made at a league meeting Saturday.

The statement added, however: "At the same time we do consider ourselves members of the WIFU until such times as we are advised to the contrary."

Angry Lions officials walked out of a league meeting after the other four clubs passed a ruling increasing the gate-receipt split to 40 per cent from 25 per cent of revenue received from attendance over the league average. The money is paid into a pool which helps weaker clubs.

Some Lions officials said then consideration was being given to leaving the league and joining the Eastern Big Four Football Union.

Grey Cup Aftermath

Mayor Blames Officials

Hotels Give Coast Cops Full Credit

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver's major hotels took stock of their troubles Wednesday night and concluded that the Grey Cup classic was a defensive game won handily by police.

An announcement by the managers of eight hotels said:

"Total damages to the eight hotels was less than $500. It is a small price to pay, for bringing millions of dollars to circulate in trade channels here."

The managers of the Castle, Georgia, St. Regis, Grosvenor, Devonshire, Georgian Towers, Ritz and Vancouver hotels gave full marks to tough defensive line of the police department.

"The exuberance of the milling crowds was kept under admirable control by the police. The wear and tear on the hotels was no more than normal for any large event."

The statement also said "We subscribe fully to the sentiments expressed by Prime Minister Diefenbaker . . . when he said the cross-Canada-wrecking influence of the annual Grey Cup game is very desirable in stimulating Canadian spirit."

The Tracks

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—Jockey Charlie Boland, an apprentice who arrived from Ontario five days ago, rode four winners on the Narragansett racing card Wednesday — including the daily double—and got his last of that day after a fall. . . .

Boland, 20, was aboard Skylark Road ($6.80) in the first and Passage West ($9) in the second for a $62.20 daily double. Then scored with Monterey Kid ($4.60) in the seventh. His record was eight race, Pawtucket, ruled in the muddy going, but Boland, unhorsed, bounced back with Night Service ($7.60) in the final race.

Royal Native Wednesday was named champion among older fillies and mares by the Thoroughbred Racing Associations' board of selectors.

The four-year-old daughter at Royal Charger - Native Gal, by Sir Gallahad III, won nine of 12 starts this season. She was second at six furlongs, third once and earned $201,236.

DECKERS FOR PROPERTY

MONTREAL (CP) — A real estate syndicate is negotiating for a downtown block of land owned by a religious order and plans to build a $20,000,000 commercial project it was announced Wednesday. The development would feature a 36-storey office building, 16 - storey hotel, shopping and recreation centres and indoor parking space for 1,000 cars.

MAY JOIN TEAM

QUEBEC (CP) — Defenceman Jim Morrison, 20, is expected to report to Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League tonight, after being bought from New York Rangers, Aces general manager Bob Mattheau announced Wednesday. Morrison is a nine-year veteran of the NHL. Quebec coach Jack Toupin said Morrison, who has played with Toronto, Boston, New York and Detroit, may be pressed into action when Aces meet Hershey here tonight.

Ron Stewart Will Stay With Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Halfback Ronnie Stewart will be back with Ottawa Rough Riders next season, coach Frank Clair said Thursday.

Stewart will attend Osgoode Hall in Toronto starting in late September and this has resulted in speculation in some quarters that he might either stay out of football or line up with Toronto Argos if a deal could be made with Riders.

Clair said Stewart will go through the full training period with the Grey Cup champions and play half the schedule before school time.

"From then on, he will have to commute" said Clair. "Ronnie will come down from Toronto for practices each week at the earliest possible moment."

Winner of several major awards this season, including the best Canadian and top player in the Grey Cup game, Stewart is understood to be seeking a salary boost. He got about $7,000 this year.

DIRECTOR RESIGNS

MONTREAL (CP)—Police Director J. Albert Langlois, 61, often a target in Montreal's turbulent municipal politics, will leave his job as head of the 1,800-member force. The city's executive committee announced Wednesday that his written resignation will be accepted today but that it will be dated Dec. 15, 1961.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Ottawa Rough Riders perhaps were more than the Grey Cup and its accompanying trimmings. They won the satisfaction of having certain segments of the eastern press reluctantly "eat crow."

As a matter of fact a story out of Vancouver has it that some of the Riders took personal satisfaction from a Toronto sportswriter dirting the post-game high jinks in the Riders' dressing room.

Vern (Montreal Gazette) DeGeer, who was part of his newspaper's coverage team, wrote in his column that a Toronto sportswriter who had panned the Riders all season made the mistake of entering the Rider dressing room.

He was recognized and some of the Riders rushed him into the shower, clothes and all, where he was given the hot and cold water treatment. Afterwards they doused him with beer—and let it go at that. DeGeer did not identify the writer.

Russ Jackson, sensational Rider quarterback, wrote in a column in the Ottawa Journal: "Some people couldn't get it through their heads this season that Ottawa Rough Riders were a good football team. Maybe they'll believe us now."

"We weren't supposed to win the Big Four championship from Toronto Argonauts and we weren't supposed to win the Grey Cup from the Edmonton Eskimos last Saturday. We did it and now maybe we'll be appreciated outside of Ottawa."

"I don't mean to sound cranky or bitter about this," Jackson wrote, "but the Rough Rider team did get tired of hearing all season that we weren't as strong a team as Toronto because we didn't have any stars."

"We had twelve big stars against Edmonton. They were the members of our defensive team, and boy, did they play a football game."

Bill Westwick, Ottawa Journal sports editor, columned: "There had been some strange annoying and utterly annoying juvenile stories made the rounds in regard to the press known as 'headline hunters.' They'd almost hinted that Rough Rider players were making the 'night club rounds.' They'd hinted darkly that there was a 'dawn of a new era of training'."

"They were stupid stories that perhaps helped out in a way. They vexed Ottawa players who have battled it out all season with generally more team spirit than any collection of athletes this writer has known in the Capital's sporting history. That's been their history, despite all the foolish things you've heard and still hear."

It read: "More, perhaps than any time since 1911 is Ottawa today the capital of Canada. Montreal, Toronto and Edmonton have had their revolutionary ambitions snuffed out. The central power was challenged by all three and met the threat in the only possible manner left open: with force.

"Authorities in the capital were quick to point out that in fact more was at stake than the vaunting aspirations of these three leading cities. Each had in their turn been encouraged in their insurrection by having subdued the lesser tribal uprisings in their regions, such as in the industrial town of Hamilton, in the farming areas of Calgary and Regina, in the old Fort Garry encampment known as Winnipeg, along the waterfront stronghold of the Vancouver longshoremen.

"The Ottawa victory is the more welcome to thinking Canadians because no recourse was had to the United Nations, nor even NATO. Mr. Frank Clair, chief federal officer, will be criticized for strong-arm methods. But we cannot allow sentimental softness to lessen the determination of the capital to assert its dominion over its parts. The newspaper does not believe this nation can remain half-slave and half-free. Federal agent Clair could do no better than beat the insurgents into the ground, a salutary lesson to all impertinent people that Ottawa subjects they were born and Ottawa subjects they will die.

"At this time when Africa is a ferment, China does challenge Russia and all Americans tie in wait to judge their new president—it is not too much to say that the Ottawa victory in the damp half-light of far-off Vancouver, is a blow struck for the forces of right and law and order, not only in Ottawa but in this entire nation and indeed throughout the globe."

Bruins Rally To Tie Black Hawks 2-2

Uke Line Saves Day

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Ukrainian line is still a major force behind Boston Bruins' sporadic offence.

The National Hockey League trio — Bronco Horvath, Johnny Bucyk and Vic Stasiuk—proved just that Wednesday night.

The Bruins were losing 2-0 to the Black Hawks in Chicago until the Ukes engineered two late third period goals, tying the game 2-2.

It was the only game in the league and the tie preserved Chicago's unbeaten record on home ice and stretched Boston's winless streak on the road this season to 12 games.

Bucyk emerged as the big star. He combined with Stasiuk to set up Doug Mohns for the first Boston goal with less than six minutes remaining in the game. Then with less than four minutes to go, he took passes from Stasiuk and Horvath and beat Chicago's Glenn Hall for the tying marker.

Chicago had appeared headed for victory on goals by Murray Balfour in the first period and Ron Murphy in the third.

In 13 road games Boston has managed only four ties, coming from behind on all four occasions to avert defeat.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The gap between the top and bottom of the Western Hockey League shrank like a cheap sweater Wednesday night as Spokane Comets and Portland Buckaroos both gained wins.

Comets got theirs the hard way, by going into Winnipeg and beating the Warriors 4-2. Portland had the advantage of home ice but still had to knock over league-leading Calgary Stampeders 4-3.

Spokane still remained in last place, but they are in effect, in a fifth-place tie with Victoria with 16 points.

Portland and Winnipeg are in fourth place with 17 points.

Gordie Fashoway scored twice to lead Portland to its win. Other Portland goals were by Barry Krake and Gordy Howatt.

BUDLONG SOLD

NEW YORK (CP)—Mr. Budlong, a four-year-old pacer, was purchased for $47,000 in Wednesday's final session of the three-day old Glory harness horse sales at Madison Square Garden. The powerfully built gelding, a winner of $83,000 this season, was sold to Saul Finkenstein of New Rochelle, N.Y.

MOSCOW (CP)—Chatham Maroons got another chance today to live up to their billing—Canada's 1960 Allan Cup champions.

Outplayed by Moscow's Spartak hockey team here Wednesday, the Maroons managed a 3-3 tie only because of the nimble goal - tending of Harold (Boat) Hurley, darling of Soviet hockey fans.

The Canadians meet another Russian team today in the fifth game of their seven-game Soviet tour. A win would square up the exhibition series and shore up the ego of the Canadian amateurs, who looked their best in the first game—a 5-3 victory.

Forward Floyd (Butch) Martin of the Maroons, who has had experience in European style hockey with the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, saved Wednesday's game by snapping a hard shot into the Russian net with little more than six minutes left.

Playing Moscow's Spartak team before a school crowd of 12,000, the Canadians went one goal behind in the first five minutes as the Russians opened up with a fast attack.

Left-winger George Aitken tied it a couple of minutes later and teams played scoreless hockey until the third period.

Hurley frustrated the Russians time and again in the second period as their steady digging kept the six-foot goalie making grandstand saves. Hurley has been getting most of the cheers directed at the Canadians by Soviet fans.

The third period opened with three fast goals. The Russians scored almost immediately but defenceman Elmer Skov tied it for the Maroons a few minutes later.

The Russians made it 3-2 at the six-minute mark and defended their lead until the Canadians' persistence finally paid off with Martin's goal. There was no overtime period.

After today's game the Canadians are to go to Kiev, where they'll play games Saturday and Sunday.

Penticton Folds

Another Nail In Coffin

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — Unemployment muscled its way into the sports scene and caused the collapse of senior hockey here.

Penticton Vs, Allan Cup champions in 1954 and world champions a year later, disbanded and left the Okanagan League with only three teams—Kelowna Packers, Kamloops Chiefs and Vernon Canadians.

The Vs were the league's best drawing card this season, averaging about 1,000 fans a game.

Officials said the club could not continue because their imports failed to find jobs to augment token hockey payments.

The immediate pilght of the remaining teams will be decided within the next two or three days at an emergency league meeting," said Bob Gilhooley of Kelowna, OSHL president.

Penticton's decision to declare what officials called a "temporary suspension of operations," followed a meeting between the executive and players.

The club faces an operating deficit of $2,600 and Wednesday a creditor obtained a court order against the team's bank account.

Leo G. Lowell, immediate past-president of the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association, said in Vancouver:

"I'm greatly dilapoidated that the Vs have folded. . . . I hope the league can continue, but the days ahead will be difficult."

Penticton is the second OSHL team to fold this year. Merritt, which joined last fall, quit because of financial troubles.

Big One Got Away, Came Back

PORT BYERSE, Ont. (CP)—The fishing season for lake-run rainbow trout ended Wednesday with a strange but well - documented fish story.

Matt Livingstone of Simcoe was casting in Young's Creek outside this Lake Erie port. He laid his rod down to talk to another fisherman and turned back just in time to see the butt of the rod vanish into the current.

He reeled his line in until he retrieved the lost rod, then used the second rod to land a 23-inch five-pound rainbow.

A dozen other anglers along the stream watched the incident.

The fish was claimed by Mr. Livingstone.

Juniors Clobber Cobourg

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Belleville Lambert-Rollins flattened up their scoring records and they whipped a shorthanded Cobourg team here to move into undisputed possession of first place in the OHA Eastern Junior "B" loop here last night.

The locals flashed plenty of scoring punch against the league's cellar club, weakened by the loss of seven regulars because of high school exams. The visitors drenched 11 men in all but were never in contention from the first period.

Belleville led 6-1 at the end of the first and 10-1 after two periods. They hammered an amazing total of 74 shots at Cobourg's goalie, Derrill Johnstone, while Bill Mount in the winner's net handled 38 of Cobourg's 39 attempts. Johnstone had little support from either an offensive or defensive viewpoint.

Lambert - Rollins, with a three won-one-lost record, play next in Kingston Monday night, then back here against Peterborough a week from Friday.

While the entire club played well in last night's victory, five of the forwards stood out in the point production, led by Gary Glover.

Glover clubbed up seven points with three goals and four assists. Fred McGill was just one point back with his second hat trick of the young season plus three assists. Pete Weston earned two goals and three assists while Joe Hunter was two and two and Gary Hall one and three.

Paul Wakely bagged Picton's lone marker, tipping in Wilde's shot at 13.14 of the initial period. Brian Highfield also assisted on the play. That made the score 5-1 at the time. Goyer had opened the scoring at 1.14 of added another at 14.57, sandwiched around goals by G. Hull, Reid and Mc-Gill. Smith added Belleville's sixth of the period at 17.47.

Eight of the game's 17 penalties came in the middle heat bet Weston, R. Hull and Hunter twice, upper Belleville's lead to 10-1. Goyer and Weston scored early in the third period while McGill wound p the scoring with two goals in Le final minute of play to complete his hat trick.

Referees Leo Goyer and Tim Williams had little trouble in controlling play with only one or two minor clashes easily handled. They assessed the winners nine minor penalties and Cobourg seven minors and a misconduct, to Gary Dunn for speaking out of turn.

Cobourg: Johnstone, Walsh, Dunn, Taylor, Fres, Rowe, Stevenson, Chase, Wakely, Highfield, Brayton.

Referees — Tim Williams and Leo Goyer, Belleville.

Will Play Hula Baseball

LOUISVILLE, Ky. AP)—The Pacific Coast League announced Wednesday night it will operate in Honolulu in 1961.

Dewey Soriano, league president, said several parties are interested in operating the franchise. He said league representatives will meet Friday at San Francisco with Chinn Ho, president of the Honolulu Stadium Corp., to complete lease arrangements.

Tentative schedules call for each coast league team to make two trips to Honolulu.

Wants Better Player Allotment

Greenberg Takes 2nd Look At L.A.

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The major league expansion picture took on another look today with the report that Hank Greenberg and Ralph Kiner have regained interest in acquiring a franchise in Los Angeles.

A reliable source said Greenberg was ready to reconsider his decision to pull out of the Los Angeles picture if his American League colleagues were more attractive players allotment offer to the ninth and 10th clubs.

"Greenberg wouldn't consider trying to operate a new franchise in the American League," the informant said, "if he has to start with those fringe players put on the market.

"However, if the American League should place more attractive players on each 15-player list, Hank would almost certainly try - apply for a franchise. I'm sure he'd get it, too."

Greenberg was virtually granted the Los Angeles franchise last month but he pulled out when he failed to come to terminial agreement with Walter O'Malley, owner of the Dodgers.

The American League is holding a meeting Monday of its expansion plans—whether it will operate in 1961 with eight, nine or ten teams—until after two pivotal meetings.

Most of these meetings took place today between Ford Frick, chief of baseball, Joe Cronin of the American and Warren Giles of the National. The purpose was to agree on an amendment of Rule 1 which provides for unanimous agreement of all 16 clubs for major league baseball to place a franchise in territory occupied by another big league club.

The American also is realizing word from the National regarding its proposal for nine - team inter-league play in 1961. The National is slated to discuss this proposal at its annual meeting in St. Louis Dec. 5. Advance information is that the National will reject the proposal.

Now word piled upon the already troubled majors Wednesday when W. H. Hopkins, the president of the Houston club of the Texas League, formally charged baseball with restraint of trade.

The charge stemmed from statements made by Frick and Giles which, in effect, warned the American League against moving into Houston which they regard as National League territory.

Wolves Dump Kingston 6-1, Hull Wins

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

They blasted Kitchener-Waterloo Sleepers 6-1 Wednesday night to boost their Eastern Professional Hockey League points total to 33, nine more than second-place Sault Ste. Marie. In the other game Sudbury rose to fourth place by dumping Kingston 6-1. Sudbury has 22 points and Kingston 20.

LONE PENNINGTONT

Skov may be afraid of losing Cliff Pennington, a sparkplug and the league's leading scorer. He pumped one past former U.S. Olympic goalie Jack McCartan Wednesday night. John Gaultier and John Annable added the others.

Beavers held an edge in terms of shots, 32-18. They couldn't capitalize. Jerry Cheevers was outstanding in Ottawa's close checking.

Sudbury built up a four-goal lead over Frontenacs by the end of the second period and coasted the rest of the way. Kingston's lone marker came in the first five minutes of the final period when Jean Maurice Bault decorated.

John Sleaver scored a pair to help break Wolves' four-game losing streak. Other Sudbury goals came from Sam Bettio, Al Cleary, Tom McCarthy and Gene Achtymichuk.

TENNIS PRO INJURED

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) Tennis professional Karel Fagel of Carl Gables, Fla., was in hospital Wednesday with fractured ribs suffered in a bus-truck collision on the Ohio Turnpike Tuesday night. Miss Fagel, 28, and members of the New York skyscrapers basketball team were passengers on the bus, chartered by the team. Miss Fagel was tennis exhibitions at the team's games.

Hockey Hints

By Lloyd Percival

"IT'S A TOUGH BUSINESS"

Terry Sawchuck, the net custodian for the Detroit Red Wings, has had many problems to contend with during his career but in spite of them he has earned a reputation as one of the best goalkeepers in modern hockey. Though the young player can learn a great deal from his technique perhaps the outstanding lesson to learn is found in the way Terry handles screen shots.

Goalkeeping in modern hockey is a tough, high pressure job and one of the things that makes it so tough is the large number of shots that are fired at the goal through a ruck of players milling around in front of the goal. Most goalkeepers dread this situation because they cannot get a good look at the puck and it is often in the net before they know it.

Sawchuk has developed probably the best system to offset the problem. The Detroit star crouches low and tries his best to keep the puck in sight. He crouches low because he knows it is easier to see through a maze of legs than it is a bunch of bodies. Sawchuk also plays percentage hockey and figures the shot will be a low one since few high shots get past a group of players. Because of these factors, Sawchuck stops many shots he otherwise would seem have seen. For more hints get my booklet, "Plants, Acrobat and Skates" by sending a stamped, self - addressed envelope and 25c to Hockey Hints, 80 King St. W. Toronto.

Senior Raid Lower Clubs Gets Setback

KITCHENER (CP)—A move by senior club operators to obtain control of players in the minor series was overwhelmingly defeated at the annual meeting of the Inter-County Baseball Association here Wednesday night.

Senior clubs sponsored a resolution which, if approved, would have given them the right to sign players in any, lesser series without the approval of the officials of lower clubs. Only four votes, of senior, were cast for the resolution.

The meeting approved another senior league proposal to provide a special playing certificate for the senior league only instead of an Ontario Baseball Association card. The IC seniors do not compete in OBA playoffs.

Another amendment approved will permit senior teams to sign Canadian players up to June 30. Previously, unless the player was a student or teacher, the deadline was June 3.

Financial statement showed the net worth of the league as $5,295 despite an operating deficit this summer of $35. There was increased from 49 in 1959 to 53 this year, with player registrations from 822 to 943.

Earl Cook of St. Thomas was re-elected president by acclamation. Other officers for the 1961 season will be: first vice-president, Reid Buck, Galt; second vice - president, Jack Shannon, Waterloo; treasurer, Norm Parker, Waterloo; executive, Bill Dobson, Stratford; Ernie Halpern, Kitchener; Otto Manske, Elmira and Tim Turow, Preston.

Hockey Pole In Canada

TORONTO (CP) Warsaw schoolteacher Tradeusz Dolewski arrived Wednesday night to continue his one - man inquiry into Canada's hockey techniques.

The 41-year-old Pole, in Canada five days, said he came to study coaching techniques and possibly induce some Canadian coaches to visit Poland and conduct clinics.

A member of the 1948 and 1952 Polish Olympic hockey teams, Dolewski has coached in Warsaw the last five years and is hearing the most of the financial brunt of his five-week trip.

Sport Snapshots

By MEL SUFRIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In the first flush of excitement after last Saturday's Grey Cup game there was much talk that Canadian Football League officials might decide to rule Vancouver out as a site for future East-West football finals.

There was considerable annoyance with the lack of effective police action to deal with unruly fans who forced the game to be halted with 41 seconds left to play.

But by the time officials get together in February for their annual meetings, they'll undoubtedly be able to assess the situation more calmly. And chances are they won't decide to quite themselves by eliminating the west coast city from consideration for future games.

Some sports writers have wondered in print what would have happened if there had been merely a one-point margin when the ball was snatched from the field and spectators made their assaults on the goalposts in Empire Stadium.

RESULT ASSURED

It seems reasonable to assume, however, that if there had been any doubt about the outcome there would not have been interference with the progress of the game.

As it was, Ottawa Rough Riders were ahead 16-6 and in possession of the ball—that is until it was grabbed in a cross-field sprint by some irresponsible fan. Edmonton Eskimos needed more than a touchdown to win and with less than a minute to play they knew they were beaten.

Coming to Edmonton Eskimos president, described the incident as disgraceful and said the team would think twice before considering playing in a Grey Cup game in Vancouver again.

What perhaps didn't occur to Wyse is that Vancouver may get even want it. Three finals have been played there since the game moved west from Toronto in 1955 and each time the city has been given a rugged time by spectators.

Vancouver Mayor Tom Alsbury said the city and football authorities would have to consider whether another final should be played there unless a way is found to control the enthusiasm of the spectators.

GAME MEANS MONEY

However, the fact that out-of-town visitors who pour in for the game spend a lot of money—one estimate is that the neighborhood of a million dollars—is likely to make Vancouver think twice before it flatly refuses to play host again to the finals.

Canadian Football Commissioner Sydney Hallet of Winnipeg didn't make any definite statement on the possibility of banning the game from Vancouver although he did express disappointment that police were apparently not prepared to halt the mob.

And Lew Hayman, general manager of Toronto Argonauts, was quite charitable, and he was sure that if the game were held in the same city there would certainly be effective measures to see that it would be played without interference.

Officials of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Montreal Alouettes, Ottawa Rough Riders and British Columbia Lions also indicated they didn't think Saturday's affair should kill Vancouver's chances of getting the playoff.

BIGGEST STADIUM

They may have been thinking of the gate receipts. Some 32,000 fans paid to get into Empire Stadium and if there hadn't been wasn't a sellout that's more than any other stadium in Canada can hold right now.

There is some talk that the game may be played Sunday's new McMahon Stadium some time soon. Although it holds only 20,000, and doesn't compare with either Empire Stadium or Toronto's Exhibition field, there is some sentimental support for the idea.

It comes mainly from the people who remember that the cowboy-hatted Calgarians who descended on Toronto for the 1949 game between the Shamrocks and Montreal introduced the hoopla that was established the Grey Cup game as Canada's biggest annual one-day sports spectacle.

Amid all the talk of the Vancouver incident, the question arises as to whether it could happen elsewhere. For anyone who doubts it, don't forget that a riot broke out in usually sophisticated New York during a National Football League final several years ago.

As Alouettes owner Ted Workman said, "It could happen anywhere, even in Toronto the Good."

'All Way Home' Performed With Towering Power

The play, which opened Wednesday night at the Belasco Theatre, is based upon James Agee's Pulitzer Prize novel, A Death in the Family. Fragile in mood, slender in event, it is performed with towering power.

All the Way Home, adapted to the stage by TV writer Tad Mosel, concerns four days in the Knoxville, Tenn., of 1915. A man finds in that span happiness, tragedy and a sudden emergence.

Penn has a number of other notable talents at his command. Colleen Dewhurst plays the mother with a shattering display of inner tension and outer reserve; Aline Macmahon stands out as an aunt of surpassing understanding and veteran Lillian Gish portrays a stone deaf matriarch with humor and charm.

WANT POLARIS BASE

BELFAST (AP)—Prime Minister Lord Brookborough told Parliament Tuesday he is willing to accept a Polaris submarine base in Northern Ireland if it means more employment for local people. But he said no offer of such a base was made in his recent talks with British ministers in London. Britain decided recently to provide a base in the Scottish Holy Loch for American Polaris-carrying submarines.

Guilty of Assault

CHATHAM (CP)—A man's home is his castle and he has every right to refuse entrance to his mother-in-law, Magistrate F. K. Jasperson said Wednesday.

He found Mrs. Margaret Kew of Port Credit, Ont., guilty of assault in a Nov. 20 scuffle with her son-in-law, James Russell of Chatham.

Russell testified that on Nov. 20 Mrs. Kew broke down the locked front door, tore his shirt, broke his watch and hit him.

AT THE PARK — Beautiful Joanne Dru is the attractive cause of trouble between mountain boy Audie Murphy (center) and two-gun-slinger Peter Breck in this scene from "Universal-International's "The Wild and the Innocent", opens tonight at the Park Theatre. The CinemaScope and color adventure-comedy also stars Sandra Dee, Gilbert Roland and Jim Backus. On the same program is Technicolor Cecil B. DeMille's "Samson and Delilah", starring Victor Mature, Hedy Lamarr, George Sanders, Angela Lansbury and Henry Wilcoxon. One complete show tonight and Friday, starts at 7.15 p.m.

AT THE BELLE — Sparkling Shirley MacLaine, who plays a cabaret owner and can-can dancer, in the gay Paree of the '90's displays her charms to her lawyer, Frank Sinatra, and a romanizing judge, Maurice Chevalier, in a scene from "Can-Can", 20th Century-Fox musical that has something for everyone, rousing comedy, Deluxe Color, and distinctive music. "Can-Can",opens today for a limited run at the Belle Theatre. Two performances daily, matinees at 2.00; Evenings at 8.15.

TV 'Shady Lady' Gets Divorce

TORONTO (CP) — Joan Johnson Abiscott, 27, a model known as the "Shady Lady" television star, was granted a decree absolute Wednesday, finally ending her marriage.

The couple came exactly four weeks after Mr. Justice J. L. Wilson of Ontario Supreme Court ruled that there was no evidence of collusion in Mrs. Abiscotts divorce evidence as alleged by the attorney-generals department.

Mrs. Abiscott made headlines earlier this year when she declared on a CBC television program she had acted as a paid correspondent in divorce cases, then said later her story was a hoax.

PRISONERS' REMANDED

MONTREAL (CP)—Four prisoners at Bordeaux Jail were remanded Wednesday for preliminary hearing Dec. 7, charged with causing a total of $410 in damage to their cells Nov. 21.

Millie Perkins Gets Work After Telling off Bosses

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Millie Perkins may have seemed like a fragile little kid, but she has changed. She's doing her first film more than two years and she credits her own outbursts for the return to work.

From Anne Frank to Elvis Presley's girl friend, appears a long distance in movie roles. The time between those two parts seems an eternity to Millie.

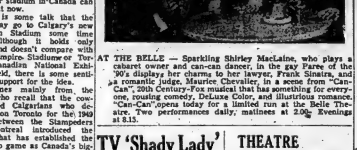
"I finished The Diary of Anne Frank in August of 1957," she recalled. "When the picture was released in April of 1959, I toured the country for two weeks and later toured Europe for a month.

"Aside from that I did nothing. Absolutely nothing. I merely waited for the studio to find something for me to do.

HAD SOME OFFERS

"I had offers to do important television specials, but they wouldn't let me. I wanted to do summer stock in the East with my husband (Dean Stockwell). It would have been just the experience I needed, but they said no. It might hurt my career if I refused.

"Finally, I got fed up. I went in to see the bosses and I shouted and I screamed and I carried on. I told them I didn't think I was 'special,' that I wanted to act and I wanted them to let me out of my contract."



She was given the role as Presley's straight sweetheart in Wild in the Country.

What did she do during her long wait? Well, she got married to Stockwell, and she learned how to cook.

TECHNICAL AID ARRIVES

SANTIAGO, Cuba (AP)—Soviet technicians arrived at the Nicaro nickel processing plant Tuesday to help Cubans get the former government-owned property back in operation, Ivan Stiguirn, chief of the Russian technical division, told Nicaro workers at a rally that Moscow will supply all the raw materials and repair parts necessary to reopen the plant. The plant was nationalized by the Fidel Castro regime last month.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Friday, December 2

General Tendencies: There are all kinds of chances for you to-day to make sure that you do not miss your most inventive qualities to fullest advantage, just so you take no chances of a financial or emotional nature. Fix your surrounding and environment so that it is more as you wish it to be. Quiet, beneficial setting then follows.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) By having conferences with your associates today, you can verify only far more efficient methods of operating in the future. Then co-ordinate and reorganize all other affairs, whether of a personal or business nature. Entire early.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Slow through on those clever ideas for repairing property or making surroundings more comfortable and lovely. Latter part of day is then fine for shopping for furnishings that are really special. P. M. plan a good budget.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Are you using your talents and abilities to their fullest advantage? If not, this is the day to commercialize on them, and to help you attain your shortsighted goals. P.M. ideal for social affairs and then to exercise before retiring.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — It behooves you to spend some time in meditation today so that you know exactly what it is you want to do in the future, and how to best go about it. Also, later get advice from higher-ups. Be kind to the needy in P.M.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Colleagues and family ties will understand your ideas and needs now and being every effort to co-operate with you. Show appreciation by returning favors also. Tonight is then fine for any (important) social affairs.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — This is the day to show higher-ups how efficient you can be, as well as trustworthy. In any important matters, whether in social, civic or business life, P.M. dine out with employer or some other important executive.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) — There are many fine and constructive ideas running through your mind now and you would be wise to write them down on paper for future use. Then make new friends who can be useful in the future. Be charming.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) — Follow your hunches now, since they are very good, and you can garner much needed information from those who also have the "inside" how best to use it. P.M. be very romantic and this could be a delightful evening. Grow.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — The right day to have long conferences with associates and clear up any misunderstandings, also with competitive factions. If you adopt a conciliatory and co-operative attitude, all will work out beautifully.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Important you work diligently and sincerely today since you are able to put many duties behind you quickly and then plan for the days ahead constructively. Expend P.M. take any health treatments that you need. Retire early.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — If attuned properly astrologically, this can be one of the happiest and most productive days in a long while for you. Evening is then very fine for any social activities or whatever other form of entertainment suits your mood.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Important you consider the needs and desires of family now and do your best to help them achieve them, though you may have to be in the business world. Bring home little gifts. Spend evening at home, either entertaining or relaxing.

If your child is born today . . be, or she, will have a life full of changes and interesting experiences, dealing with fascinating personalities. So, be very sure you equip your youngster to cope with all this by proper training, religious and academic. Also, point out to that other people must necessarily orbit in or out of one's life as suits the plan of the maker and to accept this fact philosophically.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Well, what am I getting you for Christmas this year?"

Madoc Junction

Several from here attended the card party sponsored by the members of Stirling L.O.B.A. No. 650, which was held in the L.O.L. rooms on Thursday night.

Sorry to report that Miss Joyce Hagley was in bed with an attack of "flu". Her friends wish her a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Gordon Nelson and Mary, spent part of last week, visiting at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. George Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kelly, of Warkworth. On Thursday night they attended the wedding banquet of Mr. Earl Nelson at Cobourg.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Ashley were: Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Sills of Roslin; and Mrs. Earl Mooney of the Foxboro and Mr. Charles Chapman.

Mrs. Mountney and baby, have been spending the past two weeks with Mr. Mountney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles White.

Mr. Hiram Ashley accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett, of Foxboro, to Toronto, recently, where they visited with Mr. Ashley's sister, Mrs. Joe Dickens, who is ill.

There was no school here on Monday owing to the illness of the teacher, Mrs. Bert Reid.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Ashley were recent dinner guests, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Miller and family of Belleville.

The December meeting of the Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A. is to be held at the home of the W.M.S. president, Mrs. Bruce Stapley, on Thursday afternoon, December 8th. At the close of the meeting, there will be an exchange of Christmas gifts.

Last Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Ashley visited with Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Ashley and family of Batawa.

Says Contractors Broke Code Laws Before Blast

By PETER EMMOREY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINDSOR (CP)—A battery of natural gas experts Wednesday conducted a post mortem on events leading to the worst death-dealing explosion in Windsor history.

Testifying before a fire-man coroner's jury of Canada's leading contractors broke laws and went beyond their authority minutes before an explosion believed caused by natural gas wrecked a busy Metropolitan department store.

Ten were killed; more than 80 injured.

Under questioning by F. H. Bullen of Toronto, deputy assistant crown attorney, one witness said the explosion would have been "a hell of a lot worse." Ralph Gordon, owner of Jessop Plumbing Limited, and plus-boss Edward Schram called in gas servicemen.

When they opened the main line they broke codes set down by both Windsor and the Ontario Board of Gas Utility Arbitrators of Chatham, chief operations engineer of Union Gas of Canada Limited.

"They should have kept to the line outside the meter and not touched the main line. That was illegal."

HELD CONTRACT

Union Gas held the contract for installation of natural gas heating in the two-storey building. The Jessop firm was under sub-contract by Jessup Plumbing.

Mr. Ingram and Mr. Schram earlier testified they were trying to get gas into the installation. One of a small pile of sawdust by the meter and the furnace yielded only air, they said they opened a two-inch line outside the meter leading from the street main. Minutes later the store exploded.

"An installer is responsible for work carried out from the inside of the meter to the furnace," testified Russel Perkins, general manager of the Ontario Board of Gas Utility Arbitrators, a government office.

Gordon had absolutely no right to go beyond the meter."

COULD HAVE AVOIDED

Thomas C. Duval, chief inspector for Union Gas, said the disaster could have been avoided.

"We have men—specialists—to handle natural gas. Properly done it is perfectly safe to do so. If the installers had waited for us to properly cap the line there would have been no problem."

Mr. Duval, a Union Gas workman who worked on lines leading into the building, testified he had been given no instructions of instructions of the store manager, Scott Douglas.

(During means to bleed a gas line so as not pure gas flows to the appliance.)

Mr. Root said he did not leave the building immediately that the line had not been purged.

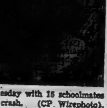
Batawa

BATAWA — James G. Kendrick, president of the Tellers Company, visited Batawa on Thursday.

Mr. Twist from the head office of the L.A.P.A. was guest speaker at the "Safety Dinner" at Club Cayuga. He gave an illustrated talk on "Safety at Play," on Thursday evening.

NURSERY CLOSED

Batawa Protestant residents are reminded that a nursery class will be held each Sunday during the worship hour, to enable parents to attend. All attend worship. It will be held in the public school each Sunday from 10.45 to the end of church service. Mrs. T. Alexander is in charge and will be glad to have children three years and under.



CONCERT ARRESTERA

Wide interest has been displayed in the possible formation of an Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra. One of the most tangible displays of interest is shown by the Toronto office of Broadcast Music. Through the kindness of Mr. Napier of the Canadian branch of the firm, Mrs. Stephen Choma has received a complete score and orchestration of "The Man from Moulin Rouge," with sufficient music for every for all instruments and parts.

Rawdon

RAWDON — On Saturday evening, November 26th, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Russett and Mr. Mrs. Gerald Russett and Mr. Orno Sharp, of Rawdon town — ship, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stacey, of Newtonville, attended the silver wedding of their friends and neighbors, Mr. Milo Vanvolkenburg, at Corbyrea.

The bride of 25 years was the former Laura Neal.

Others who attended the party were the bride's mother, Mrs. M. E. Neal and her brother, Mr. Percy Neal and Mrs. Neal of Belleville. Guests were also in attendance from Quinte, Foxboro and Madoc.

On Thursday evening the Corbyrea community held a party in their honor and they were the recipients of a set of Wedgwood service for six, a large silver tray and an electric clock.

Milo and Laurena voiced grateful thanks at both parties, for which those in charge served refreshments.

Cross-Canada Survey

Forecast Another Surge Forward in Nation's Tourist Industry in Coming Year

By KEN KELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Canadian tourist industry may be headed for another move forward in 1961 after experiencing a levelling-off this year from the record activity of 1959.

Tourist authorities see indications that the upward trend will be resumed provided there are good generally in Canada, and the United States.

An important impetus will be government legislation to provide government - guaranteed bank loans for tourist establishments to improve and modernize premises and purchase equipment. Loans of up to $25,000 repayable over 10 years will be made to tourist operators with a gross annual revenue below $250,000.

Travel officials also are looking to the Trans-Canada Highway to give a push to the industry next year. Their promotion literature will emphasize it will be possible to travel virtually from coast to coast on all-hard-paved road.

In addition, federal government tourist promotion outside Canada may break new ground with an appeal to overseas travellers. This would be supplementary to the heavy program of advertising—$1,600,000 worth in 1960—carried on by the Canadian Government Travel Bureau in the U.S.

NATIONAL PICTURE

Although some areas, especially on the Prairies, figure the industry bettered some 1959 records, a cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press indicates that tourist spending in Canada was at about the same levels as last year with travel by foreigners in this country only slightly higher.

Canadians seemed to be travelling outside Canada in greater numbers and evidently spending more money.

The federal government recently released final figures of the record 1959 tourist year. They showed that more Americans travelled in Canada and spent more than ever before.

But the increase was not as great as the increase in American travel in other countries, particularly Europe. And the rise was offset by more Canadians going abroad and spending record sums in the U.S. or overseas, leaving a $207,000,000 deficit in the Canadian travel account in 1959.

If preliminary estimates for 1960 prove accurate, volume of tourist travel by foreigners will be barely higher by the end of the year and their spending only just about equal the $391,000,000 spent in 1959—$351,000,000 of it by American visitors.

The factors producing this pattern are varied but travel authorities figure there are some that can be guessed at. For example, a presidential election year in the U.S. is traditionally a slow year for Canadian tourist operators whose income comes mainly from American visitors.

U.S. WEATHER GOOD

The U.S. steel strike, which had wide ramifications in the whole American economy, may also have been a factor in the apparent levelling-off of volume and spending.

It is also thought that fewer people came to Canada from the heavily - populated northeastern U.S. because of the absence of hot, humid weather in the area during the summer months.

Tourist authorities note that in New York City, for example, the temperature failed to reach 90 degrees for the first time in 15 years.

A trend toward foreign vacations became pronounced this year in many areas of the country. Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and Ontario travel authorities commented specifically on this as an important contributor to the trade.

This may have been partly responsible for smaller per capita spending by tourists and also for slackening in construction of motels, a development that authorities hope will be reversed in 1961.

PROVINCIAL REVIEW

This was the picture across the country:

Alberta: Total spending probably will exceed last year's $76,000,000 but with greater numbers visiting the national parks the average spent by each tourist apparently was lower.

Saskatchewan: A record year at national and provincial parks indicates higher volume. Motels along the Trans-Canada Highway were booked solid through June to September and northern resort operators reported an excellent year.

Manitoba: Volume and spending are expected to exceed the 1959 records of 1,137,303 tourists and $34,324,364, largely attributed to Trans-Canada highway development.

Ontario: Spending is expected to be about three per cent below last year's $800,000,000 despite a sharp rise in volume, estimated at eight per cent above last year's 50,000,000. The rise in volume apparently was due to greater travel by Quebecers and Ontario residents although U.S. visitors also rose an estimated two per cent.

Quebec: Expecting a decline in U.S. visitors, Quebec early in the year launched a drive for more tourists from Ontario and the Atlantic provinces. It was such a success that a further campaign is planned in 1961. The net gain is estimated at $15,500,000. Ontario visitors are estimated to have increased 14.8 per cent, Maritimers 6.5 per cent while U.S. arrivals sagged 1.78 per cent.

New Brunswick: The value of tourist trade was estimated to increase to $41,000,000 over last year's record $40,000,000 with a five-per-cent rise in volume at an estimated 1,378,000 tourists were Canadian, attributed to increased advertising in Canadian publications.

Nova Scotia: An effort to extend the tourist season by an advertising campaign stressing autumn scenery may have been hampered by September closings of better-class motels. Reports indicated the summer season was good.

Prince Edward Island: Traffic was up an estimated seven to 10 per cent, mostly Canadians from Ontario and Quebec. The number of U.S. visitors declined slightly.

Newfoundland: Canadian visitors are estimated to have outnumbered Americans by 2 to 1. Over-all tourist trade appears to have risen although reliable statistics are not available.

Lumumba Held By Mobutu Forces At Port Francqui

Orders Given Former Premier Not to Be Hurt

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — Col. Joseph Mobutu announced today that his troops arrested Patrice Lumumba and Lumumbist leaders about the former premier of The Congo, Monday and he sent strict orders that Lumumba was not to be harmed.

The Congo army leader received reporters at his home to tell about the capture of his arch-opponent. Mobutu said a plane is en route to bring Lumumba back here from Port Francqui, where he was arrested Thursday night.

Mobutu also said he sent strict orders that Lumumba was not to be harmed.

The Congo army leader received reporters at his home to tell about the capture of his arch-opponent. Mobutu said a plane is en route to bring Lumumba back here from Port Francqui, where he was arrested Thursday night.

Six companions also were taken into custody just four days after Lumumba fled his guarded residence in the house of ceremony to head for Stanleyville and assist in his strike power.

Mobutu said troops holding Lumumba threatened to shoot him "as a traitor" if he was not released from them by 9 p.m.

ISSUES WARNING

"I told them a commander does not accept that sort of ultimatum," he said. Nevertheless, Mobutu said, "They have been warned that any person who holds Lumumba will have to answer for his actions."

"Lumumba will be brought back to Leopoldville to face trial."

One report from Congolese sources said that soldiers of the United Nations Ghana contingent in Kasai province tried to free Lumumba was emphatically denied by a United Nations spokesman.

After Lumumba was ousted as premier by Mobutu in mid-September he remained in the official residence under a de facto United Nations protective guard was withdrawn after he slipped out of the house Monday night. He eluded Congolese soldiers assigned by Mobutu to keep the former premier from escaping. Mobutu held a warrant for his arrest.

The UN spokesman said Lumumba could receive UN United Nations protection outside the capital.

Lumumba is known to have travelled a good deal over rough jungle tracks toward Luluabourg for four days.

Mobutu said Lumumba would be tried for inciting the army to rebellion and other "common law crimes."

Mobutu said he will call off the state of siege and cry for peace mumbas's followers, issued earlier Wednesday.

"Now that I have Lumumba and Kashamura, that is all I want," he said. "The others are no longer any danger.

HALIFAX (CP)—An air and sea search Saturday failed to find a trace of the Liberian freighter Ivi, eight days overdue on a voyage from Montreal to Lisbon, to Sydney, N.S. The 3,100-ton freighter, a crew of 23 and was carrying a cargo of China clay for Montreal.

LEADER CHARGES PACKING FIRMS AIDED BY GOVT.

Says Hog Producers Being Beaten Down

TORONTO (CP)—CCF Leader MacDonald has accused the Ontario Progressive Conservative government of running interference for large meat packing firms.

Speaking in the throne speech debate Thursday Mr. MacDonald accused the agriculture department of trying to beat into submission the Ontario Hog Producers' Association. He said the association's attempts to establish a chain of co-operative slaughter houses have been sided by the government.

The Ontario Securities Commission Thursday issued an order stopping the public issue of securities of a trans-Canada because the company had no assets to back them.

The new company, Farmers' Allied Meat Enterprises Co-operative Limited is trying to raise $1,000,000 to build offices and cold storage facilities in the Toronto area. Mr. MacDonald said the commission should have questioned what the company would have the right to find share or "dicker."

Attorney-General Roberts, acting Premier while Premier Frost is attending an inter-provincial conference in Ottawa, said he... Mr. MacDonald's claims were "balderdash."

The Conservative majority was battle, I think they are going to get it. Shaping up is the biggest struggle for power ever seen in rural Ontario," said Mr. MacDonald.

"On one side is the growing range of farm organizations and leaders, supporting the meat producers of this province; on the other side, the big-packers, and the chains, the Tory governments."

He said amendments to the Farm Products Marketing Act passed during the last session of the Legislature were designed to put the Hog Producers Association out of business.

The government replaced producer - controlled marketing by

Angry commuters could see the driver, William Johnson, 43, drinking from a bottle.

Johnson refused to stop.

What they couldn't see inside the bus was a young bookman with a .45-calibre automatic pressing it to the driver's temple. most of a half-pint of vodka he drove by gunpoint. Later he robbed Johnson of $46 and fled.

Govt. Battles Into Early Hrs. Without Verdict on Rail Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — The government battled into the early hours of today without winning final go-ahead from the Commons for its emergency edict to avert a national rail strike just hours away.

However, approval was expected to come later today.

After a six-hour marathon debate for the 15 unions that called the strike against the CPR, CNR and four smaller railways.

He has refused to call off the work stoppage until Parliament has considered the order.

With time running out for a stop-the-strike order, he said that once the CCF became law he would ask for national CBC radio hookup to call off the walkout, then follow up - with telegrams from each union to its member locals.

The same facility was provided when the Liberal government ordered a strike end in the Canada-wide tie-up of rail services.

In fighting off the opposition attack, Labor Minister Starr said the bill steered a neutral course between management and labor, and rebutted a government-subsidized settlement.

He said by postponing the strike threat for close to six months, the government was giving the railways and unions "breathing space."

The Liberals sought a selling-out amendment if necessary, saying that would force the railways to settle on the basis of the conciliation report. The CCF on the other hand a settlement tied to the report, but with provision for urged a federal subsidy to cover the cost.

Both opposition parties argued that the government's action departed from the principle of conciliation as set out in federal labor-relations law. They said the labor minister and the prime minister.

Opposition spokesmen also said the government may face another strike next year as soon as the emergency law expires in mid-May, despite its hope of a settlement once a freeze is lifted on railway rates.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated that the people of Canada would have the last word on the final wage settlement in the form of a federal election.

Heart Specialists Examine Relationship of Diet, Disease

TORONTO (CP) — Heart specialists Thursday turned a discerning eye to diet as a factor in heart disease.

Dr. Howard Sprague, former president of the American Heart Association, told the 30th annual convention of the Canadian Heart Association that little is known about the relationship of high-fat foods with heart illness.

"Dietary fat has become a very naughty word, leading to the prescribing of a low-fat diet. Atrophy of taste buds," he said.

The shades of the mystery of hardening of the arteries and the greatest emphasis has been placed on abnormalities in the blood. But cholesterol was considered in every body tissue except the brain.

In addition, there were differences between the "good" fats and "bad" fats, he said.

"So we cannot draw too many conclusions on sortie fat as such," Dr. Sprague said.

Dr. J. M. R. Beveridge of Kingston said tests involving some 100 persons showed a relationship between animal fats, as opposed to vegetable fats, and heart disease.

The government accepted a Liberal amendment to knock out a clause that would have given the cabinet power to make any regulations it deemed necessary to carry out the legislation.

The fight on the Commons floor was first watched hour by hour by Frank H. Hall, chief negotiator for the 15 unions that called the strike against the CPR, CNR and four smaller railways.

Dr. Beveridge said tests involving patients in 121 hospitals across Canada, found that the coronary thrombosis among a group on a butter-free diet was similar group on a normal diet which had 15 deaths from the cause.

At the closing banquet, former Liberal privy council president Lucien Laurent was installed as president of the association. Speaker of which the heart association is the science.

Mr. St. Laurent said the association in its work against heart disease has "a great opportunity to real value . . . to each and every one of us as separate individuals."

Dr. Ray Farquharson, professor emeritus in medicine at the University of Toronto, became the first recipient of the honorary title special award of merit for his work in heart disease. Dr. Farquharson, 62, retired from the U of T in 1958 as university's medical department.

MISSIONARIES HACKED TO DEATH, THOUGHT EATEN

Balubu Tribesmen In Katanga Blamed

ELISABETHVILLE (AP) — Two Evangelical missionaries — a Swede and the other a New Zealander — were hacked to death by Balubu tribesmen in north Katanga, The Congo, last week, it was officially learned from Elisabethville today.

UN troops who have been searching for the men since their disappearance have not found their bodies. The missionaries are believed to have been the victims of cannibalism.

They are Elton George Behrent Knaus, 50, whose hometown is New Plymouth, N.Z., and Edmund Hodgson, 62, of Manchester, England.

Knaus was married with three children.

The wife, Claudia, and the children have travelled to Kitwe, Northern Rhodesia, where they are staying with friends.

Both men had been in Katanga for many years and were employed by the Congo Evangelistic Mission.

Communists End Long Conference In Moscow

MOSCOW (Reuters) — World Communist leaders today packed their bags for home at the end of a three-week "summit" conference here that left in doubt what line the Communist bloc will take toward the West.

The 81-word communique issued at the close of the conference Saturday gave no hint of whether world communism would continue to abide by Russia's declared policy of peaceful coexistence or switch to a tougher line called for by Communist China.

The communique simply said that delegates from 81 Communist parties discussed "topical problems of the present international developments and of the international movement."

EXCHANGED VIEWS

The delegates, including leaders from the Communist nations, the communique said, "exchanged experience and familiarized themselves with fraternal views and positions. . . ."

The 3-in-1 on the U.S., issued through the official news agency Tass, was the official confirmation that the top-level meeting reported to have been stormy at times.

The conference "unanimously approved" the communique as an "appeal to all peoples of the world." But the communique gave no details of either. That statement is expected to be issued in such a way that it probably will replace a 1957 Moscow declaration proclaiming peaceful coexistence issued after a similar meeting of Communist "summit" leaders.

The statement is believed here to include some kind of reaffirmation of the 1957 resolution, which said that war with capitalism can be avoided in the present era.

Arrest Two Men After Verona Bank Is Held Up

Yarker Girl, 20, Seized As Hostage by Bandit

Miss Shirley Akey, 20, of Yarker, abducted by an armed bandit who held up a bank at Verona this morning, was rescued by provincial police on highway No. 7, near Mountain Grove in the Sharbot Lake area, around noon.

Miss Akey and another woman, described by police here as the wife of a bank manager, were in a car which two men abandoned after a short chase. The men fled into the bush, with police in pursuit, and were later apprehended and taken to Perth. They have not yet been identified.

Earlier reports from Verona made no mention of any woman having been held as hostage and said the bank there had been held up by one bandit.

After an armed man; his head swathed in bandages "like a mummy", had held up the bank in Verona and seized Miss Akey, police ordered roadblocks on every highway and secondary road in the Verona district, 20 miles northwest of Kingston.

Bank manager V. Bell Bowerman said it was not known how much money the bandit got, but the amount was not believed large.

Felix Lacroix, one of the customers in the bank, told: "A man walked into the bank with his head wrapped in bandages and with only slits for his eyes and mouth.

He said the bandit, armed with a sawed-off shotgun or rifle, ordered: "Put it in a holdsack. Don't move if you don't want to be killed."

The man "looked like a mummy."

HERDED TOGETHER

The manager was ordered from his office and the customers were herded into a corner.

Witnesses said the bandit vaulted a low gate over the counter and ordered Miss Akey to "fill it up."

When Miss Akey handed back the bag the bandit told her she would have to come along. He took her from the bank to a waiting car and then drove off, car parked outside.

At one point during the holdup Mr. Pyette moved towards a drawer in which a revolver was kept.

"Don't touch anything," the bandit said. "Do you want to die?"

Customers said the bandit was a husky man. He came into the bank with the weapon concealed under a loonat.

The bank in Verona is open Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays as a branch office of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, situated in Kingston. The other days of the week the same staff runs a branch in Perth.

Three hours after the robbery provincial police ordered a RCAF helicopter from Trenton and said the search had been narrowed down to an area around Mountain Grove, about 30 miles from Verona.

WOULD HALT FLOODING

WINDSPEED (CP) — Wm Tribble says the federal government will contribute $30,000,000 to $40,000,000 and the province $60,000,000 cost of a 3-mile floodway around the Greater Winnipeg. It would carry excess waters of Red River around the metropolitan area and prevent flooding.

Seaway Still Open But Light Buoys Taken Up

CORNWALL (CP) — The St. Lawrence Seaway, originally scheduled to close Wednesday, is still open to shipping. At the same time it is being battened down for winter.

The extension, allowed by favorable weather, was welcomed by several inland vessels delayed at Montreal because of the shortage of space for grain cargoes. They can now return to the lake ports for winter tlcyp.

Last year an extension of the open waterway was granted and some grain carriers were forced to spend the winter in Montreal.

Early today there were 12 outbound vessels in St. Lawrence locks. They had been delayed 12 hours by the grounding of the 642-foot ocean freighter Arlo H. near Massena, N.Y. She was refloated today.

FREIGHTER GROUNDED

The freighter, bound by Moa Bay, Cuba, for Montreal, Ontario, was carrying about 1,000 tons of nickel ore cargo when she was driven on the reefs during a storm Tuesday night.

While the seaway remained open to traffic the authority warned masters to proceed with caution because light vessels and aids were being removed. Many of the lights had to be sighted using the base taken up for the winter.

R. J. Burnside, superintendent of the seaway operations said it was hoped that the locks at Cape today vessels would be allowed to enter.

Firm Trains Shoplifters to Cut High Losses in Retail Stores

The business isn't as much as it sounds. On the contrary, it is the most expensive school in cutting losses suffered by retailers through shoplifting and general inefficiency.

Mr. Drane is general manager of Retail Security Systems Limited, one of many such firms in North America helping retailers cut the costs that they say are as high as three per cent of sales.

When Mr. Drane wants shoplifting performed he calls for volunteers from his staff, trains them and sends them to stores to steal watchfulness and the store's defences.

L. W. Melville, 47, a former private investigator and president of the company, says the bandling.

Even these two kinds of theft are small losses than inefficient and careless handling of goods — charging less than the price, or the wrong price, ring of articles.

Four out of five price tapes calculated by supermarket cashiers in Ontario are wrong, he said, customer," said Mr. Melville.

"This is largely because, when in doubt about a smeared price mark or price on any items, a supermarket cashier records the smallest apparent price to save personal embarrassment should the customer question her."

"For each $100,000 loss suffered through public or employee dishonesty, an additional $200,000 must be charged to inefficiency

Intimate Collaboration May Grow Out of Premiers' Meet

QUEBEC (CP) — Canada's 10 provinces appear to have dug the foundations for a new era of collaboration in their mutual interests.

Today they will try to decide what kind of edifice to build on it.

At the least, it seemed quite likely they would agree in principle to having regular meetings gethers like the current interprovincial premiers' conference convened by Premier Lesage of Quebec.

There was some chance they would decide to give their joint endeavors a more definitive institutional character — an interprovincial council perhaps a permanent secretariat to give the

Archbishop of Canterbury Confers With Pope John for Over an Hour

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — The Archbishop of Canterbury conferred today with Pope John XXIII for more than an hour in the Pontiff's study, the first meeting between the heads of the Anglican and Roman Catholic churches in more than five centuries.

The historic talk brought together Christian leaders who have been working for greater unity of Christians through the world.

The archbishop, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, representing 40,000,000 Anglicans in the world, set the keynote of his visit in a sermon Thursday night in which he declared that the "cold war" that has separated the churches in the past now is passing.

He said that he would see the

The initial meeting of boys interested in playing in the new league will be held at the "Y" tomorrow afternoon. Registration of players will take place at this time.

PLANS PROGRESS FOR CONVENTION

Les Digby last night told a meeting of 448 (Belleville) Wing, RCAF Association, that plans are progressing favorably toward a successful Ontario Group convention to be held in Belleville.

The Wing, which met at the Legion Drury Social Centre, was also told that more inter-wing activities and competitions between Belleville, Trenton, Kingston and Peterborough would be held.

New members initiated last night were Leo Myers, Gerald Eastlake and David Brophy.

Two films on search and rescue rounded out the meeting.

FOUR HAVE VOTED IN ADVANCE POLL

Deputy Returning Officer Frank Bateman said that by noon four voters had cast their ballots, indicating they would be out of town when the regular polls open in the ward on Monday at 9.00 a.m. But more were expected today and tomorrow.

Plugged Sewers Keeping City Workman Busy

An increasing number of service calls on plugged sewers, which have required excavation work to remedy the trouble have been upsetting the schedule of the city's Public Works department. More men than have been normally allotted to this work have been necessary to complete the service calls within a reasonable time.

Other troubles, in the form of mechanical difficulties with the street cleaner, have also beset the department this week. This latter trouble has been remedied this morning, however, and City Engineer Malcolm Turnbull states that the addition of the downtown streets will soon be back to their normal state of cleanliness.

The department has been assisting the service call with two grader a day moment. The purchase of the piece of equipment which will be used for snow removal in the city was announced recently approved by the municipal Board and city council.

Now the land development projects were completed this week. One is located just west of and facing Secondary School on Victoria Avenue and the other is located on the west side of town between North Front and North Park streets.

The city hall staff has been quite busy during the past few days designing a retaining wall to be built on Pinnacle Street from Patterson Street to Bridge North towards Victoria Avenue. Trenton is the only town to have this project just yesterday evening. The said has also been approved by the construction work on the Harris, Jackson, and Lambert-Goldfinch subdivisions.

The extension of Wilson Avenue has just been completed. Minor road work is to be done on the west side of Dundas Street Elsewhere within the city work has been progressing satisfactorial for this time of the year. Some tree trimming work has been going on and will be done on sidewalk repairs. The winter works crew have also been busy clearing brush at the site of the new city dump and doing some ditching work in the West Hill area.

A subject that may be added to this list is a national highway system, which would be somewhat similar to the interstate highway program in the United States.

However, most delegations were believed still non-committal on the question of permanent interprovincial machinery.

Premier Frost of Ontario, speaking as conference chairman, said "I should make clear that our instructions to me do not contain any matters concerned passed by federal-provincial relations. We have discussed a few very informal way matters of provincial interest."

He said the fact that the conference is being held behind closed doors is worth a great deal and any future ones should also be private.

Premier Shaw of Prince Edward Island is ill and Premier Manning of Alberta is out of the country but both provinces have sent cabinet ministers.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker has sent an observer in the person of Sinclair Abell of the finance department's federal-provincial relations section.

MRS. MEREDITH STEEL DIES

Suffering with heart trouble since infancy, Miss Meribeth Ethel Uens, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Uens, 19 Bridge Street West, died at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto on Saturday following surgery.

She was born in Belleville and had lived in the city all her life. She attended church and Sunday School at Bellaney Street United Church.

Surviving besides her parents are two brothers, Jack and Peter, and a sister, Susan, all at home.

MRS. DENNIS O'HEARN
Canaanese

A former resident of Canaanese died in Belleville General Hospital on November 20th after a brief illness. She was born at Brewers Mills on July 15, 1879, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nuttall, Carlton. She was predeceased by her husband, Dennis O'Hearn.

She resided at Belleville for the past year and a half and was a member of St. Michael's Church.

She was a former member of the Ladies' Aid and League of the Sacred Heart of St. Barnaby's Church, Brewers Mills.

The funeral was held from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Vincent Donovan, Elgin, on Monday, with Rev. Bernard Church, Brewers Mills, where a Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. E. Byrne with Rev. J. R. Rowell of Elgin present in the sanctuary.

Bearers were: Messrs. J. Tierney, J. Nuttall, McClelland, W. Nuttall, E. Connor and R. Bell, all former neighbors of the deceased in Canaanese.

The many kind remembrances and beautiful floral tributes testified to the esteem in which she was held.

She is survived by five daughters: Mary (Mrs. Leo Mahoney), Josephine (Mrs. Lionel Strachan), Monica (Mrs. Genevieve O'Hearn, Belleville; nine grandchildren and one brother, Mrs. Mary Murphy, Joyceville.

MRS. JULIA ANN FREEMAN

Cancer Society Campaign Far Exceeds Quota

TRENTON — Last spring's fund raising campaign, conducted by the Trenton branch of the Canadian Cancer Society under the chairmanship of A. F. Bell, exceeded its target in the group getting 161.9 per cent of the quota set for Trenton by the national organization.

This was revealed by the provincial field secretary, Ronald A. McFarlane, at the meeting of the Trenton branch on Wednesday.

Mr. McFarlane said it was his belief that the Trenton branch was topped all other branches in the province in the campaign.

Officers for the 1960-61 term were elected at the meeting, Mrs. Ann Dunoon will replace Lorne Foster as president. Mr. Foster has been forced, through ill health, to discontinue taking an active part in branch activities. He will assume the position of immediate past-president and will advise the new president. First vice-president is Fred Preston; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. George Greer; secretary, Mrs. M. Barry; treasurer, Harold Foster; women's service chairwomen, Mrs. Sam Hughes; campaign manager, C. E. Soyles; publicity, Mrs. A. E. Ethier; education chairman, Mrs. G. L. Platt; and the medical adviser to the group will be Dr. W. A. L. McDonald.

Mr. McFarlane commended the group on its activities during the past year.

Mrs. Greer read the women's service report. Last year the group distributed 18,000 dressings. Transportation was encouraged for several of the 17 patients in the district taking treatment in Kingston. Mrs. Ethier was in charge of this department last year.

Mrs. Barry reported that films and lectures had been arranged in two Brighton plants and 11 factories in Trenton, as well as gillers in Malvern, Frankford and Picton.

In giving the campaign report, Mr. Frost said that an appreciable part of the money raised had come as memorials to patients who had died from cancer. Other contributions have come from the Bata Shoe Company, (factory employees) and company personnel); Trenton Industries; Trenton commercial establishments; local service clubs and the RCAF. A house-to-house canvass in Brighton and Trenton made up the rest of the money raised.

$6,000 Fire Leaves Family Of 6 Homeless

BAYSIDE — Mr. and Mrs. Stan Mofina and their four preschool aged children were rescued from their home in a dash for life which raced through their home yesterday afternoon.

The fire started in a shed at the back of the house and spread to the main building.

Mrs. Mofina was asleep upstairs at the time the fire started. The children were playing in the basement. Mr. Mofina and neighbors succeeded in removing the children from the house.

Firemen's efforts to save the home were hampered by the lack of water. One hose put on a creek near the house but became clogged with weeds and had to be extended across the highway to the bay.

The loss is estimated at $6,000. The cause of the fire is undetermined.

Sign Agreement With Employees

TRENTON — An agreement between the town and the Trenton and District Municipal Employees' Union, local 799 of the National Union of Public Employees, was signed yesterday. Fringe benefits and other clauses of the agreement come into effect at once and the wage clauses will become effective Jan. 1.

Representing the union were F. R. Scott and Jim Thompson. Appointed by the town to deal with the union were George Fenwick, labor relations consultant and Walter Murray, town engineer.

AWARD CONTRACTS

TRENTON — Contracts have been awarded by the Sidor Construction Company Ltd., for the Defense Construction Company for the extension of sewer and water mains in the Gaudon subdivision, affecting Dundonald Avenue, Grandview and part of McGill Street.

Press and Radio Are Rebuked By Magistrate

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—A police magistrate Thursday rebuked the press and radio for "sensationalism" in covering a murder and declared that "trial by press and radio has got to stop."

Magistrate D. M. White made his remarks at the opening of a preliminary hearing of a murder charge against Edward Drachenberg, 62, accused of the slaying of his wife, Agatha.

The local newspaper and radio reports had damaged the case, he said, and not mention the name of the media concerned.

Defence counsel H. S. Harrison-Smith also attacked news media for their coverage of the woman's death. Her body was found Nov. 10 in their home here.

Retarded Children's Assoc. Wants to Build School

TRENTON — At an executive meeting last night of the Trenton and District Association for Retarded Children it was decided that the association would make every effort to build a school on the outskirts of town next year.

Bert Boers, chairman of building, reported that he had made preliminary enquiries about a two-acre lot near Frederick Street and Highway 2. He also obtained tentative figures of a basic type of building for school, to which additional rooms could be added when necessary. Many contractors have offered to do the work at a price, and in two cases at no cost at all.

A committee will examine the merits of purchasing two or three "portable" classrooms from the Brighton Board of Education. While this method of building a school for retarded children would be less costly than erecting a new school, the majority of the executive members leaned towards a new building idea. Ideas felt that service clubs might feel more inclined to make large donations towards a new school than a new building. A suggestion was made that each room in the school might be sponsored by a service club.

Meantime, it has become necessary to divide the present class into two groups of eight group. There now are 14 children in the class at North Trenton School, and the older children attend the class all day while the younger children go home at noon. John Wauters, the teacher for the latter group, finds instruction of the older children is constantly interrupted by the younger children. Mrs. T. Campbell, assistant teacher, will keep the younger children working at projects of their own, and Helen Kelly will assist the two classes are in one room.

There is some hope that the Board of Education might make an additional classroom available.

LEAVING SCHOOL

Mrs. Campbell will give up her work with the school in February at the latest and the association will have to find another teacher.

The older children are progressing favorably in their academic work. Some of them are learning to deal with fractions. The younger children are busy with handicrafts and elementary academic work.

The annual fund raising campaign has not been completed locally. Preliminary reports indicate that the results have been satisfactory. Chairman Riddle-ton Park phase of the campaign, conducted by Mrs. K. F. Reid, was more successful than last year. Helen Salter was the campaign manager for the door-to-door drive.

Mrs. Reid reported that an application for the entry of a team into the mid-ciass line has been received from Goose Bay, Labrador. The child will be moving to Trenton shortly with her parents. Mrs. Reid said that it is expected that a team of the Trenton school had spread far and wide.

Cy Sloss, association treasurer, reported a bank balance of $1,000 from the results of funds raised in the recent drive.

Members of the association will be invited to the children's

November Was Better Than Average Month

Weatherwise, November just wasn't an average month.

Of course with all those balmy days and mild nights we knew it all along. But now it is official.

For instance during the past month there was just a trace of snow in comparison to the 8.9 inches received in November 1959, and the average is a snowfall of 6.1 inches received during the month in the past 30 years.

Last month there was just 1.50 inches of rain with a 30-year precipitation of 2.01 inches. A year ago the precipitation was 2.68 with a total precipitation of 2.81 inches. The 10-year average precipitation for the month is 2.73 inches.

High temperature last month was 58 degrees with a low of 23 degrees with a mean temperature of 41.9. A year ago the maximum was 64 degrees and the minimum 8 degrees with a mean reading of 33.3 degrees.

The mean average temperature for November is an even 38 degrees.

Charges and counter-charges were hurled across the Commons as the debate raged through the night.

Frank Howard (CCF—Skeena) charged the government had come out "ridiculously on behalf of the CPR and other railway companies."

Lionel Chevrier (L—Montreal Laurier) accused the government of doing nothing to head off the strike even though it "knew a year ago that this condition was coming."

Trudeau Motors Equipment Division Enjoys Big Expansion

A three fold expansion in sales volume of machines, parts and service, is the proud record of Trudeau Motors Ltd. Equipment Division, since taking on the J. I. Case franchise two and a half years ago, Trudeau Industrial and farm equipment in the Belleville area.

In the past 30-month period, the plant and facilities at the Foxboro Road farm equipment division of Trudeau's has been increased by three times to take care of business expansion. The plant expansion has ipcluded parts and display space as well as repair shops.

At the present time a modernly equipped repair shop equipped with best in Ontario is staffed with experienced mechanics and parts men especially trained at the J. I. Case training centre. Specialty lines such as crawler tractors, loaders and mechanical loaders require special attendance and properly trained personnel is stressed. Important is the quick and efficient repairs thus avoiding costly tie-ups of expensive machines.

Repair shops at Trudeau's farm equipment division are equipped with specialty tools and equipment. In addition a mobile service unit is available offering service on the job to points as far as 150 miles from Belleville.

The equipment division of Trudeau Motors Ltd. is a separate operation from the automotive department but has its own sales, service and parts personnel.

General management is under the direction of A. A. Trudeau with N. R. Elston as manager of the industrial section of the business in charge of territory development and sales direction.

The service department is directed by Bruce Prindle who is well qualified for the position. He has been in the employ of Trudeau Motors Ltd. for approximately 16 years.

Mr. J. J. Trudeau, president of Trudeau Motors, is optimistic for the future in this division of his investment and looks forward to a substantial and steady development.

The J. I. Case Company is an old and respected name in the industry having been in the manufacturing business of tractors and machines for over 115 years. They have an aggressive program under way in the development of new types and models of machines. As a result the company expects to increase their volume substantially. In accordance with this program, The Case Company has seen fit to increase the territory already serviced by Trudeau Motors Equipment Division. With this increased territory Case's sales and service volume can be expected to increase and thus create more employment in the operation of this business.

Half Hundred New Citizens Are Accepted

Yesterday afternoon Canada gained half a hundred new citizens when they received their Canadian Citizenship Certificates at Judge H. C. Anderson at a special sitting of the County Court of the County of Hastings at the court house.

Formerly citizens of The Netherlands, Germany, Yugoslavia, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Italy, Finland, Poland or the United States of America, the new Canadians took their oath from Judge Anderson and were presented with their citizenship certificates by Mr. A. M. McCaw, citizenship clerk.

Bibles were presented to each person as they stepped forward to take the oath. The Rev. R. D. MacLean, president of the Belleville Ministerial Association, Father J. J. Bolger of St. Michael's Parish, and the Rev. W. H. Dunphy of Bataws were present for this part in the proceedings.

The Argyll and St. Julien Chapters of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, represented by Mrs. Angus Duffy, Mrs. R. D. Ponton, Mrs. Patterson and Mrs. G. Hume, presented each new citizen with a maple leaf pin and a copy of Canada at the conclusion of the sitting of the court at the court house the new citizens were entertained by these chapters at Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Armouries where they were greeted by Lt.-Col. Trudeau Motors Ltd. for approximately 16 years.

Mrs. Angus Duffy, regent of the Argyll Chapter, extended the welcome to the new citizens on behalf of the chapter. Mrs. Duffy also presented each new citizen with a maple leaf pin and a copy of Canada.

Also present at the proceedings were Arthur Duncan, of Batawa, Constable Ken F. Booker of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and Mrs. Effie McCabe, former member of the city council.

Two Carrying Place Men Believed Drowned in Lake

Missing and believed drowned in Weller's Bay off the west shore of Prince Edward county are two Carrying Place men who have not been seen since Wednesday morning, when they left their homes to go fishing in Lake Ontario.

Believed drowned when their 16-foot flat bottomed punt upset near Concession 2, are James Lewis, 40, both of Carrying Place.

Provincial police said the two men left Carrying Place at 7:30 Wednesday morning, presumably to go fishing in Weller's Bay or Lake Ontario. Their overturned punt was spotted in Weller's Bay the same afternoon, but it was not until Thursday that it was definitely established the men were missing.

Wayne Haddock of Middleton Park first spotted the overturned boat at 3:30 Wednesday afternoon but he apparently did not think to check the craft more closely.

Again on Thursday when he returned to Weller's Bay, Mr. Haddock spotted the same craft. He towed it ashore and notified provincial police of the matter. The boat was identified as that used by the two men.

ROPE AROUND PROP

Investigation of the craft revealed a 16-foot length of rope wound around the propeller of the five and a half horsepower motor attached to the stern of the boat.

It is thought that the rope may have become entangled in the propeller and as the two men worked to free it the boat overturned.

Weller's Bay has little protection from Lake Ontario although due to high winds, waves on the lake were running high on Wednesday.

Neither man is married, but Mr. Quackenbush has a brother living in Kitchener, while Mr. Lewis has a married sister living in the Prince Edward county district.

Hotels Being Hit From Every Side Convention Told

NORTH BAY (CP) —Hotels in Ontario are being hit from every side—by private permits and clubs on the one hand and stringent liquor regulations on the other—executives of the Ontario Hotel Association said Wednesday night.

President Jack Vanover of Belleville told an association meeting here that hotels are strictly supervised in every respect. They are licensed, supervise all banquet permits and private clubs where beer and drinking and quantity of permits, sell liquor to minors and permits for days and allow drunkenness and Sunday drinking, he said.

Managing director Clint Melville added holders of banquet permits and clubs operate wide open in many cases because enforcement officers would be "going against" public opinion if they interfered.

BRRR — RRUFF

In our considered opinion, Belleville is one of the most pleasant spots in Canada. This opinion, we have good reason to believe, is shared by a majority of Belleville citizens. There is, of course, a number of residents who spend their leisure time in yearning for other habitats, the while they devote their working hours to digging in for a lifetime stay. On the whole, though, the pecentage of dissatisfied sojourners amongst the citizenry is probably considerably smaller than in most centres.

It grieves us, therefore, to feel compelled to issue a warning to Wilfred E. Organ, director of Manitoba's travel bureau, against any plan to wend his way hither, camera-laden.

Mr. Organ has just got through outlining to delegates of a federal-provincial tourist conference ways to lure foreign tourists to our shores during the longer winter months.

He has a three-fold recipe. Pictures of snow scenes should include people. Belleville can do—very shortly. Advertising pictures should include pictures of warm interiors and of roadways and parking grounds. Can do, can do! But, alas, the third ingredient is the stumbling block. People in winter scenes should be dressed in colorful attire, with their hats off and with smiling faces. We regret to say that the other morning, Wednesday, when the first blasts of winter hit this district, we noted a deplorable lack of colorfully-clad, unhatted, smiling citizens.

If Mr. Organ comes around here expecting us to welcome winter in this fashion, just to lure some innocent, unsuspecting European tourist to our shores, he will be coming to the wrong place. Let him go stand at the corner of Portage and Main some bright January morning—when the mercury is searching for zero to get the means of perspective and the wind is bending Winnipegers double—and maybe, just maybe, he'll get his bare-headed, colorfully-clad, smiling models. Maybe, but we doubt it. Around here, about the first snowfall, you would think that smiling had gone out of fashion until the happy day when the first pickerel lightly lands its thoughts in low and noses its way upstream through the floating ice cakes in April.

Action Needed Here

In a Vancouver court, Harold Conrad, 36, told of a, ten-year fight to go straight, against heavy odds. Conrad lost his battle; a discouraged man, he tried to hold up a bank teller. However, if the facts of the case are as stated by him in court, he is as much sinned against as sinning.

According to Conrad, he lost three sales positions, in three different cities, because insurance companies refused to bond him when they learned he had served a penitentiary term for breaking and entering.

The record shows that many inmates of penitentiaries are "repeaters." It is, therefore, natural that insurance companies should be reluctant to furnish bond for men who have already demonstrated that they are not above dishonesty. At the same time, a man who determines to "go straight" after a prison term is deserving of every assistance. If he continually loses jobs because of his past record, he is probably being forced to return to crime. This Conrad did twice—he left Winnipeg with $300 in club funds before he was caught trying to hold up a bank in Vancouver —but only the unimaginative will feel certain they would not, have fallen had they been faced with the obstacles to honesty which confronted Conrad.

Surely there ought to be a limit to the time during which a man's past record is held against him. A man who has served a prison term and then "gone straight" for, say, five years is probably a safer risk for a bond than the average citizen, providing he is given the opportunities which the average man enjoys.

If insurance firms will not provide bonds for such men, and if the government does not deem it advisable to force the firms to do so, then it would be money well spent for the government itself to provide such service. It might occasionally lose a little, but as standardized rates the service would probably show a profit in dollars over the years and the profit in saving potentially useful citizens from winding up behind bars would be inestimable.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

LONG MAY HE WRITE

C. S. Lewis, Professor of Eng-, a refreshing breeze springing up has become one of the most fa- after a sweltering day — the theological discussion can sometimes become oppressive and lifeless. But Lewis makes everything he touches sparkle and shine both with a new light. His "Screwtape Letters" on the nature of evil, both as to its origin and its working — which constitutes quite a feat. His latest book "The World's Last Night" has about the vision and clarity which have made this teacher of English one of the world's most acceptable writers in the field of theology. A book by Lewis on religion is as readable as a newspaper article and as thrilling as the most

Einstein's Universe

By HON. ROBERT W. MACAULAY
Ontario Minister of Energy Resources

ARTICLE 42

In the preceding articles we pointed out that light travels in a straight line unless it is influenced in some way and then it will change course.

Thus, as we know, we may actually see the light of a star which has started out behind the Sun, and has then curved around the Sun and come towards the earth in an arc for us to view it. We know that a star's light but do not see the star which gave off the light.

We then discussed why the light from the earth normally goes in a straight line. If gravitation, there must have been a reason.

We found that the light bends because it follows the invisible contours of the space through which it travels.

If one sees water tumbling down over, over rocks, around bends, one thinks that this is quite natural because the water is following the contours which offer the least resistance. But in the fundamentals of nature is that as little energy as possible must be expended to accomplish a given result. Thus, water follows the contours. This is readily believable; because we can see the contours, or geography of the land, also see the water. The problem arises when one cannot see water but sees the river bed or banks.

When a ball is bowled down a flight of stairs, one can see the person and one can see the flight of stairs but would you know what that person was doing if the flight of stairs, but you could see the person not see the flight of stairs, but you could see the person bowling the ball down? The only thing you could say in that case was that the person was being followed by some invisible contour.

CANDY HAS CONTOURS

So, Einstein said, that he couldn't see the contours around the sun but that the gases around the area around them and create a depression or contour around the star, sort of like a large oval stadium as seen from above; with a ball in the middle of it, (a little like a head would be in a radio advertisement). A little like an orange placed in a candy box between plastic pillows. The orange is the star. The plastic is the space. But in the universe the plastic cannot be seen.

As the physicists say, "we can't see the facts of physics as we find them, and not as we think is able to visualize them".

There is a number of things that either exist or believed to exist that are beyond man's personal comprehension. Even the scientist's, or example, mind cannot grasp the concept of particles with a positive mass.

That is much more difficult to imagine than a negative curve. If one could see the space around a star, one could, at least one cannot see space, one will not believe that space could have a curve.

Can you tell your neighbor why he doesn't fall down by their feet from the bottom of the earth? You know they do! Why don't they fall off? Whatever it is that holds them on, yet free to move, is invisible. Why do we accept that and not "curved space"?

We can't see gravity, but many people believe in it. We can't see oxygen atom in the air, but we believe in it.

Why won't we believe then in curved space?

A COMPLETE CIRCLE

If you travelled out in space you would find that you were travelling in a straight line, because the only thing in space that one can see or feel is the start of the light. Light seems to be travelling in a straight line. In fact it is travelling in a straight line until it comes near a star and then it follows the curve of the star and goes into a straight line again. Thus, travelling in space the light may go around in a complete circle and come back to one and not be able to follow it.

So, the only source you can see in space is one out in space is light and since light bends as you follow it you may very well, if you could go far enough, live long enough and travel fast enough, come back to the place where you began. Although there are many views as to the shape of the universe, Einstein believed that it came back in a circle. If you went out and out in front, you ultimately would end up where you began. This is although you may think that you are going in a straight line. You would actually be travelling in a circle!

"Ah, Ah!" you say, "that is nonsense!" But it is not nonsense! Or if it is, it is something you have done yourself often on the earth. Suppose you were to follow what you believe is a straight line. Let us suppose that it is say, New York to London, England.

But, look at that straight line you follow on a globe of the earth and you will see that it is not a straight line — it is actually a curve.

If you travel in what you think is a straight line on the earth, sooner enough, you will come back to the place where you began because you are travelling on the surface of a sphere. You think you are travelling in a straight line but you are travelling in a line that is curved!

Now, if you can be fooled like that on the surface of the earth, why do you think you cannot be similarly fooled like that in space, where there will be far fewer familiar guides and no landmarks — nothing to follow but light which you know curves!

It is impossible to believe that space has a curve when you know that the earth has a curve. On the earth you think you are going in a straight line and you are not.

A SQUARE IS A CIRCLE

Let us go through an actual test. Start out on the earth, walk in a straight line, or what you think is a straight line for 100 miles to Point "B". Then turn at right angles and walk in a straight line for 100 miles to point "C". Then turn at right angles and walk in a straight line to point "D" for 100 miles. By now you should have closed the square. Then turn left and walk back to point "A" where you began because you have successfully completed a square. The fact is that you do not arrive at point "A" because your route does not close the square. You actually arrive at point "A" because all the time when you thought you were travelling in straight lines. Where you end up is some distance from "A".

Einstein suggested that the universe was a circle and it had a radius of (as I remember) 900,000,000 miles.

Einstein's concept of the universe was published before the discovery by Hubble in 1928 that the universe was, or appeared to be travelling outwards at immense speeds. Einstein is said to have modified his concept based upon a universe which was not expanding. Some writers maintain that Einstein discovered the mistake. Einstein's concept of the universe. Others maintain that it is utterly enlarging and has proved that Einstein's concept was not worth considering but no means is it invalidated.

What is a curved universe is something like being on the inside surface of a large ball. A fly could walk in any direction on a ball, as he walks in what he thinks is a straight line, and come back where he began! So, he is on the inside surface of a ball, walking along the surface in what he thinks is a straight line, when he is not in a straight line.

Similarly is that the inside surface of a ball is only two dimensional. With it alone you can go forward, backward or sideways. But the inside surface of a ball is curved. This means the best example of the curvature of space. It is curved because the surface of a ball has only two dimensions in which you can go forward and backward which is the first dimension you can go sideways which is the second dimension. But the curve has a third dimension. Put two pencils at right angles and you would want to know how high up the curve the pencils would be in New York — this would be the third dimension. What good would it be to know that you were there in knowing all of this if you do not know where in relation to the earth this position? You would want to know how high up in space, but you have to know when it took place because of the movement of the earth and sun. Whatever was there, then, is not there now. Time is a second or two later (certainly not an hour later). (An hour later it may be 100,000,000 miles away).

That is why Einstein said that space and time are the same thing AND space. There is a measurement which is a combination of the three dimensions all in one. A comet, let us say, travelling at 100,000 miles per hour, would be gone a minute later. The place in question where the comet was seen. In Einstein's language, is called "an event."

There are some of the concepts of Einstein's universe and the curvature of space, which will ultimately have a vast significance to man if he succeeds in freeing himself, to the tiny little environment of his earth. And if he does not succeed in destroying himself, then he will probably be able to travel to the stars.

The members of the "Upstairs" Group of the Y.M.C.A. held their monthly banquet recently and plans for the winter's work is well under way. They will hold their first debate of the season shortly. The question to be debated is, "Resolved that the drama owes more inspiration than the moving picture". Lionel Yeo, Clifford Frese, Harry Post and Bert Wells will uphold the affirmative, and the negative side will be supported by Arthur Herity, Bob Miller, Stanley Anderson and Theodore Marsden. The boys are glad in the football field and are getting their team in shape.

The officials of the G.W.V.A. have a list of 500 names of soldiers' children, who will be remembered with presents at the Christmas tree which is to be given especially for them.

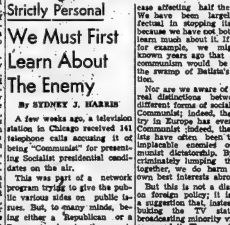
Communism is a virulent disease affecting half the world. Its factual is stopping its spread because we have learned to learn much about it. If we had for example, we might have known years ago that Russian communism would be bred in the swamp of Stalin's corruption.



Nor are we aware of the very great distinction between the different forms of socialism and communism. The Socialist party in Europe has ever turned its back on Russia. The Socialists have often been the most implacable enemies of Communism. Communists indiscriminately lumping them all together, we do harm to our own best interests abroad.

But this is not a dissertation on Socialism. It is only to make a suggestion that, instead of re-hashing the old, we should be broadcasting minority views, we should be trying to expose and kill germs is by exposing them to strong sunlight; they fester only in darkness.

DON'T FEAR SENSIBLE USE OF X-RAY

"Dear Dr. Molner: I was recently X-rayed at a clinic and as there was a possibility that I would have twins, last year's column stated that X-raying the pelvic region of pregnant women is not good. What are the dangers? — Mrs. D. R."

Madam, this is one of the frequent question that I am called upon to answer. Most decidedly I don't want any reader to be frightened of an X-ray. And at the same time, I want any one, one, patient or doctor, to assume that radiation (X-ray) is safe and natural) is to be ignored.

Could I put it in any? It's like drops of water. If you were to be subjected to the constant drip of water, it would in time do damage. Dripping water, as simple a thing as that, can wear away the hardest stone. Yet this doesn't mean that I would oppose the idea of taking a shower or being caught in the rain.

This isn't an exact simile. But I think it gives the general idea that I have in mind.

Now let us consider it in a slightly different way. Are you aware that you are living in a very small but ever-present stream of rays emanating from the earth itself. Each year, for the past of 30 or so you have absorbed radiation from the rocks. I've represented by the number of 10 units. This is not an arbitrary figure for illustration.

Well, in addition, let's say that you were exposed to radiation we receive from medical X-rays to 5 units, or half as much. That's an average. A cancer patient, for example, may receive 1,000 times as much radiation as the person who has the usual X-rays of soldiers' children, who will be remembered with presents at the Christmas tree which is to be given especially for them.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE THINGS WE AIM AT

If we go into our days aimlessly, we end then intermixed as with the confused noise.

And that is the way with the aimless life. We are tossed about, first this, then that, to say nothing of passing up the opportunity which enter it daily ready for sound service.

There are all meant to be used to make the most use of everything of which we are capable. It doesn't matter nearly so much what we aim at as that we aim for, as it does that we do not aim at all. Everyone within the range of his power of initiative, is in turn inspired. We mount as we aim at something. Example is powerful.

The very things we aim at at the very moment we aim at them — become a connected part of us. Every time we aim we approach our goal satisfying ourselves all along the way.

If we aim to be happy, if we aim to be helpful, if we aim to do just a little better each day, we can be well assured in advance that we are going in the direction of considerable use anyway, in which to live.

It's like going into a thicket wood, knowing that if we travel through it we will come out of it. Going to come out on the other side, with no guidance but the sun. And so we are not going to get nowhere when we aim. We are presents confusion and quite a little of fear.

Nor will we aim at are the things we do.

We live never greater than the things we do.

It is also very sure that we take upon us many of the elements of greatness as we tread the path that leads us in such desire.

Why not always aim, then?

THE PACKSACK

BY GREGORY CLARK

A man whom I considered for years to be the most entertaining and pompous ass in the world had his money and his job and every vestige of his personality taken from him. With all that, he was a happier man for it. He sits and grazes. It was absurd of him to continue putting on the act. But even when he was a pitiable figure, with literally nothing to do, he was still one of the grandes. It became my duty along with two or three others to come to his rescue in the last couple of years of his life, and so I came to know him better and more compassionately.

I found that I had never in his life been putting on the act to impress others. He was impressing only himself.

In his private life, he surrounded himself with furniture, fixtures, curious antiques which he pretended had come down to him from ancestors of importance. In the privacy of his own home, with no audience but himself, he would posture and strut and strike poses. If he had chosen to be the real world, it was because he was born to be a ham. His character he had conceived for himself in the dream world in which he really dwelt.

We often err in thinking people are trying to impress us. They are not busy impressing themselves.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

ON NORTHERN PATROL—William (Billy) McNeil, 69, acts as a patrolman for the northern affairs department in the Northwest Territories. He pilots the federal government's game branch boat Buffalo on the Mackenzie River system in summer and patrols the wilderness area in a bombardier tractor in winter. A Newfoundlander, he has been in the North for 49 years. (CP Photo).

Game Branch Patrolman Is Veteran of 49 Winters In The N. W. Territories

By JIM WHELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PORT SMITH, N.W.T. (CP)— When Bill McNeil, a lumber jack from Newfoundland, left his home in the Slave River, William (Billy) McNeil, 69-year-old pioneer, put the federal government's game branch boat Buffalo ashore and made his dog team and bombardier tractor ready for his 49th winter in the north.

Billy is a patrolman with the northern affairs department—sort of cross-country errand boy for the wardens of the north is of great value to the game branch.

He surveys trails, waters, animal distribution, constructs winter roads with his bombardier and moves buffalo meat from the annual slaughter in Wood Buffalo National Park and the annual hunt by boat to Fort Smith.

He came to the North in 1911 with the traditional hardiness of a Newfoundlander, an inexhaustible sense of humor and 50 barren ground caribou. He had been an 18-a-month reindeer herder's apprentice at the Grenfell Mission in Labrador and jumped at the chance to become a civil servant and eventually 30 caribou in Northwest Territories at $33.33 a month.

WINTERED IN NORTH

The Canadian government purchased the reindeer for $50 each and Mr. McNeil and another apprentice, John Broomfield, headed them aboard a train at St. Anthony, Nfld., and took them to the railhead at Fort McMurray, Alta.

Driving the herd north, they made first camp at Fort Chipewyan, Alta., and were caught there by freeze-up. Undismayed they handily turned a few thousand feet of native poplar into a winter home for themselves and corrals for the reindeer. Herd and herders arrived in Fort Smith, about 500 miles north of Edmonton in the spring of 1912. The government intended the reindeer to form the basis of herds managed by Indians and Eskimos of Great Slave Lake. However, the government "bungologists", as Mr. McNeil calls them, hadn't reckoned on the devastating effect of northern buffalo.

During the 500-mile trek from Fort Smith to Fort Rae, on the north shore of Great Slave Lake, 40 of the reindeer died. They brought the last remaining female into Fort Rae in the winter of 1914.

WENT AFTER MALE

Communications with Ottawa were slow and, probably unaware of the state of the herd, Mr. McNeil's superiors sent word to keep on with the project. He left for the barren lands to capture a male wild caribou to propagate a new herd, but was unsuccessful. The herd number was taken at a Dominion Day feast in Fort Resolution in 1916.

His reindeer herd days over, Mr. McNeil became the chief buffalo ranger in the area which now is Wood Buffalo National Park and completed the size of his native Newfoundland.

The businessmen were not the only visitors to our school that morning. In the assembly, we were honored by the presence of "Homer and George Chacostat". These musicians will forever have the gratitude of mankind for their invaluable two-note composition which provides the theme for so many musical arrangements today.

The Christmas term assemblies commenced with a commentary by Queen Scouts, Ed Fruchuck and Dave Fort, concerning their trip to the 30th Boy Scout Jamboree in Colorado Springs this summer. What better way was there to celebrate the finish of examinations than to attend the Girls' Athletic Society's dance. This dance, held in the girls' gym, was enjoyed by a large crowd of "smiling - for-the-moment" students.

Lower School House League basketball was climaxed recently by the victory of team one over team two.

Once again the boys' gym provides the highlight of noon-hour activities as the "knock em down, drag 'em out" floor hockey season begins. To make this all important point the up per school classmen match brain and brawn in a frantic attempt to put their team on top.

"THE ROMANCE OF CHEMISTRY"

This was the basis of the address given by Mr. Douglas Walkington of the Canadian Industries Ltd. in a special assembly for students. To prove his statement that chemistry is involved in practically all aspects of daily living, Mr. Walkington presented many practical and common articles made possible only through modern chemistry. Grade 12 and 13 students take note!

To quote Arthur C. Clark, "The steadily rising tide of technical knowledge has a way of obliterating obstacles so effectively that what seemed impossible to one generation becomes elementary to the next".

Trade and Commerce Services Described in New Booklet

OTTAWA—Buggies and buggy covers were among Canada's exports to Trinidad and Tobago in 1892, when the Department of Trade and Commerce was founded and Canada had eight commercial agents abroad.

The horse-and-buggy age is long past, and today Canada has 147 Trade Commissioners seeking out new export opportunities all over the world. They operate from 63 Canadian offices in 49 countries around the globe, says the Department's new 32-page booklet "Trade and Commerce: Your Service."

The booklet, which describes the services the department available to the individual Canadian businessman is being introduced at the current Export Trade Promotion Conference in Ottawa. The Department also plans to distribute it widely to businessmen throughout Canada. Copies are available without charge from the Editorial and Art Services Division, Trade Publicity Branch, Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa.

Canada had only 4,750,000 people when the Honorable Sir Mackenzie Bowell became the first Minister of Trade and Commerce in December, 1892. Canada's foreign trade then totalled $250,000,000 annually. Today, with a population less than four times as great, Canada exports about 44 times as much business with other countries—a total of $11,000,000,000 a year. The Honorable George Ross and Sir Mackenzie's present day successor, and he has just launched the most intensive export drive in the country's history.

The sharply rising growth of Canada's foreign trade has paralleled the development of the Department, and the booklet's development is outlined briefly in the introduction to the booklet, which describes the primary functions of those branches which are of particular interest to Canadian businessmen.

The main section of the booklet describes the services of the Department that are available to the individual Canadian businessman. These are listed alphabetically and described in detail. The booklet also contains a Head Office Directory and a list of Trade Commissioner posts abroad.

Canada's 'High Arctic' Outlined To Women's Canadian Club

Today there is a great rushing to and fro; people are losing their national fetters; distances are crossed in the matter of hours; and some are already booking reservations for space travel.

Wednesday evening under the skilful navigation, Miss Irene Baird, a native of Carlisle, England, and senior Information Officer with the Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources, in her delightful Scottish accent, took the Women's Canadian Club to Canada's "High Arctic". Not content at the top of the world to Fort Resolute, to meet the Eskimos fled the whose numbers reaches 5,000 years into the past.

CAMP RESOLUTE

Camp Resolute is the bridge between two cultures, the past and the present. As the glaciers receded, people followed. Then they hunted the walrus and the bowhead—whales, monstrous creatures whose baleen and bones are found in the tundra. Now the Eskimo hunters play amid the wild pink and white flowers and the blue and white flags of the R.C.A.F. fly from mastheads and the joint Canadian-United States weather stations proclaim weather conditions—sun and calm, and the polar Light captains.

More than 100 million acres are under exploration permit for gas and oil and 40 million of these acres are in the Arctic Islands, which are a peculiar part of Canada.

At Resolute, a one-room school has been built and the Eskimo families who have resided there for the past three years. It is the most distant school in Canada, and is closer to the North pole than any school in the world.

Shipping visit here in summer on August 11, one of the busiest times of the year, when the year's supplies come in consisting of food and household supplies. In summer the Eskimos move closer to the beach in their canvas tents which glisten in the sunshine, so pure—white are they—close to the sun and wind. The Eskimo women do all the sewing of the tents, which are of white and sealskin.

EMPLOYED BY RCAF

Most of the Eskimo men were employed by the R.C.A.F. and during summer time, the women and children hold a "vacation brief".

The Eskimo is quiet, always with a pleasant smile, courteous and unpretentious; at meetings, well behaved, and anxious to learn. Eskimo members sit on the Eskimo Affairs Committee, which meets in Ottawa every year. There is also a growing number of Eskimo civil servants.

Those who work on vocational training courses appear to have a natural aptitude with tools and machinery and other gadgets and are most ready to dismember any moving part and put it together again.

In speaking of the Eskimo homes, in which Miss Baird has been, she mentioned that they had more than one clock, and even one or more radios, and tape recorders in which they send messages to friends in hospital or northern parts of the Arctic.

CARVINGS

As craftsmen in stone their carvings are in the front ranks of early art, and the Cape Dorset exhibits prints, are well done. The Eskimo women are also fine carvers as the skin appliqué demonstrates, which is distinct from the work of the men, as they choose their own subjects.

Regarding education, Miss Baird stated that at Sir John Franklin School those who had taken vocational training had jobs waiting for them when they returned home. This school was built a few years ago, and is one of the finest manual training schools in Canada. There are also courses in English to assist in their education. The government's aim is to bring education within reach of every child in the known country.

WEDDING

McLEOD — PATRICK

FRANKFORD — Frankford United Church parsonage was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday afternoon, November 26th, at 2 p.m. when the Rev. C. Judd, united in marriage Brenda Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Patrick and Mr. and Mrs. Grant Patrick and the late Mr. McLeod and the late Mr. McLeod, all of Frankford.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a gold wool dress and corsage of yellow carnations, with black accessories.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents with the bride's mother receiving the guests in a pale-blue dress with navy accessories and corsage of red carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother in a navy and white dress with white accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

Women's Activities

THOMASBURG W.A.

The November meeting and Thankoffering of Thomasburg W.A. was held in the church vestry with the junior and senior pupils, teachers, and friends of the village enjoying a pot-luck repast at the meeting opened with 17 adults and three children present.

Mrs. Gordon Cartier led the devotional and program. The Scripture lesson Matthew 11-30, was read by Mrs. Dyson, followed with a reading by Mrs. E. Cartier.

Mrs. Ross Robinson, W.A. treasurer, gave her report showing a nice sum in the bank. Correspondence also was taken care of.

The election of officers for 1961 was not completed.

The Christmas meeting will be held in the parsonage on December 15th when there will be an exchange of Christmas gifts.

The president presided over the business portion.

Mrs. Henry Morton gave a reading.

After the meeting closed, Mrs. Ernest Morton and Mrs. Frank Morton served delicious refreshments to make for Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. John Joseph Gilbey are shown signing the register following their marriage in Christ Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Doolittle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Doolittle of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Gilbey, also of Belleville. (Photo by Mac McGrimmon, Belleville).

GILBEY — DOOLITTLE

Belleville, ushered the guests.

The reception was held in Christ Church parish hall, with a turkey dinner catered by the ladies of the church.

The bride's table was prettily appointed with white damask, and centred by a three-tiered wedding cake adorned with yellow rosebuds and flanked by tall white tapers in silver holders, white tulle and yellow rosebuds misted the base of the cake. Bridal bouquets added an extra nuptial accent.

The bride's mother, wearing a mauve lace over taffeta in sheath style with three-quarter sleeves black accessories, and corsage of yellow Sweetheart roses, received the guests. Assisting in the receiving line was the bridegroom's mother, attired in a brown and coral shaded sheath with coral accessories and corsage of coral - tinted 'mums.

The bride's previous to her marriage, was entertained at miscellaneous showers given by Miss Mary Lou Denyes at her home on the Trent Road, with Mrs. W. Denyes as co-hostess; at the home of Miss Arla Woodcox, 81 Ordnance Drive, Belleville, and at a pantry shower given by Mrs. W. Stephens, Pine Street.

W. Hastings Women's Institute Plans 60th Anniversary

TRAWDON — On the afternoon of November 28th, West Hastings District Women's Institute met in the Community Hall, Bancroft. Board Room, Belleville, to make plans for the 60th anniversary of the Institute.

The group in attendance included Mrs. Wallbridge, president; Mrs. Harry Griffin, secretary-treasurer; and Mrs. Percy Mackillen, River Valley, public relations officer.

The district directors or their alternates in attendance were: Bay of Quinte — Mrs. John Priddy, Canifton; Mrs. Gerald Irvine, Pinegrove; Mrs. W. Slater, Stirling — Mrs. R. Williams and Hoodsdale — Mrs. Gerald Harrington and Mrs. Frank Looney.

The president opened the meeting and the secretary read an outline of the 50th anniversary and the 57th anniversary. This latter was held in honor of the birth date of the founder, Adelaide Hoodless. The district has no authentic records from 1901 to 1921 but it is hoped that the records on hand are correct.

PRESIDENTS

This states that there were two presidents the first year of 1901; Mrs. S. Lapum and J. E. Lane. Then followed Mrs. A. M. Bleecker, 1902-1903; Mrs. Mary Mac Dench; Mrs. J. Phillips; Mrs. R. Wilson; Mrs. W. Weese; Mrs. H. Dadoo; Mrs. E. R. Pinder; Mrs. Walter Grass; Mrs. Ernest Hall; Mrs. Fred Ashcheson; Mrs. Clarence Helmer; Mrs. Gordon Wallbridge; Mrs. West; Mrs. Fred Hessman; Mrs. Ben Bleecker; Mrs. Sam Nicholson; Mrs. Roy Bush; Mrs. George Burkitt; Mrs. John Reid; Mrs. Gordon Ketcheson; Mrs. Fred Coulter; and Mrs. E. B. Phillips. (Incomplete).

The secretaries have been: Mrs. Herb. Finkle; Mrs. W. R. Vandervoort; Mrs. W. Wilcox; Mrs. J. Kelly; Mrs. S. Lapum; Mrs. J. Wallbridge; Mrs. E. Vandervoort; who served 15 years; Mrs. P. Bronson; Mrs. Morley Mac; Mrs. R. Finkle; Mrs. H. Phillips and Mrs. Harry Coulter.

Three federated board directors: Mrs. Fred Stirling; their duties have been: Mrs. M. Shaw, Stirling; Mrs. Clarence Helmer, Bay of Quinte and Mrs. Gordon Ketcheson, Kingsmill.

Some time was spent in discussions when ideas were presented and several motions were made and carried.

A summary follows. It is decided to celebrate the 60th anniversary of West Hastings District Women's Institute with a special meeting with a pot-luck supper banquet, at 6:30 p.m. probably on Thursday evening, April 20th, in Wallbridge Village Hall. Each branch to remember in attendance will consitute 'Roll Call' and a collection will be taken to defray the various expenses. It is hoped that 70 members would be able to attend from the seven branches in the district.

POT-LUCK MENU

The menu was chosen and will consist of ham, chicken, escalloped potatoes, a variety of vegetables, cabbage salad, Swiss cheese, pickles, rolls, coffee, a variety of pie, and ice cream. Grocery cake, Dutton were assigned for each branch, as follows: Wallbridge — to set tables and make coffee; Chatterton — to provide all the decorations and candles, in blue and gold; River Valley — to order the white birthday cake; Pinegrove — to fashion the corsages; Stirling — to arrange for the musical programs, at the agricultural office; Uxbridge — to arrange for the photography; Bay of Quinte — to conduct "In Memoriam," and the history of the 60 years will be given by Mrs. Clarence Holmes. Musical selections were chosen to be given by branch members.

GUEST SPEAKER

The president of the federated West Women's Institute of Ontario, Mrs. L. Y. Lynburne of Port Colborne will be invited to give an address and the board director, Mrs. Sherman Foster, of Hillier was designated to give the introduction. The publicity will be in charge of the F. B. O. of the district.

When all plans are complete, the secretary will write the full particulars to each branch in the district.

On Tuesday December 6th, Mrs. Percy MacMullen will give the highlights of what has been accomplished in the district. To date five branches have contributed $60. In response for the Jamaica project. This project was inaugurated by the F. W. I. O. a voluntary gift, to help Jamaica with their extension work.

Much praise is due Mrs. George O'Brien and Mrs. Roy Johnson, social convenors for the fine lunch and to the faithful members of their committee.

Helpful Hints Are Set Out In Manual

OTTAWA (CP)—Helpful hints for arctic householders are collected in a do-it-yourself manual being circulated by the northern affairs department.

It was prompted by a suggestion from Northern Affairs Minister Alvin Hamilton after a trip north where he encountered difficulties that could be overcome times in a quandary about what to do until the plumber comes.

The manual which has been sent to department personnel in the north with a request for their suggestions, deals with some obvious emergencies.

Doors and windows that frozen due to condensation can be loosened by pouring lukewarm salted water around the edges," it advises. "Use of an oil can to apply the salted water will keep the mess at a minimum."

Don't let paint freeze, but if it does "be sure to take special care in mixing." An old eggbeater is handy for the job.

Rug cleaning, stain removal, floor waxes, burned-out fuses, sticking drawers, regluing furniture and care of the furnace are discussed.

One piece of advice that was hardly necessary in settling out that in certain cases of stalks the householder should call in a professional to do the job. Officials noted that Yellowknife, with a population of about 2,300, is probably the only northern community with such a luxury.

Approximately 100 Guests Attend Silver Anniversary

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN

RAWDON — The Frankford Community Hall banquet room was tastefully decorated with pink and white streamers and bells, on the evening of November 26th, on the occasion of the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent McKinley.

The party was a complete surprise to the bride of 25 years.

Approximately 100 guests were in attendance from Consecurg, Colborne, Dundonald Trenton, Marmora, Mount Pleasant-Bridgewater, Wicklow Valley, Campbellford, Stirling, Belleville, Belwood and Campbellford.

Mrs. McCauley received her guests, wearing a black taffeta lace-piece dress with a corsage of pink rosebuds and silver ribbon and the bridegroom assisted, wearing a carnation boutonniere, in the lapel of his coat.

The bridegroom is a son of Mr. Jack McCauley, Frankford, and the late Mrs. McCauley (Jessie Lafay), and the bride was formerly Margaret Rose, daughter of the late Albert Rose and the late wife Lincoln Rose of Sidney. They have three children, Mrs. Ronald Bennett (Joan) as McLerren of Grafton; (Joan) Mrs. Robert Hearns, Frankford, and Miss Sheila McCauley, at home, and one son, Robert, at home; also six grandchildren.

Reeve H. W. Rose was master of ceremonies for a short program which opened with "O Canada" with Miss Susan Huffman as pianist.

The honored guests were seated at the platform and head tables for future happiness were expressed by the chairman and by Mr. Lloyd Cable of Cobourg. Miss Jean Donohoe of River View Park played a piano solo and Miss Linda Cable, Cobourg, and the bride's music was supplied by Mrs. E. Houle on her home piano accordion. Mrs. Percy MacMullen contributed several humorous readings while solo guitar music were rendered by Messrs. Pete Houle and "Scotty" Newell.

An appreciative address was read to the honored guests by Mrs. Harry Hearns. A discovery-like greeting card contained the names of all those who contributed to the gifts which were: an electric fry pan; a cluded the "cake ceremony."

coffee table; a pair of table lamps with eggshell shades; a modern chrome rocker; a matching chrome bench; a two-piece salad set and a pair of blankets.

The immediate family gave them a three-piece set of silver, cream, sugar and tray, and a hammered aluminum lazy Susan. The oldest grandson gave a set of coffee spoons. The bridegroom's fraternity gave the honored couple 50 silver dollars and a sizeable cheque. There were also numerous individual gifts of china, silver and cash.

Their attendants, the former Miss Anne Donohoe and Mr. Jack Lafay, were unable to be in attendance.

Vincent is a mail courier on Frankford R.R. 3, and he also is in charge of the mail delivery between Trenton and Frankford. He has one sister (Hattie) Mrs. J. R. Donohoe, Stirling, living in the River Valley area, and three brothers, Percy, Campbellford, who has recently returned home from spending several months in England and Africa; Murray of Toronto, and Patrick of Napanee.

Mrs. McCauley has two sisters, (Vera) Mrs. Harry Forbes, Frankford, and (Olive) Mrs. R. Park, Trenton, and one brother, Mr. Claude Rose, R.R. 3, Trenton.

The bride's table was centred with a three-tiered anniversary cake, decorated in white and silver, and the bridegroom's was placed over an heirloom glass plate in foot style. Pots of chrysanthemums were used for decoration.

A buffet luncheon was served by the three daughters, assisted by Mrs. J. R. Donohoe, Mrs. Ed. Ash, Mrs. Claude Rose, Mrs. Roy Huffman.

The head table guests seated with the honored couple included Mr. and Mrs. Claude Rose, Mr. and Mrs. R. Parks, Mr. and Mrs. W. Rose, Mr. Jack McCauley, Mrs. Leo McCauley and Mr. and Mrs. Joe McCauley.

Flash pictures were taken throughout the evening and in-

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Harper Shaw

THE YOUNG LADY AND THE "GROWN-UP DATE"

The young lady who is just beginning to go on "grown-up" dates should remember an old saying. It is, "Manners, not gold, are woman's best adornment". Too often these words of wisdom are forgotten, particularly by those who think that to "dress the part" is all that is necessary to attain the popularity they desire.

With all the holiday parties coming up, it is well to remember that it's the so-called "little things" that really count. Knowing how to act, what to say and when to say it, the natural easy manner, are the greatest attributes a woman of any age can have.

Suppose, for example, that you ask yourself just what is expected of you when you accept that invitation to an evening of dining and dancing?

First, dress correctly. "Dressing the part" is important, of course, because ease of manner is bound to result when you are sure that you are neither underdressed nor overdressed. An afternoon frock, with hat and gloves, is correct if it is a reception for the informal dinner date. A dressy afternoon or evening gown, depending upon the formality of the occasion, should be worn for special parties. Always guard against a dress that is too revealing or too tight. Avoid too much jangling jewelry and, above all, be sure that you really want the impressing your escort, you will embarrass him.

Be ready when your escort calls for you. It is neither smart nor sensible to keep him waiting a half hour while you fuss with your hairdress.

When your destination is reached, your escort checks your wrap and his coat and hat. Be sure to remove your purse and compact if they are in the pocket of your coat. Don't ask him to put his hat in his pocket. Hold it in your hand.

Your manners are also subject to perform this service. Neither a cigarette nor the lighting thereof is enhanced by bulging pockets.

When you enter a restaurant or night club, the headwaiter will lead the way to your table. You follow him, your escort bringing up the rear. The headwaiter will hold your chair for you. As soon as you are seated, place your napkin in your lap. Read the menu, making your selections quickly. Tell your escort what you drink, be in turn will give the order to the waiter.

Now relax. Make every effort to lead your conversation into subjects that will interest you as well as your escort. Avoid gossip about mutual friends. Follow the wisdom of that wise old bird, the owl, and listen more than you talk!

After finishing your coffee, don't turn the table into a dressing room. Excuse yourself and go to the powder room. Your escort stands as you leave the table, and is there when you return. By the way, don't stay forever and keep him waiting!

Remember that you make the move to go home, not the young man, so it's up to you to know when the evening has reached its climax.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Question: Today, when so many women smoke, is it still considered proper for a man to ask permission to smoke when he joins a group of people? It seems silly, but I am wondering if it should be done.—Mary M. J. B. W., New York, N. Y.

Answer: It depends upon circumstances. If you join a mixed group, and several of the ladies are smoking, it is common sense not to ask permission to smoke. Just go ahead. However, if no one is smoking, then you should ask if you may do so. Let's keep a few of the old courtesies!

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and women's editor. Each week it is summoned to consider problems presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers.

Nanette B. — Our nieces and nephews treat us as though we don't exist.

Oliver B. — They're living in a dreamworld and don't see our problems.

• • •

Nanette B. — My widowed sister and I are in our late 70's and live together. Our late brother left eight children and we are the last surviving relatives on this side of their family. You'd think they'd pay some attention to us now in our later years. But no, they just put us on the shelf and forget about us.

My sister and her husband were childless and so were left all extra devoted to Bob's children, and their parents are gone, however, they have an interest in the older generation. Perhaps it's because we are a bit financially because we have a few stingy small pension from her husband. And they send birthday cards and Christmas cards, that's all.

But we crave the personal touch. We love to see them. It's impossible for us to make long trips to see them. None of them live nearby, so it's up to them to come to our apartment for a visit.

• • •

Oliver B. — Why not wish somebody could explain to Aunt Nanette and Auntie Sue that the middle-aged "children" like us couldn't even get to visiting our parents much less our aunts. If they lived this far away from us. Besides, our parents might have been less demanding and more sympathetic.

It's too bad that Aunt Nan expects personal visits as her due, for the affection showered on us through the years. If that's the price for their love, we're not buying!

First off, four of us live in other states. So the finger is on the remaining four, my sister, two brothers and me. Just asking for all of us it's a real journey and a project (with a capital P) to get to the south. Then, with growing families and business and community commitments, there's little choice on how to spend a few spare hours. We need some rest, too.

We try to keep in touch and see that they're not in need. We're conscientiously they'd better turn to a Golden Age Club. They'll find pals who'll probably agree with them about "ungrateful" relatives. We're grateful but we can't make a career of proving it.

• • •

The Council: We agree with eastern Oliver that working people can't possibly fill the social hungers of the retired. More and more, people are realizing that an "independent old age" comes from careful preparation and planning, both on the financial and emotional levels.

Evidence these timid, family-centred women are barking back to the days when all one's problems could be dumped into the family lap and "solved" in the spirit of love for all and all for one. This was the pattern in immigrant families, and may sometimes be found where generations are housed together or in close proximity. But "

Anglican Church Faces Hard Task Maintaining Missionary Work in Canadian Arctic

By HILARY GORDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

To keep pace with civilization's northward march, the Anglican Church of Canada is accelerating its work in the Arctic. But it faces a tough task in maintaining its century-long record of missionary achievement among the Eskimos.

Failing to obtain volunteers for work in the North from the ranks of Canadian priests, Rt. Rev. Donald B. Marsh is again looking to England for recruits to fill vacancies in strategic mission posts scattered over his 3,750,000-square-mile arctic diocese.

Concern over the situation is expressed by many churchmen who feel that the new challenge of the North calls for a concerted effort to recruit Canadian clergy. With the Eskimo slowly emerging from a stone-age culture the problem of his assimilation into Canadian civilization is a delicate one.

In an interview in London, 57-year-old Bishop Marsh said the task of recruiting Canadian-born priests for the North is very difficult." He gave the growth of materialism as a reason. ■

SERVE FIVE YEARS

This view is questioned in some church circles where it is held that the term of Arctic service is too long. Volunteers are required to serve five years following which they are given a five-month furlough.

Other factors contribute to the church's problems. Since the pioneer missionary Bishop William C. Bompas became known as "The Apostle of the North," the break region had been created until 1990 almost entirely by clergy from the United Kingdom and the tradition remains strong.

While the call of the Arctic has been a magnetic one for missionary-minded Britons it has been less attractive to Canadians who are more familiar with the rugged conditions of northern life.

Bishop Marsh's diocese takes in the eastern and western Arctic regions, the Northwest Territories and a part of northern Quebec. Of its 23,000 inhabitants 11,000 are Eskimos.

Manning of 23 mission stations, two hospitals, a nursing station and two mission day schools is a big job. There is one self-supporting parish in the entire area—at Yellowknife, N.W.T. At present the bishop's staff comprises 12 clergymen, three laymen, 28 Eskimo and Indian catechists and a number of nurses. The clergy include two Canadians, two Eskimos and a Loucheaux Indian.

RECRUITING ABROAD

English-born Bishop Marsh who has spent 34 years among the Eskimos went overseas hoping to get an additional nine men to help in serving the spiritual and social needs of 9,000 Anglican Eskimos. Ordained missionaries will spend a year with an experienced priest in the North before going on their own. Others will prepare for missionary work at Emmanuel College, Saskatoon.

There are those on the executive council of the church's department of missions who are greatly concerned about the length of undersupplied service required of priests in the North," said Canon A. H. Davis, the general secretary. "They have asked that the matter be studied."

No matter how dedicated a missionary may be, Arctic life involves many frustrations and limitations as well as loneliness and sometimes privation. Healthy, well-trained people with a balanced outlook can make a real contribution to the church's work, observers say, but generally speaking a five-year tour of duty is too long.

Federal government workers in the North do not serve longer than two years. In most cases the period is 18 months or even shorter.

LACK KNOWLEDGE

Intellectually and physically the overseas missionary may be the equal of his Canadian counterpart. Proof of his zeal for Christianity has been evidenced many times in the history of the church's work in the North.

But his effectiveness may suffer because he goes to his post without adequate knowledge of the vast area's changing economic and social needs.

Most Rev. Howard H. Clark, Archbishop of Edmonton and Primate of All Canada who recently visited the eastern Arctic said the Eskimo is in need of help and Christian friendship.

"The Anglican Church of Canada must awake to the opportunity and the responsibility involved in our northern work. It is a matter about which I have felt great personal concern ever since I became primate."

On the whole, he believes Canadians haven't been caught by the romance of the North that has a real appeal for the missionary - hearted Briton. Canadians think of the Arctic as part of North America, and some mysterious, fanciful land.

DIOCESES MUST HELP

Bishop E. S. Reed of Ottawa has great sympathy for Bishop Marsh in his efforts to man northern missions.

"This is a task for the whole church," he said. "Some kind of financial plan will have to be devised whereby the more populous diocese will share their clergy with the diocese of the Arctic and other missionary areas in Canada.

"Such a plan will have beneficial effects; not only in meeting the needs of those areas, but in making it possible for southern dioceses to have a deeper understanding of northern problems."

As the Eskimo advances toward citizenship, Canon Davis believes he should be helped by Canadian priests conversant with federal social legislation plans for northern development, wild life conservation and other things that concern his welfare.

"We need priests—I don't like the term missionaries because the Arctic diocese is an integral part of the Anglican Church of Canada—who will help to prepare the Eskimo for our Canadian way of life," he said. "This is difficult for the Briton who has his roots in English life and traditions."

Canon Davis is encouraged by the growing interest in the Eskimo language at the university level. He said summer courses had been held at the University of Alberta.

TRADITION BLAMED

Until the Second World War missionary work in the North and northwest was financed to a large extent by the big British missionary societies. The great majority of clergy came from England and they built a solid foundation for current missionary activity.

In 1940 the Canadian church decided to relieve the overseas societies of the burden and assume financial responsibility for its missionary dioceses as the result of a nationwide, fund-raising campaign.

Conditioned for so many years to rely on English missionaries, it has been comparatively easy for the Canadian church to look to the traditional source for help while trying to build up an indigenous priesthood.

Apart from the diocese of the Arctic, the church finds it difficult to obtain sufficient ordained personnel for its other missionary dioceses strung out from Northern Ontario to the Yukon.

In stressing the urgency of home mission needs, Canon Davis said there are 43 vacant parishes in the church's 11 missionary dioceses. In addition 30 parishes are being ministered to by stipendiary lay readers and in 14 others services are being taken by licensed women workers.

Only Ten of Original 100 Canadian Settlers Now Live In Pretty N.Z. Logging Town

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

MURUPARA, N.Z. (CP) — Six years ago a colony of Canadian lumber workers was established in New Zealand to begin working the 347,000-acre Kaingaroa forest, the largest man-made forest in the world.

Today, the colony is widely split up, but the majority of the men are still in New Zealand.

Lumberjacks were recruited in Canada to work for the Kaingaroa Logging Company, the firm which supplies timber to New Zealand's new newsprint industry. It is a big operation and there was not a sufficient pool of experienced forest workers to man the job at that time.

The logging headquarters was established at Murupara, a township on the edge of the forest in the eastern area of the North Island.

About 100 Canadians, some with families, were brought to Murupara, then raw and brand new.

Today, Murupara is a well-established town with a fine shopping area and houses with well-tended gardens, shrubs and trees.

TOOK CASHED JOBS

Only about 10 of the original Canadian workers remain at Murupara. The rest are working in a variety of jobs over much of the country. But company officials who have kept touch with many of them estimate that about 60 still are in New Zealand.

There were initial troubles among workers dissapointed with conditions in New Zealand. Some found conditions below expectations. Some who claimed to be skilled workers were found to know little about the job.

Only these troubles were cleared away, the operation became a success. Men remaining worked with a will, became used to New Zealand ways and rapidly integrated with other workers at Murupara.

The Canadians remaining at Murupara now are an integral part of the town's life. They do not form a separate group, have no Canadian club, ohly occasionally get in touch with each other. They have become New Zealanders, and most of them hold responsible jobs.

MARRY MAORS

Several Canadians married Maori girls, brown-skinned Polynesian natives of New Zealand. The Maoris are a fine people and a marriage to Maoris carries no social stigma in New Zealand — rather the reverse.

Of those who have left Murupara, several worked on construction of Auckland's recently-completed harbor bridge. Others are working for forestry companies in both Islands of New Zealand. There many have met others of their countrymen, for the Kaingaroa company is not the only one to have recruited lumberjacks from Canada in recent years.

Several Canadians who went home at the end of their three-year contracts have since returned. They report that others also are considering returning to New Zealand.

Those still at Kaingaroa include Harry Tapper, formerly of Woodstock, who now is planning superintendent for the company.

BECAME FIXTURE

"I intended to stay for only a few years for experience," he said, "but I seem to have become a fixture.

"New Zealand is a logger's paradise, of course. The climate, for me thing, is ideal. And this is a very big operation here by any standards. It is being run on a sustained-yield basis and it would be hard to duplicate it in Canada."

Others remaining include Larry Cryderman, formerly of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., whose wife now is head typist in the company's office; W. Reed, a crew foreman from Port Arthur, Ont.; W. Stutsbrope, from Nova Scotia; Fred Kastrukoff, a foreman from British Columbia, and Everett Porter, from Nova Scotia, in charge of first aid; Don Saw, a tractor driver, from Noranda, Que., whose brother was killed in a forest accident in New Zealand, and Reg Supple and Wally Marceski.

Some of them now have sons also working for the company.

St. Ola

ST. OLA — Mr. and Mrs. R. Martin and Mrs. Thomas Harry motored from St. Ola Tuesday, stopping at Trenton where Mrs. Harry visited her 99-year-old sister, Mrs. George Rosebush, and two daughters and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Howson, and Mrs. Robert Gamble.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Martin then proceeded to Belleville, returning to St. Ola in the evening.

Mrs. and Mrs. Hugh Davidson of Downsview were weekend guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Phillips.

VIVIVATION DRIVE

Last Sunday was the visitation drive by members and adherents of the United church. The St. Ola church was filled at the 11.00 o'clock service, which was conducted by Mr. Ray Sadler, of Bancroft High School. His subject was "Thankfulness."

During the service the visitors were welcomed and commissioned by prayer by Mr. Sadler.

In spite of poor weather, the groups from Gilmour, Ormsby, Greenbush, Gunter and St. Ola neighborhood visited the neighborhood assigned to each group.

On Friday Dec. 2nd there is being held in the St. Ola Methodist Church a service of induction for the incoming pastor, the Rev. Kenneth McAllister. There will be a social hour affording the community to get acquainted with the new pastor and his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Swift, of Madoc, visited Mr. and Mrs. H. Phillips last Sunday.

Mr. G. Barager, of Coe Hill, visited his sisters, Mrs. Elsie King and Mrs. Thomas Harry on Saturday. He also visited Mrs. King on Tuesday.

Luluabourg, Chosen to Be Congo Capital, Nearly Jungle

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

LULUABOURG (AP) — The jungle is creeping in on this city once chosen to be the Congo's capital.

Most seem to have given up the struggle to keep the city going. "The only reason I'm still here is that everything I own is here and I can get none of it out," one Belgian said.

Luluabourg, 500 miles east of Leopoldville, was to become the seat of the national government under a pre-independence plan. The plan has been forgotten together with a hundred other development projects.

Unemployed Congolese stand at street corners.

Piles of garbage on the side walk spill over into the street.

Adrian boys and girls live all day to a colniers juke box in the bar of the Hotel Atlantis, once a hangout of rich white settlers.

White shop-owners have fled. Cobwebs and thick layers of dust are visible through unwashed shop windows.

TREELESS GOODS

Some shops are filled with radio sets, washing machines, accordiors, calculating machines, all covered with dust and as useful as a mink coat in the desert.

The provincial government's avowed allegiance is to ex-premier Moise Tshombe, in Katanga. The local army commander takes orders sporadically from pro-Western army leader Col. Joseph Mobutu in Leopoldville. Yet so isolated is the city from the national capital that there is no visible conflict.

INFORMATION TO THURLOW TOWNSHIP VOTERS

As there have been more than the required number of candidates qualify for the three vacant positions on Council, an Election will be held on

MONDAY, Dec. 5th 1960

9.00 a.m. to 7.00 p.m.

Due to changes caused by annexation, since the last Election, it has been found necessary to create two new Polling Subdivisions and to renumber and to re-arrange the boundaries of several others. The following information is for the guidance of those persons qualified to vote and who live in the areas where changes have been made.

Poll No. 1—POINT ANNE

No change in boundaries. The voting is to take place in the Orange Hall at Point Anne.

Poll No. 2—FRONT ROAD

This Poll now includes all that area (with the exception of Point Anne) extending from the easterly boundary of the Village of Bellecie, and south of the C.P.R. main line, to the easterly boundary of Thurlow Township. Voting is to take place in the residence of Mr. Fred Pope.

Poll No. 3—SECOND CONCESSION

Includes all that area east of the City of Belleville, north of the Canadian Pacific Railway main line, south of Provincial Highway No. 401 and extending to the easterly boundary of the Township. Voting is to take place in the Douglas H. Atkins Public School.

Poll No. 4—MOIRA WEST

This is a new Poll and comprises the area bounded on the south by Provincial Highway 401, on the west by the west boundary of the Township, on the east by the Moira River and on the north by the Ninth Concession Road (at Fairfield's Bridge). Voting is to take place in the residence of Mr. Harry Tweedy.

Poll No. 5—CANNIFTON

There have been some changes in the boundaries of this Poll, which now consists of that area bounded on the west by the Moira River, on the south by Provincial Highway No. 401, on the east by the Canadian National Railway line to Corbyville as far as the new Highway No. 37 and then along the said highway No. 37 as relocated to the Trans Canada Pipe Line for the transmission of Natural Gas. The right-of-way for the pipe line is the northerly boundary of the Poll. Voting is to take place in the Township Hall at Canifton.

Poll No. 6—BETHANY

This is a new Poll and includes all the area north of Provincial Highway No. 401 and east of Provincial Highway No. 37 as relocated, except the north half on Lot 10 in Con. 2, the whole of lots 10 and 11 in Con. 4 and the north half of Lot 12 in Con. 4, which are in Poll No. 7—Corbyville. Voting is to take place in the residence of Mr. Vernon Hamilton.

Poll No. 7—CORBYVILLE

The boundaries of this Poll have also been changed and it now comprises all of the area in Con. 5 from the sideroad between Lots 6 and 7 to the east boundary of the Township. In addition, the whole or those parts of lots Nos. 7 to 11 in Con. 4 lying north east of the Moira River, and the north half of Lot 12 in Con. 4. Also those portions of Lot 9 to 10 in Concession 3 lying east of the Moira River and north of The Trans Canada Pipe Line for the transmission of Natural Gas. Voting is to take place in the residence of Mr. Lorne Wellman.

Poll No. 8—FOXBORO

There has been little change in this Poll with the south boundary now being the Fifth Concession road (at Fairfield's Bridge) west of the river and extending easterly to the sideroad between lots 6 and 7 east of the river. The other boundaries are as they have been for some time. Voting is to take place at the residence of Mr. G. V. Ducette.

Poll No. 9—ELDONS

There has been no change in the boundaries of this Poll. Voting is to take place in the residence of Mr. W. Donald Sills.

Poll No. 10—PLAINFIELD

There has been no change in the boundries of this poll. Voting is to take place in the Plainfield Orange Hall.

For further information please call the Township Office WO 8-1949.

PROPOSED DEVELOPMENT — An American research group has recommended a $340,000,000 highway improvement program to help develop the economic wealth of Alaska and northwest British Columbia.

The study of the Bateslie Memorial Institute for the Alaska international rail and highway commission now is being considered for incorporation in a report for the U. S. Congress. The report is expected to outline the basis for U. S.-Canadian development in the area.

The Bateslie report suggested construction of several new routes (broken lines on map), and upgrading and asphalt surface treating of the Alaska Highway from near Fort St. John, B. C., to the Alaska border. (CP—Newsmap).

Britain Trying To Save Parley Of Africans

By DAVE OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Britain has stepped up a two-pronged campaign aimed at averting a breakdown of next week's constitutional review conference for the central African Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland.

High level sources said today they hope the drive, aimed at African Negroes and Europeans alike, will encourage the various leaders attending the conference to modify their declared rigid positions.

European settlers in Southern Rhodesia, among them federation Prime Minister Sir Roy Welensky, feel Britain is giving in too quickly to Negro demands. They want the British government to adopt a more gradual approach.

The Negro leaders in the federation formed by Nyasaland and the two Rhodesias appear to be intransigently opposed to federation. They view it as an attempt by Europeans in Southern Rhodesia to maintain an iron grip over the Negroes, who overwhelmingly outnumber the whites.

Nationalist leaders, particularly Dr. Hastings Banda of Nyasaland have stated categorically that they want the right of secession from the federation now.

Britain is faced next week with the delicate problem of trying to reconcile the two views. Both Colonial Secretary Iain Macleod and Prime Minister Macmillan feel a breakup of the federation would have disastrous consequences.

HELD UP BANK

MONTREAL (CP)—Four men, one of them armed with a revolver, held up an east end Caisse Populaire and escaped with $12,812 Wednesday.

Marshal Grechko Acting Minister Of Defence

LONDON (AP)—Moscow Radio disclosed today that Marshal Andrei Grechko was acting as Soviet defence minister.

Grechko is Malinovsky's deputy.

The broadcast reported talks between Field Marshal Abdel Hakim Amer of the United Arab Republic and Soviet military leaders and said Grechko participated at a "cordial U.S.S.R. minister of defence."

Other Soviet military leaders present were listed as Marshals Vassily Chuikov and Andrei Yeremenko and Admiral Arseni Golovko.

Malinovsky was a subject of Western speculation during the Paris summit conference in May, 1960, after Soviet Premier Khrushchev around like a shadow, prompting the feeling that political forces in Moscow had ordered Malinovsky to keep an eye on the premier and make sure Khrushchev did nothing that had not been approved in advance at the Kremlin.

Malinovsky was last in the public eye Nov. 7, when he addressed a giant parade in Moscow's Red Square on the 43rd anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

Grechko, former commander of Soviet forces in East Germany, took over from Marshal Ivan Kocev in July as commander of the Communist bloc's Warsaw Treaty forces in Eastern Europe.

Republican Effort to Upset Kennedy's Presidential Win Unlikely to Achieve Purpose

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A massive Republican effort to upset John Kennedy's presidential victory through allegations of widespread vote fraud is unlikely to achieve its prime purpose. But it may cause the incoming president a lot of embarrassment and delay in public certainty that the Democrat will rule next January.

Republican charges of political skullduggery centre mainly on Cook County, Illinois, which includes Chicago and Democratic Mayor Richard J. Daley's legendary political machine.

At least one voting unit has yielded far more ballots than living residents.

Kennedy won the 27 Illinois electoral votes by a slim margin of 8,858 votes. He polled at left a total vote of more than 4,750,000. Cook County gave him such sufficient strength to crack Richard Nixon's downstate lead.

Indian, Canadian Troops in Congo Are Co-operative

BOMBAY (CP)—Press reports published here from Leopoldville speak highly of the co-operation between Indian and Canadian troops in the United Nations force in the Congo.

One Indian correspondent describes Canadian soldiers as "friendly, warm-hearted and dedicated."

An Indian soldier has written to his army-navy-air force paper he will shortly receive some toys from Canada. They are being sent from a Canadian ported in Leopoldville.

Indian newspapers have reproduced Canadian newspaper dispatches praising the friendly behavior and efficiency of Indian soldiers in the Congo. There is particular appreciation of Canadian newspaper tributes to India's 200 - bed Congo hospital. Some of the Indian doctors posted to the hospital had received post-graduate training in Canada, the United States and Britain.

Indians have been flattered in the reported remark of Cpl. Jean Guy Bourbonnais of Canadian battalion from Montreal, that he was treated by Indian nurses as "a maharajah."

Detroit Man, Four, Widows Get $65,000

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Mr. Justice H. F. Ferguson Thursday approved a settlement in the Supreme Court action awarding damages totalling $65,000 to a Detroit man and the widows of the four companions who died in a two-car crash at nearby Poplar Hill in 1958.

The judge awarded $30,000 to Charles V. Tremain; $11,277 to Mrs. Carrie Clements of Detroit, for the death of her husband, Ernest, 66; $8,018 to Mrs. Otelia O'Dell, of Detroit, for the death of her husband, Royal, 64; $6,355 to Mrs. Ruth Hamilton of Detroit, for the death of her husband, Walter, 63, and $8,350 to Mrs. Ivy O'Dell of Sarnia for the death of her husband, George, 61.

Defendant was Johan Gross, 28, of Detroit, driver of a car which was in collision with one in which the four men were killed and Mr. Tremain, a passenger, was injured.

OPENS PLANT

OSHAWA (CP) — The Union City Body Company, of Union City, Ind., has established a final assembly plant here which will employ 40 workers, it was announced Thursday. It will assemble specialty and GMC utility vans and Chevrolet step vans.

A massive Republican effort to upset John Kennedy's presidential victory through allegations of widespread vote fraud is unlikely to achieve its prime purpose. But it may cause the incoming president a lot of embarrassment and delay in public certainty that the Democrat will rule next January.

Republican charges of political skullduggery centre mainly on Cook County, Illinois, which includes Chicago and Democratic Mayor Richard J. Daley's legendary political machine. He has been a member of the Illinois state assembly for 22 years for the constituency of Manchester, south of here, and was coordination minister under the administration of the late Maurice Duplessis. He says he has no intention of pulling out of politics immediately.

POSITION SHAKEN

Under the late Paul Sauvé and Barrette, he held the same portfolio, but his position in the party was shaken by the latter's defeat of the Union Nationale.

Mr. Barrette has said he has 300 pledged electoral votes with only 265 required to win. Eliminating Illinois' 27 votes would not reduce his total to 275, the slim majority needed. This would still be enough to win, but the election would be thrown into the House of Commons, with each state delegation casting one vote, with the winner needing a majority of 26 of the 50 delegations. The last such election was 135 years ago.

As stated now, 26 of the delegations would be made up of Democratic states, 24 Republican and the other four would be split evenly between the two parties.

The delegations would be under the choice of Kennedy or Nixon and their Democratic majorities in the House of Representatives.

The impossible hierarchical certain that even under such circumstances Kennedy would still be the new formula would raise the party's majority. The embarrassment for Kennedy would include the prospect of facing enormous delay in the event of a recount and a new election forcing him to make certain compromises in order to secure the state vote.

Chief Organizer Of Former Govt. Resigns Post

QUEBEC (CP)—Joseph - Damase Begin, the man who headed the Union Nationale's election organization for 20 years resigned Thursday as the party's organizer chief.

His resignation was received and accepted "with regret" by a caucus of Union Nationale party members.

Mr. Begin, 65, said in his terse political activity over the last 20 years had slightly impaired his health. He now intended to devote more time to his family and his law practice.

Mr. Begin has been a member of the legislative assembly for 22 years for the constituency of Manchester, south of here, and was coordination minister under the administration of the late Maurice Duplessis. He says he has no intention of pulling out of politics immediately.

Head of Union Negotiators Master Strategist at Table

OTTAWA (CP)—A mild-mannered but tough-talking man sat at the Commons gallery Thursday waiting for Parliament to order a railway strike set for Saturday.

He is Frank H. Hall, 57, kingpin of the 15-union team that plans to call some 111,000 railway men off their jobs this weekend unless Parliament orders them not to strike.

As chairman of the joint negotiating committee of the non-operating rail unions, he has the power to halt the transcontinental services of the CPR and CNR, if called on to do so, to tie up the major railways for some days to get the five-day week.

He is a master strategist in the tricky business of bargaining the contract concessions worth millions of dollars his unions want to talk tough to railway presidents and private companies that he is not to, yet has held their respect at the same time.

HAS DIPLOMACIES

Mr. Hall is a family man, a nature lover, a lavish reader of detective stories, a fan of westerns, who came to Canada as a young Britisher from Lancashire in 1930.

Born in Norfolk, England, the husband of Mrs. Hall and father of two children was in Canada for four years before he left the railway to take checker with the CPR for 21 years, doing 10 hours a day, six days a week.

He became secretary of a railway union local in 1944 and local and chairman of the grievance committee in 1946. He was union work full time when the local lodges into a system group.

By 1925, he was vice - grand president of the International Brotherhood of Rail way Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees, a job he still holds.

He went to only grade seven in school but went to night school to learn more about philosophy. He believes in a five-day week adult education.

HEADS CLC COMMITTEE

A vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress, he also heads the CLC's national committee on human rights. He is a constituency member of the International Transport Workers' Federation.

Mr. Hall lives in Montreal in a small bungalow in a middle-class district. His wife's maiden name roses. He is the father of two children, a son who is going to a professor doing medical research at a Texas university, the other an chemistry engineer with an American oil firm.

He dislikes the idea of labor getting into politics, claiming unions should confine in the "minfortunes."

"I'm a free enterprise man," he says of himself. "I see many shortcomings but it still offers a system in the main of security for everyone, for both industry and workers."

Chief Upheld In Ordering Rescue Halted

WINDSOR (CP)—Senior police and fire department officials Thursday agreed that Fire Chief Olive Beneker was correct when he ordered rescue operations to halt the day after a natural gas explosion hit the Metropolitan Department Store.

They were testifying at the second day of hearings into the death of Mrs. Florence Fedora, 28-year-old salesgirl who was killed by 19 persons killed in the Oct. 25 blast. More than 80 persons were injured.

Henry Bird, director of area civil defence, earlier told the inquiry Chief Beneker "was misturbed" when not consulted about the decision to shut down rescue operations in the shattered building. He said it was known that two bodies, and possibly more, were still inside.

Mr. Bird said rescue work should have continued and that the civil defence personnel were trained to work inside wrecked buildings.

Chief Beneker said a dangerous crack in an overhanging floor combined to make any further operations should be halted.

"I felt it was my duty to halt the jury. "I figured I was in charge."

DECISION UNANIMOUS

"I saw Mr. Bird earlier the day," the chief continued. "But I wasn't able to talk to him for long. I felt that with their was any possible loss of life, because of the delay. No, I would not have changed my decision."

The split fit that hanging floor had widened one to three inches. "It was unsafe to send for rescue workers to continue under these hazardous conditions."

Fire Chief Beneker and others are expected to be heard today.

Decision May Be Reversed By Government

OTTAWA (CP) — The government appears to be setting the stage for a possible reversal of its decision to raise the import duties on Canada's national pension subsidies, back - bench Western Conservative MPs said Thursday.

They drew this conclusion on a remark by Finance Minister Fleming in the Commons Thursday. The question was asked Wednesday by Ernest Broome (PC—Vancouver East).

The question was whether the government would reconsider the new policy—it was announced Thursday—by which the valuation for duty purposes of imported automobiles is raised.

Mr. Fleming, Minister of Revenue Minister Nowlan, who deputized for him, had worked out the valuation formula. Mr. Fleming gave the reply in the absence through illness of Mr. Nowlan due to death in the family.

Parliamentary secretary said they believe the government was not the new formula would raise the price of imported cars higher than they anticipated.

Meanwhile, Mr. Fleming's assurance that the government is not considering reversing or delaying taken of the Canadian Pacific back-benchers' interpretation was that the government was opening the door for annulment or drastic modification of its new policy.

Mr. Fleming said "this whole question is under close examination."

Meanwhile, revenue department officials said there have been no instructions from the government to countermand the new valuation on imported European cars.

Chas. Van Doren Up for Trial For Perjury

NEW YORK (AP)—Charles Van Doren, the former Columbia University instructor, who won a fortune on a rigged television quiz program, pleaded guilty Thursday to perjury charges growing out of his denial to a grand jury that he had given questions and answers in advance.

Van Doren was among seven former TV quiz show contestants entering pleas before specially appointed Judge John M. Murtagh. All pleaded not guilty when they first appeared before lawyers that they were entering the pleas under protest.

Murtagh on Jan. 18 set the trial date for Van Doren and two others — and set Feb. 8 as the trial date for the other four entering pleas Thursday.

The cases of nine others, who have entered motions to test the legality of grand jury indictments returned against them, were adjourned until Jan. 13.

Govt. Gambling on Freight Rate Boost to Pay Wage Hike

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is gambling that the railroads will get a freight rate increase in time to pay a wage increase to their employees next spring.

This is the essence of the administration's Commons - approved legislation to avert a rail strike at least until May 15.

But the political ramifications of the issue, as shown in the Commons debate on the bill to sidestep a rail tieup, are almost as fascinating as the gamble itself.

To begin with, none of the parties involved in the debate covered themselves in even a shadowy light of glory.

But the onus, naturally, was on the government to avert one. It is the government that pays. But this method was bound to anger the unions because it froze wages.

And left the Liberals and CCF in the position of having to attack the legislation and thus bid for support which could be Progressive Conservatives, for the time being at least, have had to let go by default.

The Liberals' proposed method of settling the issue is to compel the railways to pay the wage increase immediately and let conciliation board's majority rule itself.

The CCF-New Party proposal is to have the government pay a subsidy to the railways now contesting them to grant the raise.

In either case, the 111,000 non-operating employees of the railways would be able to get their wage increase. This could only have improved the position of the opposition parties in labor's eyes.

The government, meanwhile, made no exaggerated claims for its legislation. Prime Minister Diefenbaker frankly described it as a "postponement" of the strike threat.

What the government wanted to avoid was compulsory and binding arbitration on the railways and unions.

New Party Will Hold Seminar Over Weekend

MONTREAL (CP) — Members of the New Party in Eastern Canada will hear all aspects of politics discussed this weekend by experts at a two-day conference here.

Politicians, university professors and trade union executives, mostly from Southern Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic provinces, will offer their thoughts on what the policy and structure of the New Party should be.

Western viewpoints will be aired at a second seminar next month in Calgary.

The seminars are major functions in a series of studies that began in August, 1959, when the CCF and the Canadian Labor Congress publicly stated their intention of forming a new political party in Canada.

When the left-wing party's constitution is finally drawn up next July in Ottawa, it likely will contain many of the thoughts of the "grass roots" New Party seminars.

Dr. F. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan, where the CCF was born 25 years ago, will discuss the role of the New Party in the 1960s.

Other CCF speakers include the national leader, Hazen Argue from Saskatchewan, and Davie Lewis.

The CLC will send President Claude Jodoin and Vice - president Stanley Knowles. Other union speakers include George Burt, Canadian director of the United Steelworkers.

Speakers also include Walter Pitman, unsuccessful election in Peterborough put the New Party in Parliament last month.

Member of New Party Makes Maiden Speech

OTTAWA (CP)—Walter Pitman, a high school history teacher made his maiden speech in the Commons Thursday and used some Canadian history to underline his arguments.

Mr. Pitman was elected the first representative of the New Party in the Commons Oct. 31 when he won a surprise victory in Peterborough, former Progressive Conservative stronghold.

He won a nod of approval from all sides for one observation he was soon: He was brief. In a forum where the long-winded among brevity is appreciated by MPs above almost everything else.

Mr. Pitman had two main theses — he could have had 40 — but he stuck to one and to the subject under discussion: The government should postpone any strike action by railway workers to May 15. Normally, a member would be allowed considerable latitude during the throne speech debate, which was out doors for anybody who can talk about anything under the sun, which usually boils down to the state of the nation.

Mr. Pitman, who contributed a few words in excellent French as well, said the bill before Parliament established the principle that all Canadians should bear the economic consequences of a transcontinental railway sys tem.

"The maintenance of a national transcontinental system is Canada's problem," he said.

Mr. Pitman said the government has failed to recognize the fact that the price of union must be paid by the public, not just by the men who happen to be employed by the railways.

The railway workers would pay the price of union at least twice, he said, first as taxpayers and again as consumers when a wage increase under the legislation.

Canadian labor had been deprived of the right to strike when it felt it must.

Mr. Pitman concluded: "Canadian democracy has suffered a serious loss."

Board of Governors Listens To Argument by Broadcasters With Opinions Vastly Varied

OTTAWA (CP)—The soul and image of Canadian radio broadcasting was scanned here Thursday night by those in the business and those watching it.

There was no agreement on the findings. The Board of Broadcast Governors listened intently to arguments, and may use them in drafting revised regulations on radio station contents, advertising and Canadian content. It reserved judgment.

Details of the BBG international were the publicly - owned CBC, the Canadian Association of Broadcasters which represents most but not all the private stations, individual broadcasters and various organizations pondering the future of radio in relation to television.

The session will until 10:30 p.m. to hear the arguments. Later it will propose specific amendments to already - announced regulations to be—in many cases—unchanged radio programming in light of the statutory requirements of such announcements. These amendments will be subject to another hearing.

VIEWS VARY

Views on Canadian radio varied widely.

The CBC contended that most independent radio stations were meeting the Canadian requirement for "varied and comprehensive" program fare. Stations had to be flexible enough to meeting the needs of its particular area, the CBC suggested, and would lead to stereotyped radio. In contrast, the Canadian Council of Authors and Artists urged stringent controls of private radio. Dorothy Duncan, president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada.

Some of the sharpest criticism of certain radio practices came from J. Alphonse Ouimet, CBC president. He said the present criterion used to denote radio sound waves, be said and which stations have turned into "Meridian jobs boxes."

IDEA "TRAVESTIED"

"Unfortunately some radio station have allowed the original hit parade to become an interminable procession of top 40s, top 50s and top 60s," he said. The original Hit Parade idea has been travestied, becoming the start of a vicious circle which is appealing to one's mentality has been the boost of the lowest common denominator.

Mr. Ouimet also entered the realm of Canadian content in radio. It is a matter now engaging the BBG attention, and the question would be hard to measure and to test.

But the CBC head revealed that the chairman of the Board of Governors—the BBG's predecessor in the regulatory field—devised a method of testing situation several years ago, although it was not considered for this because of "certain difficulties."

Mr. Ouimet made two suggestions: Require each station to make an annual report on developments concerning Canadian content when it files its application for renewed licence, or require them to devote a part of their gross income to programs and services.

Donald Insley, manager of radio station CKEY Toronto, opposed the idea that there be time restrictions on promotional radio give - away contests. He declared, in contrast, that it could and said they harm no one.

"You were licensed as a broadcaster," he was told by board chairman Dr. Andrew Stewart. "You were not licensed to be a time from broadcasting periods in the interest of Canada."

Dr. Stewart said the board would examine with a view to argument that promotion is normal in other businesses.

"But this is not a normal business," said the board chairman. "This is broadcasting."

HITS ADVERTISING

Much of the C.A.B.'s attention was wrecked by the BBG statement that the board's inquiries were led to "the conclusion that in radio broadcasting today the greatest danger to the program service lies in the excessive use of advertising announcements." The board proposed to introduce amendments affecting the number of such announcements. It did not elaborate.

The CAB contended that while under BBG jurisdiction no radio station in Canada could be licensed to broadcast commercial, there was little to prevent a non-resident broadcasting advertising media from being 100-per-cent commercial.

The C.A.B. British said the association "counted the advertising revenues of the Canadian daily newspapers in Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver for the 12-Nov. 8 periods and found that about 60 per cent of all space was advertising copy."

A survey made at the same time of the commercial content of 62 radio stations and 13 TV stations in Canada for the week in September, 1960, showed an average commercial content for radio of 7.2 per cent and for television 8.84 per cent.

Belgian Assets Nationalized By Nasser

CAIRO (Reuters) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic Thursday night nationalized all Belgian assets in Egypt, the presidential office announced.

At the same time, U.A.R. Information Minister Abdel Fadel Hatem said his government has established "contacts" with other countries to take "decisive measures against the conspiracies of the imperialists" in the Belgian Congo.

The—nationalization move followed strained diplomatic relations between the U.A.R. and The Congo, a former Belgian colony which were blamed more on a "Belgian-inspired conspiracy."

In Brussels, a commercial source Thursday night estimated the value of Belgian assets in Egypt at about 150,000,000 Belgian francs—about $3,000,000).

Need Much More in Taxes To Meet Commission Goals

A presidential commission has proposed a series of far-reaching goals for the United States, both at home and abroad, and has said that it cost to attain them? Sixteen billion dollars more a year, question in this last of a series of three articles.

By ST. JOHN GREEN

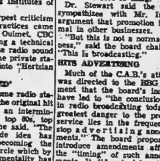
WASHINGTON (AP) — Though some have criticized it as vague, the report of the president's commission on national goals was generally praised because the cost of government will rise by billions and billions of dollars in the 1960s.

Taxes probably cannot be lowered and "may actually have to be increased," the bipartisan commission, headed by President Eisenhower this week.

Can a free economy stand still higher taxes? The commission says it can, if national output grows at the annual rate of 4 per cent. The White House advisers did not offer any specific advice as to how much will have to be added to the present $80,000,000,000 budgets in the coming decade to meet the goals they recommended.

But they said enough to support the total will be fairly frightening. For instance, they say:

1. Military costs must rise, by unpreventable increases, to provide a "secure deterrent" against Soviet aggression and Communist China's "blatant hostility."



2. Foreign aid must go up U.S. investments, public and private, in the underdeveloped countries must rise from the present $2,500,000,000 a year to as much as $5,500,000,000 within five years.

3. The combat city defense "further urban renewal programs costing as much as $4,000,000,000 a year are needed."

4. Overall outlays for education must be doubled in 10 years. The state, local and federal governments will have to spend $33,000,000,000.

Present cost increases are even less clearly defined. But that the commission has set up to more billions is clear from a partial listing presented to Eisenhower.

Dead Bear Ends Up on Steps Of Post Office

CAYUGA, Ont. (CP) — The story of a bear, real or stuffed, which ended up on the post office steps in the centre of Dunnville, rocked a community with laughter here Thursday.

Mrs. Ruth Hall, wife of Mayor N. R. H. Young called a brief press to let the laughter, including his own, subside.

Dunnville councillors Angus Heddon, 27, Melvyn Pitman, 34, and Thomas Ayres, 22, were charged with having a dead bear owned by Murray Barnes, 23, Dunnville, a part-time summer resort on Lake Erie.

The bear was not guilty to theft but admitted shooting the bear as a prank, intending to stuff it.

The men said they were returning from a party in Dunnville lavern about two hours after the bear was shot and two beans hanging in a yard. They took the smaller one and, using a rope from the office steps, arms crossed. Several Dunnville residents arrived at the sight of it, the court was told.

The three men said they returned to pick up the bear but it had disappeared. It was found a few days later, minus the pelt.

Magistrate Young reduced the charge to trespassing. The trio pleaded guilty and drew $25 fines.

Mr. Barrick is to get paid for his missing bearskin. No price set by the court.

Despite Candidate's Death Ottawa to Vote on Monday

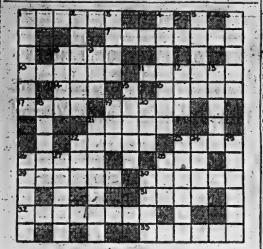
OTTAWA (CP)—Officials here conceded Thursday that they were when informed that municipal officials would proceed on Dec. 5 as first scheduled.

Authorization to bypass provisions of the Municipal Act came only a few hours before polls were due to open at noon today.

The act normally would have required postponement of the election and a new nomination following the death of one of the candidates.

David L. Burgess, a former Dominion correspondent of the Canadian Legion, who was one of nine candidates running for election in four seats in the city, suddenly died here Wednesday.

Under existing provisions, the city faced the prospect of holding elections for mayor, city council, board of control, public school boards on Dec. 5 and having the board of control choose on the later date or to postpone all elections to a later date.



OBJECT TO IT

Thursday night's emergency council meeting authorized the separate election, that would have followed new nominations by six days, on the grounds it would give the city an additional $35,000 to $40,000.

Board of control candidates were also grumbling that any-person elected to the board would have to resign his council Dec. 5 would still have to file nomination papers for board of control.

The other alternative—all elections delayed — met stiff opposition from aldermen who said they could not afford to extend their campaigns.

It was also feared as polling stations could be procured by the city in time for Christmas approaching.

Needs Five More Years

Howe's Goal 20 Seasons

DETROIT (AP)—Gordie Howe, hockey's quiet man, said he had nothing to celebrate about setting a National Hockey League scoring record Thursday night.

His Detroit Red Wings lost 3-2 to Boston Bruins and dropped out of first place, although Howe set up both Detroit goals and shattered the scoring record set by Maurice Richard, former Montreal Canadiens' rightwinger.

Howe, 33 and playing his 15th NHL season, has scored 1,020 points in regular - season and Stanley Cup games. Richard picked up 1,001 points in 18 campaigns.

"I don't have any special feelings about the record," Howe said in an interview." It's nice.

I guess. My big goal is to play 20 seasons in the NHL. For that I'll need five more years after this one."

SEES MUCH ACTION

Howe has scored only five goals this season but has assisted on 21 others. He sees more action than probably any other player in the league. The Wings use him to kill penalties and on power plays. Howe also takes his regular turn on the ice—and often an extra turn or two.

Howe, a six-foot rightwinger, is eight or 10 pounds under his normal 200-pound playing weight. A bout with the flu and a throat infection forced him on a liquid diet three days ago.

Fans have long argued about the relative merits of Howe and Richard. Many favor Howe as the game's greatest player and player in the history of the hockey. He does all things and does all of them better than anyone else. And the nicest thing of all is that he's the finest gentleman I've ever known."

Every minute of every day someone, somewhere, buys a Falcon

New look in market baskets

Shopping day is now fun day for many Canadian families with a new Falcon wagon to carry the load. Supermarket, pharmacy, department store, garden centre—you can fit them all into a single trip, fit all the cargo into the Falcon's flat, 7½-foot-long loadspace. For quick errands, you don't even have to lower the tailgate. Just wind down the rear window, set the bundles inside, and that's all there is to it.

Work done, the Falcon wagon becomes a pleasure car. Six people can travel in solid comfort with the same smooth ride and easy handling that Falcon sedans are famous for. Plenty of lively power in the standard Falcon Six or the brand-new, optional 101-horsepower Special Six. Plenty of economy, too—you get up to 35 mpg . . . up to 4000 miles between oil changes . . . not to mention that low initial price. Have a look at a Falcon wagon at your Ford-Monarch-Falcon dealer's soon. There's no better buy in market baskets anywhere!

OSD Boys Win Tourney

The host Ontario School for the Deaf team captured the Bay of Quinte COSSA Boys' volleyball championship Wednesday afternoon in competition with five other district teams.

The victory marked the seventh time that OSD has won the Bay of Quinte championship. In second place was Moira Secondary, under coach Jack Perry. This was the school's initial year in competition.

Four "A" class teams and two "B" class clubs took part in Wednesday's round-robin tournament here. Teams from Moira Secondary School, Picton, Quinte Secondary and Napanee were the "A" teams while the champion OSD team and Madoc were the "B" entries.

The OSD team won all five of its games, defeating Madoc 21-8, Picton 21-18, Quinte 21-7, Moira 21-11 and Napanee 21-12.

The OFSSA tourney will be divided into "A" and "B" groups. The "A" entries from the Bay of Quinte district will be Moira, Quinte and Trenton.

In the "B" division from this district will be the OSD team which has won the championship for the past two years, and Madoc.

Minor Hockey

The Eskimos handed the Bombers a 10-3 whipping in a BMHA Juvenile game played at Memorial Arena Wednesday night. The teams play again tonight from six to seven o'clock.

Jerry Jones spearheaded the Eskimo attack with a three-goal performance, while Barton Durrant contributed two goals and one assist. Bobby Boyle also scored two goals and the others went to Les Norridge, Jim Jarrett and Ellis. Hugh Pointer earned two assists, Rod Turner and Ted Rowland one apiece.

Paul Brown, Dennis Sinclair and G. Scott were the Bomber marksmen. Bob Duggan claimed two assists, Don Vance and Sinclair one each.

Howe Breaks Rocket Record

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There was good and bad news Thursday night for the two top National Hockey League clubs— Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings.

The Canadiens took over first place in the league standings by overpowering Toronto Maple Leafs 6-3 in a fight-filled game at the Montreal Forum.

The Red Wings were upset in the Detroit Olympia 3-2 by Boston Bruins, enabling Montreal to move one point ahead of them in the standings. But the man who broke Richard's record was Gordie Howe, the greatest Red Wing of them all.

Howe went into Thursday night's action tied with Richard's scoring mark — 1,001 points in regular and playoff games. He broke the mark at 6:35 of the final period, when he assisted on Murray Oliver's goal. He picked up a second point on Alex Delvecchio's last-minute goal.

LOSING STREAK

For Boston, the win was all good news. It broke a string of 13 games without a win and was the Bruins' first victory in six games. It also lifted Boston out of the NHL cellar, one point ahead of New York Rangers who were idle Thursday night.

Henri Richard, the Pocket Rocket, scored a goal and added a pair of assists to help Montreal to its 30th victory in 36

Set Sights On Expansion Programs

By JOE REICHLER

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Major league baseball officials, after a no-decision session in Louisville, Ky., arrived here today hoping to establish harmony out of chaos caused by their constantly-changing expansion plan.

Mindful of the public's growing suspicion and distrust, the officials are determined to agree on sound, expansion programs for both major leagues.

Presidents Joe Cronin of the American and Warren Giles of the National League are prepared to introduce at three-day sessions starting Monday several amendments aimed at clearing the way for American League expansion to 10 teams next year and the National League to 10 in 1962.

The amendments are aimed at modifying a rule which stands in the way of the American League moving into Los Angeles and the National League returning to New York.

DOESN'T LIKE IT

One thing is certain. The National League looks with disfavor on the American proposal for two nine - team leagues in 1961 playing an interlocking schedule. The National is expected to reject this plan Monday.

If the American decides to operate 10 clubs next year, the last city will be Los Angeles, not Houston or Toronto. A week-end rumor that the American League was secretly planning to move into Houston, Tex., where the National League has placed a franchise for 1962, was scotched Thursday by Frank Lane, general manager of Cleveland Indians.

He said he talked with virtually every American League club owner and not one expressed an interest in going to Houston.

Also to be tackled is the indemnity battle between the American Association and the old Washington club over the Senators' invasion of the Minneapolis-St. Paul territories.

DEMANDS DAMAGES

The American Association demanded $1,000,000 damages Thursday and rejected Cal Griffith's latest offer of $200,000. The Senators owner later offered $30,000 and $90,000 settlements.

The minor leagues concluded their four - day convention in Louisville, passing 19 amendments and rejecting 15. Most were of a technical nature.

The minor leagues set up the machinery for working with the new major league baseball teams, whoever they may be. With franchises, working agreements and player-personnel still awaiting the outcome of the majors' squabble over expansion, the minors can do little but sit and wait.

Coach Lowe Takes Issue With CAHA

VERNON, B.C. (CP)—Playing coach Ollie Lowe of Vernon Canadians Thursday challenged secretary - treasurer Gordon Juckes of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to back up a recent statement about touring Canadian hockey teams with financial facts.

Lowe earlier this week criticized the CAHA for sponsoring European trips when teams are playing at home. He suggested the national hockey body subsidize senior amateur leagues in financial trouble.

Juckes said in reply that European authorities were contracted to provide expenses for touring Canadian teams.

"If this is the case," the Okanagan Senior Hockey League coach asked, "why were Kelowna Packers left to raise $20,000 by public subscription before they could tour Russia and Sweden in 1958?"

"The crowds over there were fantastic, but Kelowna citizens were never reimbursed their $20,000," he said.

In challenging Juckes to produce facts, Lowe said: "If I'm wrong, I'll make a public apology. But if it's the other way around, I'll expect the same from him."

Shag Will Finish Term

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Two new members of the minor leagues' executive committee were named Thursday and a third member, Frank Shaughnessy of Montreal, agreed to finish out his term.

Sam Smith, president of the South Atlantic League, took the place of Tommy Richardson, Shaughnessy's successor as president of the International League. Smith will represent the class AA and A leagues.

J. C. Jessup, president of the Carolina League, was named to succeed Claude Engberg, president of the Pioneer League, as the committee members for class B, C and D leagues.

Fights Fullmer Saturday

Sugar Ray 3-1 Underdog

LOS ANGELES (CP) — Sugar Ray Robinson, an ancient warrior of the ring at 39, makes an unprecedented bid Saturday night to win the world middleweight boxing crown for the sixth time. The odds are against him.

The New Man from New York throws all his ring experience against the crowning Gene Fullmer, 29-year-old Mormon church elder from West Jordan, Utah. Fullmer is recognized as king the 160-pounds by the National Boxing Association.

Paul Pender of Boston is looked on as champion in the non-NBA stages, New York and Massachusetts.

The oddsmakers have installed Fullmer a 3-to1 favorite for the 15-round clash, set for 10 p.m. EST at the Los Angeles Sports Arena.

Postponed from last Oct. 8 when Fullmer pulled a leg muscle, the attraction seems to have caught on again. The promoters expect 25,000 fans to pay $100,000 or more to see the affair.

Fullmer whipped Robinson for the title in 15 rounds in New York on Jan. 2, 1957. Robinson won it back in a fifth-round knockout May 1, 1957, in Chicago.

The NBA stripped Robinson of the title for failure to defend it last year. Fullmer ascended to the vacant throne with a 14-round knockout over Carmen Basilio.

TURNS PRO

May Separate Tall Guys, Short Guys

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Basketball competition at the 1964 Olympic games may be conducted in two divisions—one for the short men and one for the tall, an official of the United States Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) said Thursday night.

"The Asian nations are pushing for a division at six feet," said Lou Wilkie, vice - chairman of the AAU basketball committee. "They want to play in a six-feet-and-under class and let the nations with taller teams play in an unlimited division.

"A Japanese player said it was like being in a forest, trying to play against the U.S. team."

Wilkie, here for the AAU national convention is on a committee set up by the International Basketball Federation to study the height problem in Olympic competition. He said the committee — representing the United States, Brazil, The Philippines, Japan, Italy and Russia — may recommend a change for the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo.

Boyer Grabs Golf Lead

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. AP)—George Bayer blasted his way around the Country Club course in a seven-under-par 65 Thursday to take a three-stroke lead in the first round of the West Palm Beach open golf tournament.

Tied at 68 were Sam Snead, Joe Taylor, and Jim Ferree. One stroke behind that trio were Ted Kroll, Bob Shave Jr., Art Wall Jr., Tommy Aaron, and Henry Castillo.

Al Balding of Toronto and two others were tied at 70. Arnold Palmer, was tied with 12 others in the 71 bracket, five stroke off the pace.

Bellino Heads All-American Grid Squad

NEW YORK (CP) — A mammoth line and a backfield built around Navy's Joe Bellino highlights the 1960 All-America college football team announced today by The Associated Press.

The other halfback is Bernie Atkins of New Mexico State. Quarterback is Jake Gibbs, Mississippi, and fullback Bob Ferguson, Ohio State.

The line is composed of Dan Larose, Missouri, 221 pounds, and Mike Ditka, Pitt, 226 ends; Ken Rice, Auburn, 250 and Bob Lilly Texas Christian, 246, tackles; Tom Bregen, Minnesota, 224, and Jim Halsey, Yale, 215, guards, and Ron McKasson, Washington, 205, centre.

The team was selected on the graded recommendations of eight regional boards of experts. Sports writers who also voted on the top 10 throughout the season. All games through Nov. 19 were taken into account.

Bellino, 195, a standout, scored 110 points, including 18 touchdowns, and gained 834 yards rushing, 280 yards catching 17 passes, and threw five passes for 112 yards.

Atkins carried the ball 66 times for 611 yards. He caught 24 passes for 468 yards.

Ferguson, 217, the only junior on the team, collected 13 touchdowns and 833 yards rushing, completed 68 of 109 passes for 970 yards and had 12 touchdowns.

All the backs on the mighty All - America forward wall are seniors and La Rose, Ditka caught 11 passes for 229 yards and two touchdowns. La Rose caught 10 passes for 151 yards and two touchdowns, and recovered six fumbles.

Mosca Likes Prof. Clair

MONTREAL (CP) — Angelo Mosca, giant ex-Hamilton Tiger Rough Riders, is happy as a member of the Big Four team and happy that Frank Clair is the coach.

Mosca stopped off in Montreal Wednesday night en route to his home in Waltham, Mass., and had some nice things to say about the man whocoached the Riders to the Grey Cup victory.

"After suffering with Hamilton Cats a few seasons, playing in Ottawa was a real pleasure. I was mighty glad to get away from Hamilton. Frank Clair is the greatest coach I ever played for.

League Moves To Head off Soccer Strike

LONDON (AP) — Britain's 92 big-time soccer clubs were asked Thursday to consider giving longer contracts and bigger bonuses in a move to head off the threatened players' strike.

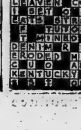
Alan Hardaker, secretary of the English Football League, made the proposals in a report to the league's management committee.

But he proposed no increase in the $56 a week maximum wage —one of the main issues on which the players are threatening to strike in January.

A strike would bring soccer to a standstill in England and would affect millions of Britons who bet in the soccer pools each week.

Hardaker's most revolutionary proposal is that clubs be allowed to sign players for as long as they wish.

At present, contracts last for one season only. At the end of the season the club has an option on a player and he can only sign with anyone else until his club gives the word. This usually means that he must wait until his club gets the transfer fee it wants.



The players complain that this system shackles them in a way unknown in any other industry.

Hardaker proposed that players be paid a bonus of $400 per season each time they re - sign with a club. After five years' service, the bonus would be increased to $600 be said.

COACH SIGNED

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies Thursday signed Al Vincent as a coach. He replaces Andy Cohen, released at the end of the 1960 season. Vincent managed the Milwaukee and Marlins in the International League last year.

Radio Book Makes Listener Long for the Good Old Days

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Margaret Mc Bride, who is her childhood, credited with inventing the broadcast interview and who certainly trained electronic interviewing into a fine art, has written an anecdote - stuffed book about the great years of radio. It is called Out of the Air, and it makes this listener long for the good old days.

Through more than 30 years, Mary Margaret introduced the most interesting people in the world to her huge daytime audience — presidents and kings, celebrities and non - entities, preachers and adventurers, but story-tellers, and conversationalists all.

Men and women, urged on by her skilful questions and so aided by her easy manner that they forgot the unobtrusive microphone, poured fourth fascinating tales, even confessions:

Madame Chiang remembered the first time she met Gandhi; Eleanor Wilson McAdoo recalled the deathbed statement of her father, Woodrow Wilson, that it was probably better that the United States had not joined the League of Nations; Jimmy Durante wept softly at memories of his childhood.

Margaret is with us, healthy according to all reports, but no longer the glamour girl of broadcasting. There are many talk-sessions on television, but few of the interviewers have Mary Margaret's subtle skills, more's it makes this listener long for the found a way to make the story-tellers forget the cameras.

It's a fine, nostalgic one-woman history Mary Margaret has turned out, crammed with intimate glimpses and recollections of hundreds of well-known people.

Family Classics' two-part version of The Three Musketeers' is a sharp disappointment—it seemed almost a burlesque of the beloved Dumas story . . . NBC plans to handle The Coming of Christ in a half hour special Dec. 21. . . . A popular composition this year by telling the story in Eleanor Wilson McAdoo's recalled color photographs of art masterpieces.

CARROLL RIGHTER

Saturday, December 3

General tendencies: Not a good Saturday for any serious secret conniving or planning, but you can take ideas that will take a while to work out and solve to those who have it in their power to make them workable. Adopting a different attitude is almost essential for real advancement to be yours in days to come. Think deeply. Be kind.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — A fine day for long talks with others, but see that you do not permit any forgotten grievances to crop up. Concentrate on novel ideas that will be helpful to all concerned. See that all bills are paid and get credit higher.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — You keep busily occupied with several tasks today; you can accomplish a dynamic associate who wants to extract information from you. Change your attitude in P. M. and take more consideration for others. Go out and play. Have fun.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Spend this Saturday wisely handling any personal duties you may have. Steer clear of outside activities or having discussions with fellow - workers or trouble could arise. Evening is ideal for going out and having nice time first.

Note: Children (June 22 to July 21) — Rather than go out today and spend a good deal of money for entertainment, it would be wise to spend your time getting all small tasks facing you out of the way quickly. Try to incorporate economy measures in all of your affairs.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) — Ideal day to get together with good friends and discuss mutual ambitions and desires. This will lead to making some excellent plans for the future and you will thereby be able to steer clear of family tie who is on the warpath.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21) — Handle all obligations wisely today though you are tempted to travel in order to become better informed or to sit down and read. Do whatever is necessary to get a much higher credit rating. Set up a good budget in P.M.

Libra (Sept. 21 to Oct. 23) — Don't waste time thinking on your financial condition — get busy and start the right people so that you can have a greater abundance, and to spare, in the future.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) — Be sure you get in touch with authorities in your field of endeavor who can give you the finest ideas how to proceed at this time, or personal advisers you trust in intimate affairs. Also use own judgment and follow through.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — This is the right day to make those important contacts that are difficult during the busy work week. Assure them that you will co-operate more fully in the future and will not take so much responsibility upon yourself.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — The ideal day to pay off all of those little bills and carry through with any promises made. Clear the slate, lose off to interesting and fun-loving friends. Have a hilariously good time, but home at a reasonable time.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Be sure you visit barber or beauty shop today to enhance your charm. The remainder of the day will then be fine for joining with compatibles and having a rollicking good time. P. M. be very affectionate with kin.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Important you clear up that mountain of small tasks which await your attention this free day at home. Spend evening at home, too, entertaining those you like or who can be helpful to you in career or culturally. Smile.

If your child is born today, he, or she, will be quite high-strung, highly intelligent and the type of individual who gets hurt easily, and hyper - sensitivity will also cause your youngster to flit from pillar to post, if you don't early teach to persevere and give a fine religious background as well as a good academic education. The writer, lecturer is strongly in this chart, as well as the traveller.

SEIZE URANIUM PRICE WAR

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—A director of the United States Atomic Energy Commission Wednesday predicted a price war in the uranium market. Jesse Johnson of the commission's raw material division said the next five to 10 years will be a competitive period with all uranium producers willing to sell below cost to keep their mills in operation. He was attending a symposium on uranium here.

CHILD FOR ADOPTION

ALISON is a neat attractive baby girl, 6 months old, available for adoption at Catholic Children's Aid Society. Her trainees and coloring are particularly lovely. Alison has been stood in the way of Alison from the time of her birth. She is now like a healthy, friendly and responsive baby. Alison's future happiness depends on having parents with the capacity to love her. If you are interested, provide her with a great deal of love and security in a permanent place in their family, Our first interview is with you. Write to the Catholic Children's Aid Society, 1 Bloor West, Toronto. Parents of Italian, Spanish or Portuguese origin also be considered.

Inquiries from Roman Catholic couples with a view to adopting should be made to — state - controlled marketing through which the democratically-organized and operated marketing boards can, if the government so decides, be stripped of their powers, up to and including being put under trusteeship and replaced by a so-called independent board of the government's own choosing."

PHRASES EFFORTS

He called the hog producers' efforts to establish co-operative packing plants "an operation of massive scale-help . . . to wrest control of their own destiny from the big packers who have exploited them for years."

He echoed remarks of Liberal Leader Lester Pearson Tuesday, saying Premier Frost spoiled chances to get larger shares of provincial, federal and corporation taxes "by gross exaggeration."

He said Mr. Frost was trying to foment a cold war against the other nine provinces in his debates at federal-provincial fiscal conferences.

The CCF leader also criticized York County Court Judge Ian Macdonell and Mr. Justice George MacGillivray for drafting royal commission reports that were "favorable" to the government.

PROBES COMMISSIONS

Judge Macdonell was a royal commissioner investigating the Niagara Parks Commission and Mr. Justice MacGillivray investigated the Hydro-Electric Power Commission this year. Both judges censured the government and the two bodies of any wrongdoing.

"Where a judge steps down from the bench to do a job in the political arena he is no longer a judge," the CCF leader said.

Mr. MacDonald said the premier made his judges well and "he got what he wanted."

"One is forced to the conclusion that royal public inquiries are established to clean up a situation which has already been published to cover it up—in so far as evidence will permit," he said.

He said re-election of Gordon Lawrence (PC — Russell) as mayor of Ottawa is further proving elections would encourage violations of municipal law. The Ottawa suburb was investigated recently after taxpayers complained of high taxes.

A provincial municipal audit revealed a surplus of several hundred from the town treasury and in fractions of municipal law.

TYPHOON KILLS TWO

TOKYO (AP) — Typhoon Ophelia was reported today to have killed at least two children in Shizuoka Thursday when it swept ashore over the Pacific coast area of Honshu. Two persons were reported safe. The report was transmitted on emergency equipment set up at Ushiki to the Pacific Weather Station at Guam.

Ophelia was reported packing gusts of U.S. military newspaper. About 450 planes are on the island. The typhoon now is heading for the Philippines.

MEET ST. CHARLES-BALLAD

In St. Damasus courtyard he was met by two of the Vatican's chamberlains who conducted him to the Pontiff.

With the 79-year-old Pope, Vatican sources said, was Msgr. Antonio Sammore from the office of the Vatican's secretary of state, who speaks perfect English.

Sunday School Lesson

Every Man Can Find God

By ROY L. SMITH

A considerable tide of books has been issuing from the press during recent years, each one saying in one form or another: "You can find God."

The impression is left by such books that God is in a benevolent effort to conceal Himself from man, that He is trying to elude His human pursuers, that He is reluctant to be overtaken by a man.

Jesus of Nazareth established Himself as one of the unique religious leaders of all time. If He described God's efforts to find man, and make His will plain.

PHILOSOPHY OF HISTORY

The great religious thinkers and teachers among the Hebrews differed from their contemporaries among other races and of other religions in at least one conspicuous item of faith.

Whereas no religious thinker of antiquity ever attempted to defend the proposition that there is a design running through history which has been ordained of God, every great Hebrew prophet insisted on that proposition.

Every event in the life of the nation was interpreted in the light of the principle that God was at work, laboring to lead the world into a glorious experience and using the Hebrew people as His chosen instrument in the achievement of that end.

All too often we overlook the proposition, as we read the Old Testament, that the great promises are all given to the nation, and seldom or never to individuals. The religious philosophy of the nation called for a national triumph and not for a personal salvation.

WHAT MAKES A NATION GREAT

Edgar Guest, the late writer of popular verse, is often quoted as having said:

"It takes a heap o' living

In a house to make it home."

And it can be said with equal truth that it takes a "heap o' living" in a nation to become a part of it.

"I have come to the place where I think as German," said an American newspaperman in Berlin. He had served as a foreign correspondent for a great paper "in the states" for 30 years, and for the most of that time he had covered the news from the German capital. In those years he had learned to speak German like a native, without the slightest trace of an accent.

The eternal greatness of any nation consists of the ideals it serves, the purposes for which it governs and the character it encourages in its citizens.

The thing God looks for in a nation is convictions — the things men steadfastly believe, the ideals for which they are willing to pay even an excessive price, the hopes they instill within the souls of their children.

HEARING INNER VOICE

Basic in our concept of the Christian ideal, is the doctrine of the Holy Spirit. Unfortunately this good solid belief has been so grossly misrepresented that the very name arouses the contempt of some very splendid and completely honest people. Nevertheless, it continues to be fundamental and as much in demand as the most careful study of every honest and aspiring Christian.

Shortly before Jesus took His departure, He assured His disciples that when He was gone, He would send "the Comforter" who would become their constant companion and guide.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for December 4: "GOD'S COVENANT OF LOVE." Jeremiah 31; Luke 1:67-68, 76-79. Romans 8.

The prophet Jeremiah, having become completely disillusioned concerning any hope of reform by way of the government, promised the nation that thereafter God would write the terms of the new "covenant" (contract) on their hearts. By that he meant that God would deal personally with individuals.

These two promises have been kept and loads the consciousness of every person there is a voice which undertakes to guide him, inspire, caution and make strong. Then, as if to remove all doubt, Jesus added, "If any man is determined to do the will of God, he may be sure that he will be guided into a certain knowledge of that will."

Any man can find God, for the reason that God has already found every man and is laboring with him. The voice of the best in us is the voice of God in us.

General Murray Says Relationship Is Excellent

TORONTO (CP) — Gen. Geraint Murray, commander of NATO forces in northern Europe, said Wednesday "the relationship between soldiers, sailors and airmen" of Germany and Denmark "has been excellent."

Gen. Murray, interviewed just before he took off for Ottawa, said remarks he made in Leicester, Ont., last Monday concerning cooperation between the two countries within NATO were misinterpreted as news reports circulated in London.

A Canadian Press report had quoted the general as saying friendly exists between German and Danish forces within the NATO organization and that friction between the soldiers still lingers from the Second World War.

"The relationship between soldiers, sailors and airmen has been excellent," he said Wednesday.

"During our recent Operation Holdfast, we actually had detachments of both countries operating under one commander—with a German commander and a Danish deputy.

"There are still difficulties to overcome on the political side," he said. "There seems to be a latent suspicion still hanging on politically. The difficulty is in getting the two governments finally agreeing to a command structure. We start time and we fear that with time we can solve the problem."

He said any suspicion which still lingered between German and Dane existed within the civilian populations.

"Our ability to go forward will depend on our ability to bring public opinion with us.

"When it is going to directly concern the Danes and the Germans on a high level, the governments can only move forward when they know they have the body of public opinion behind them."

Dominican Govt. Terms Venezuela Charges False

WASHINGTON (AP) — Venezuela Wednesday formally charged the Dominican Republic with plotting to attack it. The Dominican government immediately termed the charges false.

The charge and denial were made at an emergency meeting of the Organization of American States.

The Interamerican Peace Committee met afterwards to hear a Venezuelan request for an investigating committee. It made no immediate decision, but asked for more details.

Venezuela's case was submitted to the OAS council by Nelson Himiob, who charged that the Dominican government had helped create street disorders in Caracas and now is prepared to use them to overthrow the government.

CONGO CAPTIVE — Hands manacled behind his back, deposed Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba leaves a plane at Leopoldville airport under guard of Congolese soldiers loyal to his arch foe, Col. Joseph Mobutu. Lumumba, who had fled Leopoldville and hidden out in the Congo hinterlands was captured by pursuing soldiers and flown back to the capital yesterday. He faces trial on a charge of inciting the army to revolt. (AP Wirephoto).

Manacled Lumumba Is Jeered and Slapped, Faces Charge of Inciting Army to Rebel

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — Patrice Lumumba, the Congo's firebrand former premier, today faced trial on charges of inciting the army to rebellion and other crimes as he became the centre of another international diplomatic clash.

Manacled and jeered by onlookers, Lumumba was returned by plane to Leopoldville late Friday and jailed after being captured in remote Kasai province by the soldiers of army chief Col. Joseph Mobutu.

(The Soviet delegation at the United Nations in New York demanded Friday night that Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold make an immediate report on steps being taken by the UN command to ensure the safety of Lumumba.)

(The Russians said in a statement the arrest of Lumumba, who accepted Soviet military aid outside UN channels when he was premier, was an "arbitrary and illegal act against the lawful Congolese government committed by an illegal, dictatorial regime.")

(Hammarskjold sent two messages to Congo President Joseph Kasavubu asking him to see that Lumumba gets a fair trial. One message was sent after a committee from Afro-Asian nations had expressed concern for Lumumba's safety.)

His hair dishevelled, arms bound, his shirt open, Lumumba was hustled into a truck when his plane arrived. Soldiers grabbed him by the hair and twisted his head around for the benefit of photographers. The Congolese slapped and pushed him and shouted in triumph.

UN officials meanwhile were concerned by a roundup of all 2,000 white people in Stanleyville that began Sunday, ostensibly for the purpose of checking identity cards. Many were reported slapped, kicked and terrorized.

Brig. S. J. A. Otu of Ghana, in charge of the UN force there, was still trying to get the release of 13 Belgians.

RED SCIENTISTS FAIL TO BRING BACK SPACE SHIP

Two Dogs Aboard Meet Fiery Death

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Two canine astronauts today were the martyrs of Russia's latest probe into space seeking answers to the problems of manned space flight.

The space ship burst into flames when it hit the dense layers of the earth's atmosphere but Russian scientists were attempting to retrieve it from its elliptical orbit around the earth.

Moscow radio, in its announcement Friday night of the failure to retrieve the space ship, said the fire-ion vehicle descended along an "uncalculated trajectory."

OBTAINED INFORMATION

The announcement said the order for the space ship's return "has been given after sufficient information had been obtained for manned space flight in the near future." The space ship which orbited the earth every 88.5 minutes followed its elliptical path for less than 48 hours.

Before the space ship burned out medical-biological tests were completed as well as tests of the space ship's design and equipment, Moscow radio said.

Russian scientists termed the latest satellite probe as mainly a repetition of the Aug. 19 launching of a space ship containing two dogs, mice, flies, plants and organisms.

That space ship returned to earth after orbiting for 24 hours.

HAD OTHER ANIMALS

This latest satellite, besides the two dogs, also carried other unidentified animals, insects and plants.

Moscow radio said the last stage of the missile that hoisted the space ship into orbit Thursday continued circling the earth.

Ari Sternfeld, one of Russia's foremost astrophysicists, said the ill - fated space ship was launched in an elliptical path that brought it as close as 112 miles to earth and as far away as 156 miles.

FREE MAN

MONTREAL (CP) — Francois Guy Morin, 50, Friday was freed on an attempted murder charge that has been hanging over him for more than 16 years. A jury ruled Morin was mentally unbalanced when he entered St. James Cathedral on Sept. 5, 1944, and stabbed Abbe Philippe Morin. He was released as cured recently from a mental hospital.

Gross Negligence Is Blamed For Blast in Windsor Store

WINDSOR (CP)—A coroner's jury decided Friday that gross negligence led to a natural gas explosion which destroyed the Metropolitan Department Store here Oct. 25, killing 10 persons and injuring more than 90.

The verdict came after a four-day hearing. More than 150 witnesses testified.

Ruled grossly negligent were Jessop Plumbing Limited of Windsor and Union Gas Company of Canada Limited. The negligence of the Windsor building department in not issuing a permit was termed "a minor factor" in the blast.

It blamed Union Gas for not having bled a feeder line of air immediately after installation and for not having notified the contractor that its work was not completed.

The jury cited Jessop Plumbing and its employees for opening a two-inch union covering on the inlet side of the meter, "which is contrary to the provincial regulations."

From the testimony given, we find gross negligence on the part of Jessop Plumbing and Union Gas were major contributing factors."

Russel Perkins, manager of the Union Gas Windsor office, said later: "We feel we were not negligent. We did not violate any of the codes."

Also cited by the jury as contributing factors were:

1. Lack of steel columns in a rear outer wall which collapsed, trapping many victims.

2. The boiler room where the installation was being made was not constructed in accordance with the municipal building code.

3. Construction of the building caused abnormal flow of air in the building.

4. A jacket heater in the boiler room was not hot at the time and was in poor condition.

5. The human "sniff test" to detect natural gas prior to the explosion is not a reliable method of testing."

In a major recommendation, the jury said "emergency" gas heating units in buildings where the public will be present should be done after business hours or when the building is empty.

The jury urged its disasters and emergencies fire, police and civil defence forces be co-ordinated under one command which, if left, he took Miss Aley with him.

The two suspects were arrested when a provincial police constable forced their car off the road near the village of Verona near Perth.

In the trunk of a car abandoned earlier, police found Miss Aley, unharmed, and another woman, Mrs. A. Crouch, wife of a manager of the Bank of Montreal branch in Kingston. Mrs. Crouch was taken hostage when the car used in the hold-up was stolen from a parking lot.

Pope and Dr. Fisher Reach Threshold of Great Problems

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII said today his historic meeting with the Archbishop of Canterbury "must only as far as the threshold of great problems," but left hope for their eventual solution.

The supreme pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church made this comment to cardinals and archbishops with whom he participated in preparatory services for the Christmas season.

"At the end of the services, the Pope told the prelates of his 33-minute talk Friday with the primate of the Church of England.

"I admire the sincere force of goodwill which Dr. Fisher (the archbishop) is carrying forward," the Pope said.

"Our meeting took place in an atmosphere of cordiality and understanding on both sides."

"Of course," he then said, "our talks went only as far as the threshold of great problems."

"Naturally the crusts formed during four centuries are many, but with understanding and mutual confidence (not which does) Fisher courageously undertook to take the initiative, and time there could come love and truth," he said.

The Church of England and the Church of Rome have been apart since the 16th century when Henry VIII broke away from papal authority.

The general view in church circles in Rome was that the meeting would stimulate other contacts between Catholic and Protestant churches seeking Christian unity.

Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, the 73-year-old archbishop, said he considered the pope's meeting historic, and told reporters good results are sometimes followed."

He observed, however, that he did not know what the results would be.On a screen here Thursday night he made it clear that he did not consider Christian unity necessarily one of reunion with the Church of Rome.

For the reason that Archbishop's cautious because 79-year-old Pope John repeatedly spoke of his hopes that "separated" Christians will return to the Roman Catholic Church.

Il Quotidiano, daily organ of Italian Catholic Action, referred editorially today to Christians who "are still far from the true church."

Mario Shaffi, head of the federal council of the Evangelical Church in Italy, planned to go to Geneva to report the meeting to officials at the headquarters of the World Council of Churches —an organization of more than 170 Protestant, Anglican and Orthodox churches with a following of about 180,000,000.

FINE COLLECTOR

MONTREAL (CP) — Joseph-Michel Savoie, a former lacquer Cartier Bridge toll collector, Friday was fined $1,500 and sentenced to one day in jail when he was found guilty on two counts of failing to collect the full amount of bridge tariffs. He is the first of 77 former toll collectors to be found guilty. One collector pleaded guilty and was sentenced to six months in jail. The other 75 await trial.

Accident Victim Dies in Hospital

TORONTO (CP) — A man who lay semi - conscious and paralyzed in hospital here for two years died Thursday night as a result of injuries suffered in a car collision in the Sudbury district.

Mervyn Leslie Crane, 36, was hit on Highway 69 on Sept. 3, 1958, by a car driven by Charles M. Travis of Sarnia. A lawsuit brought by Crane's wife, Dorothy, resulted in a damage award against Travis of $133,000.

Crane suffered a brain injury, leg fractures and a crushed chest. He could not speak, move or recognize his wife.

Dr. J. D. Kinsman of Sunnybrook Hospital said Crane never regained full consciousness and that complications arising from his injuries and the length of time he had been unconscious caused his death. Cause of death was pneumonia.

The funeral will be held Monday.

TWO LANSDOWNE YOUTHS CHARGED IN BANK HOLDUP

Verona Bank Yields $17,000 in Robbery

VERONA, Ont. (CP) — Two young men were charged Friday night with armed robbery in the holdup of a Bank of Montreal branch here in which two women were taken hostage.

Charged were Arnold Brent Mavety, 21, and Stanley Peter Davis, 17, both of Lansdowne, Ont. They are due to appear for formal remand at Kingston magistrate's court today.

The bank was robbed of about $17,000 when a man, his face masked in bandages "like a mummy," walked in with a rifle or shotgun in his hand Friday morning.

The gunman lined up manager V. M. Pyette, six customers and the staff of four and ordered teller Shirley Akey, 20, to scoop money into a paper bag. When the masked man left, he took Miss Akey with him.

Steel Company Cuts 300 More Off Payrolls

HAMILTON (CP)—One out of every four Steel workers in Hamilton was left unemployed today as the Steel Company of Canada Limited laid off 300 more employees.

Canada's largest steel works has now laid off more than 2,000 workers this year. Its peak employment in 1955 has been 9,200, compared with a record of more than 11,000 last year.

The Hamilton and District Steelworkers Union has already predicted further cutbacks before Christmas.

Frank Sherman, chairman of Dominion Foundries and Steel Limited, Hamilton, said the biggest steel company employing about 5,000, said the firm has no plans no layoffs before Christmas. He said only 50 fulltime employees have been laid off since summer.

At the 11th hour Friday night, Parliament passed a nation-wide walkout threatened for early today by 111,000 non-operating railwaymen.

In the face of fierce criticism from the opposition, Prime Minister Diefenbaker called on Parliament to pass an emergency law to postpone any strike action until after May 15.

It went into effect just half a day before the national strike was to start in Newfoundland and work in the west ended by time zone.

The emergency law, Mr. Diefenbaker said, saves the nation from the chaos and catastrophe of a transcontinental tie-up of the major railways.

But opposition critics contended it also destroys the right of railwaymen to strike for better wages, discredits the collective process and merely shunts the big trial ahead to May 15.

TOUGHT TIME

The government had to fight fast-talking and long-drawn-out tactics of the Opposition to get the special law through the Commons and Senate in time to prevent the walkout, which had been set for 8 a.m. local time Sunday.

The stop-the-strike bill was proclaimed law at 11:30 p.m. EST after a three-day emergency debate.

It postpones any strike action by "non-op" rail workers until after May 15 by which time the government hopes a more favorable atmosphere will exist for settling Canada's biggest labor scrap.

Faced with the ban, chief union spokesman Frank H. Hall suspended the strike order and told the members of the 15-union "non-op" group to remain on their jobs.

"We would have beaten the railways in a strike if the government hadn't come to their aid," he told reporters.

There was no immediate comment from the two major railways, the privately-owned CPR and the publicly-owned CNR.

WILL CONFER

Mr. Diefenbaker told the Commons that he will summon the disputants to regular meetings to try to resolve the issues involved. He said he would go to Montreal Monday to confer with leaders of the 15-union group.

Then he would confer with

Minor Hockey

Action in the Peewee division of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association was close and hard fought this morning with the goalers stealing the limelight in many cases.

The Barons edged the Browns by a 3-2 count on a last-second goal by Brooks, as each had a third in the game. R. McBride and J. Stevens, Bill Hagerty and Peter Wetmore, T. Herrington scored one Brown goal and assisted the other. Brooks scored by L. Goodfellow. B. Parsons also had an assist.

A three-goal performance by S. Melbourne sparked the Black Hawks to a 6-3 win over the Maca. S. Thorne had the other Hawk marker and drew assists on two goals. G. Wright also had one helper. G. Kiser whipped the Mac goal with help from D. Lambert.

Wings and Bruins played the 3rd Wings 2-3 in another close affair. Mac Hagerty, two Quinte goals and R. Ellis added the winner. P. Lloyd drew two assists and R. Dempsey one. Wings Jared both Red Wing goals and C. Loder assisted on one.

Two goals by R. McDougall, his second the winner, gave the Bruins a 3-2 decision over the Canucks. P. Noble served the first Bruin goal. D. Chambers and Wes Hunter assisted and drew an assist on the other, scored by T. Byrd. M. Smith also had an assist.

Attendance Slim On Market

This morning's outdoor market in the city hall square as some very nice weather, some very good displays of produce but not too many customers; until after the Santa Claus parade.

A good variety of produce was available, many items of which would not normally be on hand if it were not for the very clement weather experienced over the past few weeks.

Cauliflower was selling at 10 and 25 cents a head according to size, as were turnips, squash and potatoes. Celery sold around 30 cents a basket, with carrots priced at 60 cents and onions at 25 cents a basket quantity.

A great variety of apples was available with prices ranging from 65 to 80 cents a basket according to quality and Bosc Pears were selling at a dollar the basket. Cider sold at a dollar a gallon.

Chickens were priced at 40 cents a pound for stewing chickens and 55 cents a pound for roasters. Ducks were selling at 50, 45 and 40 cents per dozen for extra large, large and medium respectively.

Hickory nuts were also on sale, priced at 40 cents a quart.

Police, Firemen Will Meet In Big Game

TRENTON — Members of the fire and police departments are sharpening their brooms and girding their loins in anticipation of their sudden death broomball game tomorrow night at the Community Gardens.

If last year's performance was any indication of the intense spirit of rivalry (as regard to broomball only) between the two groups, the term "sudden death" may turn out not to be more than fancy phrasing.

In the fire-fighting department, such old hands at the game as Mo Mitts and Bob Blaker will be on hand to display their ambition of last year. Capt. Gerald Lewis is coaching this year.

With the law enforcement contingent, Constable Reg Weavers, Constable Roy Miller as Garry Davis and Mark Holden will be on hand.

There will be a majority discount on the game and figure skating acts between periods.

All money from the sale of tickets is to be placed in the department benevolent funds.

Next Week's Santa Parade 'Best Ever'

TRENTON — According to the Santa Claus Parade Committee of Trenton, next week's parade will be this year's parade, next Saturday, will be the best ever.

So far, 31 floats have been entered. One particularly interesting float has been loaned to the Lions Club by the village of Havelock. This is a "real" hobo set - to - goodness train, complete with smoke stack, belching smoke, flat cars and boxcars.

This week, a Snow Queen was chosen from the High School. Queen Barbara Brannon won her title through ballots. Barbara is a cheerleader and majorette and will ride on one of the floats.

Santa Claus' sleigh, loaned annually for this event by 6 Reynolds Depot, has received a new coat of paint and awaits the arrival of the jolly old gentleman from the North Pole, by train port him through the streets in the wake of majorettes, bands and clowns.

Leave Question Of Ambulance Up to Voters

TRENTON—This year voters who go to the polls on Monday will be asked to express their opinion on how the town's ambulance problem should be handled.

The question will be settled on a "yes" or "no" basis. An overwhelming "yes" vote would mean that the town may either subsidize a private service or provide an ambulance and operators. A "no" vote will mean that the operation of an ambulance service will be carried on by private enterprise.

At last Monday night's ratepayers' meeting, it was made clear that whichever method of ambulance operation comes into effect as a result of this poll, the public opinion, the town council, under the Act, must assess, provide fires ambulance service.

Three Women and 40 Men Given Pilot Wings at Picton

Flying Club Annual Dance

The rate at which interest in flying is growing in the Quinte district was exemplified last night at Club Aerodrome when 43 members of the Prince Edward Flying Club received their pilot's wings, climaxing many hours of air and ground training since the club's year in learning to pilot an aircraft.

Presentations were read Boyle and Jack Lepine of Trenton and Bud Wey of Belleville were among the club's 1960 graduates. Jack Bond of Belleville and Don Sutherland of Picton received their wings as qualified commercial pilots.

The wings were presented by Owen Reid, club president and Murray Clapp, club manager; and Tony Jacobs, previously a flying instructor at the club and now chief flying instructor at the Windsor Flying Club.

The presentation of wings and pilot's licenses was followed by turkey banquet. Attendance was excellent with more than 100 members present. Emcee was J. Clark.

Nelson McKibbon of Belleville was a two-time winner when the trophies were presented. He won the H. J. McFarland trophy, a-warded for outstanding navigation, and the Dr. R. F. Evans trophy for Picton; this for most proficiency among this year's group. Eight students taking ground school flight tests in August will write pilots. Although 10 of the 43 graduates are students at high marks in the 80s, Mr. McKibbon of the class with a mark of 98 per cent. Mr. McFarland trophy was presented by Bob Byers and the Dr. Evans trophy was presented by Murray Clapp.

Bill Elliott donated a memorial trophy donated by Mrs. Eileen Shannon, whose husband was killed in a flying accident at Picton in 1958, was won by Hazel Boyle, who was chosen by the club as done the most for the success of the club in 1960.

The president's trophy, awarded to the member who flew the greatest number hours during the year, was presented by past-president Frank Foley to John Strickland of Bloomfield.

He was educated in the public school and the Collegiate Institute and is employed with the Department of National Revenue in the State tax section. He served in the merchant and First Canadian Army Tank Corps and served in the North Africa and Italian campaigns. He is married and a member of St. Thomas' Church. He has five children, one daughter attending McMaster University and the two boys at Queen Elizabeth Public School. He is not actively running at home. Mr. Clarke was an active member of the Old Boys Home and School Association and is combining one term as School Trustee.

DONALD HARVEY — the other candidate in Ward Four for School Trustee is a native of Vancouver, B.C. but at present is employed with the Canada Intelligencer staff and is a resident and home owner on Lamport Drive. He is married and has one daughter. Mr. Harvey was educated in various schools across Canada and has been in the newspaper field for many years. He served as a member of the R.C. Legislative Press Gallery for the Canadian Press at Victoria, B.C. He was a Public Accountant at Galloway Street United and at present is active member of the Santa Claus Parade committee. He has post-war service with the RCAF.

PUC Candidate Is Opposed To Water, Hydro Rate Boosts

TRENTON — Charles Hilton, candidate for a seat on the Trenton Public Utilities Commission at next Monday's election, is basing his campaign primarily on criticism of rate increase for hydro and water. If elected, he has declared, he will fight any proposal for rate increases to be made.

Commenting on a statement by his opponent, A. E. Atkinson, which appeared in the Ontario Intelligencer last week, Mr. Hilton has declared that he was aware that the books of the Commission are open to him without his seeking election to the Commission and has added that he does not intend, by his criticism of rate increases, to cast any reflection on the integrity or honesty of past members of the Commission, but merely disagrees with the contention that these increases are inevitable.

To indicate the extent of the increases, Mr. Hilton has cited his own bills for water and hydro at his King Street residence, for this year and last. A bill dated Sept. 30, 1960, was $17.28 while one year earlier 2,000 kilowatt hours cost only $13.39. This he said, was an increase of 12 1/3 per cent. For 2,000 cubic feet of water the charge was $6.15 gross this year, compared with $4.60 one year ago, an increase of more than 30 per cent.

Mr. Hilton's opponent, Mr. Atkinson who had been chairman of the PUC, had referred to increases as small. Mr. Hilton said it was a matter of opinion whether such increases could be called small. "I say it is a terrific increase," he declared. He noted that these were not the only increases since 1953 and maintained that these increases were "a considerable burden on both commercial and industrial users."

Mr. Hilton then dealt specifically with increases in the charges for water saying that he chose water rather than Hydro because water is not dependent on supply sources other than the town's own. He cited these figures: Year 1953 Revenue $90,238.89; expenses, $66,904.75; surplus, $23,331.14; capital debenture debt, $21,000. Year 1959, revenue $137,855; expenses, $117,846; deficit, $9,790; capital debenture debt, $281,000.

Mr. Hilton said that the last surplus shown by the PUC was in 1954. Although revenue increased and expenditures increased in the five year period up to the 1959 report, there was a deficit each year and debenture debt went up about $355,-000.

Mr. Hilton proposed as a solution controlling expenditure to a minimum, reducing debt and interest rate. He proposed that even some necessities might have to be foregone until income permits them. He said that expenditure must be kept within bounds, so that the rate charged the public is within their income and industrial and commercial rates can be attractive enough to bring business and industry here, so that it will remain.

He concluded with a pledge to do his best to hold the rates, if elected.

IN MEMORIAM

SMITH — In loving memory of my dear sister, Ivy, who passed away December 3rd, 1959.
He fathomed not the depths of sorrow
He saw not the heart that broke
He heard every farewell sadness
He knew not the grief we spoke.
To a land of rest on high.
Where the flowers are never broken,
And loved ones have to part;
Sadly missed is a wound that never heals.
And my sister aching heart.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by Pearl.

SMITH — In loving memory of Ivy Agnes Rogers, who died in a motor accident on December 4th, 1954.
To know you was to love you,
Not the ones that loved you dearly,
But the ones that loved you most.
In our hearts your memory lingers
Sweet and tender and true.
There is not a day, dear Ivy,
That we do not think of you.
Sweet memories are all we have left us,
Dear ones, but last,
Whatever lands we view;
There is for my grief, no cure,
We will always think of you.
—Sadly missed and ever dear, Pearl.

Jobless City Workers Should Look to Farm, House Told

TORONTO (CP) — The unemployed city dweller who has farm experience should look for work in the rural areas where there is a scarcity of labor, Public Works Minister Connell said Friday during the throne speech debate in the Ontario legislature.

Mr. Connell said he was criticized once for hiring a Danish farm worker in place of a Canadian for his farm near Hamilton. He since advertised for experienced farm help and has not even had replies.

"Wages on many farms are comparably to wages in industry," Mr. Connell said. "Let any man with a farm background, who is unemployed, take a good look out in the country — there might be an opportunity there which he never realized existed."

Mr. Connell told of a survey the department of economics will conduct during construction of a public works hospital project at Goderich to determine how many are directly or indirectly created by the project.

WORK FOR 100

The Lakehead Teachers' College at Port Arthur now under construction at a cost of $1,600,000 provided work for 100 men through the contractor and perhaps employment for as many as 100 others in the community indirectly.

Debate of a resolution by Thomas A. Thomas (CCF—Essex East) calling for establishment of a government consumers' bureau was postponed in order to allow for the throne speech debate.

Mr. Thomas envisioned a consumers' bureau that would conduct research into and publish expert information on the quality of products placed for sale on the Ontario market.

He said some check should be placed on companies which use misleading and fraudulent advertising to promote business.

He said a sales organization in Ontario used the names of public officials to promote sales of an electrical alarm device against fire.

"They claim the device is backed by the fire chief and that's office," Mr. Thomas said.

Attorney-General Roberts said he will look at any such material provided by Mr. Thomas.

Canada Shares Major Honors In Cattle Classes

CHICAGO (AP) — Canada and four states shared major honors Friday as the 1960 International Livestock Exposition competition neared completion.

Romandale Farms of Unionville, Ont., was awarded the Holstein dairy cattle premier exhibitor's award and the premier breeders award. Romandale farms also exhibited the Holstein reserve grand champion female, Dudeens Rag Apple Tessa.

The grand champion female was Delightful Rocket, bred by H. Pettinaud and Son of Hansonburg, Ont., and now owned by Green Meadow Farm, Elsie, Mich. She won the milking four-year-old class in which Lodestar Reflection L. Design, owned by Hooper Brothers of St. Marys, Ont., bred by James McCague of Alliston, Ont., stood second and was named best udder female of the show.

SHOW STRENGTH

Canadian Holsteins showed strength in the senior female classes. Third in the class of seniors were the Canadian - bred females owned by the two dry-aged cow R. A. Hayssen Taby, Wisconsin, and Clark of Bolton, Ont., and now owned by William A. Hayssen, Elk Hart Lake, Wis.

The latter animal was developed by the late W. J. Kraego of Galt, where she was born and bred before being sold to Hayssen a year ago.

Canadian guernseys from Ontario fared well as major victories in taking five first prize awards, both junior championships and a reserve grand championship along with the coveted first prize in the aged bull class to bring Canadian guernseys their greatest recognition in international competition.

RECOGNIZES EXCELLENCE

The state herd class is awarded to a group of cattle from a limited area, and recognition is given to the excellence of Ontario guernseys in competition from Ontario and from leading Guernsey states in the union.

P. Watson, Ontario livestock commissioner accepted the trophy which went to the winning herd.

The highest individual awards went to entries from Kingfield farms, King, Ont. Kingfield Brickbat, a junior yearling bull, was named the best junior and reserve grand champion. Kingfield Leader's Rosemary, a junior yearling heifer, won her class and was made junior champion female. both these animals had won their classes in the Canadian National Dairy Show at Waterloo, Iowa.

All animals placing first or second at American shows will be eligible for all-American honors and Canadian guernseys will be represented.

The premier jersey cattle breeder's award went to George H. Ims and Son, Woodstock, Ont. The best state herd jersey cattle was shown by Ontario Hillcrest second.

Other Canadian winners included holstein junior reserve champion female, Hugh W. Ormiston, Brooklin, Ont.

PRIEST'S CAR KILLS BOY

LE ROY, Minn. (AP)—A Roman Catholic altar boy was struck and killed Thursday by a car driven by his priest en route to mass. The body of Jerry Wherry, 17, was carried 419 feet on the pastor's car, highway patrolmen said. Father Lawrence Ryan was charged with careless driving.

Mother Praised For Keeping Her Child in School

By DAVID ZINMAN

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Daisey Gabrielle Gabrielle is a brown-eyed, dark-haired mother who has for two weeks led her six-year-old daughter past howling pickets into integrated William Frantz School.

"I think I lost 10 years of my life the night I made that final decision," the 26-year-old mother of six said.

"I pulled Yolanda out the second Monday," she said. "I was so scared. Who am I to fight the government, I asked myself.

"But that night, my conscience bore at me. Are you going to give in to a mob? I knew if I gave up, the minister would give up. So I did and there'd be no white child left."

Rev. Lloyd Foreman was for some time the only other white parent taking his daughter to Frantz.

"Whatever it was, I heard an inner voice. And when I got up that morning, I told my husband Jerry, I'm taking Yolanda back. All those women yell, 'We hate niggers.' I don't hate any race or creed. I'm going to do what I think is the right thing."

Jerry said: "Whatever you do, I'm with you."

Often when I walked past those screaming women, even though I looked one, I closed myself in. I didn't hear the voices.

I felt at peace with myself. You know, I'd rather take a beating from a mob than from my conscience."

Friday was the brightest day for Mrs. Gabrielle since integration started Nov. 14. Ten white children — up 50 per cent — to Frantz school, and nearly two dozen telegrams and letters were delivered to her.

Not one was a crank letter. All praised her courage.

Ponies Win in Chicago

Hockey, Cheese and now Horses!

Belleville has again hit International news headlines — this time with championship horseflesh.

Jack R. Bush, of the J. R. Bush Funeral Home here, put his native city in the publicity spotlight when his husky pony ponies won major awards at the International Horse Show now in progress in Chicago.

Mr. Bush won a first and a third in the show's pony division.

His team of "Mighty Fine of Hillingdon" and "King's Grace" defeated a large field of international entries to take first place in the ladies' harness pair of ponies.

The team was awarded third prize in the pony pair in harness category.

The Chicago awards climaxed a splendid sequence of pete-winning events for Mr. Bush.

He took major honors at annual agricultural exhibitions held in Belleville, Peterborough, Lindsay, Kingston and Lachute, Quebec.

Horses have provided a hobby for Mr. Bush for a number of years.

Some time ago he specialized in the proud palomino. He acquired some choice stock which made a name for themselves in the show places of the district.

Later he turned to the hackney ponies.

That he met with success in this field is indicated in the "roomful" of trophies he now possesses.

Now, topping the impressive display will be the awards won at the International Horse Show held in Chicago.

Workman Instantly Killed When Arm Caught in Mill Belt

MADOC (Special) — Death struck suddenly in this village's newest industry early Friday morning.

Gerald West, 30, a laborer working in the Madoc Marble Quarries mill here, was instantly killed shortly after 2.30.

Mr. D. Mullen who examined the dead man said death was caused by multiple skull injuries resulting in fractures at the base of the brain.

Coroner Dr. K. Beattie after investigating the circumstances surrounding the tragedy, has ordered an inquest.

West was married and leaves his wife and four children all under seven — years of age. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert West of Madoc township.

The Madoc Marble Quarries, owned by Mr. Rifkind Jones of this village, recently started operations after the construction of its plant employs some nine people.

West had been employed by the company during the construction period. He was added to the staff of the mill when operations started.

3,000 Attend Funeral of Teen Victims

By PHIL ADLER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHIPMAN, N.B. (CP) — A solemn gathering of more than 3,000 persons moved through dark streets of shaken farm town Friday night to pay respect to the two girls killed when a freight train smashed into their school bus.

The funeral cortege of the mourners, were the first to view the flag-draped caskets in the auditorium gymnasium of Chipman elementary school which served as a temporary chapel.

The last time they saw their children—Lucy, 14, and two boys—was Tuesday morning when they left by bus for Chipman high school, 10 miles west of here.

Sturdy men knelt and wept. Women sobbed and were helped to chairs. Youngsters appeared stunned.

The coffins formed a half-circle at the front of the auditorium below the stage which now contained an altar. The girls—dressed in white bridal gowns with veil—were in white coffins. The boys' coffins were blue and grey. They wore jackets.

The prayer services were conducted by priests of the Roman Catholic church and by a Ruthenian Greek Orthodox and Ukrainian Catholic churches. The children came from Polish and Ukrainian families.

Burial services were scheduled throughout the morning. The biggest single funeral was to be held in the auditorium—a requiem high mass for seven Roman catholic students.

Most of the victims were to be buried in the church of 200 where they attended elementary school. Lucy's body was burned in Edmonton Friday.

Canada Admits Two Million Immigrants in Post-War Yrs.

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada has admitted 2,000,000 immigrants in the post-war period—a 20-year total that is a similar number will come to seek their fortunes in the next 15 years.

The 2,000,000th immigrant—16-year-old Danish-born Anette Toft —arrives at Quebec City Monday, culminating a 15-year life unsurpassed since the early years of the century.

Two factors were mainly responsible for the heavy flow. Canada was one of the first countries to offer refuge to Europeans whose homes and jobs were torn from them by war.

After 1950, Canada's unprecedented economic expansion offered job opportunities and a living future to Europeans, still trying to rehabilitate themselves from the shock of war.

Immigration continued at a high level until 1958. Prosperity returned to Europe as Canada's main source of immigrants—and Canada's economic expansion levelled off. Government curbs were imposed on immigration as unemployment rose.

FACE DROPS OFF

These and other factors, including changed attitudes about unemployment in Canada, reduced immigration in 1959 to 124,851 persons—a 44 per cent pace dropped to 106,928 in 1960 and this year is expected to be about the same or even less.

In the 15 years from 1946 to 1960 a total of 2,939,219 immigrants arrived in Canada. The pace of immigration will likely be the next 15 years, from 1976 to 1990, with 1,967,807 arrivals.

Immigration took a decided slump in the following 15 years from 1931 to 1945 when Canada was in the throes of the depression, then at war.

With the end of the war, immigration began to open up. It rose to 71,719 in 1946 from 22,722 the previous year. By 1947, 127 in 1957 and hasn't been below 74,000 since.

Death Sentence Is Commuted By Cabinet

OTTAWA (CP) — Milton Frank Sullivan, 29, of Toronto, Ontario, scheduled to be hanged here Friday for the murder of his sister-in-law, had his death sentence commuted Friday by the federal cabinet to life imprisonment.

Sullivan, 29-year-old father of three, was convicted of murder during the slaying of Mrs. Jeanne Gardipie at Foleyet last March 1. Elmer McCauley, with whom the victim had been living, also died after being shot by Sullivan with a .22 calibre rifle.

Grand Champion Holstein Bull At Many Fairs

Adjudicator had previously been grand champion of the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto; Western Fair, London, New York State Fair, at Syracuse and Ohio State and White Day at Woodstock, Ont.

A senior yearling heifer, Ormiston Queen Cora, was best dairy cow for Agro Brothers of Hamilton, Ont. Other winners were an entry in the Central Ontario Cattle Breeding Association of Maple, Ont., the two-yearold class for the first place, and Oxford and District Cattle Breeding Association of Woodstock, South, and Romandale Farms, fifth.

Cuban Press Charges U.S.A. Aids Refugees

HAVANA (AP) — The government-controlled press today charged the United States is giving aid to Cuban counter-revolutionaries by setting aside $1,000,000 to assist refugees from Fidel Castro's regime.

But the press refrained from mentioning the action Washington decided to assist the refugees: The United States considers Castro's regime Communist-controlled.

President Eisenhower Friday announced he was releasing the funds under terms of the Mutual Security Act— which provides assistance for refugees from Communist - dominated lands. About 90,000 refugees from Cuba have congregated in Florida.

Although the official Cuban version of Eisenhower's action was scrambled, anti-Castro Cubans in downtown Havana streets were exhilarated.

They refer to Miami as "West Berlin."

FRESH TROUBLE AHEAD

Reliable church sources said the hierarchy has drafted a strongly-worded reply to Castro's accusation that the clergy accepted bribes to preach against his regime.

Cuba's prelates met privately and drew up a firm rejection of Castro's attack last Sunday in which he termed priests "parasites men in cassocks."

Catholic officials in the past have used pastoral letters and official statements in citing the dangers of communism. Church informants said they did not know what form the current reply would take.

In the Far East, Castro's diplomats have established formal relations with two more major Communist states — North Viet Nam and North Korea.

Ernesto Guevara, Castro's economic envoy, has just completed a 5-day visit to Communist China which was recognized diplomatically earlier.

Oil for the Skates of Canada

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., man has invented a new type of skate which may make hockey faster and figure skating easier.

It seems that a skate does not really glide on ice, but on a thin film of water created by the friction of the blade's passage over the ice. The Soo inventor decided that the trick was to make the film slicker. The average Ontario resident, accustomed to Hydro doing almost everything, would probably have sat down to puzzle out how he could wire hockey players for speed, but the Soo genius had a much simpler solution. Instead of heating the blade to increase the thickness of the film of water, which probably wouldn't have made the skate glide more easily anyway, he decided to build a film into the skate itself. A plastic capsule in the toe of the skate releases a film of soluble oil and water. And away the skater goes.

There will be those old-timers who will contend that this new invention will do no more than restore the speed which the average hockey player lost when he was forced off natural ice onto the artificial variety. It is possible that the scientists can prove otherwise, but we have always had a conviction that natural ice was at least a step and a half faster than even the smoothest sheet of the artificial variety. As for those wind-swept stretches one gets on the bay some winters, well those are as different from the sheet in an indoor heated arena as a Broadway showgirl is from the midway sideshow variety.

Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, has suggested that one player on each team in the NHL test these skates. Quite frankly, though, we can see some difficulties arising in their use in hockey. With body checking all over the ice, there could be some terrific collisions, and scrappagnying injuries, if the speed of all players was increased.

It is said that these new skates will make figure skating easier. We presume that by this is meant that manoeuvres which are now extremely difficult will become simpler. The real champions, though, will merely take increased speed in their stride and make the impossible. There may come a time when every tot on a park rink can duplicate the feats which made Sonya Henie a champion!

There seems to be no reason why, if the scheme works with skates, it will not be equally effective with other sports on runners—ice boating, for example, and bob sledding. In the latter sport, they would have to make the courses easier—even today the sleds can go faster than the curves will permit at many parts of the runs.

We may yet see the day when the firm sponsoring "Hockey Night in Canada" TV shows picks its own special brand of skate oil as the 'Number One Star of the evening's performance.

Hard to Stomach

When William Shakespeare decided that the quality of mercy was not strained, he reckoned without the science of ballistics—and Frank Gaito. Mr. Gaito is suing Mercy Hospital in Pittsburgh for $250,000. He charges his constitutional rights were violated. The hospital removed a bullet from his stomach without his permission. The bullet was used in evidence against him and he and his brother were sent to prison, for a term ranging from 13½ to 27 years.

If Mr. Gaito is successful in his suit, hospitals will have to revise their release forms. "You have nothing to hope from any favors, and nothing to fear from any threat. You are not obliged to undergo an operation, but if you do, anything taken from you will be pickled in alcohol and may be used in evidence against you."

To which warning the hardened criminal like the sweet young thing of another era, may intone "I'd rather die than say yes."

Youth and Politics

Many a youth of 18 is sufficiently well-informed and possessed of enough judgment to vote—often better fitted to do so than some persons twice his age. The average person of 18 should be encouraged to think politically and have a keen interest in the affairs of his community, his province and the nation. (Cape Breton Post).

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

LET US CHEERSH IT

There is so old gospel hymn containing the Bible teaches from the refrain of which runs, "Will There Be Any Stars In My Crown?"

We may smile condescendingly on what we consider a huge chunk of sentiment and corrupt theology. But is it not? We do not express our longing for heavenly rewards in such words and images today. But if we do not have a longing for heaven than our theology is imperfect and our religion is not mature.

For heaven is certainly promised the victorious soul. What will it be like? The Bible does not go to great lengths to describe it, and probably the reason is that the glory of heaven is such that human words are inadequate for description. But that glory awaits our spiritual

Einstein's Unified Field Theory

By HON. ROBERT W. MACAULAY
Ontario Minister of Energy Resources

ARTICLE 6

The Theory of Relativity was really an introduction to a more universal field of study which Einstein called "The Unified Field Theory." He died without solving it mathematically, but he believed it is possible.

Every object in the universe attracts every other object with a force that can be determined by Newton's equation of the law of gravitation. What is gravitation?

There is also the Electrical Attraction Law. It is a force like gravitation, except it is the force with which two unlike electrical charges behave, each other. A negative and a positive charge attract each other with a force that equation governs. Two similar electrical charges repel each other. This formula is called "Coulomb's Law". This is the basis of the old saying dealing with opposites, "Like repels unlike magnetic or electric forces are the same. Unlike magnetic or electric forces attract". (Whether there is any reason in Einstein's Unified Field for sex is beyond the scope of this article).

It is to be noted that, while gravitation can only be a law of attraction, magnetic and electric forces can either attract or repel. Thus, like magnetic or electric forces repel and unlike magnetic or electric forces attract. Gravitation is unlike magnetic or electric forces in that it is the only force that acts in the same way on all objects.

If a unified field theory (see "Mr. Big" Law) can be developed which will explain the many branches of science more simply and more fully than is now the case, scientists will be able to understand other forces of which they know little or nothing at present. For example, what holds the atom's nucleus together?

Perhaps the Unified Field Theory will explain that gravitation (which is a structural) and not like electric and magnetic forces, is a force or repulsion force, and that it is the force which is driving the galaxies apart. Astronomers believe that the newest discovered galaxy is said to be travelling away at up to 310,000,000 miles per hour. What is causing the universe to expand at the speed in this way? It may well be that this opposite force of gravitation has already been discovered in the form of what is called anti-matter.

If the reader thinks that the law of gravitation or curved space is hard to understand on earth, a quick look at what is happening in outer space will dispel that notion. Anti-matter is matter which has negative mass and perhaps an electrical charge which is negative. That mean it may be matter left with a negative body. The person is material and he has a positive body. It's there. You can touch it! But what would a reader look like who has a negative body? Just one thing, anti-matter will annihilate matter. A constant battle between anti-matter and matter would cause explosions. Mr. Hollywood might well describe as "A night to remember!"

It is quite perhaps some of the galaxies are made of anti-matter and they are repelled by the galaxies which are made of matter and thus are fleeing away. This may be the reverse of gravitation.

Maybe the Unified Field Theory will be found to predict and create new fields, just as Marconi's theories simplify predicted radio waves long before they were discovered. His predictions led to the creation of Radio waves and helped them to look in the air for them 20 years before they were discovered.

Every scientific discovery has led to more and yet more advances. The 1900s—and the end of the nineteen yet to fight, unless man takes it upon himself to blow out his brains and destroy the world which he has been 5 billion years to reach this stage of development — were only now man can, by his own will return himself — dust to dust — where he began.

This, then, has been in right articles, something of Einstein. I have tried to explain the theory, loosely by Ogden Nash, which goes like this:

"I don't like the family Stein
There's Gert, and there's Ep and there's Ein.

Gert's poems are bunk
Ep's statues are junk
And no one can understand Ein".

How to Remember Numbers

Oshawa Times

Most people have trouble remembering telephone numbers, and the multiplication of those numbers makes the strain on memory almost unbearable. Nothing the need to develop some sort of system for remembering numbers is a minimum of strain, Felicia Lamport suggests in Harper's Magazine that the changing of numbers into words helps devise know as logomorphism — can be both a cause and an aid to memory. She describes the method thus:

My own number is 6681. For some reason it seems to be difficult to memorize or even to repeat accurately — it usually comes out 6618 or 6861 — however, be immediately fixed by the story of the mischievous elf who went to a small island inhabited only by six earthlings. Nothing further was heard about him until a message was transmitted by Morse code: dit-dah-dah-dah-dit-dah-dit.

The number 9629 suggests the somewhat exotic memonic of a coy German girl with an imperfect command of English who is being asked for a date answers: "No, no, I cannot." She should be noted for the benefit of the reader who is revolted by the logomorphism need not be perfect; it must only identify the number. Thus, the author explains that Julius Caesar's death scene be padded by having him identify the old friends among the conspirators before his eye falls on Brutus. Caesar then says: Tu, tu, tu, tu!" fixing the number with the unforgettable grunt.

Similar numbers need not produce related logomorphisms. The number 262 144 brought to mind not by any reference to Caesar but by thinking the image of a set of Siamese twins who, on deciding to play the ballet, go to a costumer to order the appropriate four leg holed garment: A tutu for two.

Visual imagery of any kind is most helpful. Consider the number 0415 in the context of a businessman who tries to organize a parade with music, but on hearing that the troupe is composed exclusively of drummers, cries plaintively: "O for one flute!"

Ideally the number should not be only etched on the mind but tied to its particular subscriber, as in the case of a lady who immediately after her divorce from an extremely unpleasant spouse, was assigned the number 2468. A singularly felicitous comment on her free, fortunate state.

Whales Do Impossible

Montgomery Advertiser

Just as the bumblebee is not supposed to be able to fly, but flies anyway—a navy scientist has been quoted as saying that other sea animals don't have the horsepower to operate as fast as whales do.

For example, a 100-ton whale has the power to travel at 20 knots, but whales with no more than 7 horsepower per ton, at a speed of 30 knots indefinitely. Similarly, the porpoise would require 1,000 pounds of horsepower-muscle, according to the navy, but can do it with 350 pounds.

In learning how whales and porpoises disregard engineering, the navy has come to suspect that "The implications for the navy are obvious."

To get a suggestion, the navy might begin by discharging all engineers, and then by hiring porpoising the positive thinking or "Everyone" can be employed as personnel to begin and end their duty by reciting to themselves: "Everyday" in every way, we're getting more like whales."

LOOKING BACKWARDS

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

50 YEARS AGO

December 2, 1910

Jack Frost gripped the Belleville district with his tentacles last night and residents dug further this morning into their clothes closets for additional wearing apparel, and scurried quickly to work with the temperature still hovering far below the zero mark. The most severe temperature of the season was registered with the mercury dropping to 15 degrees below zero.

John B. Dudgeon, Thomasburg cheesemaker, brought signal honor to himself and to Hastings County with one of the best showings recorded by exhibitors in the British Empire Show and Cheese Exhibition sponsored by the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association at their 13th annual convention now in session in the city hall here.

Pitted against the best cheese-makers in the dominion, Mr. Dudgeon not only finished in the coveted British Empire Special Award—winning the Gold Medal and Diploma with an average score of 97.8 points—but one-tenth of one per cent behind him, Bert Anderson of Madoc who won the Silver Challenge Trophy, Gold Medal and Diploma with an average of 97.7, but won many other specials.

The list of candidates who have passed successfully the competitive examination for permanent employment, Grade One, in the Civil Service of Canada, and for Stenographers, Grade One, were published in the Canada Gazette on November 26th. Those from Belleville were Doris Irene Wadell, Doreen Lois Bryant, Kathleen Mary O'Callaghan, Eleanor Stewart Johnson (Grade Two) Florence E. Carr, Lois Eleanor Moorman, Ruth Eleanor Belair, Fascia Kemp and Violet June Grant.

The W.C.T.U. summary, sale receipts were $205.98; the expenses amounted to $21.80, leaving a balance of $184.18.

Mr. Lisle Weese of Ameliasburg Township won the greatest number of points at the Prince Edward County Fair last October and has received a certificate from the Department at Toronto.

The annual turkey fair held at Napanee on December 1st and 2nd was the largest ever held in that town. About 100 tons of turkeys and geese were purchased by buyers. Prices were the highest ever paid at the fair; turkeys sold at 20 cents per pound; geese and ducks at 15 cents per pound and chickens at 32 cents to 35 cents per pound.

Mr. C. A. Conrad, who has been visiting friends here, has returned to his home in Hamilton.

The following officers were elected at the recent meeting of the members of the Business Men's Bible Class in connection with Bridge Street Methodist Church: Hon. Teacher, Judge Deroche; Teacher, Mr. Tilcher; Mr. F. E. O'Flynn; Associate Teachers, Rev. Dr. Bishop and J. J. B. Flint; president, Mr. David Price; vice-president, Mr. R. H. Morden; secretary, Mr. R. D. Harnes; treasurer, Mr. Arnold Chown; organist, Mr. Allen Chown; musical director, Mr. C. H. Vermilyea.

The marriage of this city has been elected a member of the Ontario Medical Council.

Kind Words About Cities

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Cities have been getting a rough poking-around from critics in the last few years, but a chamber has also been getting around. Finch, of Columbia University, labels the city "not merely the vessel, but the actual generator of civilization."

Cities are not obsolete, he says, and will be around for a long time.

"They represent mankind's distilled experience, with the city as a special instrument of social and economic life."

All is not doom and gloom for overcrowded, traffic ensnarled cities in Cleveland, Ohio, the 58th annual meeting of the American Automobile Association. That cities are fated to succumb to the strangle hold of the traffic was described as "one of the great myths of our time."

Solution? Just a little bit of intelligence in planning land use, expressways, parking facilities and public transportation — plus a real desire to solve the problem.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G Molner, M.D.

"UPSIDE-DOWN STOMACH" A LARGE HIATUS HERNIA

"Dear Dr. Molner: My doctor tells me I have an 'upside-down stomach'. Would you explain to this? What should I do? — R. C. F."

This term is used, with some reason, I guess, for a rather large hiatus hernia, or a condition which results from a defect in the left side (or front part) of the diaphragm. With such a hernia, the stomach and I could make clear precisely what the fuss is all about. But for practical purposes, I would prefer to say that if you've got this problem you have a hernia. Explanation before I got through! The degree and type of this condition can vary to such an extent that the only sensible advice I can give is to do what your doctor says. He's spend some years learning the proper meaning. But you, I am sure would rather have nature again help you, than to spend a lot of valuable time learning technicalities.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My husband will not go to a doctor. He has had pains in his stomach for over a year, while society places that hurt when they eat foods, but he gets relieved and found they are caused by smoking a pipe more or a pack of cigarets a day will start it. He has tried to quit but they stop. What I would like to know is can you shed some light on this that what type of pain is it? Could these spots turn into cancer? Is he in system that he can't stand to tobacco? — Mrs. V. B."

Why should your husband go to a doctor? His symptoms tell him. He just hasn't got what it takes to do it. Now I suppose you would tell him to do. There — I've saved you the price of an office call. Show this to your husband. And tell him I changed my mind just from what you told me about it.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Not since my primary school days has it ever been necessary for me to have an enema. I have constipation. However last spring I was confined to bed for four weeks and my mother-in-law came to care for me. As I awakened each morning, almost immediately she had the enema bag ready—for 36 consecutive days.

"Now I find myself reaching for it automatically. My husband scolds me and tells me to leave nature alone. My sister-in-law says I can't move my bowels normally and will be dependent on this artificial means, if I do not keep on. I can't agree with her. Am I wrong in such an attitude? — G. B."

Yes, I think you are wrong — and after 30-odd years of normal living I would say if you don't really think so, too!

I've written a number of times about the "laxative habit". People who get into the habit of thinking they "need" a laxative every day soon reach the point at which the normal reflexes never get a chance to work. So do they quit. The enema habit is very much worse. It sometimes takes several days of suffering before nature again begins to take charge and re-establish a normal rhythm. But given half a chance, it will.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Over a period of years I have been occasionally heard that there are foods or combinations that will dissolve or pass gallstones, especially for people too elderly to undergo surgery. Can you help? — Mrs. H. F. P."

No, it's not true. Either for foods or other remedies. There's nothing known that will dissolve gallstones. Nor is there without dissolving the rest of us, too. But there is help for them in modern techniques, surgery is now safe for people twice as far along in life as used to be. BRAINS

God doesn't put brains into people just to fill empty spaces. He gives every man and woman a brain and makes every a-w brain another world — to be discovered, explored, populated with ideas, used.

You can discover and explore your own brain — you have the first chance at all the riches it holds. You can open your brain to new ideas. You can exercise it with the solution of constant problems. You can use your brain yourself —

Or you can forget all about the brain God gave you. You can let it lie idle and unexplored. It will be useless to you and to the world. And then some day someone else will discover your brain for you. Someone else will begin just to fill empty spaces in it. He gives every man and woman a brain another world — to be discovered, explored, populated with ideas, used.

Buddha Taught Desires Evil

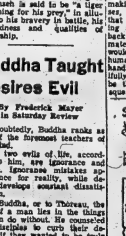
By Frederick Mayer
In Saturday Review

Unchristian, Buddha stands as one of the foremost teachers of mankind.

Born two evils of life, according to him, are ignorance and desire. Ignorance is the primal appearance for reality, while desire develops constant dissatisfaction.

To Buddha, or to Thoreau, the best of a man's life is the things he can do without. He counseled his disciples to cure their desires if they wanted to be truly enlightened.

Buddha's view has a perennial significance.



Today, Western system of education encourages wants. We hope by success and social recognition; we want fame and power. We constantly seek new thrills. We feel that youth is the most desirable condition, and we are therefore afraid of old age.

The result is that our system develops eternal adolescents who never become mature in their world views.

THE PACKSACK

BY GREGORY CLARK

When TV first started, it was found too expensive to employ human beings to speak the commercials. So the commercials were handed over to little animated cartoons. They did not pay, but they managed to be profitable, human actors were not needed to stand before the cameras and speak their pieces. Since then, however, the cartoon technique of the commercial has become a beautiful made-up young lady, magician, or famous actor, but it still squeaks, squeaks and giggles of noise, rabbits, or entirely imaginary little monsters screaming out quite human sounds. Most of children's worth of merchandise has been sold during this period. Without cartoons, TV is thinking that animated cartoons are kids' stuff and mixes well barely into eligible voices — as it has actually occurred to TV that the goods that have got cartoon voices are interested in goods.

Until cartoon voices vanish, drool appears to have been born in TV's mind. They are now giving the commercials to human figures again; but these figures are jerky-acted and have the voices used in cartoons. It seems to be a difficult problem to persuade the viewing public to show any gratitude for all the cartoon entertainment provided for them.

FRANKFORD W.M.C.

FRANKFORD — The Christmas meeting of Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle Women's Missionary Council, was held on the evening of December 1st, at the home of Mrs. A. Watson.

The meeting was in charge of the vice-president, Mrs. Mary Patrick and opened with prayer by Mrs. Gordon Patrick. A duet, "If Christ Had Not Come" was read and Mrs. Fred Wood read the Christmas Story from St. Luke's Gospel.

In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. F. Miller, Miss Margaret Jones gave the secretarial and treasurer's reports. Correspondence was read, for pagein mission fund, from Rev. F. L. Lasseyas, Montreal, the Rev. and Mrs. Edwin Cook, Quebec; Mrs. W. Brown, missionary on furlough from Africa, and Mrs. O. Woodman.

PROGRAM

The Christmas program included reading, "Be A Rooster," by Mrs. C. Elliott; an accordion solo, "Carol of the Bells" by Gordon Smith; contest, "Christmas Shopping" Unscrambled Words" winner Mrs. Gordon Smith; reading, "Push and Pull" by Mrs. Keith Heinz; reading, "Yuletide Reflections" by Miss Marjorie Forbes and reading "Keep Christmas" by Mrs. E. Stowe.

Mrs. A. Watson closed the meeting with prayer.

Refreshments were served.

Going Places

Children Take to Air Travel With the Greatest of Ease

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

Travelling with children, wrote Robert Benchley, is like travelling in Bulgaria second class. And that was before Bulgaria got behind the Iron Curtain.

But it was also before the miracle of the ages, the jet airplane. Boeing flight winged travel, the continent, three assorted kids in tow, we're ready to report back! Sometimes hectic, often thrilling, but never dull, our "Bulgarian adventure" was an Experience.

It was the first time we'd flown with Hillary, 2, and the first time with Claudia, 8, and Jonathan, 6, since they were too young to remember. But like all wise kids the older ones had their carefully preconceived notions of what it would be like. Their startling observations concerning their fancies with reality kept us busy taking notes most of the way; we won't publish over whether this was inspired by proud parenthood or good reporting.

The amazing adaptability of children made them veterans by the time our 30-minute connecting flight to New York had arrived. One lesson gave them the hang of working the seat belts, and one snack service of what Claudia described as a "chicken and lettuce" sandwich gave the baby the hang of hollering, "I want yum-yum!" every time the stewardess walked by.

FAMILIAR WITH KIDS

Before they ever set foot in the jet they were to wing them to San Francisco in six hours, thirty — and we — learned that TWA was not unfamiliar with traveling children. During our two-hour layover at Idlewild a winsome blonde ground hostess kept them busy with visits around the terminal. "You sure see real interesting things when you go travelling," noted Jonathan.

Once on board, they were awed briefly by how "fancy" the interior of the plane was, surpassing even the wild dreams inspired by the DC-7 on which they flew to New York. The take-off astounded them for a moment, but they were too busy marvelling at the "doll houses" below and the strange proximity of the moon and clouds.

The later, observed Claudia flately delivered of a series of visits to the "powder room," like molars."

It was worth the price of admission to watch the impressions being engraved and processed as they would pass on to their classmates. Everything caught their attention and produced questions — including, we'd ven-

LYNCH — JOHNSTON

MARMORA — The wedding took place on Saturday, November 26, in Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church, Marmora, of Yola Yvonne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Johnston, Havelock, and Mr. Gerald James Lynch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Lynch, Marmora.

The Rev. W. P. Healey, P.P., officiated, and Mrs. Hugh Brady was organist.

The bride chose a gown of white lace and net, over a skirt of tiers and bodice topped with a long sleeved jacket. Her fingertip veil was embroidered silk net was caught to a seed pearl and crown, and a bouquet of red roses completed the costume.

Given in marriage by her father, she was attended by the bridesmaid, Miss Irene Lynch, who wore a red velvet dress with fur trimmed skirt, matching feathered hat and carried white roses and red rosebuds.

Mr. Vincent Sloggett attended the bridegroom and Messrs. Hugh Johnston and Vincent Lynch Jr., were ushers.

The reception was held in the Orange Hall, following guests present from Kingston, Oshawa, Cookstown, Belleville, Colborne, Queensboro, Peterborough, Madoc, Marmora and Havelock.

The bride's mother wearing a dress of blue crepe with matching accessories and a corsage of white roses. The bridegroom's mother a navy brown with white accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

On their honeymoon to Montreal and points east, the bride's mother chose a two piece model in blue with black accessories and white corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Lynch will reside in Marmora.

Club Activities

4-H HOMEMAKING CLUB

The 5th meeting of the Quinte "Woollen Wonders" was held at the home of Linda Jones on November 7th at 7.30 p.m.

The president opened the meeting with the 4-H Pledge.

The next meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Lazarius on November 21st.

Discussion included: taking care of wool; sponging and spot removing; pressing seams, darts and facings.

Refreshments were served

TOWN AND COUNTRY CLUB

AMELIASBURG — The second meeting of "The Club Girl Entertains" was held at the home of Ida Waterbury.

The 3rd meeting is to be Saturday afternoon at Beverly Pulver's.

A weekend bag was packed and the duties of the hostess and the guest were discussed. Mrs. Pulver served in a pretty room. All the girls wrote an invitation.

Refreshments were served.

The 3rd meeting of "The Club Girl Entertains" was held at Margaret Keizer's on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. There was a discussion on the duties of a meal. The girls practised proper table setting.

Home assignments were: plan the meals for the family for one week; work on record book; read something interesting to report at next meeting; work on record book; work on file folder.

Beverly and Mrs. Pulver served refreshments.

HARMONY CLUB

MARSH HILL — The November meeting of Marsh Hill Harmony Club was held Friday evening with an attendance of 26.

The president, Mr. Farley Lindenfield, conducted the meeting.

During the business, Mrs. Farley Lindenfield, Mrs. Fred Campbell and Mrs. Charles Rose were appointed to be the nominating committee to bring in the new slate of officers.

The December meeting will be held on the night of December 15 and at this time the Sunday School will help provide the Christmas program.

Mr. and Mrs. Allyn Finkle were program convenors and all helped in singing the hymn, "Be Still, My Soul."

Then Harry Sculter read the Scripture lesson from St. Luke 2:5-15. Mrs. Allyn Finkle read the story, "Christmas Silence".

Raymond Finkle played a few selections on his record player and read, "On Guard".

Mrs. Ivan Clare read, "Bethlehem Inefinable Inspiration" followed by Miss Carolyn Finkle, who played with her piano accordion.

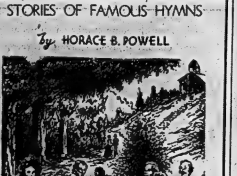
Harold Finkle favored with two guitar selections.

After the meeting closed, refreshments were served.



PLAINFIELD COUPLES' CLUB

LATTA — The Plainfield Couples' Club held a social evening, at the Plainfield Orange Hall recently.

Mr. Hervey Putman of Carnahon, showed films and gave commentary on his recent trip to various points and parts of Africa, and they were greatly interested in hearing from a career of handling the affairs of successful persons—Lord Beaverbrook, Sir Edward Beatty, Sir Frederick Gordon Osler, Sir Arthur Sims, Sir Percy Vincent, Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, Sir Harry Oakes, Sir Harry Pilkington, Sir Harry Pilkington, Sir Harry Pilkington

STORIES OF FAMOUS HYMNS

by HORACE B. POWELL

"ANYWHERE WITH JESUS CAN SAFELY GO"

Anywhere with Jesus I can safely go,
Anywhere He leads me in this world below;
Anywhere without Him dearest joys would fade;
Anywhere with Jesus I am not afraid.

Anywhere with Jesus I am not alone,
Other friends may fail me, He is still my own;
Though His hand may lead me over dreary ways,

Anywhere with Jesus a house of praise.

Anywhere with Jesus over land and sea,
Telling souls in darkness of salvation free;
Ready at a call or summons me to go or stay,
Anywhere with Jesus when He should the way.

Chorus:
Anywhere! anywhere! Fear I cannot know;
Anywhere with Jesus I can safely go.

There are many hymns of faith and trust in the soul books but none has been more popular than Jessie Brown's "Anywhere With Jesus."

It has been a favorite through the years at church prayer meetings, in mission services where it has helped to transform the lives of men groping for a spiritual anchor, and in great evangelistic crusades where it has inspired thousands to find peace with Christ.

Daniel B. Towner, who created tunes for a host of gospel gems—songs like "At Calvary," "What Will It Be With Me?" "See Him!", "The Sunset Gate," and "Trust and Obey"—was the musical partner with Miss Brown, whom the music of "Anywhere With Jesus" is familiar wil[l] ful life of Somewhere."

The song was written in an era when hymn singing were important and the singing of ways reached a climax with the stirring lines:

Need God's Help to Forgive

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

In some of our churches this week, the pastor will pray, "Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors," in others the worshippers will say, "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us." A cynic might say sarcastically that in both churches about all agrees on is the same version of Our Lords Prayer. But this difference in translation indicates no real basic disunity of desire. In the last chapter of Matthew, the twelfth verse, Jesus teaches His disciples to pray for "Forgive us our debts. Then two verses later, He says, "If ye forgive men their trespasses your Heavenly Father will forgive you; but if he forgive not men their trespasses neither will your Heavenly Father forgive your trespasses. Perhaps we might trace a distinction between the terms by saying that the word debt suggests a sin of omission, leaving undone what we ought to have done; and the term trespass suggests a sin of commission, doing what we ought not to have done.

Deeper thought, however, reveals a failure in the two-fold translation; for it serves to remind us that a trespass is a form of indebtedness and a debt is a form of trespass. When I break a moral law it is not merely my own affair. Somebody has to pay for it. I incur a debt. And when I leave a duty unfulfilled, a day wasted, a talent cast away, a holy relation neglected, I trespass on the rights of others; for they have a right to expect me to do my duty as a member of society.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EXTON'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement as presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers.

Fay O. My niece is ruining her health and being unfair to the children.

* * *

Fay O. My niece, Maxine, is only 35 and has six children after eight years of marriage. And none of them is twins. What alarms me that although our religion does not frown on birth control, and although Maxine and her husband know all about it, they just keep on having babies without taking proper care of the ones they have.

I think they're being reckless exhibitionists at the expense of innocent children. Maxine says she is none of my business, but she's wrong. I offer my views both as her aunt and as a social worker who sees what happens to youngsters who get lost in the shuffle in big families.

It's true her husband helps her and they have a cleaning woman in twice a week, but the care of the child broad falls mostly on Maxine, who has neither the physical stamina nor the emotional strength to be expected to cover the territory.

My question is, how can he possibly know what resentments are forming inside Number 3 and 5? Why does busy mother Number 4's nose and bawling out Number 1 for not washing Number 6?

* * *

Maxine R. — We love kids, especially my husband who was an only child and grew up in a big house that was always quiet and where we wanted to and he never wanted to be lonely again. We wanted a big house full of children.

Well, we have a small house full of children, and we're ready for a big one. Harry's in the building business and we're all right. We're not rich but we can afford the kids in shoes, take them to square meals and give them lots of fun and loving.

My aunt visits me and all she notices is the diapers and the mess. She doesn't realize that I must do what is important to me, as she has. I set a lot I sing to the children and play with them. She is comparing me with the mothers she meets in her work who just have babies to stay on relief. Harry and I have them because we love them.

As for worrying about what's happening inside each of my children, what good would that do? You never know anyway. Aunt Fay forgets that children eat, sleep and that mothers understand them when they do. Besides, in a big happy family the kids help the parents by watching each other up. It's not all up to me.

* * *

The Council — Taking sides here is dangerous because big families can be happy and small families can be miserable. It all depends upon the skill of the parents their full understanding of their role.

In this case we're inclined to agree with Aunt Fay that Maxine and Harry may be biting off more than they can chew. Bringing babies into the world is the least part of the job when compared to the challenge of bringing them up. There's also no such thing as too much knowledge, too much energy, too much imagination, and too much love. Even with two or three children, it's a big job for parents to keep these essentials.

Britain Decides To Support South Africa

LONDON (CP) — Britain has decided to throw the full weight she commands in Commonwealth councils into a determined effort to keep South Africa in the family of nations.

Government sources said Thursday that Britain will direct all her influence towards achieving this end during the months between now and the Commonwealth prime ministers meeting here next March.

The British view is that South Africa's expulsion would deprive millions of Africans and Europeans opposed to the government's policy of racial segregation of the benefits of Commonwealth ties.

The question of South Africa's continued membership in the club comes up next March when she applies for readmission in the fold as a republic.

Some Commonwealth leaders, notably President Nkrumah of Ghana and Tunku Abdul Rahman of Malaya, have bitterly denounced South Africa's racial policies and urged that renewed membership should be denied unless there is a change.

Seymour Twp. To Have Reeve, Council Election

CAMPBELLFORD—An election was assured in Seymour Township following the nomination meeting in the Parish Hall here on Monday afternoon. The present Reeve, Alex Linn, announced he was stepping out of public life this year, and would not be a candidate for any council position in 1961.

There were six persons nominated for the three council seats. They were: Alfred Bennett, Harry Stephens, Melville Wight, Kenneth R. Bright, Clifford M. Anderson and Harry Bedford.

Reeve Alex Linn said that while he had enjoyed council work and had received co-operation from the other councillors, he was not running for office next year. He said 1960 had been a hard year and warned Wight of coming reeve that there is a big difference between "building presidents and working presidents." He said it was time for the council work, and that his successor must be prepared to devote much time and effort to township affairs. He urged the council to bear in mind that the provincial government was not taking over any more subdivision roads until 1962, and urged the 1962 council to keep Seymour Township ahead in mind as development roads. There are one or two roads that he said should be taken over as development roads. Reeve Linn read the financial statement and explained various items appearing on it.

Deputy-Reeve Carleton Rowe agreed that it had been a hard year and that the cost of snowplowing had been heavy.

MEETINGS SUSPACKED

He said a black-top surface had been placed on the Crowe River bridge and at both approaches to it, at a total cost of $217, of which the township's share is only 30 per cent.

He said the township would also receive a 5 per cent grant on the $10,000 cost of re-surfacing and paving the 6th line which was completed this year. He said the township's road program needed to be studied because it seemed that a great deal of money was being spent. He said the poor condition of some township roads during the summer was due to the grader being out of commission. The new steel grader would require more work, and Mr. Rowe suggested this matter should be paved for a greater distance because he believed it carried more traffic than any other road in the township. He said the township truck would also soon have to be replaced.

Councillor Morden McMillan told the ratepayers that the cost of operating the township was increasing each year. He said snow plowing cost the township about $13,000 last year and that by this year, and that labor cost another $10,000, paving cost another $10,000—he said. Schools are becoming more costly to operate and the cost of education is now the largest single expenditure made by the township, said Mr. McMillan, and the council could do about it. He said there were few bad years, and that as far as he knew, there had never been a tax sale in the township. He said he would run for the position of deputy-reeve.

GRAVEL ROADS OUT

Cliff Anderson, a 1960 councillor, said that a new road program was needed and that gravel roads were becoming a thing of the past. He said paved roads took much less maintenance and were less costly in the long run. He said he would run if there was an election, but he thought the money could be spent to better advantage. He said the total assessment in the township was something over two million dollars and that cottage assessment now stood at $388,000.

Harry Stephens, also a 1960 councillor, said he would run again for office if there was an election. Melville Wight said that out of a population of some 2,400 people in the township, he thought more ratepayers would take an interest in township and school affairs. He said he believed some schools in the township operated without a budget, but spent money in such a way that only knowing the township would have to pay for it was a complication. He suggested meetings between school trustees and the township council. Mr. Wight said he also believed welfare should be better supervised in the township.

Clerk Charles Haig explained the welfare setup to Mr. Wight, saying the township received at 80 per cent grant. Mr. Wight said he would like a report on this.

Reeve-

K. R. Bright said he also would be a candidate for council, and promised honest and fair dealing and special favors to anyone.

Alfred Bennett, who was in council in 1951 and 1952, said he decided whether to run or not.

DECIDES TO RUN

Harry Bedford, who had also been a member of council in years past, said he had decided to run again and would do his best for the ratepayers.

Reeve Linn commended township clerk Chas. Haig, saying Mr. Haig received a salary of only $900 and was secretary, also, of welfare officer, Mr. Haig commented that this amounted to about 68½ cents per taxpayer per year.

W. Roy Loucks, the township's representative on the High School Area Board, reported, saying the school board spent more money than it had. He said the township council and that the ratepayers should take more interest in school affairs. He said that the end of inefficiency of Clerk Charles Haig would be that he is very disappointed that there is not more interest shown in school board affairs.

For councillors (three to be elected) — Clifford M. Anderson, Harry Bedford, Alfred E. Bennett, Kenneth R. Bright and Harry Stephens.

For Reeve — Reeve Morden McMillan was elected by acclamation.

SAY MURDER, SUICIDE

PENNICKY, Sask. (CP) — RCMP said a teen-age girl and a young man were killed in a shooting incident early Friday at Pennicky, 200 miles north of here. A second man was seriously wounded. The deaths of Verna McHabb, 17, and Sydney Blind, 25, apparently were murder and suicide, RCMP said.

'Happy Spirit of Cordiality' Marks Meeting of Prelates

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The statement issued on behalf of the Archbishop of Canterbury after his meeting with the Pope Friday.

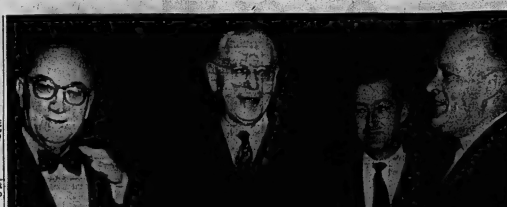
The Most Rev. Msgr. Archbishop Antonio Samoré acted as interpreter and the conversation lasted 50 minutes.

The Archbishop was able to give His Holiness some of the impressions which he had gained from his recent visit to Jerusalem and Istanbul, which were of special interest to His Holiness in view of the fact that as apostolic delegate at Istanbul for 10 years, he (the Pope) had close personal experience of the religious situation in the east.

His Holiness expressed to the Archbishop his great desire—as he did on many other occasions—to increase brotherly feelings among all men and especially among all Christians, and the Archbishop confirmed out of his own knowledge and experience how keen and widespread was the desire in many churches to act for the same purpose.



His Holiness recalled the memory of his great predecessor, St. Gregory the Great, who sent the first missionaries to England, and the Archbishop also touched upon personal experiences of a spiritual nature.

The Pope presented the Archbishop with the recently published volume of the Second Synod, the addresses delivered by His Holiness and the patriarch of Venice, the subject of the first year of the pontificate and the first volume of the preparatory acts of the Ecumenical Council.

The Archbishop was also presented with the silver medal.

The Archbishop was also presented with a special copy of the order of the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth II, bound in white vellum and bearing a special commemorative inscription for the occasion.

It was never intended that this should be an occasion for consideration of particular problems or issues, and the meeting retained throughout the character of a visit of courtesy. It was marked by happy spirit of cordiality and friendliness and has befitted a notable event in the history of church relations.

PLAN FURTHER MEETINGS — When a conference of provincial premiers, arranged by Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec, terminated at Quebec City yesterday it had been agreed that another conference be held at Victoria, B.C. next August, and that the premiers would meet periodically thereafter. Among the provincial leaders who reached this decision were the three premiers shown above, from left to right: Newfoundland's Joey Smallwood, Ontario's Leslie Frost and Quebec's Jean Lesage. Priest Given Three Years For Abduction

SUPERIOR, Wis. (AP) — A 47-year-old Roman Catholic priest pleaded guilty Friday to a charge of abducting a 17-year-old girl and was sentenced to three years in prison.

Rev. Lawrence Dudink, former chaplain at St. Mary's Hospital, pleaded guilty in Superior Court to a state charge that he abducted Rosalie O'Connell of Superior, Nov. 6 from the hospital where she had been admitted a few hours earlier for treatment of a nervous condition.

DECIDES TO RUN

Judge A. Walter Dahl pronounced sentence in an unusual closed court session, indicating penalty for abduction ranges up to 15 years, the same as under the kidnapping charge under which first was brought against the priest.

The priest was arrested at a Phoenix, Ariz., motel last week. The girl was returned to the custody of her parents.

Doctors Ending Spooky Ordeals Of Irish Girl

EDINBURGH (AP) — Doctors and clergymen are successfully ending the spooky ordeals of an 18-year-old Irish girl haunted by abnormal phenomena, the Church of Scotland said Friday night.

The church issued a formal statement signed by two doctors and a minister describing the strange things they saw while keeping watch at night over the girl, Virginia Campbell.

Virginia and her mother came to the Scottish village of Saughton two months ago from Moville, County Donegal, the supposed heart of the Irish leprechaun country.

According to their signed statement, the three men and other observers heard "knocking and scraping" as they watched over the girl. They said they saw pillows moving, bedclothes "rippling", "violent opening and closing" of a linen basket which moved.

"We conclude that the happenings could not be accounted for in the normal sense of cause and effect," they said.

TRIED TO HELP

"When the observances did not quickly disappear, we attempted to help the child by changing her environment, to deal by means of sedatives with her hysteria, which we all agreed was of a secondary emotional nature . . .

"All along we have recognized the possible importance of removing the child to her previous environment in Ireland.

"In our opinion the phenomena are rapidly diminishing and it is our belief that they may soon disappear altogether."

The church statement was signed by the family's doctor, Dr. W. H. Nisbet, the parish minister, Rev. T. W. Lund, and Dr. W. Logan.

Provincial Premiers Move To Hold Meeting Annually

By ALEXANDER FARRELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—The premiers of the provinces parted Friday, after a first decision to meet again next August in Charlottetown and periodically thereafter. Among the provincial leaders who reached this decision were the three premiers shown above, from left to right: Newfoundland's Joey Smallwood, Ontario's Leslie Frost and Quebec's Jean Lesage. come a time, as our experience deepens and our needs change, when a secretariat will be necessary.

"I should like you to feel the atmosphere of this conference. It was the first time that all the provinces have been represented at an interprovincial premiers' conference and we have all agreed to form a conference of premiers as a continuing body which will meet periodically."

The premiers emphasized that the conference will deal with interprovincial or provincial matters, as opposed to those considered federal-provincial in character.

Among matters they told to be in their competence were such things as marketing of farm products, amending the British North America Act, exchanging Hydro-Electric power and building new highway links.

Mr. Frost said it is intended to make the conference informal and private. They would be "in no way executive."

The federal government will have a standing invitation to send representatives. Prime Minister Diefenbaker sent a senior civil service observer, Sinclair Aked of the finance department, to this conference.

Mr. Frost said the conference would welcome the participation of a federal minister or ministers, which would undertake that "once in a while" one of a provincial premiers conference is to be a every way helpful in federal-provincial matters."

THEME IS COLLABORATION

Its theme is to be the development of interprovincial collaboration.

The conference of premiers agreed to be the basis of this development.

Premier Lesage said he also brought a sense of evolution to the conference he had promoted successfully various levels of established interprovincial relations on a permanent footing—and unanimously."

He issued the conference communique and gave a press conference in French. Premier Frost of Ontario, the conference chairman, did the same in English.

'IN the feeling.'

Mr. Frost said, "that there is very much to be gained from periodic meetings and exchanges of views and discussions of interprovincial and provincial problems. This is a logical step in the collaboration required in these days, not only between the various levels of government but within the respective provincial governments."

A reporter asked Mr. Lesage if he were disappointed that no new British institutions evolution

Empty Nova Scotia Rivers Hard on Spawning Salmon

By IRA DILTZ DEALE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP) — The hardy Atlantic salmon fought a losing battle for its life in Nova Scotia rivers and streams last summer.

Some rivers ran almost empty, leaving salmon no place to spawn. Besides the dry summer, the fish had to contend with the usual threats—loggers, poachers and construction.

Preliminary reports indicate about 2,000 salmon were taken by rod and reel in 1959 there were 5,181 caught and in 1958 the number was 5,194. Last summer's catch was reminiscent of 1907 when the catch was 1,684. Clarence M. Mason, provincial conservation director, says salmon are getting scarcer by the years and steps must be taken to help them breed.

His branch of the lands and forests department has prepared for presentation to the federal fisheries department a list of regulations for helping the salmon survive.

The proposals, including one for a $5 resident licence and a $20 non-resident fee, have been approved by the provincial government. There must be no fee for salmon fishing in Nova Scotia.

The chief protection officer of the federal department would be given power to halt salmon fishing in any area to ensure the future of the fishery.

Catches in six of the province's best salmon rivers—Medway, LaHave, Mouse's, St. Mary's, Margaree and North River—would be limited to three salmon or grilse a day or 12 a week. This year's regulations permitted a daily catch of five and 20 weekly.

The brief urged the changes on the grounds that "stocks of Atlantic salmon have decreased to an alarmingly low level in the last quarter century."

Mr. Mason said the effect of the hot summer is not expected to be felt fully for several years.

Atlantic salmon leave the salt water in the spring and lay their eggs in a gravel river bed where there is a constant flow of water.

Mr. Mason said heavy lumbering operations cause the water to run off. Standing trees gather moisture through their roots and store it, keeping rivers fairly constant even in dry weather. When the trees are gone, the rivers run full until all the water has run off and then dry up.

Some experts say also that a rise of a few degrees in the water by lumbering operations has curbed spawning. And power plants have contributed, the Liquet, Mersey, Annapolis and Sheet Harbor rivers, preventing the salmon there from reaching former breeding grounds.

Illegal netting of salmon in the rivers has had a serious effect, Mr. Mason added.

Many Motorists Still Have Pointless Record

HAMILTON (CP) — Hundreds of Ontario motorists believe they have collected points under the Ontario driver demerit system.

But they are wrong.

Many still have pointless records.

Following the introduction of the plan on April 1, 1959, the highway safety branch of the Ontario department of transport issued thousands of cards to motorists.

On the reverse side of the card is a list of offences and their respective demerits.

It says that a motorist convicted of exceeding the speed limit by 10 miles or under will collect two points.

But, a spokesman for the department of transport revealed Friday, this exceeding the demerit plan is not being enforced.

Maurice Earl, registrar of motor vehicles, said that speed limits on all provincial highways were being reviewed.

While the survey was taking place, the two-point category was being held in abeyance.

"We are seeking to establish more realistic speed limits on the various highways," said Mr. Earl.

Vivien Leigh Secures Divorce

LONDON (AP) — Actress Vivien Leigh, 47, was granted a divorce Friday for Sir Laurence Olivier, 53, on grounds of Olivier's adultery with actress Joan Plowright, 28.

Miss Plowright's husband, actor Roger Lesoder Casey, was given a divorce in the same court on the same grounds.

Neither Sir Laurence nor Miss Plowright defended the suits. Olivier was ordered to pay the costs of both his wife's and Casey's suits.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Cpl. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Tonight a former slick jim-dandy, one of the finest ring-masters in the circus of global boxing pits saying legs and muscles against a human bulldozer for the middleweight championship of the world.

Sugar Ray Robinson, who upped his training footwork with song-and-dance routines, faces Utah's Gene Fullmer, current holder of the crown, in a fifteen-rounder in Los Angeles.

SUGAR RAY ROBINSON

Barrel-chested Fullmer, who rushes to the attack like a well bandered Spanish toreador now in the main event of a Spanish steak-brawl, is rated a 2-1 favorite over the former darling of Montmartre and the cognac cheateurs of the boulevards of Jazz Paree.

Just to keep the record straight, Fullmer is the recognized world champion of the middleweight class in every state of the Union except New York and Massachusetts. That should teach him to vote Democrat in the next presidential main bout.

A gentleman by the name of Paul Fender gets the nod as world middle champ in three Kennedy strongholds. Twice this year Mr. Fender has out-walked, out-weaved and out-fought (the judges said) the handsome negro.

Last year when Sugar Ray was in training for a battle with Uncle Sam in the hopes of getting at least a draw with the national income tax department, he neglected to defend his then world middleweight title, and as a result awakened one morning to find his noggin' bereft of the baubles.

The crown-snatcher was the National Boxing Association... But Il Ole New York and the home of the cod and Cabots, the state of Massachusetts, looked askance at such piracy. They withdrew from the NBA and set a two-piece middleweight crown on the well-groomed pate of Sugar Ray.

That left Gene Fullmer champion of forty-nine states. Europe, Formosa and the rest of the capitalistic world, and Master Robinson the king of the middles in New York and Massachusetts.

Then out of all places, Boston, Mass., up popped a would-be usurper by the name of Paul Pender. Perhaps out of a feeling of appreciation for recognition, Sugar decided to give this young upstart a crack at his two-state coronation plate.

The experts claimed Sugar took the youngster too lightly and as a result did not train too much. He lost the decision. Then he tried again. This time he worked out longer. Alas he came out on the short end of the verdict and young Mr. Pender wore his crown a little more jauntily.

Then the Sugar decided to go after the big title. He signed to fight the Bull of the Usaba and the word has got around he trained harder for tonight's bastle during the last week than he did for the entire get-ready periods with Pender.

The fight was slated for early October but Fullmer pulled a leg muscle and the bout was postponed until tonight. The Robinson forces, claim the delay has helped their man. They say it helped the Sugar to perfect certain undisclosed pokes of his combat strategy.

Fullmer, his corner says, has had no training problems. The leg muscle injury is cured. Besides the Mormon never stays more than a week away from fighting trim.

This will be Fullmer's fourth defence of the title he acquired in his fight for the then-vacant crown with Carmen Basilio in San Francisco, August 24, 1959. Subsequently he whipped Spider Webb in 15 rounds at Logan, Utah; drew with Joey Giardello in Bozeman, Montana, in 15 and knocked out Basilio again in 12 in Salt Lake City last June 29.

Fullmer can go the distance. The question is can Sugar Ray. After all Gene is 29; Sugar 39.

Bruins Out Of Hibernation, Meet Habs

Leafs Clash With Rangers

By The Canadian Press

What does it take to make a winning streak in the National Hockey League?

For General Manager Lynn Patrick of the Boston Bruins, it doesn't take much. The Bruins are riding the crest of two straight games without a defeat and Patrick already is talking, if not hopefully, at least a bit more cheerfully.

The Bruins, who won their first game in 12 tries Thursday night by dumping Detroit Red Wings out of Nat place, put their budding streak on the line tonight when they face the get-ling - warmer Montreal Canadiens.

Patrick, mind you, is not saying his team is going to win the Stanley Cup but because they have a win and a tie in their last two outings. But he and coach Milt Schmidt hope the Bruins have had their full share for the rest of the season of winless drought.

RANGERS AT TORONTO

In tonight's only other action, last - place New York Rangers visit Toronto Maple Leafs, who have managed only one tie in their last three outings.

Adding Toronto's woes was a medical report Friday that right winger Ron Stewart will be out indefinitely with a broken toe suffered during Thursday night's 6-2 loss in Montreal.

Both Montreal and Boston will be going with their new coal tenders tonight — Charlie Hodge and Bruce Gamble.

Hodge, who stepped into the Canadian nets to replace Jacques Plante, has been in goal for Montreal's three wins Plante, winner of the Vezina trophy the last five years, is nursing an injured knee, the club says.

HAS PLAYED WELL

Gamble was called up to replace Don Simmons while the Bruins were floundering in the debris of their winless streak Nl and Boston officials are happy with his play.

Patrick says he is counting on the 22-year-old native of Port Arthur to help the club. "He played well against Detroit," he noted.

Returning to Montreal ice for the first time since he was traded early this week is Andre Pronovost. Coy Gendron, who went to Montreal from Boston in the player swap, impressed his new bosses with his performance against Toronto Thursday, when he scored one goal.

Tell Durelle Pay or Else

NEWCASTLE, N.B. (CP) — Yvon Durelle, former Canadian and British Empire light heavyweight boxing champion, Friday was given until Dec. 27 to pay up when he failed to produce $25 or settle a fine imposed in magistrate's court here for failing to file a 1959 income tax return.

In default of payment, Magistrate John P. Morrissy offered an alternative of 30 days in jail. The fine, maximum for the offence, was levied after Durelle changed his plea to guilty from an earlier one of, not guilty.

He was not represented by counsel.

Champ Gene Fullmer Favored To Give Sugar His Lumps

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Champion Gene Fullmer places his middleweight boxing title on the line tonight and Sugar Ray Robinson, who has worn the crown five times, tries for it again.

It will be the third meeting between Robinson, at 29 still a headline threat, and Fullmer, 28-year-old brawler from West Jordan, Utah. They go into the ring at the new Sports Arena for 15 rounds or less. The match starts at 10 p.m. EST.

Fullmer holds the National Boxing Association's version of the world championship. He is recognized almost everywhere except in the states of New York and Massachusetts.

Fullmer remained the betting favorite. The odds were around 2½ to 1 to 3 to 1.

This could be Robinson's last fight in a brilliant 20 years of ring warfare—or the start of a new phase in his career.

If Fullmer has waited three years for the clash, it dates back to the only knockout he has ever suffered, by Robinson for the then - undisputed world championship. One explosive left hook to the chin cooled Fullmer for the count. It happened May 1, 1957, in Chicago.

In 1958 the NBA lifted its recognition of Robinson as champion for his failure to defend the crown. Fullmer won NBA recognition for the vacant title when he knocked out Carmen Basilio Aug. 25, 1959, in 15 rounds.

Wolves Win Over Birds

SUDBURY (CP) — Right winger John Flower harvested five points Friday night as he led Sudbury Wolves to their second straight Eastern Professional Hockey League.

He now has nine points in two games, among only 10 in the league.

The largest crowd of the season, 3,653, watched the Wolves take a 2-1 lead in the first period and stretch it to 5-3 heading into the final frame. About 1,000 of the fans were high school students attending the game for a special price of 25 cents.

Fred Hills, Ed Kachur, Merv Kurpiuk and John Offidani scored Soo's goals. Hills added two assists to move into second place in the league scoring race with 32 points, four behind Cliff Pennington of Hull-Ottawa.

Other Sudbury scorers were Tom McCaffrey with two, Tommy Burton, Bill McGregor and Ken Girard.

Owners Collect Million

NEW YORK (AP) — One million dollars, a record payment in annual insurance, was given Friday to the syndicate-owners of Bally Ache, the age three-year - old colt who died Oct. 28.

The insurance company holding the claim disclosed that the syndicate, headed by Morris and Leonard Fruchtman of Toledo and Joseph Arnaud of Versailles, Ky., had paid $12,500 for the colt.

Bally Ache, son of $138,-522 in his brief racing career, died of an intestinal virus and acute colitis shortly before he was scheduled to enter stud.

The son of Ballydam - Celestial Blue was sold by Edgehill Farms to the syndicate member syndicate for $1,250,000 last April on the eve of the Preakness Stakes, which he won.

The policy, which stood at $750,000 before the syndication was increased to $1,000,000 at that time at an annual rate of $12,500.

Oilers Could Grab Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Houston Oilers likely will have to depend on rookie Jack Lee again Sunday in their quest to wrap up the American Football League's Eastern Division title.

Lee, who did his pitching for the University of Cincinnati last season, threw his first start and two two weeks ago because of an injury. He responded by outpassed the Oilers to two straight victories and put them within a game of clinching the division title.

Hands, still limping badly from the ankle injury he received in the first game of the Eagles three weeks ago, may be ready for a post duty Sunday against the Eagles. But Coach Lou Rykus probably will have to count on Lee for most of the work.

A win Sunday would give the Oilers a 9-3 record with two games to play. The other three eastern teams have all lost six games each.

Similarly, Houston beats Dallas and Los Angeles Chargers whip Buffalo, the Houston Oilers could take the Western Division title. The other Sunday games are New York at Denver and Boston at Buffalo.

U.S. College Football

NEW YORK (AP) — UCLA's Billy Kilmer aims for the total offense title, Duke's Mike Mercer tackles a 21-year-old case of Callege Football Fever and Virginia hopefully tries to sidestep a share of the record major college losing streak in today's windup or the regular college football season.

Duke is at UCLA in tie. first California appearance since a great unbeaten, untied, uncrowned upon Rose Bowl club was beaten 7-3 in the last minute of a dramatic Rose Bowl game in 1950.

The fewer the better for the new edition Devils, headed for the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, if they will have to contain UCLA tailback Kilmer, who needs but 27 yards to win the total offense championship from Washington State's Bobby Jacks.

Virginia's last victory was in 1958, 25-6 over Duke. The 45-14 setbacks have been beaten 27 times since, including nine times this season.

To keep these games company, bowl activity gets moving on the 16th month-long run. There's the Sugar Bowl at Bamger, Calif., that will fill the berths for next Saturday's Holiday Bowl at St. Petersburg, Fla.

These match four of the collegiate's hardest small college squads, with Whitworth (9-0) playing Humboldt State (10-0) in the runner-up in the final AP small college poll, against Northern Michigan (8-1-1) in Hickory, N.C. this afternoon.

Western Hockey

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Claude Evans got a rough introduction to the Western Hockey League Friday night when his shutout bid dissolved in the third period and his Vancouver Canucks went down to a 4-3 loss to Edmonton Flyers in overtime.

The veteran netminder from Kitchener of the Eastern Professional Hockey League might have had it rougher if he had been in Victoria. The league leading Calgary Stampeders defected Victoria Cougars 9-7.

Friday's fourth goalie to be beaten by the Canucks this season.

Edmonton scorers were Ed Fitzchuk, Chuck Holmes, Ray Ernsel and Gene Achtymichuck. Vancouver counters were by Jim Bowen, Lorne Carmichael and Danny Belisle.

The victory gave Edmonton sole possession of second place, one point behind Calgary. Vancouver is two points back of Flyers in third place.

Jim Brown led Stampeders with three goals and one assist. Wally Hergesheimer and rookie Cliff Bristow each scored twice and Ron Leopold and Lee Jackson

Jeannot Gilbert scored two goals as Niagara Falls Flyers defeated the league-leading Toronto Marlboros 4-1 at Falls Friday night to climb within one point of the Majors in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series.

Fullerton outshot St. Michael's by a wide margin but the determination of Dave Dryden in the St. Michael's net and Wayne Rutledge in the Niagara Falls goal kept it a scoreless first period.

Marcel Trestler opened for the Flyers on a breakaway in the second minute of the second session. The 3,286 fans went wild.

Hamilton Penalized

Majors came into the running with Flyers short - handed two minutes later when Ron Ingram pumped home a passout from behind the Falls cage.

Hamilton was penalized early his first marker four minutes apart in the third. The Eagles threw weeks ago, may be ready for a spot duty Sunday against the Giants. But Coach Lou Rykus probably will have to count on Lee for most of the work.

Says CAHA Does Well By Tourists

MELVILLE, Sask. (CP)—Gordon Juckes, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, has expressed reluctance to enter into a long-range deal with playing-coach Odie Lowe of Vernon Canadians over the finances of touring Canadian hockey teams.

Such a debate "can serve no useful purpose for Canadian hockey," Juckes said in an interview Friday night.

Lowe had challenged Juckes to back up a recent statement about touring teams with financial facts. Juckes' statement had followed criticism by Lowe of the CAHA for sponsoring European tours while teams were struggling at home.

Lowe suggested the CAHA subsidize senior amateur leagues in financial trouble. He asked why, if European authorities were under contract to provide expenses, Kelowna Packers of the Okanagan League were left to raise $20,000 by public subscription before they could tour Russia and Sweden in 1958.

Juckes Friday night reiterated statements that arrangements for teams touring Europe this season are such that all travelling expenses, plus all expenses while in host countries are provided to the teams.

The CAHA also provides uniforms, gives an allowance for excess baggage and another allowance for general expenses and, in most cases, the team is provided with a certain amount of pocket money in the currency of the host country, he said.

It was O'Malley's steadfast refusal to permit the American League to open shop in Los Angeles that blocked the junior circuit's bid for an expansion program for 1961 and resulted in a proposal for two nine - team leagues for 1961 with an interlocking schedule next year.

Meeting Monday

The National will vote on the nine-team proposal Monday, O'Malley has already been reported to have lined up two supporters for the revolutionary idea but he needs two more for a majority. It doesn't seem likely he will get them.

No details of the amendment have been made public, but an American League spokesman said "the points involve certain rights we could go to (to Los Angeles) . . . they also deal with ball parks, scheduling, etc."

The spokesman said a group headed by Kenny Brown, Los Angeles radio and television-tycoon, backed by movie star Gene Autry and Bobby Reynolds, former Stanford University football star, is almost certain to land the Los Angeles franchise.

Must Beat Cardinals

Eagles Title-Bound

By JIM KENSIL

NEW YORK (AP)—The last time Philadelphia Eagles and coach Buck Shaw were in title games was 1949. The Eagles won and Shaw lost.

Now they'd like to win together, but must beat St. Louis Cardinals Sunday to clinch the Eastern Conference crown in the National Football League. The Eagles are five-point road favorites to score their ninth straight victory.

That would give Shaw as many victories as he totalled in the last two seasons, his first with the Eagles.

His title game shot was as coach of the Eagles' 49ers in the old All-America conference, the AAC. The 49ers took two division titles in 1948—its last year of operation.

Shaw has never coached a conference champion in the NFL league, even though he worked his miracle with the 49ers after he came into the NFL in 1950.

Cleveland Browns beat the 49ers, 21-7, in the AAC's final title game and the same year in the NFL the Eagles took the crown with a 14-0 victory over the Los Angeles Rams.

PLANS TO RETIRE

In between his time with the Eagles, Shaw spent three years as coach at the Air Force Academy. Now the word is that he'll leave this season and would like to do it after a title-game victory at Philadelphia Dec. 26.

It could be the 49ers, but right now Cleveland, defending champion Baltimore Colts and the winner of Sunday's Green Bay-Chicago game have the best chances.

The Browns, with a halfgame lead, are 13-point favorites over the visiting Detroit Lions (4-3). At Chicago, the second-place Bears (5-3-1) are four-point favorites over the defending champs (4-5).

Pittsburgh, the 49ers (3-4) are four-point underdogs to the Rams (3-5-1) at Los Angeles.

BATTLE FOR SECOND

With only two Sundays remaining, losers by the Rams and Cards would be eliminated by the 49ers and Packers-virtually assuring

With the Eagles needing only one victory in their remaining two games, the Eastern race is to see who goes to Miami Jan 1 in the league's new second-place playoff game.

Cleveland Browns and New York Giants, both 5-3-1, are favored to win Sunday and move toward a Dec. 18 meeting that should virtually whip Eishers behind the Eagles. The Giants are 14-point home favorites over Dallas Cowboys (0 - 10), and the Browns rate 13 better than the Washington Redskins (1-6-2) at Cleveland.

Moose Kill High in N.B.

FREDERICTON (CP) — New Brunswick's first moose-hunting season in 27 years closed at dusk Friday night and early reports indicated a high proportion of kills.

A total of 400 persons were authorized to hunt in five-day seasons, the result of a drawing from more than 8,000 applications, but only 372 remitted the necessary $15 license fee. Each hunter was limited to one kill.

Hunters have five days in which to submit reports on their activities to the fish and wildlife branch of the lands and mines department. The season was an experiment to gather data on the province's moose population.

Final figures will not likely be tabulated for some days. But reports received so far suggested that most of the licence - holders bagged a moose.

Hockey Hints

By Lloyd Percival

"NOT TOO CLOSE"

Jean Beliveau, the smooth skating and clever centre star of the Montreal Canadiens, besides being an excellent playmaker and checker, is a consistent scoring threat who takes full advantage of any scoring opportunities that come his way. Whereas the average player needs as many as 9 or ten chances before he gets one past the goalkeeper, Beliveau gets one every 6 or 7 clear chances.

One of the reasons the Montreal player has such a good scoring per chance percentage provides a lesson every young player should learn as soon as possible. Watching Beliveau he can see that you will rarely be successfully resists the temptation to go in too close before shooting. Usually he shoots from 10-15 feet out, knowing that he gets any closer the target area gets smaller and the goalkeeper is able to come out and cut down the angle.

It is wise to consider the area from 10 feet out as "Scoring Area" as "No Man's Land" in which the chances of scoring are greatly lessened. Resist the desire to get closer and shoot. Shoot away as Beliveau usually does. For hints on shooting send a stamped, self - addressed envelope and 10c c/o Hockey Hints 80 Elm St., Toronto, for my bulletin, "Geoffrion, The Board Breaker".

Indians Win Eight in Row

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Springfield's high-flying Indians made it eight American Hockey League victories in a row by rallying for a 5-4 decision over Americans 5-4 Friday night.

The Indians, who now have won 18 and lost only five, needed a three-goal outburst within an 84-minute span late in the second period and early in the last period for victory.

Rochester grabbed a 2-0 lead on Gerry Ehman's scores at 10:50 and 5:25 of the first period. Harry Poilpre got one back for Springfield with 44 seconds remaining but rookie Jim Pappin and Ehman made it safe with goals at 8:49.

Then the Indians took charge. Bill Sweeney scored at 14:57 and Jimmy Anderson at 18:30 of the second period and Bruce Cline at 0:35 and Noel Price at 3:35 of the third. Dave Creighton finished the scoring for Americans at 6:30.

Marcel Paille was outstanding in the nets for Springfield, kicking away 34 shots—14 of them in a hectic second period.

Leafs Call McMillan

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League Friday night announced Johnny MacMillan of the American League's Rochester Americans has been called up by the Leafs to replace injured Ron Stewart.

The announcement followed a hurried trip by coach George Punch, Imlach to Rochester to watch the Leafs farm club in action against Springfield Indians.

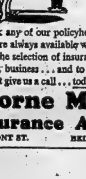
Imlach made the trip after it was learned Stewart will be lost for the indefinitely as the result of a broken right ankle suffered in the closing moments of a game in Montreal against the Canadiens Thursday night.

MacMillan, 25, a graduate of the University of Denver, attended the Leafs training camp this fall. In 22 games with the Americans he scored four goals and assisted on four others.

New York Yankees

Manager Reveals Plans

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The new manager of New York Yankees will be Ralph Houk, a man from the bullpen to a starting pitcher's role and hopes to abandon Casey Stengel's platoon system.



Ralph Houk, 40, who succeeded Stengel shortly after the world series, revealed his plans Friday at a press conference.

"I'm going to start Duren", said Houk. "He started for me when I managed Denver and he started only one game last year after the gunnash was clinched, but he struck out the first five men he faced in Washington.

"As a starter he can take more advantage of his slider and change. Or relief he can start a game. He had to pump, pump, pump. At times it got to the point where he wasn't using his help".

Houk said he preferred to play his men in the same positions day after day. In Casey's regime a man often started at second, played a few innings at third and wound up at shortstop.

Houk said he would not trade any of his regular infielders and added that, in his opinion, the only possibility of a major Yankees deal would be for a pitcher.

Palm Beach Golf

Snead Grabs Lead

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Sam Snead jumped into the lead and opened into first place in the $15,000 West Palm Beach golf tournament Friday with a 70 for a two-round total of 136.

George Bayer of Gleneagles, Ill., who had a seven-under par 65 for a three-stroke margin in the first round, was dropped into a 75 Friday and his 140 total dropped him into a tie for second place with John Barnum of Greenwich, Conn.

Toronto pro Al Balding, who shot a two-under par 70 in the first round, went two over par 74 and ended with a 146. Montreal's 'Al Johnson held par in the second round and is 76-146.

Toronto's George Knudson had a 73 for a 147 total. Winnipeg's Will Homenuk and Edmonton's Bill Wright both went over the 150-mark and are out of the tournament. Homenuk was 76-81— 157 and Wright 76-77—153.

Senior Hockey

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stratford Indians, buoyed by the spectacular netminding of Ron Gallaher, defeated four unbeatened goalie in the last two periods of an Ontario Hockey Association Senior Series game here against Galt Terriers Friday night and moved into first place by virtue of the four-point 4-0 win.

In the only other league action Woodstock Athletics defeated Windsor Bulldogs 6-4 and dropped into third place from a tie for second. Galt Terriers are tied with Stratford and Chatham, each with 13 points, but the four points win the Indians a slim one point more than Windsor and two more than Woodstock.

Galt scored first on a Terrier goal by Bill Gray.

Saturday weathered a strong Galt outburst early in the third, before Gallaher stopped four-man rush by Butch Gray-ham, Billy Flick and Jack Mc-

At Woodstock Gord Loveday's two goals led the Athletics' attack. Windsor opened the scoring midway through the first on a goal by Ed Switzer, but Loveday tied it at 5:40 and seconds later, scoring on a pass from behind the net by Rio Caron.

Bill Ellis, Jack Lake Smola and Jack Taylor and Loveday's second goal gave the Athletics a 5-1 lead into the third period. Windsor's final goal came with less than nine minutes to play, when Len Siscoli scored on a bouncing drive from the blue line.

Next weekend, action will be continued to a home-and-home exchange as Windsor and Strathroy — tonight in Strathroy and Sunday afternoon in Windsor.

Will Try Land, Water Speed Runs

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Mickey Thompson's enthusiasm for speed will carry him into new fields next year.

Only a month ago a speedboat accident nearly ended the auto racer's career when he was told his legs might be permanently paralyzed.

But Thompson already is waiting and plans several events next year, including an attempt at a world land speed record on the Bonneville Salt Flats in Utah and another on water.

Thompson was here Friday for talks with officials of the Bonneville Speedway Association. A representative of England's Donald Campbell also attended.

Thompson, of El Monte, Calif., told reporters he hopes to set a world's land speed record in his car. He said he would next year be travelled 476.6 miles an hour in his Challenger I over the 11-mile salt track. He was unable to set a record when his car broke down on the return run.

Campbell suffered a basal skull fracture early this year when he slipped out of control on the Salt Lake course and hit at a speed of 300 miles an hour.

Thompson wears a back brace from the speedboat accident, which occurred on Lake Mead when he was slammed sharply into the seat as his boat was prying up and he was coming down. The injury crushed two vertebrae in his back.

CLOSE OUT REASON

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Eddie Johns and Nick Ryder brought Miami two four-quarter touchdowns Friday night and the University of Miami defeated the Bowling Academy 23-14 in the final football game of the season for both teams before 29,678 in the Orange Bowl. In all, Johns picked up 127 of the 273 yards Miami gained rushing.

Although we are located in a television reception "fringe" area, most of us enjoy excellent pictures and clear sound on our sets with a number of channels to choose from.

One of the chief contributions to this high quality TV picture has been the development of the Cascode Tuner. Without going into technical details, this tuner has practically the same effect as a built-in booster to enable your set to "pull in" stations more clearly. TV stations which were once completely out of range are now available for you to enjoy.

Make the most of the tremendous technical achievements built into your television set! If the reception on your set isn't all it should be, don't delay any longer — call CIRCLE TV SERVICE, 260 Coleman St. They'll bring back peak power to your set at moderate cost. Phone WO 8-6791.

Likely to Finish Out Season Without Replacing W. Bond

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Whither Wagon Train?

That question has been asked ever since the high - ranking western lost its wagonmaster with the death of Ward Bond four weeks ago. Now comes Bond's co-star and scout, Robert Horton, with an inkling of what the future will hold.

"I have an idea that we'll finish out this season without replacing Mr. Bond," said Horton. "We still have five pictures in which he appears, and I think should carry us through the next two months.

"I'll be doing more than my usual share, and we'll probably make use of the two other continuing characters, the wagonmaster's righthand man, played by Terry Wilson, and the cook, played by Frank McGrath.

"Then next season, if I'm doing a show, the first one in the series in which neither Mr. Bond nor I appear. They did one in their first year with Ralph Meeker and neither of us, but later some scenes of Ward were injected."

PLANS NEXT YEAR

And what of next season?

"I'm sure we'll get another wagonmaster," Horton said. "They have talked to me, about taking over the role and hiring another actor as scout. I wouldn't do it.

"If there were a scene on the trail where the wagonmaster died and I had to take over his duties? I would agree. But I don't think it makes sense for me to do it permanently. I think the public expects a more mature man—a father image, if you will —in the role. I think I'm too young to qualify. . . . I think they're going to have a very rough time replacing Bond."

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Sunday, December 4

General tendencies: A Sunday in which you only win out if you live the Golden Rule and really think deeply upon what it is that you do in relation to the facilities and precepts of your choice. Attending services, studying, thinking in Nature's beauty, all helps.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Important you exercise the greatest care while travelling today, whether afoot or in your car. Also, elevate your level of spiritual consciousness. Be courteous and the soul of gentility with all. P. M. assist those in need.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Endeavor to return to the fine standards under which you were reared so that you give more time to matters of the spirit. You have been a little too materialistic of late. Also, take the opportunity to assist those who are afflicted.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Try not to lose your temper today or you can lose some valuable and dear friends, and possibly get into serious trouble. Live in the spirit of Sunday. P. M. plan the days ahead wisely but don't commit yourself with anyone.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 23) — Refrain from doing or saying something that will hurt another, perhaps through jealousy or you may be the loser. Live on a higher plane of existence. P. M. take the best treatments you need, improve wardrobe, hair, etc.

Leo (July 24 to Aug. 21) — Be tolerant with comrades until 2 P. M. since they may be under some sort of pressure. Evening is best spent getting your monetary affairs planned wisely, your coming activities nicely attended to. Papers should be neatly filed.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — If you don't exercise care, not diplomatic, unkind remarks can be directed your way. However, later in the day, be sure you are not forceful with others. Be a bit lazy in expressing your desires to the right people in P.M.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Make it a point to listen to the priceless words of a highly enlightened pretate in A. M. Use this new - found wisdom later in dealing with others, especially where practical interests are concerned.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — You can rid yourself of any envious feelings this morning by attending the services of your choice and elevate consciousness. Later, steer clear of that overly charming individual with wild ideas. Stick to loyal friends.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Don't give in to that urge to say that is not good for you today, you can get into trouble with associate or with the public in general. Dwell on more spiritual matters. P. M. be cheerful and help depressed mate.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Serve those who have been good to you this morning and give concrete evidence of your devotion. The remainder of the day be sure to keep any promises made to partners so that no arguments will ensue. Be courteous, too.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Important you are affectionate with loved ones today, and avoid hurt feelings, long-off pride. The rest of the day is fine for taking the health treatments you need, and looking after your wardrobe, carrying through with beauty secrets.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Generosity and gentility will attract any possible arguments that might result from today's tense atmosphere. Later, drink to less expensive form of entertainment since extravagance would get you nowhere and give you minimum of satisfaction.

If your child is born today — there will be a tremendous amount of innate energy in the natives, which is fine, fortunately, provided you early channel it. It's the right channels, and teach your youngster to finish one task before going on to another. If you don't, you will have the proverbial rolling stone that gathers no moss. Then the chart is fine for any business endeavors. Twilight years are full of wisdom and very comfortable.

General tendencies: A day when most everyone is apt to be emotional and to feel that you are being very much put upon and not properly appreciated by those whom you love. Forget all that self - pity and make a point to look at outside conditions and get them organized on a firm and secure basis. Make long - range changes in tactful manner.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Concentrate on home and family affairs today and this evening. Have a long talk with close one, come to a real understanding, then co-ordinate your affairs and efforts. Listen carefully before arriving at decisions.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Particular care is necessary in all that you do and say today. Also, some unfortunate matter from the past could hurt you financially. Be frugal. Devote spare time, be with happy and cheerful people. Make plans for the future.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — While you may feel depressed because you are not as affluent as you might want to be, if you elevate your consciousness to bigger things,—you can easily have an abundance soon. Get the advice of authorities, too, for faster progress.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — You are so wrapped up in your own desires and ambitions that you fail to listen to the wants of associates. Do so now and you will find that by co-ordinating your efforts there will be mutual benefit, and a remarkable degree.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21)—If you give in to depression over the past or some as yet unrealized ambition, you can take away from today's fine aspects for greater success. Clear your mind early and then be most charming with everyone and you win out.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — You feel that you are making very little progress at the time, but if you will get together with associates and be more co-operative, real strides forward are possible. P. M. do not be argumentative at any social functions.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Important you guard your good name now, or you can be very unhappy and get into much trouble. Get your credit higher, be respectful with executives, do your very best work.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Try not to give in to that urge to shake the dust from your present surroundings from your feet and wander off into the unknown, or you will be the loser. Concentrate instead on more efficient system of operating and you win.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Your intuition is inaccurate right now, so be sure not to follow it or you get into trouble both in material as well as personal affairs. Also, be sure you evince no envy with anyone, anywhere. Be controlled, take it easy.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Imperative you listen carefully to whatever associates wish to say informally today. Also, curb your temper so that no arguments arise with those who are of a different opinion to your own. Scrupulously keep promises.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Dig in, and handle all those small duties that await you, but first get into an enthusiastic attitude. Avoid depression or you spoil the day for others, too. A quiet, relaxed manner will see the work behind you very quickly.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Aspects are not favorable for having a wonderful time today, particularly if you are extravagant and get into disfavor with loved one. Quietly work on your favorite hobbies and try to perfect them. Become truly adept. Relax.

If your child is born today — there will early manifest itself a desire to make the world a better place to live in. Also, real ability is soon evident in how to best resolve any existing problems. So, be sure you train, and educate properly to fit your youngster for such important work as trouble - shooting, especially in government. However watch early to be selective and not become emotionally involved.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY

GOING INTO THE COIN - OPERATED LAUNDERETTE STORE BUSINESS?

You're Wise — But Be Sure of Its Dependability with a Program Before You Buy!

ASK THESE QUESTIONS:

Does the distributor have balanced laundry store equipment or is he selling you untried, makeshift, "home-type" equipment? Does his inventory more parts? Can he plan your store layout for maximum efficiency? What has been the record of stores he has sold? How many? Does he provide you with a complete continuing promotion materials, and advertising?

ALD is the national organization of Automatic Laundries Limited, with over 100 coin-operated Laundromats in stores throughout the Provinces of Canada. To see if it is yourself to compare our ALD Laundromats with those of the Westinghouse commercial Laundromat. Ask for the names of ALD owners in your area. Check their laundry wash and trouble-free operation. Then you'll know what's best.

YOU CAN BE SURE IF IT'S WESTINGHOUSE - - - AND WHEN YOU'RE DEALING WITH ALD

Doctor Says Offer to Walker Still Stands

PRESCOTT (CP) — Dr. Mahlon Seeley, the Prescott chiropractor who offered $5,000 in trade to marathon walker Ed Sanford, a $5,000 medical student, Griffin if he walked to Vancouver, said today the offer still stands.

Ever since I left him at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.," said Dr. Seeley, "But if Sanford proves to me that he walked all the way, he'll get the money and the scholarship.

The doctor, whose specially-designed shoes Sanford wore, said Kevin was supposed to keep him posted on each day's progress.

I haven't heard a thing from him but the doctor said in an interview, "Only thing I did was buy him a car for $400 to sleep in and he sold it four days later".

Griffin arrived in Vancouver in time for the Grey Cup football game. Nov., 26, and said all he got from his sponsor was a telegram congratulating him. He claims he has a contract with the chiropractor.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

Municipal Officials in Many Cities to Be Chosen Monday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Electors in most of Ontario's cities, towns and townships will choose slates of municipal officials Monday, Dec. 5.

Many will be all or almost unanimously on new bylaws, notably on the controversial questions of Sunday sports or movies.

A number of communities will vote at later dates, either this month or in January.

Among those voting Monday, main interest outside the immediate community centres on Toronto and Ottawa, were lively contests have developed for the mayoralty chairs of the provincial and national capitals.

In Toronto the city's first Jewish mayor, Nathan Phillip, is trying for a record eight - year run against the opposition of two candidates including former mayor Allan Lamport, a storm centre in civic politics for many years.

AGAIN

In Ottawa, it's a case of a woman mayor trying to make a come back. Charlotte Whitton, Charlotte Whitton, who quit the mayoralty four years ago and became a newspaper columnist, is running against three others who left mayoralty for retirement of George Nelms, who succeeded her.

Her main opposition is from Sam Berger, lawyer, president of the Big Four Football League, former president of the Grey Cup champion Ottawa Rough Riders and the capital's first Jewish mayoralty candidate.

For a time this week, it appeared Ottawa's election might be postponed because of the death of David L. Burgess, a candidate for a board of control seat. However, arrangements with the provincial government permitted the election to go on as scheduled. Heavy advance polling was reported Friday.

Among others of the largest cities, Hamilton already has given an acclamation to Mayor Lloyd Jackson. Acclamations have been accorded also in Brantford, Niagara Falls and St. Thomas.

The bill cleared the Commons at 3:25 p.m. Friday by a vote of 127 to 33. The Conservatives supported it, opposed by the Liberals, the CCF and the single New Party MP. The Senate took two hours to send the bill through the committee stage — a normal procedure in a single sitting. Royal assent was given by Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin, on behalf of the Governor-General, at 6:05 P.M.

At 6:30 p.m. the bill was proclaimed at law.

Then more than 5,000 telegrams were sent across the country by the union leaders — notifying each local that the strike had been suspended by government order.

WANT NO PRESENT

The debate in the Commons

tion of Sunday sports, plays or movies. There is voting on extension of the municipal franchise to non - property owners, two on financial matters and one on establishment of liquor outlets.

The movie vote — Toronto is having one, and it is a big one — is merely an expression of electoral opinion. There is no require provincial legislation, such as was passed in 1950 to permit Sunday sports under a municipal bylaw.

Ottawa and Guelph, which in the past have rejected Sunday sport, are having the issue for the second time this year.

ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER, Saturday, December 3, 1960 15

was a slugfest—most of it aimed at the labor vote. No one, neither government nor opposition wanted t obe blamed for permitting the rail strike to happen. All speakers declared a strike could not be allowed to take place.

But the Liberals attacked the government law, as did the CCF and New Party. They contended it did nothing to solve the basic wage issue behind the strike order.

The government said it could not take sides—that it was steering a neutral course, and that postponed the strike to a later time when the railways will be allowed to go after higher freight rates.

"In the perspective of the days ahead, what we have done will turn out to have been the proper course . . . the course of reason and of common sense," said the prime minister.

Harold Winch (CCF—Vancouver East) charged a "continuous period of anxiety" in the months ahead, with the whole rail crisis frozen and the threat of a later strike undiminished.

CALL IT UNFAIR

Opposition Leader Pearson called the law an "unjust" method of halting the strike. Both the Liberal and CCF-New Party opposition groups advocated a settlement based on the conciliation board award.

In the Senate Senator Arthur Roebuck said the bill drives a spear through the heart of the federal system for settling labor disputes.

Senator Toronto Liberal said the measure makes a farce of collective bargaining.

Senator Roebuck, who often acts in a legal capacity for railway unions, was the only senator who stated he would not vote for the bill. Three other Liberal senators criticized the bill but said they would vote for it because they did not want a railway strike.

Senator Walter Aseltine, government leader, who introduced the bill, was the only progressive Conservative who spoke in the two-hour debate.

The government, Senator Roebuck said, should have granted the railways sufficient money to satisfy the non-operating railway unions during the period of the general freeze on freight rates.

But the government had refused to carry out the recommendation of a conciliation board presided over by a federally-appointed judge.

DO YOU HAVE . .

—a marital problem

—trouble with your children

—difficulty in budgeting your income

If so, the Children's Aid Society "can be of help" and invites you to talk it over with one of the members of the family service department staff. You will find them sympathetic and understanding of your problem and desirous only of helping you to help yourself. There will be no obligation on your part and you may terminate the contact at any time.

The Society's offices at 63 Moira St. West are open from 8.30 to 5 o'clock Monday to Friday each week. For your own convenience it is suggested that you telephone for an appointment. Your call will be treated with complete confidence.

In Belleville this service to families is supported by the Belleville United Appeal.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Retired Parents' Obligations Few To Their Adult, Married Children

By THOMAS COLLINS

"What are the obligations of retired parents to their adult married children?"

In many forms, and on paper that ranges from lined school tablets to embossed stationery, this question keeps coming in. It comes primarily from parents who are laboring under impulses to do more for their children than they are doing. Seldom does it come from parents who are trying to squirm out of giving help.

Here is a guide, not suitable to everybody and certainly not a model for all circumstances, but one that perhaps will be helpful in smoothing a wrinkle or two from some 60-year-old browsers.

1. Couples of retirment age usually have grandchildren of baby-sitting age. The grandparents are seldom appreciated if they become a baby-sitting service in order for their married son or daughter to have evenings out.

After all, people have been having babies a long time now, and have been able to figure out this problem one way or another without imposing on hired help they can't pay for. Retired parents who give babysitting service only when they volunteer it unexpectedly—not after spooning to say they'll take over a week-end from Friday night — are the ones who are appreciated most.

GET ON NERVES

2. Most retired parents 65 or over cannot bear up well under children's ears out of proportion for more than two hours at any one time. Perhaps the toughest of all hardships old people suffer is the caring for, or association with, small children who grate on their nerves. Most of them like it in their obligation to put up with this hardship so they do it.

As a matter of fact, most of them would be admired more by their children if they rebelled against the idea that all grandchildren are all grandparents all day long.

3. Retired parents are obligated to live in the household of their married children if there is any possible way to avoid it. They are seldom happy themselves when they do this, which is beside the point in this discussion, but the married children can never live the free, unhabilited private life they want when the old folks are around.

4. Retired parents are obligated to maintain a standard of life that is not embarrassing to their aspiring and struggling children — or else stay out of sight. Many younger married couples have had their business and social success impaired by older parents who are too unsophisticated, too badly dressed and too lacking in manners to fit into the better lives their children are trying to build.

5. Retired parents, it seems to me — and I am frequently criticized for this view — are not obligated to give all or any of their money to their married children. There are laws in the various states which require that money left by those who die must go to their children. There is no law which says that money of people who are not yet dead must go to their children.

HAVE ACHIEVED TRIUMPH

People who reach retirement age have achieved a great triumph in living so long. If they have lived so long and economized some money too, it is an even greater triumph. This money can buy many pleasures for people who have won the race — such pleasures as travel, buried treasures or even betting on horse races. I vote for the retired people spending their money in this way. Primarily because it contributes to their own rewards in life and secondarily because the children who would inherit the money, if it were not spent here does nothing to deserve it except being born. And the children had very little to do with that.

There is no question that children remember those parents who were debonair and went sailing off to Spain longer and more fondly than those who hibernated in a farmhouse and hid their nickels in a chure.

6. Retired parents have an obligation to offer their children the benefits of the wisdom they have acquired in 60 years of living if the children want it, and the obligation to keep their mouths shut and walk away if the children don't.

7. Retired parents in the main have the obligation to feel no obligation anywhere except to themselves and to their fellowmen in general. Their children were given life and the best upbringing the parents were capable of giving. When the children reach maturity, they have no more claim on parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stone.

SPECIAL SERVICES

Bloomfield residents and community have been fortunate this past week in having three excellent services in the United Church.

On Thursday evening all were pleased to welcome Dr. McClure, missionary to Honduras, Africa, who told something of his work there. He is a surgeon in a large hospital, and a brilliant scholar and a fluent speaker.

Sunday morning the Rev. Mr. McClure gave an excellent sermon.

Thursday evening was the annual Junior Farmer Church service, when Dr. MacKenzie, of Albert College, was the guest speaker, and the Albert College choir, directed by Mr. Bruce Hamilton, sang the service and several numbers in the Sunday School rooms after-service.

Pat Wilson showed slides and described her trip at the W. I. tour.

Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Foster, Darlene and Carol, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Reed and Mr. and Mrs. Bellefleur.

Practice was held at the home of Mrs. Lloyd and Mrs. Ross Foster for the variety show which the Junior Farmers will be putting on soon. Watch for the date.

A number of ladies from here attended the bazaar and tea by the WA of Bloomfield United Church, which was held in the Sunday School rooms of the church, on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Jim Doucett, Tenagami, visited his brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Burt Doucett and Michael for several days last week. Mr. and Mrs. Ross Lederman, Kitchener, who were on their honeymoon trip, also spent a couple of days with Mr. and Mrs. Doucett, last week.

Johnstown

Archbishop Is Man of Happy Wit Adept at Puncturing Pomposities

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

LONDON (AP) — The Archbishop of Canterbury, stately and severe in his miles and scarlet robes, is a man of happy wit.

British churchmen are sure that when the archbishop visited Pope John in Vatican City Friday the head of the Roman Catholic Church got an insight into this homely, earthy aspect of the archbishop's complicated character.

They should have had a pleasant meeting. Both men, of highest religious station, are able to smile at human foibles, and to puncture pomposities with a light word.

The archbishop, gaitered, 73-year-old Dr. Geoffrey Francis Fisher, a spiritual leader to 40,000,000 Anglicans living around the world, has said his unusual views on the Vatican would be a courtesy call.

He is father of the Anglican Church and the British state the archbishop plays a dominant role, in England, where church and state is a personality of great dignity. But as he goes around patching pomposity, he does not spare himself.

He once to explain what the Lambeth Conference was all about in 1958: It is a meeting of 320-odd bishops from all over the world, and some people think the emphasis should be on the word "odd."

SIZES DIFFERENCE

Chatting with comedian Danny Kaye he said:

"The difference between us is that you are funny intentionally."

But then, in his official capacity, the archbishop thunders with final religious authority—against divorce, against public immorality, against faulty doctrine, and often against attitudes and practices of the Roman Catholic Church.

The archbishop is...head of a world-spanning administrative machine. He is chairman of the Church Commission, which administers properties worth many millions of pounds that provide the basic revenue of the Anglican Church. His latest achievement was to buy a great block of British Ford stock when the market was right.

The archbishop lives in what outwardly would seem to be stately grandeur in 140-room Lambeth Palace. But the archbishop and his family—he has six grown sons — occupy only six rooms.

Much more than the Pope, the Archbishop of Canterbury is a figure of controversy. Politicians and the press, often assail him. All concede that he has great skill as an administrator, and as a forceful leader of all church enterprises.

It is said of him that he breezes through difficulties. Big problems become small when they reach Lambeth Palace.

Left Prison In Stolen Truck Say Escapees

BARNIA (CP)—Crown Attorney S. A. K. Cowan Thursday read in magistrates' court a statement by a passenger in a Colline Bay Penitentiary described how he and another prisoner broke away from the penitentiary in a truck.

James Cyrier, 27, and John Percy Ward, 26, both pleaded guilty to stealing a car in nearby Oil Springs Nov. 24 and were remanded to Dec. 7 for sentence. Cyrier also admitted stealing a car at Painecourt, near Chatham, Nov. 23.

Ward pleaded not guilty to the Painecourt theft charge and was remanded to Dec. 8 after Mr. Cowan said other charges are pending.

In the statement read by the Crown attorney, Cyrier and Ward escaped from the Kingston area penitentiary Nov. 18 in a truck they found parked outside the staff house.

They abandoned the truck at Odessa and stole a car, the statement continued. Other cars were stolen at Whitby, Painecourt and Oil Springs.

Suspects Facing 4 Charges Each After Robbery

Charges of Abduction Of Two Women Laid

KINGSTON (CP)—Two youths arrested following a bank holdup and the kidnapping of two women face four charges each when they appear in court here.

Arnold Brent Mavety, 20, and Stanley Peter Davis, 17, both of Kingston, were charged with armed robbery after their arrest Thursday night. The other charges were added later.

Two men escaped Thursday from the Bank of Montreal in Vernon, 25 miles north of here, of $17,000 in cash. They fled in a car with two women, one apparently hooked by the trunk. Police took Mavety and Davis into custody when their car was forced off the road about 30 miles from Vernon.

In the trunk of a car abandoned earlier, police found bank teller Shirley Alex, 20, and Mrs. F. F. Cronin, wife of the manager of another Bank of Montreal branch who said she was taken hostage when the car was stolen from a parking lot in Kingston. Miss Alex said she was forced to get into the trunk when the car was abandoned. Mrs. Cronin already was in it.

Mavety and Davis have each been charged with two counts of armed robbery and two of abduction.

Charges were laid by provincial police in connection with the bank holdup and abduction of Miss Alex. City police laid similar charges in connection with the theft of a car here at gunpoint and the abduction of Mrs. Cronin.

New Stunt Used To Get Voters In Woodstock

WOODSTOCK (CP) — A Junior Chamber of Commerce stunt Saturday to bring voters out to civic elections fluttered down in the form of 10,000 leaflets, each read:

"USSR Interplanetary Communication System.

"My Comrades of Woodstock:

"It makes my Communistic blood run warm to hear that only 40 per cent of the eligible voters cast their ballots last year.

"Keep up the good work on Dec. 5, 1960."

It was signed "Nikita."

Hungarian-Born Mechanic Admits Killing Boy

SYDNEY (Reuters) — A coroner's inquiry was told today that Stephen Leslie Woodley, a Hungarian-born mechanic, has confessed to the kidnapping death of eight-year-old Noreen Thorne, whose body was found in a vacant lot in the suburb of this Australian city last summer.

Police testified that the six-year-old Woodley made the confession while being flown back to Sydney from Colombo, Ceylon, where he was, taken off a ship, arrested and later extradited.

Bradley has been charged with murdering the boy, whose disappearance on July 7 touched off intensive manhunt.

Police Sgt. Bryan Doyle said Bradley also admitted he was the man who had telephoned the Thorne home and demanded a $52,000 ransom, threatening to "feed the boy the Black Shuck" if the money was not paid.

Doyle said Bradley had told the police he had picked the boy up, driven him to the Bradley home and locked the child in the trunk of a car.

Bradley said that later in the day he went to the car and found the boy was dead, the sergeant testified.

Liberals, CCF Give up West Says Hamilton

REGINA (CP) — Opposition Leader Pearson and CCF leader Argue have given up the West and are going for the labor vote, Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton said in an interview Saturday.

Mr. Hamilton, on a 10-day tour of the Liberal provinces, based his statement on the session of parliament which led to averting a national rail strike.

"Why did Pearson have to play politics with the welfare of the country is struggling to get ahead?" demanded the minister.

"We can't let that kind of person." he quoted Mr. Pearson as saying in the Commons last Tuesday.

"However, on Wednesday Pearson changed his mind after Hazen Argue came out against any legislation to stop the strike," said Mr. Hamilton.

"Pearson didn't want the CCF to get the monopoly on the labor vote," said the agriculture minister.

"This is a battle for survival for the Liberals. They don't want the New Party to squeeze them out."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: A vigorous storm centred over western Iowa this morning has spread rain into regions near Lake Superior and is causing rain warnings of Lake Michigan. As a result of this storm mild southerly winds will continue over much of Ontario today, with showers developing during the day. Frosty conditions are for a change to colder weather Tuesday.

FOLLOWERS TOLD NEW PARTY MUST BE REALISTIC

Officials Surprised At Big Attendance

MONTREAL (CP) — Eastern Canada followers of the National Party were told during the weekend they must present the national committee with realistic proposals when it meets next when the party's constitution is set down.

About 350 members of the party attended a weekend seminar here in which 43 top-ranking CCF, trade union and university speakers outlined courses the party should take as a left-wing movement.

Main point made was that the party should carefully consider its objectives, then draw up flexible policies to achieve them. The party should avoid getting bogged down by doctrinaire attitudes.

The gathering was the largest the fledgling movement has had since the CCF and Canadian Labor Congress said at a Winnipeg convention in August, 1958, they planned to form a new political party.

TURNOUT SURPRISES

Seldom have party brass been surprised at the number of persons who attend a function. The larger turnout is expected at a seminar next weekend in Calgary.

CLC President Claude Jodoin said he was pleased with the progress of gates go to the founding convention next July in Ottawa well-prepared.

This seminar has contributed toward that end.

Saturday's sessions dealt with party policy in economic, international, cultural and social affairs. Sunday's sessions dealt with day on party structure and organization were closed to the press.

Strong cautions against following the "false gods" of the 1920's were issued by three speakers Saturday.

Premier T. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan warned against the problems of the 1960's were a good deal different from those of the 1920's when the CCF was born.

Harry Weiglasser, assistant research director in Canada of the United Steelworkers of America (USA), said the New Party already had some labels attached to it, but he hopes it would be allowed to grow free from interference.

"It would only be really new by ridding itself of doctrinairism.

RCAF Fighter Hits Village, Killing Two

STRASBOURG, France (CP)—An RCAF Sabre jet fighter went out of control with 1,000 feet today and plunged into a small village, killing two persons and setting several houses afire.

The pilot, PO Harry Schoning, 25, of Cheltenham, Ont., bailed out when the plane suddenly went out of control. The spokesman said Schoning was not injured in his fall.

Schoning is attached to the No. 2 Canadian Fighter Wing at Grostenquin, 20 miles east of Metz in the northeastern France, near the German border.

The plane tore into the village of Truchtersheim, 15 miles, shattering roar and burst into flames.

An elderly woman and an eight-year-old girl were the victims of the crash. Two houses were destroyed and others were damaged by the plane and by fire.

The RAF said that technically the accident was caused by a control seizure.

A police spokesman said "it was a case of balling out or simply riding the thing down."

Canada Has Second-Rate Society Toronto a Backwoods City -- Lower

TORRANCE (CP)—Canadians bear the mark of a second-rate, backwoods society by being completely indifferent to the end of history department at Queen's University said here Saturday.

Prof. A. M. Lower was addressing the first Metropolitan Toronto Young Adult Conference, meeting for three days at this Muskoka resort.

Prof. Lower added that Toronto is a backwoods city, and that Canadian identity is being swamped by materialism and the Canadian imitation of the United States.

Prof. Marcus Long, head of the philosophy department of the University of Toronto, said Sunday that Canada has completely borrowed culture—which is not a bad thing.

But it is Canadian culture would grow with old and new cultures contributing, but this could not be forced.

He added that fear of influence by U.S. television programs was unfounded and was critical of the power vested in the CBC to ward off U.S. influence.

The meeting was sponsored by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews and the department of citizenship and immigration.

Believe Arrest of Lumumba Prevented Korean-Type War

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Branches of Premier Patrice Lumumba clamped a dictatorship on the city of Stanleyville today.

Angered at the capture of Lumumba, the Congo's deposed premier, they began harassing whites trapped in this northeastern stronghold as a reprisal.

United Nations reports said numerous white residents of Stanleyville were being mistreated by the military police.

Diplomats in Leopoldville were convinced that if Lumumba had succeeded in reaching Stanleyville he would have split The Congo in such a way that a Korea-type war would have followed with Communists on Lumumba's side.

Lumumba, dismissed by President Joseph Kasavubu last fall, escaped from his guarded residence in Leopoldville a week ago.

Caught by the troops of Congo-army commander Col. Joseph Mobutu, he was brought back to face trial on charges of inciting the army to mutiny.

Western diplomats said they have definite information that the Soviet bloc and several Asian and African nations had been planning to recognize a Lumumba administration in Stanleyville as the Congo's rightful government had Lumumba got away.

Such a development would have left Leopoldville for Lumumba's arrest stripped and military and economic aid missions would have followed.

The diplomats think civil war would have followed, with many of the troops in Stanleyville supporting Lumumba and the Soviet Union supplying them through Egypt and the Sudan, which borders The Congo on the north.

Communist Chinese President Is for Peaceful Co-existence

MOSCOW (AP) — Communist China's president put a stamp of approval today on the Soviet policy of co-existence policy of the Soviet Union as it appeared had been ratified by the Communist summit conference which ended last week.

In a goodbye speech at Leningrad, Chairman Liu Shao-chi of Russia, President Liu Shao Chi of China, a profession of faith in Soviet leadership.

"The great Soviet Union has always led in the struggle for a powerful bastion of world peace," Liu said. "The initiative of the Soviet government and its proposals aimed at easing international tension and peaceful co-existence between countries with different social systems have the sympathy and support of all peace-loving nations and peoples."

He said the summit conference resulted in a further unity and strengthening of the cohesion of the entire Communist movement and in a still further strengthening of the solidarity between the Communist party of China and the Communist party of the Soviet Union, the Soviet People's Republic of China and the Soviet Union.

(Moscow radio broadcast Liu's speech but this dispatch was deleted in passing through censors).

Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, published a long editorial a week ago in which it said that war is inevitable as long as imperialism exists. Interpreted by Pravda observer is the correct interpretation.

Coming as it did near the end of the conference, which lasted more than two weeks of debate, it appeared that the Soviet policy had laid down the law as they saw it.

The Soviet Union's Premier Khrushchev was of saying that the man who pays the piper calls the tune. Thus, the Soviet policy is abundantly clear by pointing out that Russia's industrial and technical advances were heavily responsible for increased Communist countries must rely on building up their own industry to produce more than capitalist countries and give greater freedom and independence to satellites.

Windyslaw Gomulka, chief of the Polish party, said the Communist summit committee had "done everything" to lighten the international tension.

But the return-to-Poland Saturday from the Moscow summit conference, Gomulka said the Bloc and Communist party organizations agreed that "the fight between capitalism and socialism can and should be decided not by means of a new world war but through peaceful competition."

Fifty-Fifty Chance of Rain On Municipal Election Day

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A 50-50 chance of rain was in the cards today as voters in most Ontario communities elected municipal representatives.

Offsetting the even odds of rain was the weatherman's forecast of mild temperatures — a welcome if unseasonably mild weather. The high predicted for the day in Toronto, for instance was a comfortable 50 degrees.

If Toronto's advance polls is any indication, the turnout at the polls will be light. The spokesman turning officer H. E. Tisk said 7,000 persons—about two per cent—voted in the three-day poll.

At Ottawa, former mayor Charlotte Whitton is opposed on the ballot by Controller Grant Berger, 60-year-old lawyer and former alderman, and Ottawa Real Leaguer Lucien Dube, 62, a retired school inspector and former Dube, Jones, 50, an insurance agent.

Mayor Nathan Phillips of Toronto is seeking re-election. He faces strong opposition from Controller Allan Lamport, who resigned as budget chairman of the Toronto Transit Commission to enter the mayoralty race, and Mrs. Dora Kennedy, who has been in polls for board of control in the last two elections.

Also on the ballot for mayor of Toronto's second largest city are Trotskyite Ross Dowson and Harry Bradley, a perennially unsuccessful as a candidate for mayor and board of control.

Windsor Mayor Michael Patrick is opposed by three men, Controller Reginald Hugh Simpson, Social Credit Edgar Charbonneau; and John Reardon, previously unsuccessful as a candidate for mayor and board of control.

In several other cities—among them Hamilton, Belleville, Brantford, St. Thomas and Niagara Falls—the mayoralty has been filled by acclamation. Kingston, Timmins, North Bay, Port Arthur, St. Catharines, Cornwall and Owen Sound are among cities with votes scheduled for later in December or January.

Ten municipalities in Ottawa suburb of Eastview has had an election Saturday to pick the mayor of a provincial inquiry scathingly critical of the town's administration.

The incumbent, Mayor Gordon Lee, 52-year-old owner of Ottawa's League candidate Oscar Lavergne is also a Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for Prescott.

Mr. Perrier says he has been told that he is "unacceptable" and "that the blood of the Citizen's Party will be on the gutter on election day" and he is not taking any chances."

Mr. Lavergne has defended his administration against the charges contained in the inquiry.

He invited Ontario CCF Leader Donald MacDonald and Liberal Leader John Robarts to a meeting of whom demanded his resignation. Both refused to take part in Eastview.

Mr. Perrier's turn tip, remarked Mayor Lavergne. "Evidently they prefer to be heroes at a distance."

Referring to the Citizen's charges of corruption in administration, Mayor Lavergne said:

"Let's try to take their thirty-word—you're with the racketeer you know than the racketeer you don't know."

The question of a more "open" town is also to be put to voters at some 28 municipalities. Three municipalities are voting on extension of the municipal franchise to non - property owners; two have referenda on financial matters and one on establishment of a public library.

Both Toronto and Windsor are voting on the question of Sunday sports, including Sunday theatre amendments to provincial statutes would be needed before the theatres could open.

WOULD BAN CENSORS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) A United Nations committee Friday night voted against advance censorship of movies, comments and political opinions. The vote was 39 to 27 with 15 abstentions and 23 countries absent.

LIBERALS RIDING BACK TO POWER SAYS PEARSON

Young Liberals Hold 14 Dinners

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Leader Pearson says the Liberal party is riding back to power in Canada.

There is evidence from all quarters, he told a Young Liberals' dinner here Saturday night, "that a strong, progressive and resurgent Liberalism is on the way back to office and to power."

The dinner was one of 14 held across the country to drum up support for the annual Liberals' rally to be held here Jan. 9-11. Tickets to the dinner, organized by Young Liberals attending the party's biennial meeting, ranged from $3 a plate in Sherbrooke, Que., to $25 a plate in Toronto.

Mr. Pearson said Saturday night: "I see what would here this 1,015 people attended the 14 dinners. The event was described as unique in Canadian political history.

Part of Mr. Pearson's address was followed and shown by video tape to each of the out-of-town dinners.

SAYS TORY LOSE GROUND

Never before in Canadian history has a party lost so much ground in so short time as have the federal Conservatives, Mr. Pearson declared.

"But—as the prime minister so aptly put it recently—'You sin's not forgiven.'"

Mr. Pearson said that for the party to win power "the party should expect only one thing: the opportunity to serve our country with honor and distinction in the years of office; and that is coming, coming much sooner than many dared think about a couple of years ago, coming as work hard."

The Conservative party had been "drowned by the hard realities of government in the unsolved problems that face us today, especially unemployment."

NEEDS EMPHASIS

"The economic emergency was facing the country" — and I do not think it helps to play it down. How can a government deal with these problems effectively if it does not admit their existence?

He accused the government of "drift and weakness" and said the Liberals, three years in opposition, "a period of serious unemployment was threatening and then a period of economic weather lay ahead.

If the Liberals were in office they would fight the economic problem by "positive measures in trade," "not building them up" and by planning a solution to problems "before they become a crisis. We would have begun to deal with them three years ago."

Oshawa Stroller Had Misfortune, Pants Burned

OSHAWA (CP)—A stroller in downtown Oshawa felt misfortune Saturday—his pants caught fire and were burned, leaving pedestrians stripped from the waist.

With only his wallet remaining in the flame-ravaged garb, the man wrapped his coat around him like a policeman's jacket and caught a cab home.

When the cab driver was burned up. He was paid with a charred $10 bill.

Police said the man probably dropped a smoldering cigaret butt in his pocket.

Cost Of Living At Record High Statistics Show

Increase in Clothing Prices, Shelter Cause

OTTAWA (CP)—Despite lower food prices, the cost of living in Canada rose to a record high point Nov. 1 as the consumer price index edged up two-tenths of a point during October.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today that the index, based on 1949 prices equaling 100, increased to 122.6 on Nov. 1 from the previous high of 122.4 a month earlier. The Nov. 1 figure represented a gain of 1.3 points over the level of 120.3 on the same date a year ago.

Increases in the price of clothing, shelter and other commodities and services more than offset a slight decline in food prices in October, the household operation index was unchanged.

The food index dropped three-tenths of a point to 125.5 from 125.8. Lower prices for poultry, beef, fresh pork, veal, lamb, chicken, grapefruit and bananas. The price lag was higher for eggs and some fresh vegetables.

WAGE INDEX RISES

The October rise in living costs followed an increase in industrial wages during September. The index of average industrial wages rose to 173.0 in September from 172.3 a year earlier. This latest data available — was 172.2 compared with 171.8 a year earlier and with 173.0 a year earlier. This latest based on 1949 average wages equaling 100.

This wages index, computed from payroll returns, covers employing more than 19 persons and covering a wide range of industries represents an average of total wages paid.

The clothing index climbed 1.2 per cent to 112.5 from 111.2. The increase reflected higher prices for winter clothing items coming into stores for the season.

The household operation index remained unchanged at 123.3.

An increase of 0.4 per cent was reported in the other commodities and services index to 116.6 from which advanced to 116.2 from 114.7 in August.

INDENSIFY OPERATION

JAKARTA (AP)—Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution, Indonesian army chief of staff and national security minister, said a military operations against die-hard rebels in the interior of Sumatra will be intensified soon. He says a visit to North Sumatra convinces him rebel fighting power has been reduced considerably in the last few months.

Not Planning on Any Christmas' Says Sad Wife of Injured Driver

LAMONT, Alta. (CP) — The number of shopping days till Christmas does not mean much to Mrs. Lorna Bodney, a hospital bedridden mother of five children.

"I am not planning on any Christmas," she said from her bed in an intensive Sunday as she talked to reporters.

She had just returned from Archer Memorial Hospital where her husband is in a coma. "He doesn't recognize me and doesn't know anything around him."

Frank, 31, was the driver of a school bus demolished in a head-on day by a freight train at a level crossing can be seen from the Bodney home on a highway about 45 miles northeast of Edmonton.

Seventeen high school students including one of Bodney's cousins were killed. Twenty-three others were injured.

Mrs. Bodney, 26, is almost penniless. "I'm into my last money now. When that goes I don't know what I'll do," she said.

Food banks in town have sent a two-week supply of groceries to money left.

Shiny Flashlight Brings Death To Curious Boy

NEW YORK (AP)—A little boy's curiosity . . . a flashlight. . . a vacant apartment. That was the scenario of a neighborhood tragedy in the Bronx Sunday night.

Neighbors say, eight-year-old Robert Ingraham and a group of a building superintendent, received a gift from a family moving from the neighborhood.

The present—a shiny flashlight—became a near-obsession with the boy. For hours he explored the dark places in the apartment building—dark basements, gloomy stairwells, closets and dark corners.

During most of his waking hours he kept the flashlight fastened to a string around his waist. And for three days Robert played in the unlit nook and cranny in the area.

When he didn't come home for nearly two hours, worried searchers combed the neighborhood looking for the youngster—a 60-pound boy could hide.

It wasn't until a detective heard a faint cry for help coming from the flashlight that police came up with a clue to his whereabouts.

The detective went to the basement, guided by sounds made by the neighbors who had given Robert the flashlight. His fears were realized when he opened the door of a refrigerator.

Robert's slight body was buried in ice.

The boy still grasped his flashlight. But the battery had died.

The light had died with him.

Russia Builds Missile Base Aimed at China

LONDON (Reuters) — Russia is building a northern Siberian base for 2,000-mile missiles whose target area appears to be Communist China, the London newspaper reported Sunday.

The Sunday Times' story added that Japanese intelligence authorities have aerial photographic evidence of the base in the Kamchatka Peninsula.

The newspaper said from the known pattern of other Soviet missile bases in the Arctic in its siting, range and command of Chinese targets," the Tokyo-date likely.

'Mushroom III' Exercise Held By Hasty Pees

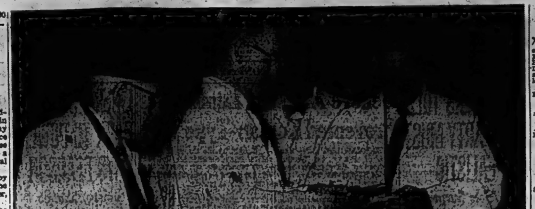
Two months collective regimental training was tested in the air-ground exercise "Mushroom III" when the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment held Exercise Mushroom III, the third of a series of national survival schemes.

The scheme was prepared by unit officers and held under the supervision of training officer, Major Ken Willcocks.

Officers and NCO's from the regiment's sub units in Trenton, Picton, Madoc, Belleville and Port Hope were present. Also there by permission of the commanding officer, Lt.-Col. Angus B. Duffy, CD, were a number of junior NCO's.

The morning work included study of problems regarding the movement of the existing military reserve organization on the mobile support columns in a devastated city. The study related to the problem of moving 150 military vehicles a distance of 125 miles.

Later the 50 officers and NCO's present studied the problem of re-entering a devastated area and determining the plan for the rescue of persons. This was brought out that the city of Ottawa would probably be the responsibility of the regiment.



During the afternoon the entire floor area of the armouries was laid out to represent an infantry battalion acting as a rescue unit. Wireless and telephones were used to pass information. A "load table" was used by the battalion occupied in rescue work.

Col. Duffy in summing up the exercise stressed the main work of the unit was to keep as many people alive as possible. To this end even the junior commanders will have to make the difficult decision of rescuing those most likely to live and leaving those who have no life or difficult to rescue until later.

Captain J. Reid, of the instructional staff of headquarters, Eastern Ontario Command at Kingston was in attendance.

LOOKS BAD

LONDON (AP)—British agents for the New York-owned Libertian steamer Ixi reported with fire aboard on a voyage from England to Montreal, said Saturday night the situation looks bad. A spokesman said "attempts to contact her by radio have been fruitless."

IN MEMORIAM

DAFOE — In loving memory of my dear father, Nicholas Dafoe, who went to a better home April 2, 1946, and my darling mother, Alice Kinn, who was called home to be with Jesus December 5th, 1950.

Sadly missed and forever remembered by daughter Myrtle Johnston and great grandchildren.

MAINES. — In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away December 6th, 1959.

We often think of bygone days,
When we were all together;
The family circle is broken now,
But memories will live forever.
If we had not given you up,
You would have lived on;
But nothing could keep home,
When God's angels came.
—Always remembered by brothers and sisters.

MAINES. — In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away suddenly one year ago, December 6th, 1959.

When evening shades are falling
And we sit in quiet sorrow,
To our hearts there comes a longing,
If he only could come today.
Friends may think we have forgotten,
But they're wrong.

When at times they see us smile
But little know the heartache,
There often lies at the while.
Looking back with memories
Upon the path you trod,
We miss the hours we had with you
Dear mother, but we know you're with God.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by Mother and Dad.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. Annie Bird wish to express their sincere appreciation for the many kindnesses, messages of sympathy and beautiful floral tributes received in the sickness and death of a wife, mother and friend. Special thank you to Rev. C. Maclean, Mrs. Ruth Hall, Mrs. Ethel Mowry, the ladies of the Women's Institute, Mrs. Ethel Bird, Mrs. Second Line, and the Grant Funeral Home.

We would like to thank Drs. Hartt and MacDonald and the nursing staff of the Belleville General Hospital for their kindness and care. Also many friends for cards, flowers and visits, and especially to Mr. Donald Fox for his care and attention; also to the Rebekah and boys from Mt. Pleasant Hall. A heartfelt thanks to all who in any way helped during our bereavement. Your kindness will be more enjoyable.
—Harold Wood and family.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market moved along a straight but narrow path amid light trading this morning with most sections showing fractional gains.

On index, industrials were up .06 at 486.05, base metals up .01 at 157.87 and western oils up .05 at 78.17. Golds eased .23 at 98.82.

The 11 a.m. volume was 460,-000 shares compared with 338,000 at the same time Friday.

Industrials were dull. Dominion Textile gained ½ at 39½, Bank lands each lost ¼.

Building Products, General Motors and Moore each eased ½.

Golds were weak as prices tumbled following a return on the London bullion market to what brokers say is a more reasonable price of the metal. Dome took the biggest loss, off ⅜ at $1.30.

Falconbridge and International Nickel each was ahead ¼ among base metals. Cominco and Noranda each lost ⅛.

OLD MOTHER GOOSE — Children's story book personalities came to life in many of the Santa parade floats. Here Old Mother Goose is personified.

Santa Back at Work at Pole After Warming to His Task At Royal Welcome Parade

Santa Claus had been and gone. But he will be back — in 30 days.

Santa arrived in town, fresh from the North Pole, early Saturday to kick his place in the colorful 1969 Santa Claus parade which stepped off the upper bridge just after 10.00 a.m. and took 55 minutes to pass a given point.

Five Chief Gerald Vance, chairman of the Santa Claus Parade Committee, which laboured for weeks to give Santa Claus his normal forget, today termed Saturday's parade a "tremendous success".

"Many people said it was much better than last year's parade", he said. "We just knew it was wonderful".

The chief said he "wouldn't be surprised" if 40,000 people lined the parade route along Front and Victoria streets. "I wouldn't surprise me, either", he said, "if not more than 50 people stayed in their homes and didn't come to see the parade".

25 FLOATS IN FARADE

About 25 floats and more than 200 marching personnel made up the parade, which for the thirteenth consecutive year was organized by the fire department and other volunteers. Groundwork for this year's parade started back in the fall and gathered momentum as time flew by.

"An awful lot of work went into making the floats and organizing the parade", said Chief Vance. "But I think it was well worth the effort even though it was only for a one-hour spectacle".

FLOATS DISMANTLED

Today only one or two floats remained intact. The rest have been dismantled because there is no place to store them.

Chief Vance said expenses could be reduced considerably if a permanent storage area was available. While on the subject of finances, he noted that the committee still needs more money to meet its obligations in connection with this year's parade.

"Donations haven't been coming in this year as well as they did in past years", he said. "We still need money."

One of the headaches the parade committee has each year is estimating how much candy should be bought for the distribution to the children along the parade route. This year was no exception. Fire Inspector Bob Fair looked after getting the candy after the committee decided some 7,000 pieces should be sufficient. But it wasn't enough.

"The problem," said the chief, "is to try to figure out as closely as possible how much candy will be used without having any surplus. This year Inspector Fair got 12,000 pieces, but we ran out. It's impossible to predetermine the size of the crowd. The size of this year's crowd exceeded our expectations, although all along we knew it would be big."

A filmed version of Belleville's Santa Claus parade, largest non-commercial parade of its kind in Canada, will be televised on CKWS-TV next Saturday at 6.15 p.m.

Following his triumphant parade through the downtown business section, Santa was whisked off to the hospital where Teen Town members had made arrangements for him to visit the children in the pediatric ward and give each child a gift.

RIOT OF COLOR

The parade was a riot of color and joy that will not soon be forgotten. A color party, the parade marshal and F. Selby's majorettes were the first to step across the upper bridge and raise cheers from the throngs lining both sides of Front St. Behind came Centre Hastings and Prince Edward regimental band followed by a well-wellbuilt floats entered by the Centre Hastings Co-operative Dairy, Cinderella's Coach and the Nativity scene. Then came some clowns and their antics added the last touch of gaiety to set the stage for all that came before Santa made his appearance at the end of the parade.

The Dorothy Dicker majorettes and the Port Hope Sea Cadet band followed the clowns and led the way for the Queen of Hearts float sponsored by Local 497 of the Fire Fighters Association. More walking personnel, clowns and a float followed and then came the Y's Men's Club's Eskimo Land float, looking as though Santa had brought it with him from the far north. Gale Hendricks' majorettes and the 6 Repair Depot Band put on a sterling performance in front of the Humpty Dumpty float entered by Finlay Electric.

Belleville Kinsmen Associate's Snow Queen entry was another float which illustrated to the public the tremendous amount of work and planning that goes into these floats.

MOON ROCKET FLOAT

A little bit of space age was well illustrated by Northern Electric's Moon Rocket float, complete with little men, which followed the Colborne Boys' Band.

Ken Vivian's miniature Model T added a touch of the unusual and the 17 horses, including a four-horse team, that pranced throughout the parade hinted that perhaps next year even more horse entries will be made. Fire Chief Vance said he hadn't seen so many horses in the Santa Claus parade for years.

The Old Woman in a Shoe float, entered by Percival's Furniture Store, was complete with the widow and her brood of young children. A large Jack-in-the-Box float and the various story stores' Old King Cole float signalled the halfway point in the parade which was estimated to have stretched along two miles of city streets. When the head of the parade arrived back at the upper bridge on Pinnacle St., it had to wait a while for the last section of the parade to clear the bridge and move off down Front St.

"This wasn't unusual though," said Chief Vance. "For the past few years we've had to wait there. It just goes to show that we put on a pretty big parade."

The local Salvation Army band and carol singers from the Belleville Citadel preceded Goldie Locks and the Three Bears entered jointly by the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs Lodge.

OTHER FLOATS

Other floats in the parade, all of which were just as colorful and well built as the others which preceded them were: the Chapman four-horse wagon float sponsored by the parade committee; the float entered by Christmas — David's Furniture and Appliances; Disney Land — Quinte Communities Hospitals; Atkinson — Simpson-Sears; Ferris Wheel — Mot Kamber Co.; Three Men in a Tub — Milk Producers Assoc.; Mother Goose — Honest Joe's Store; Three Sloopers — Canadian Order of Foresters; Dragon — Belle Public Works Dept.; Peter Pan — Canadian Legion.

Santa, of course, raised a storm of cheers that may have heard across the bay. He brought up the rear of the parade sitting atop a throne and wishing everyone a Merry Christmas. He left his deer in secret hiding because he wanted to preserve their strength for ease."

SLOW BUT SURE — This stubborn donkey was the transportation used by two funny clowns during Saturday's Santa Claus parade.

Good Curling Seen in Spiel At Curling Club

Curling consistently, assisted by a few major breaks, a rink of Archie Roe as lead, Harold Mott, second, Bob Bean, skip and Claude D. Rice as skip, won two-day bonspiel arranged by the committee of the Quinte Curling Club on Saturday. There were twelve rinks entered, two of which came from the Trenton Curling Club, one of which went home with one of the prizes. Beautiful wallets were given as prizes.

The grimmest of the local rinks were chosen by the committee from names placed on the board and the winning skip was fortunate in drawing a rink that could, take out or regard and make it work comparatively easy. Ken LaPalm, playing with three players all day succeeded in being second. His rink was composed of Jim Bickers, Tom Carruthers and the skip. In third place was a rink of R. Lind, B. Cochran, E. Connor and O. Keith of the Trenton RCAF Station. Low on the totem pole was a rink of John Thompson, Tom Cowley, Canon A. B. McConnell and Charles Lovett. The scores were counted on a point basis, four for a win, and one point for each end won.

At the conclusion of the games, Gl Wardell assisted by his committee awarded the prizes. Dr. Gerry McGuire-Kidd was master of ceremonies and enlivened the proceedings with his witty remarks. Ev Gowsell, chairman of curling activities for the season, was beaming with pride from the result of these one - day spiels. The spiels are providing excellent competition and rotating players among different groups. As usual the ice was in perfect condition, lighted with drawn on both sides and the large gallery throughout the day and evening witnessed some real good curling. Some Job Problems

A brief prepared by F. T. Denton of Toronto, a former government economist, has been applauded by a Senate committee as the best analysis that has been made of the unemployment problem.

Mr. Denton said Canada will need a million more jobs by 1965 to absorb immigrants and the natural increase in population.

Canada is about to enter the third stage of a problem which first made itself felt by a sudden overcrowding of our elementary schools. We are now well into the second stage, when the wave of young Canadians who first made their appearance during the immediate post-war period are filling our secondary schools. With their graduation the final phase will be reached, as they hunt jobs.

Here, though, like immigrants, they are likely to provide at least part of the solution to the problem which they create. Besides being producers, they will also be consumers. True, they have been consuming since birth, but with the present tendency to marry young and establish new homes and families it is evident that they will create a great new demand—providing they can find the work to make their demand effective.

Perhaps a more interesting and puzzling facet of the employment situation is provided by statistics on the number of women in the labor force. There has been a 50 per cent increase in the past decade—the last ten years. The female labor force has grown three times as rapidly as the male labor force. Yet it is common knowledge that, in most Canadian cities, it is much easier for a woman to find a job than it is for a man. Why? Is the nature of our economy such that the types of work being performed by women are increasing much faster than the types of work generally done by men? Or are women in ever increasing numbers invading fields of activity formerly reserved for men?

It would be impossible to provide an explanation which would be true of all cases. It seems probable, though, that increasing automation is an important factor, having a two-fold effect. As machines become simpler, less skill is required to operate them and employers are probably more receptive to suggestions that women be given jobs. Women should not take offence at this statement, since it is not meant to imply that women are not capable of achieving as high a level of skill as men, but merely takes cognizance of another well-known fact, that the turnover in the female labor force is likely to be faster than in the male labor force because many girls look forward to not get jobs formerly held by men, automation makes it possible for one man to produce much more than formerly. There has been no comparable speed-up in production in many of the jobs normally filled by women, despite business machines and dictaphones.

There is another aspect to the problem. The burden of the age is paper work. Can it be that this has resulted in a great increase in the demand for office help, without any increase in the size of the production staff served by the office? We know of one metal-working plant where the number of people in the office is almost as large as the number in the shop—rather obviously a deplorable state of affairs.

No matter what the reason for the ability of the economy to absorb an increase in the female labor force much more easily than an increase in the male labor force, there is certainly a problem here which requires attention. Perhaps men will have to endeavor to compete with women for some of the jobs of types which they once performed, but from which they have been ousted by women—as stenographers, bookkeepers, file clerks and private secretaries. If so, it is going to be a tough fight.

Qualities of Age

What are the distinguishing attributes of various age groups? Youth is marked by resiliency, strength and mobility. Maturity shows balance, precision and achievement. The good qualities of old age are thoroughness, steadiness, dependability and wisdom.

One thing remains irrevocably fixed—the retirement of time at 65 is just what it was at 15—24 hours a day. It behooves us to use every 24 hours in accord with the wisdom we have picked up along the way. (St. Catharines Standard).

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

—DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS—

THINK KINDLY OF THE PAST

Some people are so modern in front and the road behind their outlook that they want to let us remember that th people of antiquity probably had as good ideas as we have. They were not scientific, but many of them were of the wisest men centuries ago. In the field of morals this is particularly true. Moses lived almost 3,500 years ago, Socrates 2,400, Jesus, 2,000. Newton was mostly a 17th century character, Franklin an 18th. Have knowledge both of the road behind and the road before.

Man's Resources of Energy

By HON. ROBERT W. MACAULAY
Ontario Minister of Energy Resources'

ARTICLE 43

It is well known that the life of man in society depends upon the full use of energy sources such as coal, oil, gas and electricity. In fact, without such energy man would be lucky if the animals would let him share their caves.

The energy resources available to man, and the precise nature of the "mix" in which they are available together with the stage of technological development in the world at any given time, is always determined not only by the well-being of the individual man, but the status and power of his country. This has been so in the past, and is still largely the case.

How much progress can man make in enlisting nature to relieve his own efforts in those regions, as in parts of India, where the only fuel is the dung of animals? The discovery of how to make iron and steel with coal and iron ore were better distributed, and France's electricity potential was not worth too much at that time. Today, however, the ability to exploit resources, her oil and gas, and modern hydro-electric and engineering is a first class industrial nation. This is a reflection of the world's distribution of the fuels available to man.

COAL CHEAPEST

Coal is by far the cheapest form of coal is still the cheapest way of smelting iron ore, in most parts of the world, for the other requirements of man the world has developed a technology, are taking place first in industrial nation. This is a reflection of the world's distribution of the fuels available to man.

COAL CHEAPEST

Much has been said recently about atomic energy. From the point of view of this article, atomic energy is of value only if it provides usable heat. In fact, at present, the quantities of heat produced are so enormous that only the greatest power use for some time will be to use it for generation of electricity. This is already technically feasible, but more engineering development is required, before atomic power can compete with power produced from coal, oil or falling water.

As far as already developed countries are concerned, atomic power is merely another way of producing electricity, and so far not efficient or competitive enough in underdeveloped countries. For a series of test problem, atomic power may well be one of the answers. Generally, atomic fuel is compact and easily transported and a nuclear power station could be built anywhere there is a supply of water. It is likely to be found that reactors will be capable of wide adoption.

SOLAR ENERGY

There are other futuristic sources of energy. For example, solar energy is already in use in a few places. The best use it is used in Ghana to keep air cool in buildings and it could be used in any tropical climate to generate electricity. The heat differences and hot springs is utilized in Iceland and Italy. It may be possible to tap the ocean's vast by tapping hydrogen atoms in sea water.

Unless something like this is done, some countries will always be dependent on others for industry's standard of living has in fact a direct relationship to the size of its population to those of its resources outside in the existing technology. The Soviet Union today, like Western Europe and North America in the past, is ample, not of the superiority of any people or creed, but of the exclusive and largely fortuitous possession of valuable real estate.

Real Dilemma Of Economy

Financial Times

Every now and again the dilemma of the economy is brought larger and its smaller aspects illustrated by a remark that someone makes, or the title of an address someone gives to some interested or erudite body.

The dilemma is, of course, that some manufacturers cannot sell while others are equally determined not to buy more than they have.

A classic example is the business of the railroads.

Who does not remember when, as a boy, he was admonished to stop stuffing his boots, to stop kicking pebbles or frozen horse droppings on the road since none does not grow on trees. Any family with a multiplier of children and an itchiness that required careful watching has gone through this in its time.

Those of us who were fortunate enough to grow up in surrounding wholly or partly rural were often asked to work secretly or we wanted to do most in this case—walk barefooted down the lane.

We are reminded of this by the address delivered to a large and fascinated audience of the Canadian Retailers Association in Montreal. The title of the address: "Can we increase the per capita consumption of shoes?"

Many a parent, including this one with four offspring, has heaved a defiant "Over my dead body! Which it probably will be.

Negro Stars Are Modest

Ottawa Citizen

The world heavyweight boxing champion, Floyd Patterson, has been touring Europe this past summer. The Europeans took a fancy to him as a man as well as an all-round athlete of his art, and the boxer felt the same way about his hosts. One newspaperman interviewed in Britain he "profoundly impressed most of the country with his intelligence, articulateness and sensitivity." He had the opportunity to demonstrate these qualities during a 45-minute excursion which a reporter was called on not to box but to answer questions.

At a time when the United States could be and popular as it might be in Europe and indeed in many parts of the rest of the world, it is a curious circumstance that Negroes are the most successful ambassadors of goodwill are proving to be Negroes, Jews and Catholics, in that order. This was true at the Olympic Games, where their conduct and reception was reserved on the whole as fair as the U.S. contingent was criticized for such performers as Rafer Johnson, Olympic champion, and Wilma Rudolph, winner of three gold medals and who has since been dubbed "the Black Pearl".

One quality manifested by most of these people appears to be modesty. This is not necessarily peculiar to Negroes nor is it possessed by all members of that race. But where it is found it is appreciated by others. Those who are modest about their accomplishments have gone a long way toward learning the secret of popularity.

Ant Smells Food's Shape

Fort William Times-Journal

An ant can smell the shape of three-dimensional objects — a piece of cheese, for example. One sense organ in the upper — has an organ by means of which it can find its way about by assessing the relative heat radiation from the objects around it in the dark. Quite a number of insects can do what man cannot —see light of violet light. The bee, for example finds the poppy, not because it looks red as a rule, but because it stands out, but because it reflects a lot of ultra violet light, and this stimulus leads the bee to it.

These were some of the curiosities, but by no means useless, pieces of information mentioned by Professor Lewenzilo of Birmingham University, in which he and other scientists, described how the study of other animals is helping to unravel the mysteries of the human senses.

Hammarskjold Translator

Winnipeg Free Press

Mr. Dag Hammarskjold has translated into Swedish an English-language book about Antiphon by Djuna Barnes, which is to be performed at the Royal Theatre in Stockholm. His many jobs in the realm of literature include something interesting and endearing about Mr. Hammarskjold. It reveals him, if he has not already been revealed, as a highly civilized man. And there is an appropriateness in his work being a work of translation. Good translation of words of one language for another; it involves also interpretation.

Dedicated to the RCAF is a booklet "Canada's Air Heritage," just issued by the Minister of National Defence for Air. The cover is in the two colors of the RCAF and bears the official emblem of the service. Colored portraits of some of the greatest airmen from Canada who served in the last war are included with their records of service and the glory of their amazing achievements. Graphic accounts of the four outstanding Canadian airmen: Air Marshal W. A. Bishop, VC, DSO and bar, MC, DFC, Croix de Guerre, the Legion of Honor, Croix de Guerre with Palm, who shot down 72 enemy planes in the last war; Lt.-Col. W. G. Barker, VC, DSO and bar, MC and two bars, Croix de Guerre, Medal for Courage, Italian, with 50 planes; Air Commodore G. R. Pitcairn-Hallowes, CBE, DSO and bar, DSC, DFC; Croix de Guerre, whose total was 60 enemy planes in that war, and Lieut. Alan Arnett McLeod, VC.

Muddy Terms Befuddle Academics

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I recently heard about a antique laborer who works in a steel mill near Gary, Ind. He continued to go to college while working, and last year submitted his master's thesis for an advanced degree in psychology.

The title of his thesis was: "Why the Foreman Hates the Steel Worker." I have not seen it, but the title was changed to something like: "Emotional Conflicts Resulting from Unfavorable Personal Relationships Between Management and Supervisory Echelons."

To my mind, this sums up many of the unattractive traits of the academic personality. The original title was frank, direct, clear and useful. The unfortunate title was timid, muddy, pretentious and evasive. But it sounded better to the official research board.

Most masters' theses and doctoral dissertations have titles like the latter, because if they were simply and accurately stated it would be too easy to see how much (or how little) they say. This is especially true in literature of the social sciences, where original or significant research rarely presents less than one per cent of the total effort to be published in factory.

Only a dozen years ago, a New York newspaperman, Walter Steigleman, wrote a book called "Horseracing," which told the full, if not altogether pretty story of the biggest money sport of all time."

What was interesting about the book was that the original manuscript was Steigleman's Ph. D. dissertation at the University of Colorado. It consisted of boxcar loads of boulder movement

To Your Good Health

SOME CHILDREN OUTGROW ALLERGIES

"Dear Dr. Molner: I know a three-year-old child whose face and body are terribly scratched and bleeding from allergies. He is allergic to egg, wheat, rye, buckwheat, pork and cottonseed. "Further tests will be made for other possible allergies. "The problem is to get a proper diet without any of the above food. What other children in the family have the same allergies, and now they can eat the foods that used to cause them to itch and scratch. —Mrs. D. F."

This poor three-year-old, I presume, is your youster. Or am I wrong? Anyway, you don't have to write to me as though it's somebody else's child. If, for any reason, you want to be extra sure your identity will not be revealed — just sign your real name but write under it, "Please use initials," or "Or whatever." You will then know I'm answering your question, but nobody else will recognize you.

Now for Allergies. — It's impossible, and very, very unusual, for one child to have a much more severe allergy than another. In the same family, I mean.

Two of the children have little or no trouble; the third is allergic to various foods. Well — it happens like that.

When it comes to choosing a particular diet for a child, or for adults who has such troubles, there are so many different combinations of foods that can be used, degrees, that hundreds and thousands of different diets may be required to fit everyone.

In this particular case, in the list of boiled-down foods that are very common ones — wheat and eggs. Eggs (useful mainly for their protein values) can easily be substituted with cheese, poultry, fish, meat (veal is useful in this case) and milk.

The wheat allergy obviously means avoiding ordinary baked goods, since most of them use wheat flour. But the diet can also include eggs.

Yet from the standpoint of nutritional diet, there are plenty of other cereals (either as breakfast food, baked in muffins, cookies, as the little fellow grows older) which will give him the cereals (or grains) that he requires. A few examples are corn and corn products, rice, oatmeal and soy bean.

Avoid the things to which he is allergic. As he grows older, he is protected from them he may gradually build up a tolerance to them. Protect him now.

For instance, I once knew a pair of twins — one was allergic to wheat, the other to oats. Separate and special baby formulas had to be prepared for each of them. But they eventually outgrew the allergy, and now they can eat the foods that used to cause them to itch and scratch.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Can angina pectoris be detected only by means of the stethoscope? — C."

No, you're on a false track. Angina pectoris is a symptom, a pain in the heart region, sometimes extending into the shoulder and arm. It's a symptom resulting from a heart deficiency. Naturally there are plenty of other causes for pain in these regions, but the angina pain is usually severe and unbearable.

Anyway, angina is not detected by use of the stethoscope. Indeed, the doctor sounds (which are heard by the stethoscope) can be very faint in patients with angina pectoris.

When you receive one of those every small envelope, addressed, with a wee card attached thereto by a tiny pale blue ribbon, you hasten to read what the inscribed card says.

I did, and how glad! It told me that Master William Boatner Reilly, IV, had arrived on October 1, 1960 — to gladden the hearts of Mr. and Mrs. Reilly.

The small Gentleman's card goes to his relatives and friends in the north know that he had been born in the deep south — in New Orleans.

There is no miracle so full of mystery, beauty and wonder as birth. So every new baby arrival should receive a royal welcome. As the poet Swinburne put it — by a tiny pale blue ribbon who is now in any land,

And he such pearl in any gulf the sea,

As any babe on any mother's breast.

Birth is what the smile of God has contributed to the earth. Every time a Mother is honored, the race is honored.

I was impressed even to inquire what the Sam HILL Broiled Bones were, but ever since, I have remember them, and have kicked myself a thousand times that I failed to take them, instead of the vulgar beef.

Imagine my delight on entering a fellow New Yorker restaurant with Ye Olde English style of exterior and interior decor, to find Broiled Bones on the menu. I took 'em, with mounting excitement.

They were delicious. They were what we call spare ribs; and instead of pork, they were beef. You take the spare ribs, and I'll take the Broiled Bones.

BCI Glee Club Plans Program

The Belleville Collegiate Institute Glee Club will present its annual Christmas production in the school auditorium on Sunday afternoon December 18th. Entitled "The Great Deliverer" the Christmas production is a musical dream adapted and directed by Mr. C. E. Tampier.

The story is set in Bethlehem during the reign of Caesar, and his soldiers are stationed in the little town to preserve order during the "Great Taxation". Their oppressing presence is deeply felt by the Hebrews, whose only hope is in the promise of Jahovah, that He "will send a Deliverer".

This omnipresent thought sustains the people through their sufferings until His promise is fulfilled and their unbelieving Roman soldier is to the "Way of Peace".

The general public is cordially invited to attend.

Captain and 13 Crew Members Taken off Ship

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) The captain and 13 crew members of the Liberian freighter Francisco Morazan, taken off the stranded vessel by the U.S. coast guard Sunday, ran into new problems today—with the U.S. Immigration department.

T. R. Martinez, an immigration official from Detroit, said six of the ship's crew, which is made up of Spaniards, Cubans and Greeks, could be deported. He said the action was requested by Chicago immigration officials. The ship called there.

Martinez said disease, a record of jumping ship, a criminal record and security reasons could cause deportation.

The icebreaker Mackinaw, which had been standing by since shortly after the 346-foot freighter hit a reef off South Manitou Island Tuesday night, also took three insurance agents off Sunday. More high winds were forecast, following a lull on Lake Michigan.

The Mackinaw pulled into Grand Traverse Bay around midnight and anchored off shore. Immigration officials were expected to check the crew today.

The coast guard, meanwhile, said it did not know when an attempt would be made to salvage the freighter and its 900 tons of general cargo.

The Morazan ran aground in a storm.

Picton Outboard Racing Club Holds Annual

PICTON — The Picton Outboard Racing Club held its annual banquet recently at the Prince Edward Yacht Club. Over one hundred and twenty attended the event, which is fast becoming one of the outstanding socials of the year.

After a delicious turkey dinner served by the ladies of O.E.S. 272, presentation of trophies was made.

The T. Eaton Co. trophy for high points went to Wayne Parvey of Rossmore. Wayne also took the trophy for the 18 h.p. class. In accepting the trophies Wayne paid tribute to his father, Jack, the mechanic of this racing team.

Bert Lyons won the 35 h.p. division trophy and also the three-for-all trophy.

Lord "Oleg Smoky" Ryckman piloted off the 40 h.p. class prize.

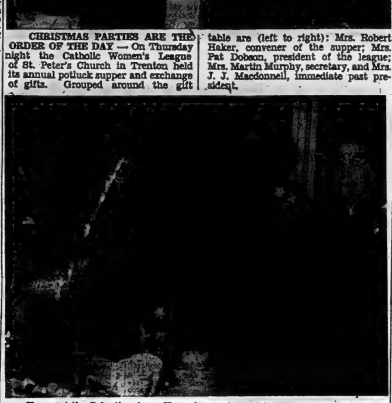
Club president Vince Gentile paid tribute to members of the executive and all club supporters for making the year a success. He particularly mentioned Mary Lyons, Phyllis Silsthorpe, Joanne Williams and "Mac" McDonald.



In the social time which followed, a beauty contest to determine the evening's king and queen caused much merriment, especially when Vince got out his tape measure to decide which of the seven female finalists should win. Donna Kelly walked off with the prize eventually. In the gents' section Roy Whitehouse nosed out Paul Malone.

CHRISTMAS PARTIES ARE THE ORDER OF THE DAY — On Thursday night the Catholic Women's League of St. Peter's Church in Trenton held its annual potluck supper and exchange of gifts. Grouped around the gift table are (left to right): Mrs. Robert Baker, convener of the supper; Mrs. Pat Dobson, president of the league; Mrs. Martin Murphy, secretary, and Mrs. J. J. Macdonnell, immediate past president.

Around The Tee

Probably once in a lifetime a curler is on a rink that scores an eight-ender, but to Hugh Murray of the Quinte Curling Club it is becoming a habit. With his wife and Mr. and Mrs. George Tripp playing in the mixed bonspiel at the Trenton Curling Club on Saturday, Hugh and his rink picked up the perfect score. Although he did not win any prize in the spiel Hugh has had his picture taken and this will be hung in the clubhouse along with the other one. It will be a long time before this feat is duplicated.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gault, with Jeff, and Mrs. Steve Bakay also attended the spiel and they came home with the first prize, winning all three games by comfortable margins. They played three eight-end games on the point system. The rinks report the ice was in good condition and the hospitality unsurpassed.

$250,000 Loss In Pictou Fire, No One Injured

PICTOU, N.S. (CP)—A raging early-morning fire levelled two downtown buildings Sunday and caused more than $250,000 damage.

There were no injuries in the general alarm fire in the two front Street buildings which contained 13 businesses and offices. Eight persons were left homeless after escaping from an apartment.

Cause of the fire was not known. Firemen said it started shortly after an explosion that was heard in all parts of this Northumberland Strait town of 5,000. Flames shot 100 feet.

It was the third major fire here in 18 months and occurred in a block adjacent to a group that buildings destroyed four months ago.

Fire officials said damage may total more than $300,000 when all assessments have been made.

Included in the loss were 20 paintings by Maritime amateur artists. They were here on the first stop of a travelling art exhibit. No estimate of their value was available.

Salvation Army Corps Holds Successful Tea

TRENTON—The Home League of the Trenton Salvation Army Corps held a tea and home cooking sale Friday afternoon in the Salvation Army Hall on Elgin St.

Mrs. Henry Fulford, secretary of the league, was the convener. Taking tickets at the door was Mrs. W. Wilson.

The hall was decorated in a Christmas theme, with red candles and greenery gracing the centre table and the small tea tables.

Pouring tea were Mrs. A. S. Robinson, Mrs. C. W. Saylor, Mrs. W. J. Hendricks and Mrs. J. T. Irwin.

Mrs. C. Sills and Mrs. G. Holbeck served the guests and Mrs. C. Copeland, Mrs. B. English and and Mrs. W. Simpson splendidly ed the plates from the kitchen.

One corner of the sewing table was devoted to dolls and dolls' clothes. Mrs. D. Valyear was the convener.

Mrs. H. Walsh and Mrs. C. Lovely cold aprons, knitted baby sets and other attractive gift selections in the sewing line.

Mrs. George Chard was in charge of the novelty table; Mrs. L. Berry sold homemade candies and Mrs. W. Styles was in charge of the bake table.

Damage Totals $950 in Crash

TRENTON — A car owned by George Irwin of Don Mills, received damage estimated at $450 when it was struck from behind by a car driven by Raymond O'Sullivan of Frankford Sunday afternoon.

Police said the Irwin car was parked in front of 372 Byron St. here. The car driven by O'Sullivan, proceeding west on a side street failed to make a turn and crashed into the rear of the Irwin car, knocking it 30 feet ahead. The car driven by O'Sullivan was owned by Glen Sharpe, James St., Frankford, and received $500 damage to the front end.

Russians Will Return to God Says Speaker

TRENTON — The Russians will eventually return to God, Mrs. Laura Davis of Toronto, lecturing at a youth seminar for young people of the Baha'i faith in Trenton over the weekend, said that Russia is in a transitory state at the moment. She said that the Greek Orthodox Church had become so ridden with superstitions that the people of Russia had quite naturally rebelled against all religion, but there were signs that the country, as a whole, was taking more interest in a return to a living faith.

Mrs. Davis has travelled extensively throughout the world studying various religions. She spent several weeks in the Holy Land recently. In her lecture, which was illustrated by colored slides, she told of the success the Jewish people have had in their efforts to reclaim their land from the desert.

"The desert is indeed blossoming like the rose," she said.

Jerusalem has become a modern city and the countryside round about is truly beautiful. The slopes of Mount Carmel are covered with flowers and trees.

Of particular interest to those present were pictures of the magnificent shrine to the Bab, forerunner of the Baha'i faith in Haifa.

Odd Fellows Hold Father, Son Banquet

A most successful and enjoyable "Father and Son" banquet was held recently by the Odd Fellows' Lodge, #1, with about 50 in attendance.

The tables were beautifully decorated with artificial Christmas trees and the supper, which consisted of roast turkey, with all the trimmings, ice cream, was capably prepared and served by the wives of the members.

Following the repast, all retired to the lower hall where an enjoyable time was spent. John Foby, student at the O.S.D., thrilled all with his tricks of magic.

On Thursday night the first degree was conferred by the Belleville Lodge. There was a good attendance present, with Brothers from the Brighton Lodge visiting.

Refreshments were served and a game of dart baseball enjoyed with the Brighton lodge trimming the Belleville lodge by 13 to 9.

Truck Robbed Of Yule Cakes

Christmas is still three weeks away, but Christmas cake is already in demand.

Over the weekend a representative of the Vaughan Cake Company, Dearborn, reported that his truck had been broken into as it was parked on a service station lot at the corner of College Street and Hamilton Road, with 22 one and a half pound Christmas cakes, and five dozen cup cakes being taken.

Police have still not picked up the trail of the missing Christmas cakes.

SUCCESS

is extra money to seize opportunity!

HAVE YOU ENOUGH EXTRA MONEY? A watchful buyer, with cash in his pocket, can take advantage of many opportunities. Valuable projects such as the purchase of a house, furniture, home appliances or major renovations can be undertaken with confidence. The opportunity of a life-time to go into business for yourself can be seized, quickly.

Men who are earning no more than you frequently can manage these things. They are able to because their savings, the education of their children, and the security of their families have already been looked after by unconditionally guaranteed life insurance. By keeping their life insurance in force to secure the years ahead, they can act with confidence and courage. And, if for some reason these men need even more money, they can borrow on their insurance . . . knowing that the family's financial future is secure.

How about you? If you don't have enough extra money . . . maybe it's because you don't own enough life insurance with valuable savings features. Look into it. Your life insurance man is a most important person to talk to regularly on your road to success. Save and be safe with life insurance.

Tabernacle WA Hears Talk On W.F. Work

The regular monthly meeting of Tabernacle United Church W.A. was held in the auditorium of the Sunday School last Thursday afternoon.

The meeting opened with a dessert luncheon arranged by group 4. The auditorium looked especially beautiful with a small decorated Christmas tree on the platform and lighted candles distributed through the room.

After the luncheon, Mrs. Davidson introduced the guests from other churches seated at the head table, namely: Mrs. Clarence Holmes, president of Belleville Presbyterial Woman's Missionary Society; Mrs. G. Dobbs, president of Bay of Quinte Conference Women's Association; Mrs. Marsh, past president of Hastings and Prince Edward Presbytery, and Mrs. T. Townsend of the Wesley Church, Mrs. Cornish presided over this service.

Mrs. Williamson read the Scripture lesson and Mrs. Boyce read a beautiful Christmas story which emphasized the thoughts that before one can realize the true meaning of Christmas, they must give something of themselves to others in need.

Mrs. Holmes brought greetings from Belleville Presbytery, and spoke on "Togetherness" reading many quotations from the Bible stating how together people can accomplish their aims as Christians.

Mrs. Dobbs who attended Dominion Council at Edmonton, brought greetings from Bay of Quinte Conference W.F.

Mrs. Marsh past president of Hastings and Prince Edward Presbytery said she was pleased that all the women's groups of Tabernacle Church were represented at the meeting.

A beautiful solo entitled, "O Leavy, Your Sheep" was rendered by Mrs. Townsend with Mrs. Hubbs at the piano.

Mrs. Smithrim, the chief speaker, was introduced by Mrs. Davidson.

Mrs. Smithrim endeavored to explain to those present how the new federation of women of the United Church would work. The name of the group is to be United Church Women. There is to be, in each church, a group comprising all the women's organizations as they now have them. Then there will be units consisting of smaller groups, yet belonging to the larger group. Some newer churches are working on this system already and the older churches will gradually become accustomed to it.

STUDY CHURCH'S WORK

One idea the speaker emphasized was that women should study and try to understand the work of the church. There is room for well informed women in all the courts of the church. One is never too old to learn.

Mrs. Kerr and Mrs. Davidson thanked all those who helped to make the meeting so interesting and informative.

Y's Menettes Hold Fine Coffee Party

The Y's Menettes Club of Belleville held a successful Yuletide Coffee party and bazaar last Thursday in the YMCA auditorium.

Receiving the guests at the door were: Mrs. Sharon Newman, president of the club, and Mrs. Helen Diamantides, wife of the secretary of the Y.M.C.A.

The coffee table featured a novel centre piece showing Santa delighting from a basket sleigh and preparing to climb a nearby chimney. While candles ringed with trailing ivy and Christmas greenery completed the decoration.

Mrs. J. Pearson brilliantly displayed her talents with its centerpiece.

Presiding at the coffee table were: Mrs. J. MacDonald and Mrs. Fiankle; Mrs. Wills and Miss Carolyn Taylor.

The bazaar table held many gift items, featuring many varieties of baskets, trays hanging planters, knitted items-ribbon bows, and corsages, doll clothes and aprons.

The home baking table contained rolls, cakes, cookies, loaf cakes and jars of pickles, relishes, jams and jellies.

The Y's Menettes wish to thank all, who contributed to their bazaar and "Coffee Party" a success.

November Marrying Season Among Amish People of Penn.

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — November is ended and so, for another year, is the marrying season among the Amish people of this Pennsylvania Dutch country.

Weddings, for the Amish folk, are strictly November milestones.

And not just any time in the month, either. By long-standing custom among the people of this Protestant sect—plain but picturesque—a couple may marry only on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

But if the code is strict on the score of waiting for weekend frills, it's more than made up for in poses few constrictions upon the nuptial festivities themselves.

An Amish wedding day starts about 8:30 a.m., and lasts until well after sundown. (It is by means uncommon for as many as 400 to 500 guests to assemble). Guitar and harmonica artists come from miles around to entertain, concert style, and to play for the dancing.

In even lovelier vein, married friends of the groom try to pitch him over a fence, a ritual symbolizing a new status.

HIDE THE BROOM

Friends of the bride perform a traditional rite, too. They hide a broom in the bride's bureau—always the scene of an Amish wedding—with the intent of tricking her into stepping over it. Once she has done that she is recognized by all as a married woman. It is a transparent deception which finds brides unfailingly responsive.

Not the least of the attractions is a big meal at midday, showing off a variety of superbly cooked dishes, with ample leftovers for supper.

Gaiety is by no means the whole picture, however. To the Amish a wedding is one of the most spiritual of human experiences. Hymns are sung, prayers spoken. The actual service is performed without rings. A bishop clasps the hands of bride and groom in his own, signifying a union for a period of dissolution. An Amish divorce is unheard of.

The bride is gowned in blue organdie, with white apron and cap. Neither she nor anyone else wears flowers. In the line of courtship she wore bright colors. As a wife, she'll wear only black.

Before an Amishman marries he is clean-shaven. Afterward, he grows a beard.

Women's Activities

MASSASSAGA W. A.

A meeting of the Massassaga W. A. was held on last Thursday at the home of Mrs. Burton Thompson.

Mrs. Thompson's home was beautifully decorated and the meeting opened with a carol service.

It was decided that the W.A. give donations to the following: "The Home for Mentally Retarded Infants", "The Laymen's Foundation," and the Sunday School in order to buy cagdy for the Christmas concert.

It was also decided to buy Christmas remembrances for some of the elderly and sick people.

The devotional was in charge of Mrs. Ernest Jose, assisted by Mrs. Norman Sallsbury. Mrs. L. M. Neddow and Mrs. Eva Fosten.

Mrs. Neddow showed a very fine film of the "Nativity".

Each member pulled a string hanging out of the basket and received for herself a gift.

Mrs. Neddow passed around slips of paper on which were parts of words. Everyone had to find a partner for lunch by matching the syllable on her paper.

A special Christmas lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Neddow, Mrs. T. Jose and Mrs. J. Jones.

Moira LOBA Sponsors Euchre, Dance

Friday evening the ladies lodge held a successful euchre and dance prizes went to the following for euchre: ladies' Muriel Doxtator; Phyllis Higgins' consolation — Marjorie MacPherson, lone hand — Mildred McPherson, men's Jack Andrews; Miller, crowford; consolation — Ken Bradshaw; lone hand — Frank Codlin.

Music was provided by "Smoky Nelson" and his orchestra.

The ladies served lunch at midnight.

Ontario Diocesan W.A. Board Meets in Kingston

The monthly meeting of the Ontario Diocesan Women's Auxiliary was held last Monday in St. John's Church, beginning with the service of Holy Communion at 11.00 a.m.

The celebrant was the Rector, Canon Minto Swan, assisted by the Rev. A. C. McCallum. Canon Swan was the preacher and spoke on the life of St. Andrew, and of his bringing his brother to Jesus and enlarged on the words of Jesus to his disciples, "Come and See," and "Go and Tell."

After the service, the members adjourned to the Parish Hall for a box luncheon.

The afternoon session opened at 2 p.m. with Miss president, Mrs. W. F. H. Mitchell, presiding. The opening prayers were said by Canon Swan.

Mrs. D. C. Hunt introduced the speakers the Rev. John MacDougall and Mary Joy Verden from Trinity Church East, in Toronto. Speaking about their work in that downtown parish, they told of the many aspects of the work and the conditions under which they have to meet the various situations.

Colored slides were shown and the talk was most interesting, showing what a great amount of Christian Social Service is being accomplished in this area.

Mrs. L. Boyd expressed the thanks of the meeting to the speakers.

The meeting was closed by Archdeacon D. C. Hunt.

Refreshments were served by the members of the St. John's W.A. and a social hour enjoyed.

QUESTION BOX

Question . . . When addressing a card to your host and other office associates, and you know they have wives (whom you have never met), do you send a card just to the man addressing it to the office, or do you include the wife?

Answer . . . Always include the wife. Address your card to Mr. and Mrs. It makes no difference whether or not you know her. Send the card to the home address. Choose one that is dignified and simply offers greetings for the season. Sign your full name, so they will be sure to know who the sender is.

Question . . . My husband and I are in the middle of an argument. I do hope you can help us straighten it out. We often attend buffet suppers where small tables are set near the buffet table and you eat any place you wish, after getting your food. My contention is that a husband and wife should sit at different tables. I see him all the time and I think it's nice to chat with other people for a change. However, he thinks it's wrong and I do have been criticized by some of my friends. What do you think? — Mrs. F.J.H. —New York, N.Y.

Answer — I think it is wise for you both to sit at the same table. Not necessarily side by side, however. You can all on opposite sides and chat with other people without causing comment. Otherwise, there is bound to be some troublemaker who will hint that "Joe and Mary don't seem to be getting along. They are not even sitting at the same table." It's good against such pests, we are always with us, use a little discretion!

Question . . . Is it proper to place the home address on the back flap of a Christmas card? By doing this are you indicating that you want a card in return?

Answer . . . I think your home address should be placed on the envelope. Christmas is a time for sending out acquaintances that perhaps you have not seen for months or years. Even if those to whom you are sending cards are fairly close friends, it helps them to bring address books up to date, making sure that the card they have for you is correct. As for your idea that it indicates you want a card in return, I think this is the wrong approach. Christmas is a time of giving, not only of material gifts but of thoughts for others. The concept should not be that "because the Smiths sent us a card, we have to send them one!"

Question — How can I stop my next-door neighbor from running in at all hours of the day to borrow this, that or the other thing? She drives me crazy. There is a grocery store only a block away and I can't see why that cup of sugar can't be got there, instead of bothering me. I admit she does return what she borrows, but that just makes another visit to my house! How can I stop this without starting a neighborly feud? — Mrs. H. B. D., Allentown, Pa.

Answer — Obviously your neighbor is lonely. Running back and forth to your house gives her a chance to talk with someone. Short of being downright rude, I'm afraid you have a problem on your hands. Try being busy to chat when she comes over, or being out of the things she wants to borrow. Maybe she will catch on.

Question: My young daughter will be in the wedding of a friend. I am planning a small dinner celebration for her at a hotel where the bride of her friend may dine and dance. After I receive the guest list from my friend, I have? I think I should, but some of my friends say I should stay.

Mrs. K. B. R.—New York, NY

Answer — Your friends are right. Stay by all means. In order not to make the youngsters feel they are being chaperoned, why not entertain three or four of your friends at a time for lunch? In this way you can keep quiet on the sidelines and not be too obvious about it!

Question: I recently lost my husband and am at a loss to know what to do about sending cards to our friends and relatives at Christmas time. I know there will be over 50 many friends over the country and abroad who do not know of his death. We usually send out several hundred cards, but I just don't feel up to doing this particularly since I would have to tell so many about my husband's passing. What would be the best course under these circumstances? — Mrs. W. A. M., Allentown, Pa.

Answer: I would certainly forego sending cards this year. I'm sure your friends will understand your seeming lack of thought when they learn it's reason. Perhaps after Christmas, when you have had more time to recover from your loss, it might be nice to write notes to some of those who sent you greetings, thanking them and at the same time telling them what has happened. I'm sure you will be better able to handle it then.

Question: My daughter is being married next month and I am in a quandary about how to invite the relatives of the bride-groom to the ceremony. We have never met any of them, since they all live in a different city. We are planning to have about fifty guests and are having no invitations engraved. Our friends and relatives are being invited by telephone. How do I go about asking these people that we don't know?—Mrs. N. B. B., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: Talk to the bridegroom and ask him to give you a list of all the relatives a of friends he wishes to have invited. Write a note to each of these people, handwritten of course, saying plain,' white stationery. Address the letter to the wife, if asking a couple. In the note itself, indicate that both she and her husband are expected. An example: "Dear Mrs. Roe: Our daughter, Jane, is to be married to your nephew, Philip, on December tenth, and we are so hoping that you and your husband will be able to be with us." Then go on to give the time and the place and any other details you think necessary. The recipients should reply immediately.

Question: I received an invitation to a brunch which is to be given in the home of a woman I have never met. It is a benefit luncheon and the proceeds are to go to the Crippled Children Society. My question is, what is the proper attire for such an affair? It is to take place at 10:30 in the morning. —Mrs. m.d., harrisburg, morning.—Mrs. M. D., Harrisburg, Pa.

Answer: A tailored street dress is perfect for such an occasion. A suit also is proper. A hat should be worn, and gloves and purse should complete your ensemble.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council, financial details with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers

Mrs. A.N. — This going steady business at age 14 is ridiculous.

Minna N.—Having a steady means more fun in my crowd.

* * *

Mrs. A. — Thinking of Minna and Rick together, sometimes as much as 14 hours a day, has our hair on end! They're 14, and in the same class. As if the physical proximity weren't enough, how can Minna stand such a wall around herself which keeps away all other kids who might be her close friends?

What has happened to her childhood? These kids write notes to each other as "Mrs. Rick" or "Mrs. Billy." Add they fight over boys the way we used to fight over the last trulley in the long school! When I was Minna's age, girls went around with girls and boys with boys, and the twosomes were only for parties and the movies.

We're thinking of transferring Minna to an all-girl school so that she'll major in homework instead of boys. What's the rush? We feel we must do something to slow her down.

* * *

Minna N. — My parents don't understand what going steady means. It means I have someone to do homework with and when there's a dance or a party, we go together.

My parents have nothing to worry about. In fact, my marks are better than ever because Rick is very smart and he helps me.

And we don't sit around necking and all, as they think. All my friends have steadies and we just go along with the bunch.

Maybe there are girls who don't want to go steady with a boy, or who can't get anyone. I know that my girl friends and I like to know where we stand with boys. It's a nice feeling to know you're connected with someone.

* * *

So long as matters physical are under control, the only danger in the exclusivity of these 14-year-old duos is the foreshortening of their social outlook. "Security" is the watchword and goal of the over-35s. The teens are for daring, exploring, branching out, discovering. Minna and Rick might go further as teenage livewires by keeping their contacts more varied than they can be in the social cul-de-sac of "going steady."

There's no need for Mrs. N. to have Minna transferred. "Steadies" are the big thing in all-girls' schools too, only they're talked and dreamed about instead of produced.

Having a steady fills several important needs for some young people. It permits them to go through the imitative motions of adults having "an affair." And at the same time as Minna and Rick can dramatize themselves as wedding grownups, they can remain two scared kids, dependent and obliging to each other for courage in social situations. Minna "can't do that" — that composite tyrant parsed before parents — go steady or steadily. Minna and Rick have the added pleasure of "status." They belong.

Mrs. N.'s best course would be to accept the pattern of "steadies" as consoling to a girl with Minna's insecurities and needs, but to keep trying — without nagging — to show Minna more enriching and orginal ways to remove the insecurities and fulfil the needs.

Facing a group as a loner takes more bravery than facing it by two's, and the average 14-year-old hasn't much of that kind of aplomb.

Chicken-Dinner-In-A-Dish

By Mary Moore

Keeping promises is such a satisfaction, that even I've been intending to make a casserole par excellence to suit all budgets, all appetites, all menus, all ages and to fill several written requests Tall order

This will help you with your entertaining this month too.

I started with a three-pound chicken costing $1.35. From there on I was on my own.

It is for career women, for folks with four to six in the family, for automatic oven owners and harassed mothers. It is for the girls who have been asked to "bring a casserole". It is for me too when company is coming and she has to be fed and bathed just before they arrive. Catch on?

Dinner Menus

MONDAY

Corned Brisket of Beef with Horseradish Sauce; Boiled Parsleyed Whole Potatoes; Buttered Broccoli; Celery Hearts; Wedges or Ripe Spanish or Honey Dew Melon with Lemon; Tea

CHICKEN - DINNER - IN - A - DISH:

1 1-3 tablespoons melted butter, 2-3 cup raw long grain rice, 1-3-3 cups water, 1 medium carrot, sliced into thin rings, 1-2 cup chopped celery tops and stalks (or chopped green pepper), 1 5-oz. package fresh frozen peas (unthawed but separated), 1 small onion, chopped finely, 1 2 3-4-2 lb. chicken cut into serving pieces, 1 teaspoon curry powder (optional but recommended), 1 1-2 to 2 teaspoons salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 1-3 tablespoons flour, 1 1-3 cups milk.

Over very low heat melt 1 1-2 tablespoons butter in large casserole (about 9 2-4 x 3"). Remove from heat and add raw rice and stir. Add 1 1-3 cups water. Add layers of carrot rings, celery and peas. Arrange pieces of chicken over top having back pieces on top (temporarily — more). Make Sauce: In saucepan melt 2 tablespoons butter (second amount) and add flour, onion and curry powder and saute for about 2 minutes at low temperature. Stir in flour to blend and then add the hot milk until thickened. Add salt and pepper. Pour sauce over chicken pieces. (At this stage casserole may be stored in refrigerator until baking time arrives.) Bake in oven at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1 1-2 hours but after first hour minutes turn over chicken pieces until pieces are on top and baste them with a little of the sauce. Continue baking the remaining hour.

NOTE:

If you are absent while this is baking in an automatic oven pieces on top at first.

NOTE:

Save your empty vacuum-pack one-pound coffee or tea cans, for later this week I am giving you the recipe for making and baking gift Christmas fruit cakes in them.

Indo-Pakistan Relations 'Very Encouraging' Says Former High Commissioner

By JACK BEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A Canadian diplomat who returned earlier this year from Asia has added his voice to the growing chorus of reports about a thaw in India-Pakistan relations.

"The trend in Indo-Pakistan relations is very encouraging," says Herbert O. Moran, former high commissioner to Pakistan, who this summer was appointed director-general of Canada's foreign aid program.

The two countries have been at loggerheads most of the time since partition in 1947. This was marked by a blood-bath in the Punjab as Hindu and Moslem received to settle old scores.

Mr. Moran, who spent nearly three years in Karachi, was in a position to see the improvement process at work, in an interview, he suggested that the advent of Field Marshal Mohammad Ayub Khan as supreme ruler of Pakistan was what gave it impetus.

COUP WORRIED INDIA

Paradoxically, the army coup which brought President Ayub to power two years ago and swept away the corrupt so-called democratic system under which Moslem Pakistan had been ruled since 1947, was greeted with misgivings in India. Prime Minister Nehru is said to have called the new regime a naked military dictatorship.

Since then the Indians apparently have found that they can work with the Ayub regime. Mr. Moran cited these developments in the trend to better relations, all of which took place in the last year:

Agreement on most of the cut-standing border quarrels between Pakistan and India; agreement on outstanding claims pertaining to immovable property—property which refugees from either country were unable to take with them when they fled to the other country at the time of partition; agreement on the Indus waters question; exchange of visits between top members of the two governments and military commanders.

Mr. Moran downgraded the part Communist Chinese expansionism has played in India's more amicable attitude toward Pakistan. The Communist menace may have contributed, but mostly the process should be ascribed to a "series of little things; they just reached the point where the desire was there."

As to the prospects of a settlement of the Kashmir dispute, sorest point of all between the two countries, Mr. Moran was diplomatically non - committal. However, he felt that with goodwill on both sides this problem also could be resolved.

He dipped back into his past diplomatic experience to justify his hopefulness. He was ambassador to Turkey at a time when Greece and Turkey were quarrelling bitterly over Cyprus. "I was always optimistic that they would find a workable solution. And eventually they did."

RULED UNFIT

MONTREAL (CP)—Donat Julien, 43, described as paranoic by a psychiatrist, Friday was ruled unfit to stand trial on an attempted murder charge in connection with the shooting of a clergyman. He was arrested after Rev. Ephege Richard, provincial superior of the Oblate Order, was shot in the arm May 29. The 65-year-old cleric said he knew of no reason for the shooting.

Supreme Court Of B.C. to Speed Up Work

VICTORIA (CP) — British Columbia's Supreme Court will operate under new, streamlined rules beginning January 1, rules designed to speed up procedure and including for the first time in Canada provision for pre-trial conferences between the judge and opposing parties.

Another facet of the new procedure is extension of discretion to the judge in civil actions on the admissibility of recordings and films as evidence. Judges already have such discretion in criminal actions and a recording was used as Crown evidence in a fraud case here in 1959, believed the first time in Canada.

In most other provinces there is no law prohibiting the introduction of tape recordings or films but they have rarely been admitted as evidence. In Ontario, recordings are admissible if the magistrate or judge is satisfied as to their accuracy and how they were obtained.

Attorney General Bonner, announcing the new rules Friday, said it was hoped they would speed court procedures. The new rules involve studies of procedures in the U.S., other provinces and England over the last five years.

The pre-trial conference provision was adopted from American procedure. At present the only pre-trial meeting is an examination for discovery where the opposing parties exchange documents and define the issues of the case. But the judge is not present.

Lion-Infested Fir Forest To Become Tourist Showcase

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — The lion-infested Gir forest in West India, some 400 miles north of here, is to become one of the major tourist attractions for foreign visitors in this country.

The 300-square-mile forest is the only spot in the entire world, outside Africa, that boasts a lion population. According to many naturalists, India was the original home of the king of the jungle.

Some three centuries ago lions were found all over India. Unscrupulous shooting drove them to Gir where they took shelter. The maharajas of Junagarh state, of which Gir was a part before the princes were pensioned off following India's independence, declared lions protected animals to prevent their extinction.

In 1913, there were only 200 lions in Gir. The government took steps to ensure further protection and the lion population of the forest now is believed to number about 500.

DYE FOR CENSUS

A census is being launched shortly to find out the exact number. The novel operation will consist of dashing each lion with a dash of permanent dye from a safe perch. There will be a counter-check on the basis of foot-prints.

Everyone in India enthusiastically agrees that the lions of Gir should be preserved and their number increased. In Gir, tourists can watch a pack of lions roaming themselves from a bare three-yards away. The Maldharis —professional graziers—living on the rim of Gir refer to the lions as "brothers" and in the last decade there have been only two cases of men being killed by the beasts.

Government efforts to make Gir a tourist attraction ran into one serious difficulty. The taxpayer has willingly backed the provision of funds for building a road and tourist rest-houses to Gir, but he is not prepared to tolerate the offering of live bull-calves as "kills" to draw the lions from the interior of the forest.

WEEKEND TRIPS

The provincial authorities in Bombay drew up a plan for plane-trips to Gir over weekends. For as little as $35 a tourist could have a close look at the lions and return to Bombay. Some half-dozen Rich trips were made when a storm burst over the use of buffaloes.

Thousands of protest letters flooded newspapers. The government was charged with "wanton cruelty to defenceless animals." The tourist ministry was accused of "making blood - stained money." Vegetarian and humanitarian organizations organized protest meetings. Most - riders joined vegetarians to call for the scrapping of the scheme. Finally, the government beat a retreat.

But the nation still wants the tourists to see the lions of Gir and the authorities are confident of finding an acceptable way of attracting the lions.

"Jest a Second"

"I know I ask you for more pocket money every week—you said you wanted me to be ambitious."

Demorestville

DEMORESTVILLE — A lovely wedding took place in Demorestville Church last Saturday when Joan Longwell and Richard Williams were united in marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Gorsline, Pam and Penny were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Young., Marlbank.

Mr. and Mrs. Kingsley on Thursday ten hour with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nulley.

Mrs. William Anderson and Thomas Cassidy spent Saturday afternoon with Mr. Albert Nutley.

Hard to Know Who's Boss From Day to Day in Congo Without Look at Jail List

By BERNARD DUPRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP) — The political situation in this new nation has become so confused that some days you can't tell who is in power without a list of those who are in jail.

In Stanleyville, capital of Orientale province, a reporter recently missed an appointment to interview the vice-president. Next morning, he called at the man's office only to learn the vice-president had been arrested during the night and was in jail.

That illustrates the vast constitutional and political morass into which the Congo has fallen since it became independent last June.

Reports from Stanleyville say politicians there rise to power, are jailed, gain release after a few days and then come to power once more to start a new cycle. The shifts depend on whether three forces—the army, the gendarmerie and the provincial police—happens to control the city on any given day.

MACH HIS OWN

Most Congolese, from President Joseph Kasavubu down to village chiefs, realize their political difficulties and all are trying to do something about them, each in his own inimitable and inconsistent way. But it probably will take years to untangle the situation.

There are too many political groups, generally based along tribal lines all competing with one another, to be able to forsee early agreement and unity.

In the middle of the confusion trying to keep cool-headed and convincingly aloof from internal political squabbles, is the United Nations. Its attempts to remain non-partisan go unrecognized by virtually all Congolese, who regard fence-sitting as a sign of weakness.

The Congolese believe that the UN, by refusing to take sides, is in effect, trying to impose its own kind of "trusteeship colonialism" on the newly-independent Congo.

Congolese attempts to set their political house in order has included the proposal for a round table of all political leaders and hereditary chieftains. But tribal rivalries which still occasionally break out into primitive warfare in some sections of the interior have caused the conference to be postponed indefinitely.

PROVINCIAL AUTONOMY

The 30-member college of commissioners general, made up largely of inexperienced young men doing their best to maintain the government's administrative services, says the Congo cannot be governed under a system of strong central government.

Albert Ndele, vice-chairman of the college and commissioner for finance, suggests the creation of a loose federation of largely-autonomous provinces. He says the central government should have jurisdiction in "technical and economic matters" with the provinces holding "a very large measure of autonomy" in all othr matters.

Ndele suggests the establishment of more provinces, apparently to satisfy the rivalries among the 70-odd major and sub-tribes in the country. Some UN sources think the present six provinces should be divided into about a dozen, all based along broad ethnic lines.

Such a redistribution of provinces, all with autonomous powers, would satisfy Moise Tshombe, leader of the mineral-rich Katanga; Albert Kalondji, leader of the Baluba of South Kasai; the Bakongo people of Kasavubu in the Congo River delta, and other sections of the country.

FARMERS STRIKE

In Coquilhatville, capital of Equator province, a group of young provincial cabinet ministers went on strike recently, out of spite because of too many criticisms of their administration. But they kept on collecting their pay cheques.

Batawa

BATAWA — Batawa was proud to welcome a group of officers and men from the military school RCEME, Kingston, on Monday. They toured various parts of the plant and enjoyed luncheon in the lounge room.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Bercik of Brighton, Ont., are visiting a number of friends in Batawa.

Mr. Anthony Cekota has returned to Batawa from an extended business trip to South America, which took him to six different countries on the southern continent, where he visited eight Bata factories to accomplish extensive work in the field of personnel and industrial relations.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Jim Williams on the birth of a lovely baby daughter in Trenton Memorial Hospital on Tuesday, November 29th.

About 80 leading officials of Canadian Girl Guides Commissioners, regional and provincial officers gathered for a buffet dinner on Monday evening to pay tribute to the Bata Shoe Company of Canada, Ltd., for support in establishment of the movement in Canada. A presentation was made to Mr. Arthur Duncan for his previous leadership in various phases of the project and also to Mr. and Mrs. Yonker of the RCAF, camp councillors.

On Saturday morning Bata Winter Courses continued dealing with the subject "Supervisory Behavior." Two officers from the Royal Military College, Squadron Leader R. J. Bain and Major L. G. Smith, lectured.

Mr. Arthur Duncan attended a noonday conference on Wednesday with the Department of Agriculture officials in Queen's Park and was guest speaker in the evening at a Kiwanis gathering in Orillia.

Demonstrations will take place in the machine shop, December 8th, following the instructions of Welding and Welding Practices."

Thursday visitors in Batawa were: Mr. Hugh Henry, chief engineer of production duties of the John Inglis Company; Mr.

Red China's Military Might Said in Tens of Millions

By BURMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—The military might of Communist China no longer is talked about in India in whispers.

At the highest official levels, and in the press and on public platforms, it is frankly recognized that India is dealing with a Communist neighbor with powerful military forces—and with few scruples.

Newspapers have been publishing detailed stories about the military strength of Red China. According to the diplomatic correspondent of The Hindustan Times of New Dehli, Red China now has roughly 2,000,000 men in its regular armed forces and "several tens of millions" in its semi-military formations known as the militia. These exclude reserves with full military training.

Quoting diplomatic sources, the correspondent gives this breakdown of Red China's regular armed forces:

Army, 2,800,000; public security, 185,000; air force, 75,000; navy, 60,000 and railway troops" in combat readiness 78,000.

CONSCRIPTION IN FORCE

All Chinese males above the age of 18 are subject to conscription. The period of active service lasts from three to five years. Those who finish their active service are automatically put on the reserve list until they are 40. There are reports that Peking is considering raising this limit to 45.

Paul Greco, of the sales division of the same company, and Mr. Roy Wilson, test engineer.

Those gentlemen along with officers of Lakeland Natural Gas Company and Bata shoe executive attended the function, which marked the official beginning of full operation of Batawa's new steam generating unit.

Marsh Hill

MARSH HILL — Several from here attended a federation of Agriculture banquet at Carmel, Wednesday evening.

Miss Lynne McConnell and Mrs. Eleanor Alexander of Belleville, who are attending Peterborough Teachers' College are teaching this week at Marsh Hill school under the supervision of the teacher, Miss John Good.

Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Breese were: Mr. and Mrs. Glen Anderson and boys of Hyndone and Mrs. Evelyn Lancaster of Stirling.

A number from here attended the funeral of Mr. Arthur Hamblin of Peterboro, a former resident of this community.

Students receive intensive military training under "military teachers" specially appointed for the purpose. Secondary school students get special attention.

What the Chinese call "feudal," "bourgeois capitalist" and "counter-revolutionary" elements are banned from military service. Last year some 158,000 Chinese in these categories are said to have received "correction training" and a few were later accepted for regular military service.

Militia strength in 1959 was placed at 8,000,000 but by August 1958 the number had jumped to "several tens of millions." Peking's aim, it is reported, is to put "every eligible person" or "at least 600,000,000 population under arms so that by the end of 1963 "every one would know how to use a gun and fight in battle."

The militia is firmly under the control of local Communist leaders.

Observers here consider as significant Prime Minister Nehru's recent statement in parliament that India had to build up her strength to face any possible threat from the north.

FOUR DIE

HUNTINGDON, Pa. (AP) — Four young children died Friday in a fire that swept their home in this central Pennsylvania community. Mrs. Raymond Barger said she was downstairs in the two-story brick dwelling when she heard one of her children shriek, "Mommy." She raced up the stairs but was driven back by flames and dense smoke, then fell and broke an ankle.

Believe Small Coin May Be From King Herod's Era

HAIFA, Israel (AP)—A retired American industrialist who spent four months and $100,000 carrying on an underwater search near here says one small silver coin may have been well worth it all.

He is Edwin A. Link of Binghamton, N.Y., and New York City. If the name sounds familiar but you can't place it, think back to the Second World War. He invented the airplane trainer used to teach pilots how to deal with flying conditions before they left the ground.

He became a millionaire before retiring last year at the age of 55 and now his interests have turned to the world below the surface of the seas and oceans. This is how he has come to possess the coin on which he places so high a value.

On one face is a bearded Neptune, the Roman god of the sea. On the other is a harbor with sailing ships, on each side of which stands a Colossus.

The coin was taken from the floor of the Mediterranean about 10 miles south of here at what was once a port as famous as New York and London are today, but whose name few but historians now recognize—Caesarea.

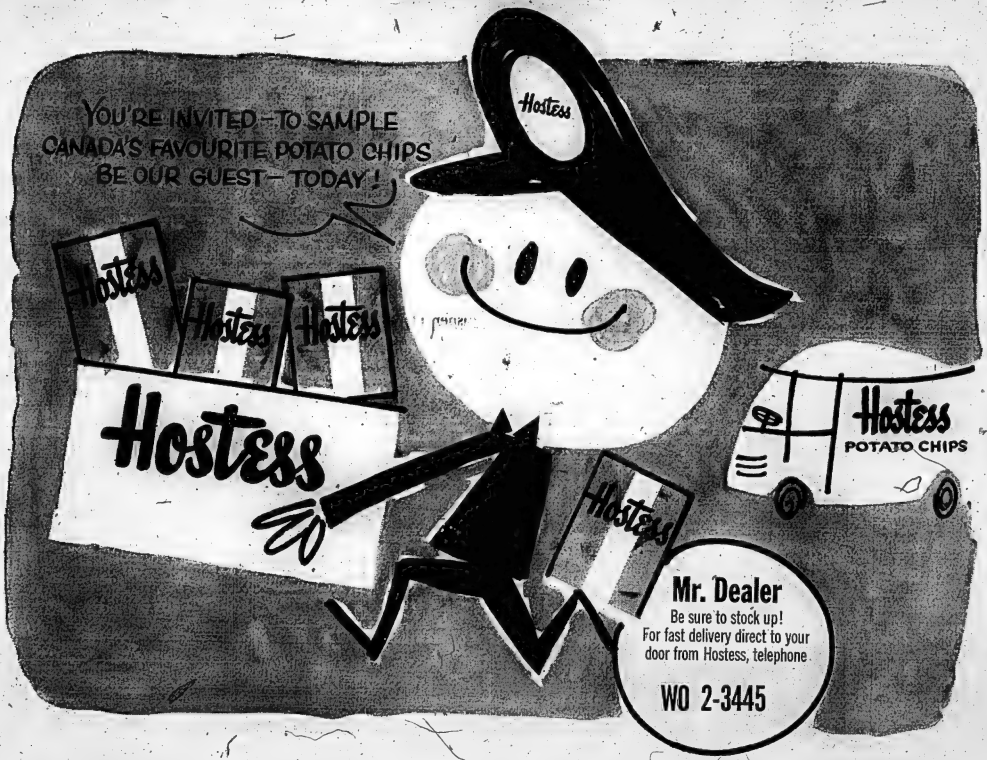
King Herod, of biblical fame, had the harbor built in 35 BC, and for centuries afterward it was the capital of Roman Palestine. At some later time, for which no records have been found, it was destroyed, apparently by an earthquake.

Link came here to search for the archaeological remains.

With the help of a crew of 11, including his wife, Link probed the bottom of the ancient harbor, going down as much as 15 feet into the mud and sand for his finds.

The coin was one of them. Link explains that he prizes it so much because, aside from the historical value, it may be unique.

"If it is what we hope, the only one in existence, then it alone is worth our four months' work," he said.



Israeli experts have not been able to identify the coin. Link took it to the British Museum in London, but so far he has had no report.

Link plans to return next spring to take enough steams to start a reconstruction of the port as it was in the time of the Caesars.

Liberal Study Committee Urges Revision of Ontario Statutes, Dept. Organization

TORONTO (CP) — A Liberal-party study committee Saturday urged the revision of all Ontario municipal statutes and the reorganization of the department of municipal affairs for improvement of municipal administration across the province.

The nine-member committee—one of 12 meeting for a one-day "brain storming" session on party policy—said that because of recent municipal maladministration in Belleville, Arnprior-Eastview and Toronto's York Township, the statutes should be brought "up-to-date."

Vernon Singer, Liberal member of the legislature for Toronto York Centre and committee chairman, said "present statutes are not competent to deal with these occurrences."

The statutes should be rewritten to indicate municipal procedure clearly. He said they should stipulate that a local council, a representative group of ratepayers, or the department itself may request an investigation of the local administration.

SHOULD BE FIXED

"If such investigation reveals wrongdoing, then the penalties for such should be readily understandable and the responsibility for enforcement should be directly fixed on the department of municipal affairs and the attorney - general," the committee said.

"There should be power in the department of municipal affairs to order the removal of every official — either elected or appointed — with an appeal from the department's order to the courts."

The committee charged that the Ontario Municipal Board had become the "catch-all" for all difficult municipal problems and, in fact, the sole arbiter of municipal life.

"We believe that the board should be organized so that its duties and responsibilities are again confined to financial matters and as a fact-finding body to advise the government," the committee said.

The study 70 "rank and file" liberals, representing riding study groups across Ontario, produced resolutions on subjects from agriculture to welfare and social services, none of which is binding.

TO GO TO LEADERS

They are to be submitted for consideration to Ontario Liberal leader Andrew Wisterncroft and Walter Gordon, chairman of the policy committee for the provincial rally to be held at Ottawa Jan. 5-11.

The labor committee urged the establishment of a minimum wage of $1.25 an hour for male and female employees in On-

Jockey Rides 335th Mount Without Win

SAN JUAN (AP)—Jockey Pedro Juan Vinales rode his 335th mount in 10 years at Puerto Rico's Et Comandante race track Sunday and lost his 335th race. But he is not discouraged.

"Given the right mount I'll win," the 26-year-old jockey said. "I'm not going to retire before I get into the winner's circle."

Pedro, one of the most popular riders here, has finished second 13 times, been third in 14 races and fourth in 31 others.

"I remember once when I was way out in front," he said after finishing 11th in a 12-horse field Sunday on Graville. "But with only a furlong (one-eighth mile) to go my mount tired and I came in sixth."

tario, with a maximum work week of 40 hours, eight statutory holidays a year and two-weeks' holidays with pay after one year's service.

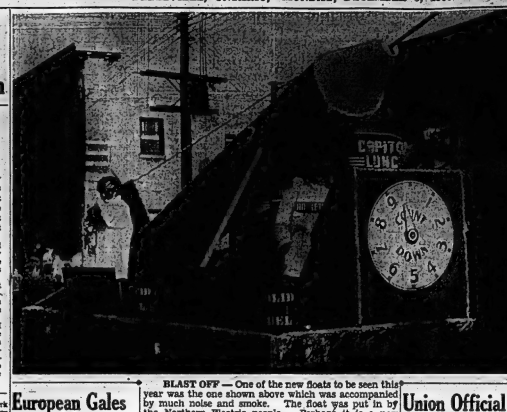
The committee said an attempt should be made to obtain the co-operation of all provinces in establishing a national minimum wage.

It recommended also a portable pension scheme on a national basis.

The committee on welfare and social services recommended the establishment of a medical services commission to cover medical and other diagnostic services.

ENDORSES MEDICAL PLAN

"We endorse a universal, comprehensive m e d i c a l insurance plan similar to P.S.I. which would provide for payment of medical fees of general practitioners and specialists, x - ray, laboratory and other diagnostic services, preventative and rehabilitative care," the committee said.



"This plan embraces the principle of free choice of doctor."

The committee also proposed a national contributory p e n s i o n plan of $100 a month to all persons 65 years old or more.

Paul Hellyer, Liberal member of the Commons for Toronto Trinity, described the meeting as an effort to get ideas from the "grass roots" to strengthen the planks of the Liberal platform.

Speaking at a noon banquet, Mr. Hellyer said the Progressive Conservative government under Prime Minister Diefenbaker had created something new for the economic books: Mass unemployment with an increased cost of living.

Among the resolutions were a position in principle against a provincial sales tax and a recommendation that residential property owners be entitled to deduction from taxable income equal to their municipal property taxes up to a maximum of $300.

European Gales Batter Towns, Snarl Shipping

LONDON (Reuters) — Gales battered Europe today, snarling shipping and bringing new flood threats to coastal and inland towns already swamped by storms Sunday.

The Netherlands was one of the worst-hit areas, with roads blocked by fallen trees, television aerials ripped from roofs and thousands of cellars flooded.

In the Dutch town of Meppel, with a population of 12,000, army units organized emergency feeding services and evacuated householders from their homes.

At Bad Oeynhausen in West Germany, where the River Werre burst its banks, soldiers, policemen, firemen and civilian volunteers battled to fortify dikes with sandbags.

Coastal shipping was almost at a standstill and hundreds of vessels were sitting out the storm in North Sea ports.

LINERS DELAYED

But the ocean - going liners United States and Ivernia left Le Havre, France, Sunday after battling top for 18 hours by heavy seas.

The liner Queen Mary also left Cherbourg, France, after putting in 24 hours late to pick up 170 passengers on its voyage from Southampt- England, to New York.

In western England, hit by severe floods for the third time this year, the situation was reported improving in some areas but early amphibious vehicles continued to patrol the flooded streets of Exeter.

A new hazard was faced by the city of Hereford, where gasoline from underground storage tanks at flooded garages became mixed with the floodwaters bringing the danger that the slightest s p a r k in inundated homes could touch off a major fire.

In Cardiff, Wales, where 6,000 homes were flooded Sunday night police said the situation had improved and that flooded roads now were back to normal.

France's Friends in Africa Seek to Delay UN Debate About Situation in Algeria

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — France's African friends moved today to hold off the General Assembly's annual debate on the Algerian war and give President Charles de Gaulle more time to win support for his policies to end the fighting.

That would give de Gaulle time to hold a referendum and get the French people behind his program for an "Algerian Algeria." CAST VETO

Whenever the discussion takes place, it will provide a new platform for Soviet propaganda in North Africa. Sunday the Russians cast their 91st veto in the Security Council and blocked the admission of the new African state of Mauritania. The vote was 8-2, with the Soviet Union and Poland against. Ceylon abstained.

This pleased Morocco, which has claims on Algeria and claims neighboring Mauritania as part of its territory.

The Russians had linked admission to Mauritania to admission of Outer Mongolia, a long - standing request of the Communist satellite state regularly turned down by the West. This time the Security Council turned it down by a vote of 7-4, with the Soviet Union, Tunisia, Ceylon and Poland voting yes.

Although the meeting had been called on Mauritania alone, Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin managed to bring up Mongolia because he is serving as council president this month.

Fisher Thinks Road for Talks With RC's Clear

LONDON (Reuters)—Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, Anglican Archbishop of Canterbury, said Saturday he is confident that the way is clear for talks between the Anglican and Roman Catholic churches.

He made his statement as he returned here from Rome where he had an hour-long audience Friday with Pope John in the first meeting between the heads of the Roman Catholic and Anglican churches in 600 years.

Dr. Fisher praised the establishment of a new Roman Catholic secretariat for exchanges with non-Roman churches and the Church of England will be able to work closely with it. "It is the first time there has been a recognized channel of interchange of information between the Church of Rome and the Church of England," he said.

As for critics of his visit to the Pope, Dr. Fisher said such persons are living in the pre-Christian era.

To object to the Vatican City meeting "shows that you are out of date. It means you have got back to BC instead of AD." The head of the Anglican church told reporters.

Union Official Says Strike Ban Denies Freedom

OTTAWA (CP)—A top Canadian railway union leader said today the government's law banning a national rail strike until mid-May is a "denial of freedom without recourse to justice" for some 111,000 rail workers.

The stop - the - strike order, passed by Parliament Friday night just hours before the railwaymen were to walk off their jobs across Canada, was condemned in a prepared statement issued today by William J. Smith, national president of the 40,000-member Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC).

"Under this legislation there is no opportunity, not even a fighting chance, for the worker to secure a measure of justice," said Mr. Smith.

The brotherhood, one of Canada's largest national unions, represents about 25,000 of the 111,000 railway workers involved in the wage dispute over a pay boost of 14 cents an hour recommended by a federal conciliation board.

Mr. Smith said the government's edict is far worse than compulsory arbitration.

TRIED . . . SENTENCED"

"In effect, the rail worker was tried, found innocent and sentenced in five months." he said.

"Not only is this legislation a denial of freedom without recourse to justice, it is destructive to long established collective bargaining procedures. The process of conciliation has been robbed of all meaning and value."

The right to strike gave the workers a force in negotiations and a confidence that involved the railways and the conciliators to face up to the realities of the situation and to establish a basis for settlement.

"Railway management can sill back now confident that a strike will not be permitted and therefore no concessions to the workers need be made and the conciliation p r o c e s s becomes meaningless," he said.

Canadian Industrialist Tells U.S. That Nation Treats This Country Selfishly

NEW YORK (CP)—T. R. McLagan, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, today urged the United States "to treat Canada less like a poor relation and more like the trusted partner, friend and ally she has consistently proved herself to be."

Addressing the international economic affairs committee and board of directors of the National Association of Manufacturers, he also stated:

The nation justly renowned as the most generous in the world behaves with singular artlessness and thoughtlessness towards the one nation that can claim above all others to be its closest relative, neighbor, friend and ally."

McLagan, president of Canada Steamship Lines Ltd., Montreal, said all Canadians ask is "a fair trade deal, something we have never yet had from you."

We hope very much the new President and his administration will not be so busy in the next few months that they can't find time to do some northern fence-mending.

"It would make all the difference in the world to the Canadian economy and here little if any detrimental effect on yours if you were to remove the roadblocks which presently bar the between us from being less of a one-way street.

"Since our spending with you exceeds your spending with us by something like $500,000,000 each year, this is surely anything but an unreasonable request."

McLagan's comments were contained in a text made available to the press in advance of delivery.

McLagan said Canadian views "on many issues of major importance to us are given little consideration and nowhere is this more evident than in trade relations. . . . You permit the unrestricted entry of only those raw materials essential to your own industries. Our manufactured goods are, for the most part, rigidly excluded not only by tariffs and quotas but also by other restrictions and inconveniences which have the effect of virtually denying us reasonable access to your enormous domestic market."

To lessen Canadian concern, he suggested the following policies for U.S. parent companies:

They should treat Canadian subsidiaries as they treat branch plants, but should allow them maximum autonomy and scope and they should be encouraged to think and act Canadian.

They should not have to confine their operations to the Canadian market alone but should be encouraged to contribute to production of Canadian goods.

Subsidiaries should use as many Canadian materials and components as can be economically justified; and, in the case of resource developments, carry out processing of the product in Canada to the fullest possible extent.

FIND ARMS CACHE

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Lloyd Baldwin bought a new car last month and decided Sunday to clean out five unused guns at the rear and rent them. In one he found an olive-green steel chest containing two sawed-off 30 calibre semi-automatic rifles, shotguns, a sub-machine gun, a ammunition for each weapon, three Halowe'en masks, four navy cold-weather masks, eight pairs of gloves, eight hats and caps, two money bags, two pairs of handcuffs. The weapons were in good condition. "I'm sure glad we've got these and not someone else," said a detective.

Miss LaMarsh Attacks Govt. On Jobless

HALIFAX (CP) — Judy LaMarsh, Liberal member of Parliament for Niagara Falls, said Saturday Prime Minister Diefenbaker's promises of a great Canadian future were "the greatest confidence game ever perpetrated on the people of Canada".

Addressing the Halifax City and County Liberal Association's annual meeting, Miss LaMarsh said Canadians who had responded to Mr. Diefenbaker now are in the midst of the greatest period of unemployment since the 1930s.

Miss LaMarsh, only Liberal woman member of parliament, said the federal government was proposing to deal with the unemployment problem without knowing what the problem really was.

"It is not enough", she said, "to say that it is seasonal that 300,000 unskilled laborers, that more are coming into the labor force than we are expanding for. No one in Canada knows what kind of unemployment there is".

Body Found Under Bridge

ST. THOMAS (CP)—The body of a retired schoolteacher missing since Tuesday was found Saturday by a hunter's dog under a Highway 4 bridge near here.

Police said Albert Preston McFadden, 59, apparently fell from the bridge and died from exposure and shock following head and pelvic injuries.

Born in Sault Ste. Marie, he taught school there for five years before moving to a school in London, Ont., where he later became an insurance agent. He returned, to teaching last fall at Petrolia, but retired several weeks ago because of ill health.

He was reported missing by his wife after he went shopping with her.

FIND THREE BOYS

REDFORD, Ind. (AP)—Three teen-age boys were found wet, cold but safe Sunday after being lost more than 37 hours deep underground in a huge cave. A volunteer task force of 25 police and cave exploring experts located Jeffrey Payne, 16; Michael Harrell, 15, and Robert Larsen, 15.

"Your husband's snoring can be cured by patience, tolerance, kindness and stuffing an old sock in his mouth."

HERE COMES THE PARADE — Leading the Santa Claus parade on Saturday was the color party. Parade marshal Harry Abbott may be seen just behind the splendid mounts of the color bearers.

STRIKE UP THE BAND — One of the many bands which put in a very smart appearance was the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Band from Port Hope. There were eleven bands in all on parade.

FIRST AS BRUIN—Andre Pronovost (No. 23) fires his first goal as a Boston Bruin in Saturday night's National Hockey League action at Montreal. Pronovost was traded to the Bruins by Montreal early last week. Montreal defencemen Doug Harvey and Al Langlois look on as Don Simmons (No. 29) waits for a possible rebound. Montreal won 3-1. Hull Whips Wolves 7-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hull - Ottawa Canadiens continued their record - breaking ways over the weekend by trouncing the Sudbury Wolves 7-3 in Eastern Professional Hockey League action in Hull Sunday.

The win left the Habs with 37 points—nine more than the second - place Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds — and stretched their undefeated home-ice tally to 14 games this season. The previous record was set by Sudbury last year when they failed to lose a home game in 12 starts.

Sudbury's loss dropped the team to fourth place with 23 points, one less than Kitchener-Waterloo Beavers who came up with a 4-3 win over Kingston Frontenacs in Kingston Saturday.

Beavers missed a chance of tying Thunderbirds in the league standings Sunday when Soo won a 3-2 decision at Kitchener.

Kinsmen came back from its Saturday loss to defeat Montreal Royals on their home ice Sunday. The win drew the Frontenacs within a point of Sudbury's 23 and six points ahead of the cellar-dwelling Royals who have a meagre six wins and four ties to show for their 34 games this season.

FOOTS IN FIRST

Hull-Ottawa sewed up its encounter with Sudbury by scoring four goals in the first period. The Habs garnered in another three to delight 4,280 fans by ending the game four goals ahead.

Bill Carter and Cliff Pennings ran each got two goals and an assist to spark the Canadiens' scoring splurge. Bobby Rousseau scored one goal and assisted on three others. Other Canadiens' goals were by John Annable and Terry Gray.

Keke Magnuson led the Sudbury attack with two goals. The other was by Jack Martin.

WON, LOST

Kitchener - Waterloo managed their 4-3 win over Kingston with a two-goal showing in the final frame. But the tables were turned a day later when Thunderbirds blasted themselves ahead of Beavers 3-2 with two unanswered goals in the final 20 minutes of play.

Ed Hoekstra, Bob Sabourin, Sandy McGregor and Mel Pearson scored for Kitchener. A two-goal performance by Tom Williams paced the Frontenacs while Real Chevrefils got the other.

Third - period goals by Don Kuryluk and Cliff Schmautz provided the Sault victory over Beavers. Kuryluk gave the visitors a 1-1 tie in the first period before Leon Rochefort put Beavers into the lead. Len Ronson scored Beavers second goal in the second frame.

A disputed goal in the second period made the difference in Kingston's 3-1 win over Royals. Bobby Attersley got the puck inside the net while sprawled across the goal mouth but referee Art Skov ruled he was behind there by a Montreal defenceman at the time. Real Chevrefils ended the Kingston scoring in the last period. A Royals goal by Skipper Burchell in the dying minutes ended the scoring.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (AP)—Sister Antoine made it by a head Saturday to win the $17,775 Gallorette Stakes at Baltimore's Pimlico track.

The three-year-old filly covered the 1¼-mile distance in 1:52 4-5 to best out Loyal Lady Fred by a head. My Dear Girl was another head back in third place.

Sister Antoine, winning $11,283, paid $2, $5 and $3.60. Loyal Lady Fred returned $9 and $5.20 and My Girl $4.

At New Orleans, Road House took the lead from gate start and held it to win the $10,000 Baton Rouge Handicap at the Fair Grounds. Road House returned $25.20, $8.20 and $5.20. Secondplace Rose's Gem paid $7.20 and $5.80, third-place Santiago $3.60.

Jockey Bill Shoemaker drove Charing Hall a vigorous stretch spurt to win the Bristol Purse and $3,025 by a nose at Narragansett Park in Pawtucket, R.I.

Charing Hall edged out Chic Miss, ridden by Canadian jockey Charlie Boland. Thorenbush was third.

The three - year - old colt paid $3.60, $2.80 and $2.60, Chic Miss $2.60 and $2 and Thorenbush $4.60.

Minor Hockey

Four shutouts featured the Saturday morning bantam division games.

The Macs and Black Hawks battled to a scoreless draw with goalies David Hurst for the Macs and B. Doyle of the Hawks coming up with fine performances.

The Bruins blanked the Rangers 5-0 with P. Foley earning the shutout. The Barons dunk-egged the Browns 4-0 with D. McCormack in the Barons net blanking the opposition.

In the other games, Leafs defeated Canadiens 3-1 and Quins took the measure of Red Wings by an 8-4 count.

Quinte's D. Bazuzer scored twice with M. Flindall, B. Hanson, R. Fletcher, B. Pursey, P. Soules and D. Dickey getting singles. Assists went to Hanson, Flindall, T. Bennett (2), Soules, S. Sager and B. Watson. G. Muir racked up a pair for Red Wings with M. Normington and S. Ethier getting the others. Muir, Ethier and S. LaMorte drew assists.

S. Keary with two and D. Muldoon scored for the Leafs with L. King getting the Canadiens' lone marker.

L. Stewart with two goals and an assist paced the Bruins 8-0 victory over Rangers. Also scoring were P. Thorne J. Ritchie, G. Carson, D. Emerson, L. Whitney and S. White. Emerson and G. O'Brien had assists.

R. Foote banged home two goals in the Barons 4-0 win with B. Derry and R. Poste getting singles. Poste also had two assists and G. Pringle.

ROCKET FAILS

WALLOPS ISLAND, Va. (AP)—The first try at launching a satellite from the Wallops Island testing centre fizzled Sunday. A four-stage scout rocket, powered by all-solid fuel, fell into the ocean when its second stage failed to ignite.

Houston, L.A. Set Sights On Titles

NEW YORK (AP)—The Houston Oilers and Los Angeles Chargers of the American Football League are within one game of clinching the Eastern and Western division titles today. Houston missed a chance to wrap up the Eastern championship Sunday, when the Dallas Texans pulled a 24-0 upset.

With two games remaining, Houston and Los Angeles have won eight and lost four games, and can get no worse than a tie for the championship. Los Angeles came from behind with four touchdowns Sunday to subdue the Oakland Raiders 41-21.

New York, holding second place in the Eastern division, boosted a 6-6 record, after the Titans edged the Denver Broncos 30-27. Dallas has a similar 6-6 won and lost record. Playoff plans will be completed during the AFL meeting opening today at Dallas. The playoff will be during Christmas week.

In a fourth game Sunday, Buffalo Bills broke a 14-24 halftime deadlock and went on to trim the Boston Patriots 38-14.

Senior Hockey

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Brown, Joe Klukay and Billy Mitchell went on a scoring spree for Windsor Bulldogs during Ontario Hockey Association Senior A Series play-up against their opponents in two games.

Brown scored four Sunday to help Bulldogs wallop Galt Terriers 9-4. Saturday Bulldogs were inspired by two goals from former National League star Klukay and three from Mitchell when they overran Strathroy Hockets 8-3.

Windsor now has 30 points, Stratford 17, Woodstock 15, Chatham 13, Strathroy nine and Galt six.

Besides Brown, Windsor's Sunday scorers were Joe Zorica, Bob White, Les Speck, Mitchell and Klukay. Galt's marksmen were Bob Mader, Bob McKnight and Gene Miller.

HOLD MONOPOLY

On Strathroy's ice Windsor scorers were Klukay, Mitchell and Brown. Hockets' goals came from Paul Oliver, Jack Lane and Don Magee.

Sunday Brown scored three goals in the third period, a decision during which the Bulldogs tallied five times. His earlier goal was at 8:11 in the second.

Galt goaltender John Reinhart turned back 46 shots, twice the number his teammates could muster against Windsor.

At Strathroy Klukay led his team with two goals and two assists in the first, after Strathroy's Oliver had opened the scoring. Mitchell supplied two in the second and one in the last period.

In a Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior action Sunday Abitibi Eskimos downed Timmins Flyers 9-5 and moved within one point of third-place Kapuskasing GMs.

Chelsea Whips Albion 7-1, Spurs Tie

LONDON (CP) — Chelsea's Jimmy Greaves scored five goals Saturday as Stamford Bridge-mates Albion fell 7-1 before Chelsea in an English League soccer game on a West field here Saturday.

Tottenham Hotspur, First-Division leader and Burnley, reigning champions, battled to a 4-4 tie in another game in London, Tottenham only once this season.

Tottenham Hotspur scored three goals within three minutes in the first half.

Welsh winger Cliff Jones scored Tottenham goals in the 19th and 30th minutes after centre-half Norman Smith had started the spree with a 17th-minute goal. The tie cut the Spurs' first-place lead to eight points from nine.

Inside left Roy Vernon scored for Everton in the opening seconds of the game to shake the standings battle against Sheffield Wednesday. Then Everton went on to win 4-2, although Sheffield led 2-1 at half time.

FULL TIME UP

Wolverhampton Wanderers, improving with every game, were twice in arrears against Arsenal but won 5-3 and moved into third place in the standings.

Aston Villa slammed Manchester City 5-1 helped by two goals from centre-forward Gerry Hitchens. Blackpool, struggling to get away from the foot of Division 1, lost 2-1 at home to Birmingham.

Driving rain and waterlogged fields were the order in most areas. Five English League games were postponed and two called off at half time.

The last perfect home record in the league fell when Sheffield United, Second-division leader, lost 3-2 to Bristol Rovers

TO UNDERGO SURGERY

MONTREAL (CP) — Jim Roberts, rookie defenceman with Montreal Royals, is to undergo surgery today for surgical correction of a bone injury in the nose. Roberts, who hails from Port Hope, had been bothered recently with nose - bleeds. He will be lost to the Eastern Professional Hockey League Royals at least three weeks.

Commercial Hockey League Results

Booth TV and Jones Motors were returned victors in the city commercial hockey league games last night, Booths winning 4-1 over Joyce Paints and Jones Motors turning back Williams Brothers by a 5-3 score.

Gord Irwin was the big gun for the Booth club whipping home three goals with Johnny Baker getting the other. Laughey had two assists, as did Charlie Rowbotham with Don Bishop getting a single.

Jim Hill scored the losers' lone marker.

Two goals by Doug Dafoe paved the way for the Jones boys victory. Pat Keller, Grayson Scott and Bill McGuire were the other marksmen. Jerry Mann had two assists with Pete Weston, Pug Kellar and Hugh Winter grabbing singles.

Bert Faulkner, Bob Brooks and Gord Green tallied for the Williams Bros. with Earl Cousins being credited with two assists and Faulkner and Bobby Boyle one each.

Eleven penalties were assessed by the officials six going to the winners and one of them a match sentence to Jerry Mann. Brooks of the losers drew a major.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARNEY, Sports Editor

Pretty soon now, the yaips and bleats that have been emanating from the remnants of Ontario senior hockey down there in western Ontario will turn to not-too-loud cackles of triumph.

For haven't two of their "weak" teams defeated the power-fashioned nitty dashing of OHA senior hockey, the Galt Terriers and Preston Hespelers? And what was given manufact in the western flesh after its eastern mat-mates had been double-crossed by the Welland Warriors.

That aluminum-tinted sports-writing potsherd of Stratford, apparently out of gas, (take that anyway you want) after writing a room or down on the subject, shoved over the other day and let friend Herb Parker, ex-OHA executive and nothing corrected of the western group (save the OHA senior league) fill up the blank space.

Herby did, and let a lot of the space blank as far as eastern group facts were concerned.

The eastern group at a meeting held in Toronto and which was covered by this reporter, was told at the outset that the loser had been divided into the two groups. Each club could sign eight senior "A" players of last year's registration. The applied also to western clubs.

The meeting was told by convener Lorne Cook that the western group had decided on a share-the-wealth plan. That is the players go along and divide what surplus is left at the end of each season. Present were representatives of Brantford, Belleville, Galt and Oakville. Welland did not show up.

The eastern group was told, Mr. Parker, that it could finance its operations in any way it saw fit. The OHA did not order it to operate on a share-the-wealth basis.

Oakville said it would operate share-the-wealth, Belleville said its players would be paid at the rate adopted by the league. Whitby said some players would be paid, the remainder play under share-the-wealth. Galt intimated its players would be paid.

Mr. Parker in his column stated: " . . . the western teams pointed out that the eastern teams could not pay so much per week or any set amount to their players. Oakville insisted on paying so much to their players. Belleville wanted to pay more than Oakville and Galt went along with them. The western teams warned them that they were financially digging a grave for the eastern group."

Since the OHA had given the eastern, and presumably its western counterpart, the privilege of operating their clubs any way they saw fit financially and since if Mr. H. J. McFarland, Belleville sponsor, wanted to pay his players on a weekly basis or game basis, this came under the head, Mr. Parker, that it was none of the western group's business how the eastern division operated financially.

And speaking of the western group's share-the-wealth plan, Mr. Parker, how come the Windsor Bulldog's playing coach, one Irwin Gross, received $250.a week plus a $65 a-week job until until he was hijacked by the Clinton Comets' management and subsequently suspended.

And for your information, Herby, me lad, and yours too, yuh ole Stratford scrooge, it was NOT finances that ruined the eastern group.

The group was all set to go with a five-team set-up of Welland, Belleville, Galt, Oakville and Whitby. The Whitby team was scuttled by the action of one Wren Blair who coaxed George Higginson out of his Kingston pro lair.

Belleville refused to play in a four-team set-up until sponsor McFarland told them to go ahead. He wanted hockey in Belleville.

Then Welland decided the distance to Belleville was too great. It dropped out. Two nights later it notified the group convener it had reconsidered and would come in.

Belleville and Galt played the first scheduled game in Galt. At the end of the game the Galt players notified that Welland had again ceased in the sopsus. The remaining three clubs could not operate. Belleville withdrew from the OHA and sought entry in the Interprovincial Hockey League operating out of Ottawa. It was turned down.

That, my Stratford amigos, is the true facts of the scrolling of the eastern group of the OHA senior league.

Then the OHA decided to rest the ugly duckling Galt team in your western group yard. Foyer-necked with Dutchmen was the cry. I am not aware of Galt's media sponsored, but suffice it to say they came up with the pick of the deftest Dutchmen of Kitchener. Woodstock threatened to withdraw. Nothing was said about the Chatham Maroons, Canada's Allan Cup winners, nor the Windsor Bulldogs, runners-up for the Ontario senior "A" final last year.

Now it appears the powerful Terriers are not what they were cracked up to be. True they have loaned a couple of players to the Kent-leaving Maroons. But since then Stratford and Woodstock have defeated Galt squad so it would appear peace has temporarily settled over the stormy western senior hockey scene. Or has it?

Mahovlich Scores Four Over Weekend

Beliveau Three Hull Two

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Frank Mahovlich finally appears to be emerging into the superstar class they were predicted he'd be when he joined Toronto Maple Leafs four seasons ago.

But while Mahovlich was scoring four goals to lead the Leafs to a pair of weekend victories, two other established stars helped Montreal Canadiens open up a five-point lead atop the National Hockey League standings.

The Canadiens, improvised after a slow start, got big goals from Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion and Jean Beliveau and clipped Boston Bruins 3-1 Saturday and Chicago Black Hawks 7-2 Sunday.

Canadiens now have won five straight opening up the biggest lead a first-place team has had this season.

The Leafs beat New York Rangers Saturday and Boston Sunday, both by 5-2 scores. Rangers won the weekend's other game, turning back Detroit Red Wings 4-1 Sunday.

PASSES 26-GOAL MARK

Mahovlich, a dominant figure in front of Toronto's victories this season, scored twice in each game to run his goal total to 26 in 24 games.

The 22-year-old left winger has scored only 26 goals in three previous seasons, his highest output being 27 in the 1958-59. He had 18 last season.

George Armstrong also had a big weekend for the Leafs, scoring twice Saturday and once Sunday.

Rookie Dave Keon notched Toronto's other goal Saturday. Defenceman Harry Howell and Andy Bathgate tallied for Rangers.

Against Boston, Bert Olmstead and Dick Duff also scored for Toronto, Rookie Gerry Ouellette, called up recently from Rochester Frontenacs of the Eastern Professional League, got Boston's goal.

BAGS PAIR IN SECOND

Geoffrion scored twice in the second period and Hazri (Pocket Rocket) Richard added a third goal late in the third period for Montreal's win over Boston Saturday. Andre Pronovost, traded by Montreal to Boston a week ago, spoiled a shutout bid by Charlie Hodge, scoring for the Bruins in the third.

Sunday, Beliveau scored three goals and Geoffrion picked up another against the Hawks in Chicago. It was the first loss for the Hawks on home ice this season.

It also was the 10th time this season a player had scored at least three goals in one game and the second time for Beliveau.

Don Marshall, Gilles Tremblay and Claude Provost got Canadiens' other goals. Provost fired into an empty Chicago net with three seconds remaining in the game after Chicago goalie Glenn Hall had been removed in favor of a sixth attacker. Bobby Hull scored twice and Pierre Pilote, Ab McDonald and Ken Wharram once each for Hawks.

The Rangers were led by Andy Bathgate's brilliant playmaking at Detroit. He got his 18th goal of the season, added an assist and harassed the Wings with sparkling play every time he was on the ice.

Dean Prentice, Red Sullivan and Earl Ingarfield got Rangers' other goals. Goalie Howie Glover scored Detroit's.

REDS BEAT U.S. STARS

NEW YORK (AP)—Red Star of Bratislava, soccer champion of Czechoslovakia, opened its two-game tour of the United States with a 5-1 victory over the American Soccer League all-stars Sunday. Red Star plays in Chicago next Sunday before heading for South America.

Maroons End Inglorious Red Tour

MOSCOW (AP)—The playing coach of Chatham Maroons rummed up the team's inglorious exhibition hockey tour of Russia this way:

"They're (the Russians) beginning to play like Canadians."

Coach Sid Smith made the statement Sunday just after the team had taken a 5-3 trimming from the Moscow Central Army Sports Club in the last game of the Ontario team's seven-game tour. It was the fifth loss for the Allan Cup champions. They won one game and tied one.

But Power said he wasn't trying to make excuses for Maroons' showing.

"Every club we faced had five better players on it."

Maroons were well outclassed in their final game, against the army team that has won the U.S.S.R. championship eight times. The Russians played a hard-checking game closer to the Canadian style than is usual in Europe and many observers thought the match was the best of the tour.

STORM VISITORS EARLY

The army team jumped into an early lead. Alexander Almetov, a fast-skating forward, banged in the first goal at the 13-second mark as the Russians gained possession off the faceoff. They ran the count to 3-0 before two minutes were over. Leonid Volkov snapping off a shot from just inside the blue line that was partly screened. Russian goalie Harold Hurley was unable to see it.

Left winger Joe Malo narrowed the count in the second period. He broke past the Russian defence, faked to pull goalie Alexander Ovchinkov out of position and tucked the puck into the corner of the net.

It didn't stay that way long. Skating deftly and corralling Skating deftly and controlling the play through some sharp pass patterns, the army team struck back for three goals before the end of the period. Almetov added his second of the game. The others were counted by Konstantin Loktev and Vladimir Brunov.

THINGS GET ROUGHER

Maroons tried to get back in a third period that brought about some jarring, body contact hockey. Defenceman Lou Cook, defenceman, finally made it 5-3 at the 14-minute mark, firing a long shot that flicked past Ovchinov.

They were held off for the rest of the game and unable to score again although they had a man advantage for the last minute through a Russian penalty.

The Russian crews agreed Tass said "the superiority of the home sides was overwhelming. The Canadians were almost all the time on the defence seeking to stand up to the pressure of the vigorously-attacking Soviet players."

The match, in Moscow's sports palace, was played to another 12,000 - member capacity audience. Some 90,000 Russians saw the Canadians during the tour.

Commenting on the tour, Powers noted "all members of our team are amateurs and hold full-time jobs."

COMPARED WITH SOVIETS

"From what I gather, Russian players are full - time athletes and are on skates every day," he said the Russians played a rougher hockey than he had expected and referees "allowed more interference than in the average football game."

"Still, I don't want to make excuses. We lost to good hockey teams."

Tass quoted Jack Roxburgh, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, as saying the players Russia will enter in the world hockey championships "are now very strong." He described the players he saw during the tour as "strong, young and dashing."

The Canadians leave today for Stockholm where they have scheduled two games against the Swedish national team.

ALSO LOST SATURDAY

Saturday, a fast, young Soviet team edged the Maroons 4-3 in a game at Voskresenak, a town near Moscow.

Boris Sovier Khimik team mounted an attack from the outset but were halted in their tracks by Hurley in the early minutes.

Hurley's undoing came when he skated out of his net as Viktor Giasciev came in on a breakaway. The Russian player circled and slipped one past Hurley and three minutes later Yuri Marenov made it 2-0.

Joe Malo scored for Chatham during the period ended and the Canadians launched a body attack in the second period. Tass reported that the Canadians played "cruelly and sometimes even brutally."

THE SHORT-LIVED

The Maroons tied it in the second on a goal by George Aitken, but two minutes later Valentin Viktian put the Russians ahead 3-2. At the 14-minute mark Valentin Gavrilov made it 4-2.

The Canadians again took the initiative at the opening of the second period while the Soviet forwards rarely attacked, Tass said.

Bill Forhan put the Maroons back in the game with a goal in the sixth minute. Hurley was pulled from the net in favor of a sixth forward during the last seconds of the game but the Canadian defence managed to halt the attack.

Braves Buy Billy Martin

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves Saturday purchased 2bll Martin, veteran second baseman, from Cincinnati Redz for a reported $30,000 in a straight cash deal.

To make room for Martin, the Braves assigned first baseman Frank Torre to Louisville of the American Association.

Martin, 32, batted .246 in 103 games last season after going to the Reds from Cleveland.

Jack McKeen, general manager of the Braves, said: "Charlie Grimm, field manager who had Martin on the Pacific Coast, recommended him highly. This doesn't alter the fact that we're still trying to make a deal, but it does give us another veteran infielder."

Fullmer, Robinson Fight To A Draw

By PATRICK McNULTY
Associated Press Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—National Boxing Association middleweight champion Gene Fullmer today set his sights on "el Archo" Moore's version of the light-heavyweight title after turning back Sugar Ray Robinson's gallant bid to recapture the 160-pound crown for the sixth time.

Robinson, described by his manager as heartbroken over Saturday night's draw with Fullmer, was considering hanging up his gloves.

Moore said, "After all, Fullmer should like to fight me. He'd be getting a shot at a really old man."

Fullmer's manager Marv Jensen said a 60-40 per cent split would be agreeable.

STAGE IN SPRING

Parnassus said he hopes to stage the Fullmer-Moore battle, if plans work out, in April.

A fourth Fullmer - Robinson fight appeared unlikely.

For their savage war Saturday, Fullmer took 40 per cent and Robinson 30 per cent of the gross gate of $182,584 plus $100,000 for television.

Said the 39-year-old Robinson: "I don't know if I'm interested in fighting any more. I'll make up my mind in the next few days."

Robinson said he has several motion picture offers.

Robinson weighed 158½ and Fullmer 159 for their third meeting that drew a paying crowd of 14,400 to the sports arena.

Fullmer, relying on bull - like rushes to wear down Robinson, guarded his jaw with his gloves and if he had a handful of jewels, Robinson tried to steal the jewels with some nifty combinations.

Several times he shook the charging champion and in the 11th round he popped Fullmer with two good righthand leads. But Fullmer merely blinked and flurried back.

The referee scored the fight for Robinson 11 to 4 under California's scoring system that gives the winner of a round one or more points up to five and the loser none. However, one judge voted for Fullmer 8-6 and the other judge called it a draw, 8-6.

Enters Big Soccer League

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Concordia of the National Soccer League has been accepted into the International League of New York, it was announced Saturday.

Joe Stromovics, president of the professional club and wealthy real estate dealer, said he has signed and paid for a franchise in the league, which had its first season last summer.

William Cox, founder of the league which brought world-class clubs to New York last summer, will attend a press conference here Wednesday to announce details.

Stromovics is said to have paid $75,000 for the franchise.

Teeps, Marlies Split Wins, Irish Tie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto St. Michael's College Majors retained their one-point lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A race with a 4-4 tie Sunday against Niagara Falls Flyers.

In other weekend games Toronto Marlboros and St. Catharines Teepees split a home and home meeting — Marlboros winning 4-3 Saturday, Teepees 5-1 Sunday.

St. Michael's pulled their game out of the fire in the final seconds with goaltender Jerry Cheevers sitting on the bench. The manoeuvre paid off when Paul Jackson found the mark during a wild scramble around Flyers' nets.

Other St. Michael's scorers were Bruce Draper, Dave Draper and Terry O'Malley. Marvel Trosier, Hartley Estabrooks, Howie Dietrich and Bill Glashan clicked for Niagara Falls.

Marlboros were trailing 3-1 in the final period Sunday when they pulled netminder Ken Brodeur in favor of a sixth forward. The move backfired when Duke Harris shot from 10 feet in front of his own net with only three seconds remaining, and found the empty Marlboros' net.

Murray Hill and Howard Kellough added the other St. Catharines goals. Gary Jarrett scored Marlboros' lone tally.

Saturday night the Toronto squad came from behind after St. Catharines had scored two goals in the first period. Toronto chalked up three in the middle frame and one in the third.

Pott Pots Golf Tourney

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Johnny Pott, a nerveless 25-year-old from Shreveport, La., shot a sizzling four-under - par 68 on the final round Sunday and won the $15,000 West Palm Beach Open golf tournament with a total of 278.

Pott overcame a three-stroke lead by the venerable Sam Snead, who staggered to a 74 and barely edged out Art Wall Jr., of Pocono Manor, Pa., for the runner-up spot. Snead finished with 281, Wall with 282.

George Knudson of Toronto topped Canadians, shooting a 73 for a total of 291 and a tie for 15th place. He earned $340. Montreal's Al Johnson ended with a 295 for $160. Toronto's Al Balding had 297, out of the money.

Edmonton's Bill Wright, Winnipeg's Wiff Hemmerling and Hamilton's Ron Capps failed to play under the qualifying score of 76 for 36 holes and were out from the competition.

Whip St. Louis 20-6

Eagles Win Title

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League championship game will match Philadelphia's streaking Eagles against Baltimore for Green Bay or San Francisco for Chicago or Detroit.

That is the situation with only two weeks left in the regular season.

The Eagles clinched their first Eastern Conference title since 1949 by whipping St. Louis Cardinals 34-6 Sunday for their ninth consecutive triumph.

The Colts, seeking to gain a playoff berth for an unprecedented third consecutive time, were beaten by Detroit Lions 20-13 when Earl Morgall connected with Jim Gibbons for a 65-yard touchdown pass on the last play of the game.

The loss dropped Baltimore into a three - way tie for first place in Western Division with Green Bay and San Francisco, all with 8-4 records, while Chicago is 7-4-1 and Detroit 5-3 remained solidly in contention.

BREAKS RECORD

The Packers, getting a 23-point performance from Paul Hornung that gave him 152 for the campaign and broke Don Hutson's 16-year-old one - season scoring record, walloped the Bears 41-13. San Francisco 49ers moved into position by blasting Los Angeles Rams before a crowd of 77,251.

Meanwhile, Cleveland Browns grabbed the runner-up spot in the East with a 27-16 victory over Washington while winless Dallas tied New York Giants 31-31.

Norm van Brocklin, a 34-year-old veteran who was a rookie with Los Angeles when Philadelphia last captured the eastern championship, razzed for two touchdowns and Bobby Walston kicked a pair of field goals for the Eagles (9-2).

The Colts scored what appeared to be the winning touchdown with 14 seconds left when Johnny Unitas, who had previously unleashed an 80-yard TD to Lenny Moore, fired a 34-yard scoring aerial to the first half-back for a 13-13 lead. But Morrall, on the bench for the first three periods, completed a 17-point fourth-quarter surge for Detroit by whipping the clincher to Gibbons following the kickoff.

Baltimore, losing two games in the same team for the first time since 1956, also lost fullback Alan Ameche for the rest of the season when he injured the achilles tendon in his right leg.

Mus: Play in Bowl

A.L. Goes to L.A.

All in Sport

"Like to see my gun, dear?" Hasn't got quite as much kick-back."

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The American League has been given the green light to go to Los Angeles next year—if.

The big if is that the league's 1961 club must play its home games in the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif. This is the stipulation Walter O'Malley, owner of the National League's Los Angeles Dodgers, and National League president Warren Giles gave to a committee to present to the American League at a meeting of major league owners today.

A counter-proposal to allow the new Los Angeles club to play its home games either in the Coliseum or in Wrigley Field was rejected by O'Malley.

"We thought enough of the Rose Bowl to survey it so I don't think there is any reason why they shouldn't give it some consideration," O'Malley said. COMMITTEE MEETS

A committee of club representatives met in the commissioner's suite Sunday night in an 11th-hour attempt to reconcile differences between the two leagues and pave the way for the American League's expansion to 10 clubs in 1961. Giles and American League president Joe Cronin attended the conference.

A member of the committee told The Associated Press: "The proposition has been made. Now it is up to the American League and the group selected to operate the franchise."

Cronin and Giles appeared optimistic.

"I'm confident that something will be worked out," said Giles. "It may not make everybody happy but it won't be a fight."

CITY STADIUM

The Rose Bowl is a football stadium that seats 100,000. It is about 15 miles from Harvey Ravine, where O'Malley is building a baseball park for the Dodgers. The park is expected to be completed sometime in 1962. The Dodgers now use the Coliseum.

The American League is not specifically committed to O'Malley's compromise proposal. Some officials feel the Rose Bowl is not suitable for major league baseball. However, the American League will be asked to vote on it. It needs a majority for approval, plus the new owner's acceptance.

Grey Cup? Huh!

It Happened in 14 Seconds

BALTIMORE (CP)—A week ago Canada's Grey Cup football game was ended when 14 seconds remained to the playing field at Vancouver's Empire Stadium. Late in the final quarter with Ottawa Rough Riders leading Edmonton Eskimos 16-6.

There was much controversy as to whether Canadian Football League officials should have given police a chance to clear the field rather than call the game. With Ottawa leading by more than a touchdown and in possession with only 41 seconds left to play, nobody argued that the remaining time could have affected the outcome.

Sunday the crowd at the Detroit - Baltimore National League contest saw what can happen in a lot less than 41 seconds.

A goodly portion of the 57,000 fans gave a roar to the fact when Lenny Moore made a diving catch of a pass to put the Colts ahead 14-13. There were only 14 seconds left to play.

Please clear the field, the game is not over yet," pleaded the public address announcer.

He didn't really believe it, and was acting only on orders.

The officials cancelled the announcement and ringed the players around several rows deep while Steve Myhra kicked the extra point to make it 15-13.

The fans streamed back on the field after the kickoff when several spectators fights flared among the players. Again they were forced in order to let the game finish.

Seconds later they were in shock.

Detroit quarterback Earl Morrall threw a pass to Jim Gibbons who caught it and went unmolested through the Colts for the winning touchdown.

When Jim Martin kicked the extra point to make it 20-15 for the Lions, the game was truly over and the public address announcer had nothing to say.

Tribe Trades Kuenn for Antonelli

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Harvey Kuenn, Cleveland's former League batting champion, was traded Saturday to San Francisco Giants for lefty Johnny Antonelli, one - time pitching ace, and hard-hitting outfielder Willie Kirkland, in the first deal of the major league meetings.

Todd the Giants would give him a shot at third base, Kuenn said: "I'll give it a try. My left foot (he suffered a hairline fracture in August) is strong now — I've been playing golf every day.

"I know the Giants have a good team. They led NL this park is suited to my kind of hitting but I won't know until I play there."

Frank Lane, Cleveland general manager, said: "It's always my hope to see the fellows I like the most. Harvey was one of the finest gentlemen I've ever met. But we needed more pitching power and I think Antonelli and Kirkland will provide both."

The blond-haired Kuenn, generally regarded as one of the most scientific batters in the game, has been one of the top-drawer hitters of the American League ever since he won rookie-of-the-year honors with the Tigers in 1953. He batted .308 that year and topped a .311 shortstop in his league in total fielding chances.

He was given a $95,000 bonus by Detroit in 1952. After hitting over .300 in all but one of his seven years with the Tigers and topping his Detroit stay by winning the batting championship with a .353 mark in 1959, he was traded to the Indians.

In his only year with Cleveland Kuenn slatted .308 to lead his club in hitting. He owns a lifetime batting average of .313.

Antonelli, one of the pitching mainstays of the National League, suffered his poorest season as a Giant last year, winning six and losing seven. After a poor start he was relegated to the bullpen. He regained his form in the final months of the campaign.

Van Brocklin To Hang up Grid Gear

ST. LOUIS (AP)—"Just one more big one, then it's adios from me and back to my Polaski hogs in Oregon," said Norm van Brocklin, the indomitable Dutchman who pitched Philadelphia Eagles from last place to the National Football League's Eastern Division crown in three years.

Van Brocklin, 34, was joking about a future devoted to hog-raising, but he's serious about his retirement from football after Sunday, his 12th in the NFL.

Retiring with him will be Lawrence T. (Buck) Shaw, 63, the coaching wizard who obtained van Brocklin for Philadelphia.

New Thinking Starts to Show In Tom Ewell Show Episodes

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—A day or so after the Tom Ewell show he made its debut on CBS in September, Ewell drove to an out-of-town newspaper stand in Hollywood and bought copies of 64 different newspapers from all over the U.S.

Ewell hauled them home and proceeded to study the reviews of his show by a number of television reviewers and critics.

"It was interesting homework," he said recently, "I read bouquets about the show and I read some bitter indictments. But after I'd gone through them all, the main things seemed evident—and the criticism included things I had been bothered about too. Then we went to work and tried to make changes in the show that might improve it a little."

Ewell said the reviews reinforced his own belief that it is difficult, if not impossible, to play farce in a "realistic" situation, which the cast had been trying to do.

"The ideal family in TV consists of three children and a dog," he continued. "And when you get in that situation, it must be played realistically. But farce is not realistic, it is not to be believed. And because it is artificial, the tempo is different and you defeat it if you try to play it in a realistic atmosphere."

Furthermore, Ewell decided, father played the children and is "too much of a boob."

"We have tried to work on that," he said. "Our idea is to play a real comedy—not father's ineptness — the principal part. We can handle it in a number of ways—misunderstandings, for instance, and the way fate has of tripping up people."

Tom says the new thinking is starting to show in the episodes coming up from Tuesday night on.

Gloria Jean, Former Child Singing Star, Gets Break

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Everything's coming up you-know-who for Gloria Jean, appearing in her first movie in 10 years.

But the former child singing star isn't giving up her job as hostess at a Los Angeles hockey eatery, a job she took to tide her over until she could get back into the show business she had known most of her life.

Hearing of this, Jerry Lewis sent for Gloria.

"I never would you like to appear in my new movie, Ladies' Man?" he asked abruptly.

"I'd like to see nothing better," she answered.

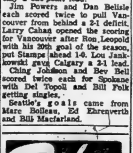
"All right, you've got the part," the comedian said.

"But don't you want to test me or have me read for the role?" she protested.

"Nope, I like to do things for people," he said today."

So Gloria is now doing one of the songs in the new movie, originating a long career drought and a series of personal mishaps, including the loss of her husband in the Korean War.

The part Miss Gloria as one of several dozen career girls living in a Hollywood dormitory with Helen Traubel as house mother.



Jerry is a dame - haunted writer who has difficulty getting her to take a job iceogniio, naturally, he ends up at the dorm.

What else has happened to her? She got her start in show biz acting field again by doing a role in Mardosza Farey's television series, Lock-up.

Tonight she tapes Ben Alexander's TV show, Mixed Faces.

Gloria won't be back to her job for some time, since Ladies' Man figures to shoot until February.

Camelot Draws Mixed Reviews From Critics

NEW YORK (AP) — Camelot, the expensive musical by Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe which opened Saturday night on Broadway, drew mixed reviews from newspaper critics.

It was the first Broadway show by Lerner and Loewe since their record-breaking success My Fair Lady arrived here more than four years ago. That one is still going strong.

Of Camelot, based on T. H. White's comic trilogy, The Once and Future King, the critics wrote:

Howard Taubman, The Times —"Graceful and sumptuous though it is Camelot leans dangerously in the direction of oldhat operetta. It has intervals of enchantment, as it must with talented men like Lerner, Loewe and Moss Hart in charge. It would be unjust to leave them without attaining the heights of My Fair Lady. They can not be denied that they badly miss their Pygmalion and Shaw."

Kerr

My Fair Lady was based on Pygmalion, a play by Shaw.

Walter Kerr, The Herald Tribune—"I wish I could like Camelot backwards. For that would take me, right at the start of things and while I was still fresh and hopeful, through all of those fussings and wrong and inconclusive final scenes . . .

"There is even a fleetish whip of glory," cries Richard Burton as he awaits the last curtain alone. And there was. But for Camelot as well as for Arthur, comes The Sopey of a steadily setting sun."

John Chapman, The Daily News — "Camelot is significant. Its songs are lovely and wonderfully right. Its cast is superb. The sets and costumes of its 20 scenes have the right touch of color; together they make a single, thrilling work of art . . ."

Robert Coleman, The Mirror— "If it's your idea of a theatrical spectacle you're willing to settle for, Camelot offers a lot. But, in our book, it's no My Fair Lady. The words and music are just fair . . . On the whole, Camelot is an expensive disappointment."

Camelot had its world premiere in Toronto about two months ago. It stars Julie Andrews, who also starred as Eliza in My Fair Lady, Richard Burton as Arthur, and Canadian Robert Goulet as Sir Lancelot.

AT THE PARK — "It's you—my mother—I'm ashamed of . . . not my jailbird father!" This screen seethes when six exciting stars find an extraordinary story in "Let No Man Write My Epitaph," starring Academy Award winner Burl Ives, Shelly Winters, James Darren, Jean Seberg, Ricardo Montalban and Ella Fitzgerald. The Columbia picture also stars a 2-year-old, a dope-pusher and the young lovers whose lives they change forever. Big-city drama filmed with power and realism! Opens tonight at the Park Theatre for a 3-day engagement. On the same program from the roof-top suspense to its back-alley violence, "Hell Is A City," starring Stanley Baker. Both features are first Belleville showings.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Tuesday, December 9, 1969

General Tendencies: Until nightfall all kinds of trouble can arise if you become emotional or take too personal and subjective an attitude of some comment made. Avoid big financial commitments of any type. Then through tonight you will judge how best to get ahead by a conversation with experts or officials of conditions as they actually exist.

Aries (March 21 to April 19)

While financial or property affairs may be somewhat of a bore today, it is important you handle them wisely. Also, strive for more harmonious relations with those at home. P.M. plan future expansion.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)

By changing your attitude so that you are more co-operative with advisers and more aware of new friends and their ideas you can have much success in the near future. P.M. go out with associates to a place of atmosphere for quiet talks.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)

Key hours are best spent getting monetary and property affairs adjusted properly. Also, be sure you know what your exact position is with all those important to you. P.M. take health treatments you need, fix wardrobe, etc.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21)

Try not to be forceful with associates who do not agree with you during the day-time, or they will turn against you. However, if you go out together socially in the evening, you can easily get them to see your side of things.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21)

Secret worries could injure your chances of advancement today if you permit. Work in a most calm, judicial fashion instead of getting perturbed and cross. During the evening you can also increase harmony at home. Be smart.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23)

You can hit on some fine, novel ideas that will increase both happiness and success for yourself and those you love. The evening is then ideal for fun and frolic with good friends. Be jolly, happy-go-lucky

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

This is one of those days when you must work most carefully and efficiently as well as guard the good will which you now enjoy. P.M. take inventory of holdings. Plan how to increase same.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

A new acquaintance may bring about some radical change with regard to property, job or personal relationships. This is good provided you first give it careful thought. Evening is then ideal for having a good time socially.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

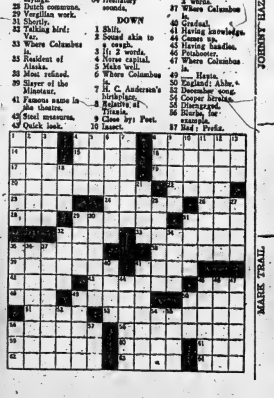
Be sure you handle all insurance or security matters wisely during daytime. Also, be sure loved one agrees with you in important affairs. Do not neglect to help the needy, too. Go out to nightclubs, meetings, etc.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

If you listen carefully to the views of associates you will get your own ideas to yourself, you will quickly come to a far better understanding. Become more progressive. P.M. get together with good pals on some happy venture.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Put those tasks behind you quickly and quietly in A.M. Work smoothly, efficiently. The evening is then the best time to go out socially and make excellent contacts that will be most helpful in the future. Grow.



Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20)

A good day to enjoy yourself, if you are accompanied by congenial friends and acquaintances. Be affectionate with those you truly like. Be out in the evening again for the purpose of meeting many interesting, worthwhile individuals.

If your child is born today . . he, or she will be quite a paradox to you in formative years since the imagination will be most pronounced, yet the feet are on the ground, but the need for the love and security of the parent is still paramount, as well as hypersensitivity. Do not be alarmed, but early teach to be independent and objective in dealing with others. Fine chart for the selling profession, especially in foreign countries.

Conservatives And Socialists Shun Their Names

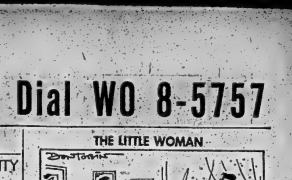
OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Leader Pearson lumped the CCF and the Progressive Conservatives together Saturday night as parties which he said "shun the names which are their birthright."

In a biting aside while addressing a Young Liberal banquet here, he dealt with the existence of the New Party—a coalition of organized labor and the CCF.

Parliamentary development in Canada, he said, cannot be on the basis of two national parties: Conservative and Liberal.

"The two parties become confused because the Conservative Party has grown more popularly by a man's name than by that of a party.

This was an apparent reference to the often-used expression, "the Diefenbaker government."



Mr. Pearson said the CCF was originally socialist, but "like Toryism it seems to shun the word that gave it meaning in the past."

"I suggest there is no need for any third party as long as the Liberal party remains liberal as long as it remains the reform party."

INCREASES DIVORCES

DALLAS (AP)—Architect Richard Joseph Neutra said Sunday that architects are helping to increase the divorce rate by "poor planning and by designing unsuitable homes for women." Mr. Neutra was an associate of the late Frank Lloyd Wright during the early 1920s.

CAMPBELLFORD

Address Given To Retarded Children's Group

CAMPBELLFORD — The regular monthly meeting of the Campbellford Community Retarded Children's Association was held last week. Rev. G. Whitehorne, vice-president, presided in the absence of the Rev. Owen G. Barnes, president.

Mr. Whitehorne welcomed those present, which included people from Brighton and Madmore.

The secretary and the treasurer presented their reports and the Rev. A. E. Trenouth gave a short talk on the recent conference on mental retardation which he and Mrs. Trenouth had attended in London, Ont. Mr. Coombs stressed the need of an institution's chairman and committees.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker for the evening was John Hall, a gentleman of the local health unit, who was introduced by program chairman Mrs. Joseph Smith. Mrs. Rutherford gave a comprehensive talk on community service and how it tie's in with the work of the local health unit. This talk was extremely interesting and much enjoyed.

Mr. Bill Petley thanked Mrs. Rutherford on behalf of the group.

The following nominating committee was named: Mrs. B. Cook, Mr. Bill Petley and Mrs. David Neas. There will be no December meeting and the next regular meeting will be in January.

Mrs. A. Evans, social convener, served a tasty lunch at the conclusion of the business meeting.

Cold Weather Calls for Many Car Adjustments

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

The severe demands made on your car during winter can't be met by just anti-freeze, oil and grease changeover. A general tuning up should be included.

Carburetor and choke adjustments meant for milder weather result in too lean a mixture for cold weather starting and driving. The battery which was strong enough for spring and fall may be much too low when temperatures plummet. Or the generator (or, indirectly, the voltage regulator) may not be delivering sufficient current to make up for the extra drain on the battery.

If the thermostat isn't working properly engine warmup will be slow and costly. You and your passengers will feel the chill, too. A defective thermostat valve will also hurt a good gasoline mileage toll in a long run toward the prevention of daily winter performance.

From L.K.: "My headlights are dim, but they will get quite bright if I accelerate or race the engine".

(A) If the battery isn't weak, chances are the battery connections are either loose or badly corroded.

N. W. writes: "One of the doors on my '60 sedan is hard to close. The hinges and striker plate seem O.K. and I've kept them lubricated. Any idle weather seal is not interfering."

(A) Perhaps the rubber bumpers are too thick. M not, have the hinges adjusted just to be sure they are correctly aligned.

H. B. asks: "What causes corrosion to form around the spark plug cable socket in the distributor cap but not the others?"

(A) Generally, it's because the cable hasn't been inserted all the way into the socket. As a result, the spark must jump an air gap which eventually causes corrosion to develop.

From S. I.: "One '61 car is advertised as having stronger brakes which actually adjust themselves. Can this be so, or is it just sales talk?"

(A) It's true. The car is equipped with a special mechanism which automatically adjusts the brakes to compensate for lining wear.

PROPOSE SCIENCE CENTRE

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York World's Fair, 1964, has suggested that the U.S. government construct a $30,000,000 permanent science and education centre at the fair site here. Fair president Robert Moses said Sunday that a comprehensive plan for federal participation in the fair has been presented to commerce Secretary Frederick H. Mueller and other federal officials. The proposed centre would present the United States fair exhibit.

Sold and Installed by United States' stock-holders

The speaker agreed that our eagerness for higher learning was partly due to the prosperity of our nation. "Enrollment at Queen's has increased 40 per cent and at Waterloo 75 per cent. The university is in the province, the province is the 3rd per cent. This general trend should not be taken out of the comfortable path of the humanities. Industrialists and our Canadian industries and research. The price of universities is too high," he concluded.

Dr. Hardisty Hawthorne of Toronto, a lay man, made our supervisor for Hastings H.S. Area, presided over the installation organ. His numbers prior to the ceremony and during the collection were most appreciated. Also during the evening, Misses Margaret Bell and Marion Cooper were heard in two piano duets, and Mrs. Graham sang 2 solos, accompanied by Fred Porter.

Mr. T. N. Beatty, veteran member and chairman of the Board, made presentations to the graduating class and other students, and to the coaches of the most enthusiastic football supporters, later had the honour of presenting the cup to the senior team.

Concluding the evening's program, an octet, directed by Mrs. Graham, including Bill Knapp, Jim Kelly, Gerry Maxwell, Sharon McCormack, Paul Hall, Bob Graham and Margaret Burns sang two numbers.

Joan Hodgins, captain; Carol Rivers, co-captain; Vice - President David Lewis said the party has been building a new $1,000 grandstand for three years.

This year the party had made several encouraging strides.

The main one was the election of Walter Pitman as member of Parliament for Peterborough. The party had doubled its vote in the Niagara Falls byelection but was not six new seats in the British Columbia provincial election.

HIT RAIL MEASURE

Federal legislation affecting the railway dispute was referred to at the close of the seminar. Both CCF Leader Hazen Argue and Mr. Jodoin said the legislation passed Friday to avert a strike scheduled for Saturday was contrary to the bill of rights. Mr. Argue said: "Settlement of the evil day has merely been postponed." Mr. Argue said: "After May 15, the country will face either a railway strike or, as Prime Minister Stefenhaer has forecast, an increase in freight rates."

Mr. Jodoin said that the non-operating railway workers had received the "short end of the stick" through the legislation.

Must Not Permit Creative Instincts to Become Dulled Speaker Says at Commencement

The Tweed High School 1960 graduating class, one of the most outstanding in the school annals, was honoured at the Commencement Exercises held Saturday evening. Principal W. R. Hamilton, who acted as chairman, noted in his introductory remarks, that of the class of 16 the largest in natural years, eight were now attending university and six were in normal or teachers' college. Total amount of scholarships and bursaries awarded top pupils was $1,000. "These young people really deserve the work and the staff were glad to work with them," he noted. "Their academic record proves there is no substitute for sincere effort."

Vladimir Lenin, Louis Allore, who obtained the highest standing in the graduating class, was a student at St. Michael's College, Toronto, before coming to Tweed and his fellow students were accepting the challenge of 'complete with' with confidence, after five years of academic training in High School, "Somewhere, however, real education comes from within, and we must be ever satisfied with ourselves. We must also remember that self-discipline and submission to the right of authority, gives us strength to overcome the fears admonished. He paid glowing tribute to the parents of the class and to the co-operation of parents.

IMPORTANCE OF UNIVERSALISM

The guest speaker, Donald S. Swain, Bachelor of Journalism, and Doctorate of Divinity from Carleton University, Ottawa, was introduced by Miss Willies Buckley, who noted that Mr. Swain was born at Brighton; had been in the journalistic staffs of Belleville and Peterborough dailies, was formerly secretary of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association.

Mr. Swain stated that his theme "What Price Conformity" was synonymous with the thought of the valedictorian's address. "The class of 1960 to '65's will be marked by the imprint of graduating such people as this," he reiterated. To make such an imprint, he felt that the young person of today must not become a part of the present mass hypnosis, the almost unconvincing advertising in newspapers, on radio or TV, and which we are told what kind of products we should use, in an attempt to influence us in making a choice. This could eventually nullify individuality. He said that in spite of our high standard of living and education, we are allowing our creative instincts to become dulled. He deplored the fact that fifty percent 16 per cent of foreign instruments in Canada are controlled by United States' stock-holders.

The speaker agreed that our eagerness for higher learning was partly due to the prosperity of our nation. "Enrollment at Queen's has increased 40 per cent and at Waterloo 75 per cent. The university is in the province, the province is the 3rd per cent. This general trend should not be taken out of the comfortable path of the humanities. Industrialists and our Canadian industries and research. The price of universities is too high," he concluded.

Dr. Hardisty Hawthorne of Toronto, a lay man, made our supervisor for Hastings H.S. Area, presided over the installation organ. His numbers prior to the ceremony and during the collection were most appreciated. Also during the evening, Misses Margaret Bell and Marion Cooper were heard in two piano duets, and Mrs. Graham sang 2 solos, accompanied by Fred Porter.

Mr. T. N. Beatty, veteran member and chairman of the Board, made presentations to the graduating class and other students, and to the coaches of the most enthusiastic football supporters, later had the honour of presenting the cup to the senior team.

Concluding the evening's program, an octet, directed by Mrs. Graham, including Bill Knapp, Jim Kelly, Gerry Maxwell, Sharon McCormack, Paul Hall, Bob Graham and Margaret Burns sang two numbers.

PRESENTATION OF DIPLOMAS

Intermediate Certificates to student completing Grades 9 and 10, were presented by staff member, Miss Margaret Sargent, Mrs. Credicott, Miss Hamett and Mr. Gerling, to:

Carol Anne Airey, Gary Babcock, Diane Bawden, Sherrill Bedford, Arthur Bogart, Barbel Brough, Carolyn Cassidy, Robert Cassidy, Gordon Chamberlain, Joan Coulter, Karen Craigen, Sharon DeCou, Angela DeButte, Sidney Dickenson, Ann Dingwall, Sharon Douglas, Terry Dunbar, Shirley Dalton, Kay Fitzsimon, Harold Erwine, Donald Farrell, Bernadette Caboush, Joan Grills, Larry Hartin, Michael Healey, Barbara Holbert, Karen Hughes, Allen Jermain, James Jermin, Nancy Jordan, Gertrude Kidd, Gwen Keller, Leonard Lajoie, Leonard Lalonde, Lorraine Lemke, Joan Lesage Lois Lough, Gerry Lowery, Gerald McCormick, Beverley

Shocking as It Is Christian One Bishop's View of Scheme For Church Reunion in U.S.

By GEORGIE W. CORNELL

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Leading churchmen registered a somewhat surprised but flurry of favorable reaction today to a proposal for a wide reunion among Protestants in the U.S., fusing both "Catholic" and "reformed" elements.

The plan, said Methodist Bishop John Wesley Lord of Boston, "is as shocking as it is Christian."

"It overcomes with dark simplicity many of the problems that have perplexed the separate communions over the years."

The plan, at the outset, would embrace the Episcopal, United Presbyterian, Methodist and United Church of Christ with other denominations subsequently invited to join.

This provocative formula was offered Sunday by a top-ranking Presbyterian, Rev. Eugene Carson Blake of Philadelphia, shortly before the start of the triennial general assembly of the National Council of Churches.

EVOKES INTEREST

More than 3,000 representatives of 33 Protestant and Orthodox denominations with about 600 members joined in the opening services Sunday night. The proposal generated keen interest among the delegates.

"It is the opening of a very significant move," said Rt. Rev. Arthur C. Lichtenberger of New York, president bishop of the Episcopal Church.

"Out of this might come a plan that would be acceptable to all the people involved," he added. "It is a good approach. I hope it will not be the wreckage of the church."

Dr. Blake, in a sermon at Grace Episcopal Cathedral, detailed steps for combining creeds, liturgical churches with the more informal, non-ritualistic churches into a body "both Reformed and Catholic."

The plan is patterned on the establishment of the United Church of South India in 1947, uniting Presbyterian, Methodists, Episcopalians and Congregationalists.

Dr. Blake proposed specifically a merger of these groups in the United States. He included the United Church of Christ, at present an evolving union of Congregationalists and the Evangelical and Reformed Church.

Altogether, the combined body would have more than 36,000,000 members. Other churches accepting the principles would also be invited to join.

The proposed reunion would include a joint consecration service, in which all clergy would take part, to bring them into the apostolic succession—a heritage valued by the Episcopal and other Catholic-rooted churches.

This is a line of authority considered handed down from the apostles.

FREE TO CHOOSE

The plan also would provide for "truly democratic government," with congregations free to name their own pastors, and "a wide diversity of theological formularies of the faith and a wide diversity of worship and liturgy."

Other measures would incorporate distinctive features of both Catholic and reformed types of Protestant churches, Dr. Blake said. He said he used the word, "Catholic," as it applied to apostolic Christian concepts and practices.

He estimated it would take at least 10 years to effect the initial union, if the designated denominations act on it favorably. He suggested as a possible name: "The Reformed and Catholic Church in the United States of America."

Closer Balance Of Trade With Britain Needed

LONDON (Reuters) — George Drew, Canadian high commissioner in Britain, said in a letter to the Sunday Times Sunday that Canada would like to see a closer balance of trade with Britain.

Drew said Canadian businessmen who visited him recently were concerned about the impression which many people had that British exports to Canada were not finding a welcome market.

"In 1956 British exports to Canada had a value of $476,000,000," Drew added. "Last year they had risen to $569,000,000.

"For the final 10 months of this year British exports to Canada have been still higher."

Drew pointed out that Canada's total imports last year had a value of $5,500,000,000 and said: "If British exporters took a much greater share of that large market, it would not only help Britain, but it would also help us. The more that Britain sells to us, the closer we come to a trade balance with the United States."

Trucks Away On False Alarm When Two Die

TORONTO (CP) — A 76-year-old woman and her crippled daughter-in-law died in a fire Sunday night in spite of five fire trucks of a station 70 yards away were attending a false alarm.

Mrs. Lizz Steele and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Florence Steele,46, were dragged from the three-storey building in west-central Toronto by firemen but were dead on arrival at hospital. The younger woman was a cripple with only one leg.

The fire started when grease from an electric deep fryer caught fire in a restaurant kitchen on the ground floor of the building.

District Fire Chief L. C. Booth said the women might have been saved if it were not for the false alarm.

Occupants of the restaurant fled with occupants of the second floor apartment after the blaze broke out. There were about 25 customers in the restaurant.

District Fire Chief L. C. Booth said more vital minutes were wasted because nobody at the scene told firemen there were people trapped in the building.

Firemen said they believed the women did not realize the building was on fire until they were overcome by smoke. The television set, which they had been watching was still operating when firemen broke into the room.

About 3,000 persons jammed into the area to watch the $15,700 fire that tied up traffic for two hours.

British Trawler Found Tucked Away in Harbor

MARSEILLE (AP) — The British trawler Girl Pat, reported missing in the Mediterranean for several days, turned up Sunday in an out-of-the-way corner of Marseille harbor where the skipper said he tied it up last Wednesday.

French Capt. Henri Valliere reported he heard on the radio only Sunday morning that the vessel had been reported lost for three days and that naval and air force craft had been searching for it.

He explained that, anchored in the midst of huge cement blocks outside a cement factory, he and others on board had not seen any newspapers since Friday.

Valliere's report raised the question of how the craft could enter the harbor without the knowledge of port authorities.

Authority also wondered over the origin of a distress signal picked up Saturday by the tanker Minerve, it was the cause of the alert and search for the Girl Pat. No other ship in Mediterranean waters was "unaccounted for" at that time.

Despite Safe Driving Week Highway Death Toll Is High

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Safe Driving Week seemed to make little difference to Canadian drivers this weekend as the fatality toll surpassed figures for two of the last three weekends.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday showed a total of 38 fatalities, 27 in traffic accidents.

Ontario had 13 traffic deaths. A Newfoundland man died when a car plunged over a Trans-Canada Highway bridge.

Fire killed three persons in Ontario and one in British Columbia. A Toronto woman and her elderly mother-in-law died when their apartment was swept by smoke from a fire in a downstairs restaurant.

The survey counts only accidental deaths during normal weekend holiday activities and does not include industrial mishaps.

Ontario dead:

Kenneth Tooby, 39, died when his car collided with a truck in Toronto.

Mrs. Ann Varley, 82, of Trafalgar, while crossing a road Saturday.

Leroy Forsythe, 40, in a fire in his apartment in St. Thomas Saturday.

Armas Miller, 55, Saturday in Port Arthur when his bicycle was struck by a car.

Alfred Gervais, 35, Sunday when thrown from a car on Highway 17 about 30 miles west of Sudbury.

Ronald Harold Furry, 32, Welland, Saturday when his car rolled over in a ditch.

Severino Ferroo, 35, struck by a car Saturday as he walked to his Sudbury home.

Mrs. George Brooks, 43, Turkey, Saturday when a car hit her husband's vehicle.

Annabell Canfield, 82, Woodstock, struck by a car while crossing a street Friday night.

Mrs. Florence Steele, 46, and Mrs. Elizabeth Steele, 76, in a fire which destroyed their apartment above a restaurant in west Toronto Sunday.

Stanislas Bolicau, 63, in a car accident Sunday near his home in Orleans, six miles east of Ottawa.

John Daniel Jenkins, 54, Stouffville, in a car crash Sunday.

John Harbay, 36, Sunday when thrown from a car after it was struck by another vehicle in Toronto.

Elections Show Trend Toward Open Sundays

Toronto Returns Nate, Ottawa Elects Whitton

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario municipal elections Monday produced a mayoralty record in the provincial capital, some notable comebacks, a few upsets and a strong trend toward open Sunday sports.

Silver - thatched Nathan Phillips, 72-year-old veteran of the banquet circuit and many a council-room battle, was returned in Toronto for a two-year term and will give him a record eight consecutive years in office.

Charlotte Whitton was the comeback queen. She returned to Ottawa mayor's chair she vacated four years ago to become newspaper columnist, defeating three men who sought to succeed retiring mayor George Nelms.

All told, 18 Ontario cities voted Monday. Four acclaimed their mayors, five re-elected them and nine voted in new mayors.

Ottawa voters, in a sport loving and plebiscite on Sunday movies accompanied the ballot paper for many centres, big and small. Voters favored the movies in both cities, two cases—Kitchener and Newmarket—and went for Sunday sports in 11 of the 18 municipalities.

Brantford, Niagara Falls and neighboring Stamford Township, Windsor, Alexandria Toronto, Oshawa and Ottawa favored Sunday movies—Cornwall by almost 3 to 1 margin. They now look to provincial enabling legislation to translate the voters' wishes into law.

Sunday sport—only municipal games are required to make it legal—was out in Brantford, Wallaceburg, Eastview and the Toronto suburban township of North York and Scarborough. It failed to carry in Chatham, Guelph, Peterborough, Woodstock and Newmarket.

Voters reacted sharply in two municipalities where elected boards had been accused by the proponents of misadministration in office.

In Eastview, scathingly critical of a report by the province's municipal affairs department, the entire slate of nine councillors was defeated. Among them went Mayor Gordon Lawrence, who was a parliamentary member of the legislature for 1955-59. He was defeated by Oscar Perrier, who ran at the head of a clean-up slate backed by the Eastview Ratepayers' League.

Woman Crossing Picket Lines Victim of Blast

AYLMER (CP)—Police investigations into a mystery explosion that shook a home here Sunday night were expected to be extended Monday to nearby St. Thomas.

The blast, apparently caused by a stick of dynamite placed in an eavestrough drain, smashed windows and ripped 10 feet of eavestrough from the house of Mrs. Rena van Patter, 49, a packer at the strikebound Canadian Timken plant in St. Thomas.

Police Chief Harold Henderson Monday questioned two persons in connection with the explosion, which he said had the marks of professional workmanship.

The chief said he would conduct further questioning today in St. Thomas.

Mrs. van Patter Monday returned to work after the blast had been crossing picket lines the last two weeks. Declaring she was "more mad than frightened by the incident, she blamed the explosion on the handful of rabble strike supporters" she said were trying to intimidate her.

Kenneth Lewack, business representative of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC), said the blast could have been set by "either some out loose in the area who doesn't like persons to cross picket lines, or it's a dangerous attempt to discredit our strikers and the trade union movement."

He promised the union's full co-operation in investigations.

Members of the union's Local 4906 have been on strike since Aug. 12 in a contract dispute.

Pieces of the shattered drainpipe at the van Patter home were taken into police possession.

The blast tore a hole six inches deep outside the house and sent glass and pieces of metal flying across the yard.

Lee, 11-year-old son of Mrs. van Patter and her husband, a bread truck driver, was bounced against the headboard of his bed but was not hurt.

Both parents, only 15 feet from the explosion, also escaped injury.

Queen Adopts Personal Flag In Blue, Gold

LONDON (AP) — The Queen has adopted a new personal flag in blue and gold.

The flag was the Queen's idea, Buckingham Palace said Monday.

A spokesman said it was the first time as far as he knew that a British monarch had chosen to fly a strictly personal standard.

The design is simple—the initial "E," for Elizabeth, with a crown above surrounded by the chapin of the realm, all in glittering gold on a blue background.

The flag will be hoisted on flagstaffs above buildings where the Queen is staying, and accompany her in cars and aeroplanes on her travels.

Until now the travel standard has been flown to signify the Queen's presence.

"The new flag," the palace spokesman said, "will in no way supplant the royal standard."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: While windy cold weather and some snow persists southwestward Ontario overnight unseasonable mild weather is expected in the remainder of the province. Early-morning temperatures in the 30s were reported at Windsor and Toronto and in the 40s as far north as Kapuskasing. Colder weather was due to move across eastern Ontario today, causing sharp temperature drops in some areas similar to Occasional rain was expected in southern parts, snow and snowflurries in Northern Ontario.

Normally Placid Rivers Turned Into Rampaging Torrents in U.K.

LONDON (Reuters) — Surging floods of muddy water nearly 7,000 inhabitants today as Western Europe found normally placid rivers turned into rampaging torrents after days of storms.

Police said the situation was "serious" in Monmouth where the rivers Monnow and Wye spilled over their banks during the night, surrounding the town with water.

Hundreds of families were evacuated in hastily-commandeered boats.

Other parts of Britain were cleaning up in the wake of the most widespread flooding in history.

Across the North Sea in The Netherlands, but 1,000 more were hastily built up sandbag dikes to check the flooding River Maas in the southwest of the low-lying country.

Four Dutch provinces reported houses and farmland under water. A hotel at Deventer was isolated when a 120-foot breach appeared in a dike.

On the storm-blown Brittany coast of France, authorities have ordered 11 times to drop supplies by helicopter to a sick lightkeeper.

National Survey Mental Illness To Be Considered

Motion Sponsored By Liberal Member

OTTAWA (CP) — Consideration of a national survey on mental illness, including the problems and methods of treatment, was extended in principle Monday night by the federal government in a rare decision.

A resolution urging government consideration of such a survey, in co-operation with provincial and other authorities, was sponsored by Liberal Alan Macnaughton of Montreal Mount Royal and accepted at the end of a 4½-hour debate.

Health Minister Monteith backed on some ifs and buts—cost of such a survey, the difficulties of framing questionnaires for defining mental illness itself —which indicated that there is no guarantee one will be made.

But the Commons approval was hailed as the first occasion when a private member's resolution, and especially one from an opposition member, had gained such recognition.

Mr. Macnaughton said the time

Beer Continues Favorite Drink Report Shows

TORONTO (CP)—More money was spent on alcoholic beverages than ever before and beer continued to be the favorite drink, according to the annual report of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario tabled in the legislature Monday.

The sale of beer, spirits and wine totalled $323,236,232 for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1960, an increase of almost $24,000,000 over the 1958-59 fiscal year.

Nearly $1,000,000 gallons of beer were consumed — 12,000,000 gallons more than in the previous year. Sales totalled $173,288,000 as compared to $147,853,408 the previous year.

Sales of Canadian spirits through LCBO stores declined from $125,670,605 to $125,581,-827,420,978 in the last fiscal year, a decrease of almost $89,000.

Wine sales through LCBO stores and warehouses dropped from $14,822,803 to $14,291,060.

War Not Fatally Inevitable Says Communist Manifesto

MOSCOW (AP) — The world Communist movement publicly closed ranks today to support Soviet Premier Khrushchev's thesis that communism can triumph without nuclear war, Khrushchev in thus won a victory at last month's Communist summit meeting.

Communist China joined 80 other Communist parties in issuing a manifesto that seemed to make clear Khrushchev and his line of peaceful coexistence retain control of world communism's direction—at least for the present.

"War is not fatally inevitable," said a declaration spread across six pages in Pravda. "The Communist parties regard the fight for peace as their prime task."

This is what Khrushchev has insisted on since the 26th Soviet Communist party congress in 1956 which has later endorsements from the Communist movement.

But this time he won a stamp of approval only after a Communist summit meeting that opened in the Kremlin Nov. 9 and continued for 21 days. The agreement that emerged, in public at least, took 20,000 words.

(Communist China has held that war with the capitalist world is inevitable. This was the major difference with the Kremlin in the larger question of how the Communists should advance their cause. The Chinese have figured the West anti-communism of violent revolution, or by negotiation with the capitalists while communism takes over gradually.

Farm Marketing Board Acts Hog Growers for Statement

TORONTO (CP)—George McCague, chairman of the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Board charged Monday that expenditures totalling $75,000 were not recorded in the minutes of the Ontario Hog Producers Marketing Board meetings, and that these expenses were not approved by the Ontario Farm Board.

Mr. McCague then demanded a complete written report of the $75,000 financial transactions within a week, adding that the grants had not received approval of the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Board.

On Oct. 16, said Mr. McCague, the Ontario Hog Producers Co-operative Association and the Ontario Hog Producers Association at four separate meetings east and on the same day transferred $75,000 to the Ontario Hog Producers Marketing Board while the marketing board paid the associations $15,000.

"This exercise has us confused," he said. He then asked for an explanation of dealings with the co-operative.

Clayton Lawson of the OHPMB said he understood the payments had been previously received by the association by the OHPMB and were not to be considered grants. They therefore did not require approval of the governmnet body or OFB.

Summer - long meetings between the two organizations broke up in October after the OHPMB refused to accept the government body was attempting to weaken its position.

An April amendment to the Farm Marketing Act stated that all grants made by individual marketing boards required ap-

Peterborough Votes Against City Manager

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Voters in the area of Peterborough Monday had more to ponder than the choice of elected officials. The questions ranged from railway signals to extension of the voting franchise.

At least five communities voted on extending the civic election franchise to all residents 21 years or over—and all five, Sarnia, Kitchener, Chatham, Durham and Cobourg, favored the change. Georgetown approved a ward system bylaw. And Peterborough, in voting on administration matters, turned down appointment of a city administrator.

PC MEMBER CAN RESUME SEAT IN LEGISLATURE

Not in Violation Of House Rules

TORONTO (CP)—Philip Hoffman (PC—Timiskaming) can assume his seat in the Ontario legislature as soon as it is convenient, Premier Frost and Attorney-General Roberts said Monday.

Mr. Frost told the legislature that the bill to amend the Legislative Assembly Act, given second reading Monday, would have to be drafted in the usual manner before Mr. Hoffman can take his seat at the opening of the legislature Nov. 22.

Mr. Hoffman, retired district forest ranger, won the seat in a September byelection. He retired from the civil service Aug. 19.

What made Mr. Hoffman a unique case was that he has owning him a total of $2,296 from education and sick leave credits. The opposition said the statutes specified a man is not entitled to be a member is qualified to take this oath when there are public monies involved.

Mr. Roberts read a report by Mr. Silk, assistant deputy attorney-general, which said it was his view of the constitutional legal branch that Mr. Hoffman's seat was not in violation of legislative rules.

DRAWS COMPARISON

Mr. Roberts said proposed legislation might be interpreted to prevent a farmer member from receiving money from the department of agriculture when his cattle were destroyed with tuberculosis.

The question of disqualification might be raised also if a member belonged to the Ontario hospital association and received hospital payments.

The amending bill now will go

Driver of School Bus Did Not Have Licence

EDMONTON (CP)—The driver of the Lamont school bus crushed a week ago by a freight train with a load of children did not have a bus-driving licence, Highways Minister Hugh Horner said Monday.

Mr. Horner said Frank Budney, 31-year-old father of five children, had a class D licence which permitted him to drive only passenger cars and light trucks.

Under Alberta law only holders of a class A licence are permitted to drive a school bus, Most private motorists hold a class D licence.

Mr. Taylor said his department has made a check of Budney driving a school bus. Mrs. Budney told reporters her husband had driven the school bus most hospital officials have contacted conscientiously Monday. He suffered head injuries when his bus was struck by a freight train at a level crossing in Lamont, 45 miles northeast of Edmonton.

French Assembly Votes Funds for Nuclear Force

PARIS (Reuters)—France today decided finally after weeks of debate to go British and independent nuclear striking force.

The National Assembly adopted a special bill providing funds for a five-year program to develop a French atomic force after rejecting a motion of censure against the bill. The bill now has become law.

The motion of censure was presented by the left and centre-left opposition groups for the third time in succession.

The bill was adopted after 10 days of debate by a comfortable margin of 10 votes, leaving less than half an hour.

Supreme Court To Hear Appeal On Judgment

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada decided Monday to hear an appeal against a Quebec judgment establishing evidence in the Crown's $1,000,000 tax case against Reader's Digest Association (Canada) Limited.

The case concerns a 50-per-cent excise tax which the former Liberal government imposed, effective Jan. 1, 1957, on the space advertising revenues of Canadian editions of foreign magazines. The tax was repealed 18 months later by the succeeding Conservative government.

Reader's Digest refused to pay the tax and was taken to court. It contends that the tax is unconstitutional and discriminatory. In an effort to support these arguments in trial court, Reader's Digest sought to introduce evidence the Commons speech in which the former Liberal finance minister, Walter Harris, explained the intent of the tax.

This and other evidence was ruled inadmissible. The decision was upheld by Chief Justice W. R. Scott of the Quebec Superior Court. Reader's Digest appealed to the Quebec Court of Queen's Bench and won a ruling dismissing the Crown's objections to the evidence.

It was against the latter ruling that the Monday morning's successfully applied for leave to appeal to Supreme Court.

Russians Want Lumumba Freed, Mobutu Curbed

UN Delegate Reports Lumumba Badly Treated

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — A new round of bitter strife in the United Nations over the Congo seemed certain today as Russia demanded the immediate release of former premier Patrice Lumumba.

The Russians also demanded the disarming of the forces of army chief Col. Joseph Mobutu, which arrested Lumumba last December.

The Soviet delegation opened the way for a Congo debate Friday when it called on Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold to report at once to the General Assembly on steps he has taken to help the imprisoned Lumumba.

Hammarskjold sent a letter to Congo President Joseph Kasavubu Monday asking that the United International Red Cross be permitted to examine Lumumba to make sure he had not been ill-treated by Mobutu's men. He said Lumumba's health was the personal general fears for his safety.

Sir Abhshwar Dayal of India, Hammarskjold's special representative in the Congo, reported that Lumumba was suffering from bruises and that he had been handled under inhumane conditions.

UNDER PRESSURE

Hammarskjold released the letter to the press after meeting with his 16-member Congo advisory committee. The committee decided to have run into strong pressure from Afro-Asian nations at the last resort I am ready to turn my whole attention to Moscow to cut the waters of the Nile."

He said Moscow and Cairo are in the Orientalists province of which Khartoum is the capital.

Must Not Write Off Revolutions As Lost to Cause of Christianity

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Rev. Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr of Union Theological Church today took a close look at foment in Cuba and The Congo and was told "we must not write off revolutions as lost to communism."

The second of the report, by the division of foreign missions of the Presbyterian Church, said the communists miscalculated" in The Congo, have gained a strong foothold in Cuba, but "this does not necessarily won out yet.

The report, written off revolutionary situations as lost to the Christian cause, said the report prepared for the general assembly of the council, largely religious organization in the United States embracing 144,000 churches.

"The Gospel itself is the root of the revolutionary movement.

CANADA PACKERS BUYS SHOW CHEESE AT PREMIUM PRICE

The cheese exhibited at the Ontario Dairy Show in the City Hall in connection with the Ontario Cheese Makers Association convention now being held in this city was sold this morning and the Canada Packers bought all of the cheese at a premium price which was not announced. Some very fine cheese and medium cheese was reserved and this will be packaged and sold to the local consumers. The show is one of the largest held by the Association and according to the judges, the quality was very high throughout the exhibit.

"WOMAN FOR FIRST TIME WILL SIT ON BANCROFT COUNCIL"

For the first time in the history of Bancroft village a woman will sit at the council table. Mrs. Audrey Sexsmith, having for a first time for a council seat boasted the poll in the election held on Monday. Earl Hanley and Mitchell Gee were the other two councillors elected. Yesterday J. R. Brown, former warden of the county, was elected Reeve by acclamation while Allen Brunson was acclaimed as Deputy Reeve, when M. J. McAlpine retired from Municipal life. The Utility Commissioner will be Jerry Westlake.

PLAINFIELD MAN WINS AT PIGEON SHOW

The annual Racing Pigeon Show was held in the Paris, Ontario Fair Grounds on December 3.

Mr. Orville Salmon, of Plainfield had the best cock on the show table. Mr. Jenkins of Port Hope took the prize for the best hen.

Ratepayers had the option of paying their special tax levy in full and thus being entitled to a 12 per cent discount, or of spreading payments over a five-year period.

Council also in connection with the special levy, it appears the city is entitled to a special federal grant to the extent of 50 per cent. The amount to be received by the city is $14,000.

City manager Reynolds said commendation was due to city assessment commissioner Leighton Thompson, and city treasurer F. C. Hendry, for their alertness in the matter and making application for the grant. Mr. Reynolds said the federal grant would be used to lower the debentures necessary to pay off the indebtedness.

53.94 Per Cent Of Special Levy Paid in Full

More than 50 per cent of the city's special 1960 tax levy assessed against ratepayers to pay off Belleville's hockey debts, and other flooding indebtedness has been paid in at city hall.

This was told to city councillors Monday evening by City Manager J. R. Reynolds following an interview by Alderman George Wallart.

As of yesterday and with Monday's mail still to be processed, a total of $221,393.05 of the special levy had been collected. This amounted to 53.94 per cent of the total, Mr. Reynolds said.

Mayor A. M. Ellis, commenting on the tax payments received to date, said he was amazed at the high percentage of payments being made in full.

"It proves that council not have been too much wrong with the figures used to compute the tax," he said.

Locally Financed Industries Urged by Warden E. Sager As County Council Convenes

The establishment of locally financed secondary industry in this area was urged upon council as a means of providing employment, in remarks made today by Hastings County Warden Ernest Sager.

Speaking at the opening session of the December meeting of county council, the warden Sager said they dwindling timber resources and agriculture were no longer able to support the economy and secondary industry in the smaller centres is needed to provide employment.

He was certain there was sufficient local money to establish such industry — all that was needed was ingenuity and the proper leadership.

Warden Sager said the so-centralized secondary industry was of much more benefit to a community as it provided a necessary for workers to travel long distances to work.

Warden Sager disagreed with a recent suggestion that a "back to the farm" movement might help to solve unemployment in Belleville, centres.

He said that already fewer farmers with the aid of mechanical equipment were producing so much ad excess of over-produce to such ad extent that the prices of farm commodities were being depressed.

The "back to the farm" movement was not the answer, he said.

MILK OUTPUT DOWN

Fall drop in milk resulting in summer pastures is also reported in lower milk production and a corresponding drop in receipts from cheese production for county farmers this year.

An instance of this was seen in his own factory in the Madoc county council.

Canadians Give 18-Bed Hospital To Refugees

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — Some 300 Canadian UNEF soldiers are preparing a mammoth Christmas gift for Palestine refugees in the vicinity of their camp at Rafah, a cable from Gaza reported Monday.

Construction of an 18-bed maternity hospital and also of a baby clinic, capable of handling 300 cases a day, will be under way before Dec. 25.

When the UNEF committee organizing the annual Christmas gift to the refugees meet, the Canadian contingent requested this as a special contribution.

Col. H. T. Foshery, the Canadian commander, said his contingent had expressed the wish to do "something tangible" for the refugees which would be a permanent memorial of our service over here."

The Canadian gift followed visits made to the camps of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency by Canadian soldiers who found that in the camps of Khan Yunis, five miles from Rafah, no hospital of this kind existed.

UNRWA officials and doctors enthusiastically accepted the Canadian offer after Foshery had a meeting at which plans were unanimously endorsed the project.

R. L. Fisher, UNRWA director in the Gaza area, described the gift as "a material advance which will do untold good over the years. We is desperate need of this hospital."

H. Montgomery, Monkland, Shows Top Cheese at Show

The British Empire Award-Grand Champion for the best cheese in show was won by Harold D. Montgomery of Monkland, Ont., at the 53rd annual British Empire Dairy Show. The award was donated by the T. Eaton Co. Ltd.

Donald Dellow of Ivanhoe was awarded the Lieutenant-Governor's ship award (donated by Calvert Distillers) and the Simpsons-Sears award of merit.

The awards were decided upon following two days of judging prior to the opening of the 53rd annual convention at the Hotel Quinte this afternoon. The convention will carry on through to Wednesday evening.

Novel to this year's show is the availability of show cheeses to local purchasers. Private individuals may purchase prize cheese today and tomorrow when the exception of tomorrow evening, at the cheese display in the indoor arena of the city's auditorium, Mr. Hall, said Mrs. L. Matthews, secretary of the Ontario Cheese Makers' Association this morning.

This afternoon the convention program included addresses by Dr. Hugh Wilson, chief of economics director of the Dairy Products Institute of Canada; by H. Gillin, supervisor of grading for the federal Department of Agriculture; Dr. D. M. Jones, vice, professor and head of the department of science at the Ontario Agricultural College.

Other sessions will be held tomorrow morning and afternoon with the annual banquet on Wednesday evening. Rev. Richard Jones, national director of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, will be the guest speaker at the banquet.

Michael Patrick Wins 4th Term As Mayor

WINDSOR (CP)—A 62 - year-old lifelong veteran Monday night shared the municipal election limelight with a four - time mayor and a mayor-to-be loser.

Mrs. Cameron Montrose, well-known whip of city council, polled more than 16,700 votes in gaining her fifth two-year term. She was second in the polls only to Michael Patrick who won his fourth two-year term as mayor with more than 18,000 votes.

Frank Clarke Re-elected as School Trustee

Francis P. (Frank) Clarke yesterday was re-elected public school trustee in Ward 4, defeating newcomer Donald Harding by a five-vote majority. Only 221 of more than 2,000 eligible voters went to the three polling stations.

Mr. Clarke, who began his second term as public school trustee, received 112 votes in divisions 33 and 34 with 42 votes cast and with 11 for Mr. Harding. Mr. Harvey Clarke, brother of his home poll 32 49-9 and last year's advance poll 24. In all Mr. Clarke clinched the election with 179 votes over his opponent in polling subdivisions 33, 34 and 49.

It was the only election in the city this year. However, there is a possibility another election will be held Dec. 19 for two separate trustees in Wards 3 and 5. A nomination meeting will be held Wednesday night. Mayor A. M. Ellis was flabbergasted for the office in Ward 5 but he failed to qualify. No candidate was nominated in Ward 6.

Motion to Pay Hockey Debts Is Withdrawn

A motion instructing the city treasurer to pay off $8,449 of outstanding Belleville senior hockey team accounts failed to get to the voting stage last evening in city council.

The motion was withdrawn by Ald. Joseph Alderman George Wishart after he was told the finance committee had the matter in hand.

Mr. Wishart noted there was no reason why these accounts some of which had been outstanding for more than two years, could not now be paid.

Alderman Wishart, speak as chairman of the city finance committee told council the city treasurer was now obtaining affadavits proving the validity of the accounts and they would be paid as soon as everything was in order.

"There is no attempt being made to sit on the money, but we don't want to get into any other skimpocke. We want everything laid down before the money is paid."

Mayor A. M. Hale said actually it had been only within the last few days that the city had been in a position to pay the bills.

The matter is under active consideration by the finance committee and I feel that is where it should stay," he said.

Ald. Wishart said he was willing to withdraw his motion.

We often need a special day,
To help us keep in mind,
The days we do not think of you
We have left behind.

If all the world were ours to give,
And all the years to live,
To see the face of you, Sandra dear,
Would be our greatest wish.
Ever remembered by mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Ayleworth.

MAINES. — In loving memory of Mrs. Ethel Maines who died December 6th, 1958.

We do not need words, no tongue can tell
Of our deep bitter loss,
For those who loved you dearly,
Will never forget you.
—Never forgotten by Doreen Whalen.

WAITE. — In loving memory of my dear wife, Rose, who passed away December 6th, 1939.

She fought a fight
And won the race
She never deserved what she went through
Her end was sudden, her last breath unknown,
But she left a memory we are proud to own.
—Ever loved and remembered by her husband Joe.

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to thank all my friends and neighbours who remembered me with flowers, cards and cards while in Belleville General Hospital and since returning to hospital. Thank you all very much.

TORONTO STOCKS

TOKONTO, (CP) — The stock market moved idly lower amid light morning trading today to reflect a distinct lack of interest among traders.

Industrials soon lost Monday's slender latest gain, dropping .36 at 488.75, with base metals off .53 at 157.36. Golds, although still under the influence of declining prices on the London bullion market, gained .06 at 89.82 and western oils were ahead .22 at 78.74.

The 11 a.m. volume was 342,000 shares compared with the 460,000 at the same time Monday.

Canada Permanent Mortgage led industrials lower, off 6¼ at 33. Bank of Commerce, CPR and Dominion Stores each was off ¼.

Golds, although higher on index, showed a generally disappointing tone, with McIntyre, Porcupine and Giant Yellowknife both off ½.

International Nickel came under pressure to base metals as it dropped ¾ at 54¾, with Casalar off ¼, Cominco both off ⅛.

On index industrials were up .31 at 488.31 and base metals were ahead .70 at 157.76. Golds dropped .72 at 89.82, and Westerns lost .86 at 78.52.

Volume was 1,837,000 shares compared with the 1,377,000 shares traded Friday.

In steels, Steico gained ¼ at 20, Dominion and Canada Iron Foundries both improved ¼ at 13¾ and 17, Page-Hersey eased ½ at 21¼.

SOME PAPERS RAISED

Base paper issues Macaren and Great Lakes both eased ½ at 20 and 7¾ respectively, followed the ample set by Gatineau Power with a drop of ¼ at 21¾.

Ford of Canada was off ⅛ at 125¾.

With the price of gold returning to normal, on the London bullion fixing, the shares also moved cautiously lower. Dome was off ¼ at 31, Campbell Red Lake and Ker-Addison both eased ¼ at 13¾ and 13½, Hollinger moved up ¼ at 21¼.

Mining Corporation of Canada helped the base metals index to show up on upside with a gain of ⅛ at 12, although Noranda put a damper on the section with a drop of ¼ at 40¾.

Senior uraniums were little affected, Denison losing 13 cents at $9.55.

Burtt Tops Council Voting; Hilton Is PUC Commissioner; School Trustees Re-elected

TRENTON — Election day in Trenton saw a light vote on the part of the citizens, only 27 per cent of the eligible voters showed up at the polls (1958, 51 per cent), but the citizens who did vote had very definite opinions.

Ross Burtt, council member for 17 years and mayor of the town for six, who was defeated in the mayoralty contest last year, led the polls for the three empty council seats, drawing a vote of 1,498. Donald Fraser, a member of last year's council and chairman of the 1960 court of revision, polled 1,365 votes and Lloyd Worrall, with two terms as councillor (1952-53) to his credit, took third place with 991 votes. These councillors will serve in 1961.

All four of last year's board of education, who sought re-election, were returned to office. Drawing the largest vote was L. G. Phinney, with 1,233 votes. Mr. Phinney replaced Mrs. Elizabeth Bedford at mid-term as chairman of auxiliary agencies on the board. Second in the voting was newcomer Gerald Farrow with 1,224 votes. Third and fourth positions were taken by Paul Tripp, last year's chairman of maintenance, with 1,126 votes and Rev. Ronald Reid, elected to his first term of office, with 1,109 votes. These members will sit for a two-year term on the board.

Occupying seats on the board for a one-year term will be George Greer, last year's chairman of finance, Mrs. Isabel Sanson, 1960 chairman of the board, and newcomer Mrs. Gabrielle Griffiths (901) and Mrs. Ruby Gibby (807).

Albert E. Mahlmen, a member of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission for 10 years and chairman of the commission for five years, was defeated at the polls by former town councillor Clifford Hilton, 1,245 to 1,087.

DEFEATED CANDIDATES

In the vote for councillors, last year's chairman of recreation and special services on town council, Howard Aird, received 731 votes; the 1960 chairman of sanitation and waste, R. J. (Dick) Whitley, chalked up 706 votes and newcomer to the civic scene, Ed Todd, with 710, ran on a "working man's platform," stood in fourth place in the public choice with 801 votes.

Louis Knack with 741 votes and Donald Rowland with 688 votes lost out for seats on the board of education. Mr. Sutherland was seeking re-election to the board for the first time. This was Mr. Knack's second try.

The ratepayers decided by a "yes" vote of 1282, that town council should continue to cope with the ambulance problem in one way or another. The "yes" vote, which would have relieved council of responsibility and thrown the operation of the ambulance open to private enterprise, was 1077.

At 10.45 p.m. the final results were announced by town clerk O. W. Lantz in a crowded room of ratepayers and candidates in the Trenton Town Hall. Unofficial candidates spoke briefly, thanking their supporters, and the defeated candidates bowed out gracefully.

'UNUSUAL' ELECTION

Mayor James MacDonald said that he was glad to see ex-mayor Ross Burtt "back in harness." He said that this had been an "unusual" election, in that the entire board of education had resigned, four members seeking re-election.

Grader Sticks In Bridge Girder, Suffers Damage

Around two o'clock yesterday afternoon, traffic was tied up on either side of the new bridge as far as the eye could see when the cab of a large grader, bearing the slogan "City of Belleville," became wedged in one of the girders on the bridge. The grader was riding atop a truck-trailer, the property of the Dominion Road Machinery Sales Company of Goderich. The company driver encountered the grader from the Goderich point to the public works department of Belleville.

After a considerable amount of manoeuvering the driver succeeded in backing the grader down off the trailer and drove it to the end of the bridge. It was returned to the trailer and proceeded, via 401, to return to Goderich. The cab of the grader was badly bent in the mishap and the windshield was broken.

Trenton police directed a straight line of traffic alternately from east to west and from west to east for almost an hour.

Damage to the bridge appears to the bridge is the fact that the girder is 13 foot, 7 inch clearance only.

Britain, U.S. Misunderstand Each Other

TRENTON — "At the present time there is a considerable amount of misunderstanding between the United States and Britain."

Peter McClelland of Kingston, Rotary Club guest speaker last night, warned his listeners that this misunderstanding could be "ironed out" by concerted effort on the part of Canadians. He said that the basic ideals of the two nations were linked but that the British people had an exaggerated idea of the United States like, and vice-versa. He said that foreign countries were impressed by the lack of unity in the Anglo-American camps.

Canada stands midway between these two great countries," he said, "the natural go-between, a unifying force between old world conservatism and new-world aggressiveness."

Mr. McClelland spent 10 months in England as a student under the Rotary Foundation. He now is working for his master's degree in economics at Queen's University.

He said that his connection with the Rotary Club had opened doors to him in all countries.

He said that, as in all countries, there was no "typical Englishman" or average Englishman is perhaps a little "stuffy" and reserved but on his own home he is a gracious host.

Mr. McClelland was introduced by Barney McColl and thanked by Clarence Saylor.

Glenn Grice of the Cookville Club invited all members of the Trenton club to the district conference in February, at which the Cookville club will be host. It said it was hoped that 2,000 district Rotarians would attend.

Furnace Blast Rocks School, Will Be Closed for Repairs

TRENTON — Yesterday at 3.30 p.m. the furnace in the Queen Elizabeth public school in Trenton east exploded with a terrific bang that almost shook the building, frightening teachers and students alike. The resulting dull roar was heard considerably in the blast. Extensive damage was done also to the walls enclosing the heating vault and many windows were broken.

Fortunately the children had not been dismissed as yet from classes. Attending the school are 318 students.

The caretaker, Willard Brown was at the other end of the building at the time.

The furnace is heated by oil. It is thought that the electric eye of the "pilot light" mechanism cut out and when it came back on, ignited collected gas vapor.

The school will be closed for a day or so until the necessary repairs are made.

2nd BELLEVILLE BOY SCOUT AUXILIARY

By CHRIS LEGGAT

The regular monthly meeting of 2nd Belleville Boy Scout Auxiliary was held recently in Christ Church parish hall.

President, Mrs. H. Rainford warmly welcomed a new member, Mrs. L. Sibrling.

Duties should be known by the Auxiliary, to present, Glenn Rainford with his Queen's Scout badge and rings are to be presented to all future Queen's Scouts of 2nd Belleville.

Heartiest congratulations are extended to Glenn for completing this most arduous but gratifying accomplishment.

Auxiliary unity was unanimous in agreeing to provide the troop with a new flag. An investiture cloth for Troop and Pack will also be provided by the Auxiliary.

After the various reports the meeting adjourned.

Akela Kemp spoke briefly on "Your Child in Sea". The remainder of the evening was spent decorating the auditorium with a new Christmas theme.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. captain Mrs. C. Niles and her group.

Council Adopts 'Wait, See' Policy Before Proceeding With Sewage Disposal Plant

Belleville city council will adopt a "wait and see" policy with respect to expected federal and provincial government grants for sewage treatment before taking further definite action on the proposed construction of a sewage disposal system.

After receiving municipal board approval for construction of an initial phase of its sewage plant at a cost of close to two-and-a-half million dollars council was all set to proceed, when in the speech from the throne at the opening of parliament in Ottawa it was indicated that municipalities could expect some financial assistance in the construction of such work.

Two weeks ago City Manager J. R. Reynolds was directed to secure all available details of the matter.

Last night Mr. Reynolds told council that under the government proposal it appeared that the city was constructing a project costing four-and-a-five million dollars could expect to receive a grant from federal Municipal Mortgage and Housing of about three million dollars and under certain conditions could expect a grant of $750,000 togeth er with a low per cent of the interest accrued.

PLANNING CHANGED

He also said that it appeared provincial government assist municipalities in projects of a kind but he advised further investigation be made, that city might take advantage of all financial assistance available.

Accordingly a public works committee recommendation was drawn up agreement between the city and the Ontario Water Resources Commission to proceed with the design of the new plant and trunk sewers at estimated cost of $2,379,000, was tabled.

Street Name for the Route Leading Out of City to West Still Undecided by Council

Dundas Street West, or Trent Road?

By which of the above two names the No. 2 highway route leading west out of the city will be known is a question still being considered by members of Belleville city council.

For the umpteenth time the problem was before council last night and for the just as many times there was no definite answer.

Yesterday the battle was almost won by Trent Road Street West, proponents but although a majority vote was given to the overall plan, the question remained "the question of whether a three-quarter or full width was required. Accordingly the matter was held over for one week.

The matter of the name by which No. 2 highway route will be known as it enters the city known was first introduced into council a year ago.

After lengthy discussion and notification by letter to residents asking for the Trent Road name to be continued, council decided the name should be Dundas Street West. Then the matter was placed on the judge's approval.

Another petition was received requesting the Trent Road name and the matter was referred back to council.

Yesterday the covering by-law was before council only to see an amendment from Alderman Lorne Graham that would have a three-quarter major vote to pass.

This was questioned by City Manager Reynolds.

On a recorded vote the by-carried only by an 8-7 major Whether this would sufficient carry the by-law is still bubb to legal opinion.

In the meantime the matter been tabled.

Sitting on the Sidelines

David Rownitree, a Canadian Press writer, in an interpretive article on the Congo, reports that "some observers suggest Canada gained a good deal in the eyes of new UN members by abstaining on the Congo vote" which seated the delegation loyal to President Kasavubu.

If this is true, it seems strange.

Rownitree preceded this declaration by explaining how the U.N. role in the Congo, pointing out that neither the U.N. charter nor resolutions passed by the Security Council and the General Assembly give Secretary Dag Hammarskjold any right to decide who shall rule the country. The role of the U.N. forces in the Congo is to prevent conflict and to moderate disputes, not to sit in judgment between the various factions.

Rownitree suggests that this carefully maintained impartiality "stands in danger of being overturned by the seating in the General Assembly of a delegation loyal to Kasavubu."

This appears to be a reasonable statement, although it is surely equally true that a logical argument can be advanced for the contention that eventually the UN will have to make a decision between the contending groups, deciding which, in its opinion, has the best claim to being the government of the country. Whether the time for such a decision has arrived is, however, certainly open to question. "The view that events were too confused to reach a sound decision seemed implicit in the Canadian position," writes Rownitree, of Canada's abstention on the vote to seat Kasavubu's delegation.

This is all very well, but surely if the Canadian delegation, and the delegations of 19 other countries which abstained, held this view they should have had the conviction they would have been justified—nay, have had the duty—to vote against the resolution, rather than just sitting on the sidelines while other more-opinionated powers decided the issue.

To abstain against seating Kasavubu's delegation would not have been to seat Lumumba's faction.

There is something much too timid, more too middle-than-thou," about this business of expressing disapproval of a proposal by refusing to vote either for or against it.

Abstentions may have their place. We find it difficult to grasp how the Congo issue could have been one of them. Canada should have had the courage to vote for the U.S.-sponsored motion favoring Kasavubu's—to come out flat-footed against it, even though that it was not timely.

Satellites Get a Break

Leaders of the Communist countries have just completed a "commonwealth" conference. The meeting is reported to have been stormy at times. In other words, there were not only differences of opinion but these differences were openly stated.

This is a far cry from Stalin's day. It may be argued that in those years there was only one Communist country, but the unsatisfactory nature of that explanation is exposed when one asks whether Stalin would have taken kindly to the leaders of the satellites in Eastern Europe expressing views contrary to those which he had decreed as the official party line.

The real difference, of course, is not basically the difference between Stalin and Khrushchev but the existence today of a second Communist state, which cannot be considered to be a satellite of the USSR. The rise of Communist China, while it may have presented the free world with a new problem and a grave threat, has been a boon to the small lands in Eastern Europe which were gobbled up by Russia at the end of the Second Great War. It has created a political atmosphere in the Communist world in which policies have to be decided by negotiation rather than by decree by one central regime.

Over a period of years, the existence of such a situation could appear to be almost certain to have a profound effect on Communist thinking. It may even, in time, make the Communists amenable to reason in conferences with non-Communist lands.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WE NEED TO LOOK UP

John Donne was a famous religious and literary figure who lived at the same time as William Shakespeare. Donne had been a dissolute young man who finally got religion and became Dean of St. Paul's Cathedral. He was one of the great religious leaders of his time. He also wrote outstanding poetry.

One of his poems is entitled, "Doe, and Catche A Falling Starre." We are intrigued and perhaps amused by this ancient spelling. The poem itself is not religious or even moralistic in tone. But the expression is inspiring. We are told to go and catch a falling star.

There are few people who even look up into the heavens. There are fewer still who think in terms of the vastness which the starry heavens disclose. We look down to the earth. We observe little around about us and go along day by day wholly conversing with our fellows. But too seldom do our eyes turn upward. Too seldom do we think of ourselves and our problems in terms of infiniteness — in terms of the stars.

Let us live our lives not in a corner but in the vastness of a God-created universe. Let us think of ourselves as children of that God who made both us and the starry heavens. We are part of that grandeur. Let us live up to our destiny. Let us strive to "Doe, and catche a falling starre."

History of Energy Resources

By HON. ROBERT W. MACAULAY
Ontario Minister of Energy Resources

ARTICLE 44

It was pointed out in a recent report that "Over the period since 1880, which is covered by reasonably trustworthy statistics there has been almost a thirty-fold increase in world production of commercial sources of primary energy, and this has been associated with and contributed to the great advance of industrial production and of standards of living that has occurred during this period." The rate of consumption is rising at a compound rate of about 4 per cent per year and in the next fifty or sixty years alone man will use as much energy as has been used by him in the last 6,000 years.

The historical development of the energy resources available to man has depended on the extent to which man has understood the physical aspects of the world around him. For thousands of years man has known how to use the lever, the wheel, and the ramp, and for the past three thousand years man has known how to small metals for his own use. In later days he developed windmills driven by wind and water, and seaworthy ships which, however, were very hard and difficult to manoeuver because knowledge knew the principles of economical design, but worked by rule of thumb and experience.

These inventions were by and large gradual and cumulative additions of principles which were known since Archimedes and Galileo and Newton the great breakthrough occurred. Ever more rapidly man discovered principles applicable to his everyday work, and his feeble muscular power was multiplied many times over. By the mid-eighteenth century Britain was ripe for the Industrial Revolution.

IMPROVED TECHNOLOGY

Improved science and technology provided better ships for commerce and navigation. It discovered how to smelt iron and make steel with coal, instead of charcoal. Thus arose the heavy industry from fuel starvation by deforestation. It found how to make the new knowledge James Watt improved the steam engine, and Stephenson was ready, with cheap transport, cheap coal and cheap iron, to build railways. Faraday and Clerk Maxwell were ready, with the principles of electricity and the mathematical theory, for the age of invention and become the workshop of the world.

For many years coal was the main energy source, both in Europe and in North America. As late as 1913 coal provided 90 per cent of the commercial sources of energy in Western Europe, but less than 50 per cent in the United States. The American Civil War, the oil industry expanded rapidly, but until well into the 20th century coal and its products were used effectively for heating, for the sophisticated, and complex mingling of the physical, the emotional and the spiritual, which a poor clod of a man can only marvel at and give humble respect to.

In a half-joking, half-serious way, Freud once said to a dear woman friend: "You know, for thirty years I have been engaged in the deepest research into the mysterious workings of the human soul, and yet there is one question I cannot answer, and which I have not been able to — what does a woman really want?"

Men who try to judge or evaluate or predict feminine behavior by any reasonable standards are the most catastrophic mistakes of all. Modern science now tells us that there are various kinds of geometry and logic, all equally valid and each used in different contexts. A woman has her own geometry of the mind and body of the feelings —

The knowledge, and acceptance, of this profound distinction marks the beginning (and perhaps the end) of a real understanding of the Eternal Feminine.

Plain Talk By Nkrumah

Milwaukee Journal

A report last week that Ghana was planning to nationalize its cocoa industry should have brought a sharp drop for shares of many U.S. firms listed on the London Stock Exchange, general uneasiness in the business world generally and no end of worry in Ghana itself.

And it necessitated a quickly scheduled visit to the West by Ghana's President Nkrumah — who said the whole thing was an unfounded rumor. He called the report "mischievous" and said it was deliberately calculated to damage the reputation and good faith which Ghana has built up.

Whatever the source of the rumor and whatever its purpose, Mr. Nkrumah read his people some sound economic facts of life when he said that might well be listened to by all of new nations.

Foreign capital, he said, needs to "go where it feels welcome." The demand for foreign investment far exceeds the supply. Those countries get it which offer the best climate for its use.

Ghana, Nkrumah said, needs $2.8 billion in the next 5 years for profit made by a foreign firm or, which is almost the same thing, that he said, represents "a 40 per cent nonvoting shareholding for which the government invests no capital."

That is sound economic assessment. If that remains Ghana's stand it ought to prosper and to get foreign investment, which adds up to foreign help. It is a stand that other new nations might well affirm in their own interests.

Education Worth Risk

Baltimore Sun

No one knows what the internal political situation may be in any one of the African countries a quarter century hence. What the students of today may be the leaders. No one can know which African students studying in Harvard in the mid-sixties will have been a current American political philosophy as a premise of his country in 1990. Nor need one know.

Education is always a risky investment, with no precise returns guaranteed upon any special maturity date. But it is an investment which must always be made, nonetheless, in the end, if bound to pay off.

Restaurants Spurn Cheese

Windsor Star

Ontario is famous for its cheese but you wouldn't know it when eating out in some restaurants, you would think you were asking for gold when you request a serving of this tangy food.

Cheese is one of the most nutritious foods and much more the industry is making good pastries that form the dessert course to a meal satisfied. Railway meals are renowned but the blow is softened by the chance to finish off the meal with some of this province's finest cheese.

There is a surplus of cheese in Canada and those engaged in the industry are missing a boom in not having it promoted more and more in dining places. It should be, because most people are cheese lovers.

Such tests are not optimistic about such tests being would be unable to agree about which machine should be used, what questions would be asked, who would ask them, who would evaluate the answers, what would be done after the evaluation, and whether the tests should be reversed by TV.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

VARIETY OF THINGS CAN CAUSE BACK PAIN

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have upper back trouble. After X-rays had assured that my spine is in fine shape, but the soreness and stiffness persists.

"Incidentally a lower back trouble caused by lifting, which I controlled can be a good custody usage. This second problem developed after helping my bedridden grandfather.

When there is a back pain, it is natural to think first of the spine — and you were quite right, of course, in having the X-rays. You at least ruled the spine out as a cause.

If it isn't the spine, what is it?

The back is covered with a complex system of muscles, some running lengthwise, some at an angle. The majority of pains and aches in the back are due to some disorder involving these muscles.

They can be from muscle strain, or from irritation of the sheaths which cover the muscles. The latter is called fibrositis. Often faulty posture is involved. Or lifting can at once cause a tear in the muscle fibers. Or, obviously, a combination of faulty posture and too much heavy strain can be the cause.

Furthermore, you know that some focal infection (teeth, tonsils or elsewhere can have its effect in inciting inflammation of the muscles themselves (myositis) as well as the muscular sheaths. There also may be neuritis, which is pain over a nerve, or focal infections.

None of the above will show on an X-ray. Only the fact that the X-ray says the spine itself is not guilty, helps you not one bit far and away the most likely cause is the causing the pain.

And I want to make mention of one other factor: nervous tension. Such tension, over a period of time, can take its toll by causing pain in numerous of the various parts of the body — head stomach, thighs, buttocks, back, neck and shoulders, etc.

You might aware who isn't — that some patients prescribed pain-the doctor says it's nothing but

"Dear Dr. Molner: What can be done about cauliflower or flyaway ears? — E. W."

Protruding ears are those in which the tissue and cartilage strain, or have broken or swollen, as from boxing, wrestling or a blow. Sometimes other problems is too complicated to do much about. I thought "fly-away ears" were those that stuck out too much. If I'm wrong, correct me, and I'll be right. Plastic surgeons generally can do a satisfactory job on this from the angle so that the ears don't stick out so much. Each case is individual, so you and your doctor refer you to a plastic surgeon and see what he says.

DOING AND UNDOING

Only as we are plastic in the hands of intelligence are we going to be anything.

The story of the city and the nation is one of building and undoing down, and then it's the same process through which we all go from day to day. Our thoughts constantly are built up and undone.

You all know know what manner of man or woman you are. The builder alone is able to see through his own building.

In trying to do, we so often undo.

It's because we are out superlatives at undoing that we have beings made of clay right out of the heart of Mother Nature.

And so in expert undoing we are very good!

We do something fine that serves I suppose he means it's all my imagination."

But that isn't it at all. Nerves can make the pain worse and this tenseness can contribute to real physical pain.

But to get back to back pains — in your case, where the spine is in good condition — you can't pin down the particular type of muscular pain. A careful general physical examination may show some chart such as discovering a focal infection that's good to find out.

Otherwise, physiotherapy, careful exercise, and sometimes the application of heat, whether by infra-red lamp heating pad or other means, often afford relief.

THE PACKSACK

BY GREGORY CLARK

A fisherman returns time after time, year after year, to the spot where he once caught a good fish; and even though he never gets another there, he never approaches the place with high expectations.

Women are the same about hats. Though there are perhaps twenty shops and hat departments in a ten acre area of the downtown shopping district where half of every variety are on display, I never hear a woman say, "I'm years the particular shop," and even the particular counter of the individual store in which whom she got, in 1947, a hat to be remembered.

When you think back over your life, it is astonishing how few are the memorable purchases. I can show you downtown the very spot where only seven years ago there where I got, in 1912, a two-bladed black-handled pocket-knife, a knife I carried every day of my life all over the world until I left it on a rock by the Yalujang River where I was stalking trout. There is no hardware store now; only a parking office building. I sometimes go a sad stand across the street and remember buying that knife.

When, a year after I lost it, I was back in the Yalujang, I found the rock. But the knife was gone. I can understand women going back to the same old hat counter.

Three Sitting Reeves Lose As Elections Held Monday In Hastings Municipalities

Yesterday was election day in communities and townships in Hastings county and it saw no less than three incumbent reeves deposed.

At Frankford, Reeve H. W. Rose was defeated by former councillor Frank Babel. At Stirling, Reeve James Holt was defeated by Carl Bateman, while in Elzevir township, Reeve Arthur Robinson lost to Clayton McMurray.

Some 35 per cent of the 1,100 eligible voters at Frankford turned out to elect Mr. Babel by a 22-vote majority over long-time incumbent Reeve Rose. Mr. Babel polled 348 votes compared with Reeve Rose's 326.

For village council, newcomer Leonard Reid led the polls with 494 votes. Other successful aspirants were incumbents Carman Mikel, 385, Ray Morral, 384 and Earl Bonistel 352. Defeated were newcomers Roy Osterhout 330, and Paul Spurrell, 280.

The clerk's office will be open Monday to receive nominations for one seat on the public school board, if an election, if necessary, will be held Dec. 12.

REEVE DEFEATED

At Stirling, Reeve Holt lost to Carl Bateman by 189 votes. The count was 615 for Mr. Bateman and 426 for Reeve Holt.

The village also tried to elect a utilities commissioner but put both aspirants — Harold Bird and James Wright in a 322-322 tie vote.

A nomination meeting for one seat on council will be held Monday with an election, if necessary, the following Monday.

In Elzevir township, Arthur Robinson, who had been reeve for the past two years, was defeated by Clayton McMurray, 200-184, while successful council aspirants were Edward Alexander, Edmund Reavie, Stewart Roy and Joe Kehoe. Harry Fraser was defeated in his bid for a place on council.

WOMAN ELECTED

The election at Madoc saw incumbent Reeve Tom Bonisteel returned with a 111-vote majority over his opponent, Keith Chambers, who polled 373 votes in the first election for reeve in 23 years.

Miss Olive Ashe was successful in her first try for a seat on council, leading the polls with 484 votes to become the first woman ever elected to village council. Walter Armstrong was elected to council with 459 votes, while the other successful aspirants were Bernard Edwards, 454, and Ken West 360. Incumbent Dick Jackson lost out, polling 283 votes. More than 75 per cent of the village's 925 eligible voters went to the polls.

In Marmora Township, Reeve John Wilkes was returned with a 153-vote majority over Gordon Fox, who polled 236 votes.

In what was described as an "excellent" turnout of voters, Graham Bell was elected to council, leading the pack with 380 votes. Other successful aspirants were Dermott Hutchison, 369, Frank Bird, 359, and Harry Mottett, 359. Unsuccessful in their bid for a seat on council were Ross Carman, 232, Gordon Jones, 185, Carl Heath, 182, H. Clemens, 148, and J. McGregor, 112.

REEVE RE-ELECTED

In Huntingdon Township, incumbent Reeve Elmer Wilson was returned with a 198-vote majority over Russell Silks. The township, which had polls at Ivanhoe, Whitla Lake, Moira, Moira Lake and West Huntingdon, favored the incumbent reeve except at Moira where Mr. Silks polled 132 votes to his opponent's 61. It was close in West Huntingdon where Reeve Wilson's 65 votes won the poll by a one-vote majority.

Successful council aspirants in Huntingdon Township were Kenneth Holland, Elmer Rollins, Goldie Mallory and Wesley Parrell.

Voters at Deseronto turned out to elect six councillors and to decide whether or not councillors should be elected for two-year terms on a staggered system The by-law was approved 199-to-120.

Elected to council were Harry Allgood, 207, Elmer Cockerham 207, M. L. Detlor, 212, Hubert Howard 211, Russell Lott, 207, and Ronald Marks 199. Albert Marks, an incumbent in Ronald, polled 129 votes and was unsuccessful in his bid for a seat on council.

Sidney Township results by polls, appear below. There also was an election only for councillors. Reeves Harley Hamilton and Dewey Wannamaker are living having been re-elected by acclamation.

Never Too Old For Good Joke Rotarians Told

Local Rotarians enjoyed a talk by Arthur Duncan, public relations officer of the Bata Shoe firm at the weekly dinner meeting held yesterday afternoon at the Quinte Hotel. Dovetailing briefly on the importance of humor in a person's life today, he gave his listeners several opportunities of proving that one is never too old for a good joke, before approaching his main topic that of the importance of Christmas.

Noting that Christmas has become commercialized in many ways, the speaker cautioned that one should not lose the real meaning behind the Christmas season. It should not be a time to draw to one's attention the value and importance of the two basic bulwarks of democratic society — the home and the community.

It was on this relationship, that of being the member of a family, that Canada's whole way of life was founded, not on any other, Mr. Duncan emphasized. In this relationship is was easy to determine the simplicity of right and wrong and the importance of giving to others. To do this latter act in a quiet, unobtrusive manner gives one a "glow of satisfaction" not otherwise experienced.

Mr. Duncan suggested that it was these things which made Christmas important and urged that no one should miss experiencing them.

The speech was introduced by Court Niller and thanked by Dr. Harvey Elliott. President Bill Hurst was in charge of the meeting which saw members observing the birthdays of Jack MacArthur, Dent Taylor and Roscoe Robson.

City Hall Staff Reaches Peak In Six Steps

City hall employees classed in the general clerical group will reach maximum salaries in six steps over a five-year period, it was decided under a revised salary schedule approved last night in city council.

Council approved of revised salary schedules both for new positions and for upgraded positions as of city hall.

Alderman Leslie Reid as chairman of the council personnel committee said no major changes in either maximum or minimum salaries, but that under the revised schedule the maximum would be now reached in six years instead of 10.

"This," he said, "was one of the last stumbling blocks to a final agreement with the city hall workers' union."

Federal Assistance to Be Sought to Improve Street In Front of New Post Office

The city of Belleville will make application to the Federal Government for assistance in improving Station Street opposite the new Federal building at the corner of Station and Pinnacle Streets.

This decision was the outcome of a meeting last week between representatives of the Federal Public Works Department and Belleville officials regarding completion of services adjacent to the Federal building.

Attending the meeting were E. A. Gardner, chief architect, and J. A. Freeze, director, property and building management of the Federal Public Works Department, with Acting Mayor Robert Temple, Aldermen J. Ellis, City Engineer M. Turnbull, O. H. Wills, Utilities Commissioner, Police Inspector J. C. Hayes and City Solicitor R. D. Bryce.

At the meeting Ald. Temple reviewed the problems arising out of the construction of the new Federal building and noted that correspondence dealing with the construction appeared to indicate the Federal government would assume a substantial portion of the cost of improving Station Street and re-locating hydro lines.

Mr. Freeze said, however, the correspondence indicated the Federal Department would assume full costs of replacing services on Foundry Street, but did not indicate the full cost of services on Station Street would be paid.

One of the largest class of graduates in the history of Picton's Prince Edward Flying Club received their wings at the club's annual banquet, held at the Club Commodore, Belleville. Mayor McFarland Easily Defeats His Opponent

PICTON — Mayor Harvey J. McFarland was re-elected mayor of this town yesterday in a record turnout of voters, the largest veteran of the mayority of any mayor representing his first contested election campaign for that office during a decade. The record organization-poll during the campaign was responsible for 90 per cent of the town's eligible voters putting in an appearance at the polls to return Mayor McFarland by a majority of 1,060 votes over his rival, Robert Cockburn. Mayor McFarland polled 1,566 votes to Mr. Cockburn's 506.

Ernest Ward was re-elected reeve in a close contest with Arthur Blake. Also newcomer to the municipal politics, Reeve Ward, who will be serving his eighth term in that office, polled 1,090 votes to Mr. Black's 966.

The positions open for deputy reeve and council were all filled by acclamation but a fierce campaign was waged for election to the utilities commission. Jack Ward was re-elected after leading the polls with 932 votes. Also elected was Gordon Monroe with 890 votes. The defeated candidates were Frank Franklin (837) and L. B. Calnan (679).

Following the election returns a victory parade was held through the town with both elected and defeated candidates and their supporters marching through the town behind the Picton band.

COUNTY ELECTIONS

Elections were also held in several other Prince Edward County municipalities.

In the village of Wellington, where Reeve Clare Platt has been re-elected by acclamation, councillors elected were William Greer 279, Jack Ogilvy 231, Wilfred Burns 228, and Robert Boyce 199, with the unsuccessful candidates being Murray Wiltse 190, Keith Hubbard 132 and Harold Clemens 126.

In Athol Township there was a close election for the re-eeve, with Reeve Gordon Demorse being re-elected over Walter Sleeman 322 to 138. Athol councillors elected were William Main 257, Keith Perry 283, George Wilkinson 276 and Keith Brumwell 264, with defeated candidates being Alton Blakeley 212 and Cleave Russell 170.

In Hillier Reeve Lorne Wood was re-elected, defeating Lloyd Lloyd 293 to 215.

In Hallowell Township where Reeve Gordon Bond and three councillors had been elected by acclamation, there was an election for the deputy reeve's position. John Fox defeating Donald Herbison, 584 to 272.

In South Marysburg Township Reeve Gordon Bond has been elected by acclamation but six men were seeking the four seats at the council. Elected were Sid Drury 276, Walter Whattham 249, Howard Ayer 260 and Harold Rand 235, with the defeated candidates being Keith Hicks 232 and Harry Grimmon 191.

Sophiasburg township has a new reeve, Lorne Young, who defeated Elmer Rose. Councillors were Leland Doxsee, Councillor Kenneth Koehler, who polled 246, William Jeune 315, Howard Williams 306 and Wilbur Osborne 191 with the two defeated candidates being Keith Foster 231, Clarence Smith 228, Beath Morden 188 and Lewis Garrison 174. Sidney trustees elected were Robert Semple 373 and Don Thompson 347, the unsuccessful candidate being Roy Brooks 330.

In Ameliasburg Township, where Harmon Montgomery was elected reeve and Arthur Miller was named deputy reeve by acclamation, successful candidates for the three seats as councillors were Harold Bonter, Ronald Burr and Milton Pulver, with George Cunningham being defeated.

MORE FLEXIBILITY NEEDED IN NATIONAL MONETARY POLICY — SAYS B OF M PRESIDENT

Arnold Hart Urges Increased Money Supply To Aid Canadian Business in Competitive Age

R. D. MULHOLLAND, GENERAL MANAGER, REPORTS NEW RECORDS ESTABLISHED IN PRACTICALLY ALL PHASES OF BANK'S OPERATIONS—ASSETS AT ALL-TIME HIGH OF $3.5 BILLION

MONTREAL, Dec. 5 — In an increasingly tough, competitive world, Canada needs a more flexible official monetary policy, so as to accelerate business while avoiding inflation, according to G. Arnold Hart, president of the Bank of Montreal.

Thus, he told B of M shareholders at their 142nd annual meeting, a reasonable enlargement of the money and credit supply and of bank loans should be allowed to continue as long as this can be done without risking a runaway boom.

Shareholders also heard R. D. Mulholland, the bank's general manager, present a statement showing establishment of new records in practically all phases of the B of M's operations for the year ended October 31.

New Highs Reached

Total resources approached a new record of $3.5 billion. Deposits rose to more than $3.2 billion, while loans maintained a substantial level of $1,771 billion, established last year, and afterdividends rose to an all-time high of $14,226,726.

Mr. Hart said that by contrast to the "pedestrian pace of business" in Canada and the United Western Europe has seen considerable expansion and the prevailing mood of "introspection" has become that of "introspection and thinking."

Noting an "impressive improvement in financial finances over the past 12 months, Mr. Hart, however, said that the present balance may not continue. National production has failed to reach expectations and substantial additional expenditures for defence employment are likely, he said.

If, as it would, government debt has to be expanded sizably, it should be remembered that there are "definite practical limits to how much money debt can be created in a short time, the B of M president continued.

Pointing to the fact that Canada's money supply has been practically constant for the past two years, Mr. Hart said, "some flexibility is necessary and inevitable when inflationary pressures become active, may have been maintained too long."

Loans Sluggish

He believed that current "sluggish and quiescent behavior" of bank loans should not be unduly regarded with the satisfaction that might be implied if we were in the midst of an inflationary boom."

What natural bankers and commercial bankers should be worrying about, however, is the means of creating the conditions that will lead to a increase in bank borrowing rather than a reverse", he continued.

It believed that too much emphasis on the dangers of overexpansion and of over-borrowing by people or foreign, might be "conducive to a state of timorous appreciation in which all expansion and all increases in indebtedness, because, as it were, suspect."

Banks Need Lead

Pointing to the need for a definitive lead from the Bank of Canada, Mr. Hart said the financial community should be given "a clear idea of assurances that official monetary policy, while also will always given room of greater flexibility, will continue in this direction as long as may be possible without fear rising to renewed inflationary dangers."

Concluding, the B of M president said, "Business these days is a complex, competitive and often frustrating business. About the only thing one can expect is the unexpected — that will be the attitude with new situations will arise and will test our capacity to adapt ourselves to them."

General Manager Remarks

R. D. Mulholland, general manager of the B of M, presenting the bank's 143rd annual statement said notable progress had been made during the year, with assets at a new high of $3,463 million, an increase of $226 millions; while loans maintained the high level of $1,772 million. Net profits were $14,226,726—after payment of $17,352,044 for income taxes. Shareholders are receiving dividends of $12.00 per share Mr. Mulholland added.

On October 31, total deposits were more than $3,200 million, an increase of $222 million for the year. Personal savings deposits rose $44 millions to $1,-800 millions, a record—for the B of M he continued.

Help for Farmers

Pointing to the bank's "consistent policy" of assisting agriculture, Mr. Mulholland said advances to farmers are higher than in 1959, while 28 of M term improvement loans are the highest in history.

For the future, the general manager pledged co-operation by the fullest possible extent in the federal plan to provide more capital and credit for the small business men, as outlined in the recent throne speech.

Bank premises valuations has been raised from $17 million last year to $35 million this year Mr. Mulholland said this figure reflected not only completion of the new B of M office — which is now the largest in Canada — but also re-appraisal of the bank's entire position throughout the country.

$42 Offices

During the year, there was a net increase of 32 bank offices in Canada and elsewhere, Mr. Mulholland said, bringing the total in operation at October 31 to 842.

Abroad, B of M business has continued at a high level in 1960 and the progress of the B of M Caribbean affiliate, the Bank of London and Montreal was "very satisfactory" with 25 offices now in business.

Request Motorists to Slow Speed in Downtown Areas

An appeal for Belleville and district motorists to slow their driving in downtown Belleville and to give more consideration to pedestrians using crosswalks, was made yesterday by Alderman Robert Temple, chairman of the city police committee.

Alderman Temple told city council that unless a certain percentage of motorists slowed their speed, council would be forced to take action to reduce the allowable speed in the downtown area.

To ease the traffic situation and to make for safer driving, Ald. Temple urged motorists to pay particular attention to crosswalks and the rights of pedestrians, and to get into and stay into their proper traffic lane.

Alderman John Barlow wanted to know by what right city police during rush hour periods were not permitting left turns at the corner of Bridge and Coleman Streets.

He admitted that there was local legislation barring left turns

Medicine Is Good Career Says Dr. Therese Vanier, Gov.-General's Daughter

By JOHN M. LANNAN

BOSTON (AP) — Medicine, according to the physician daughter of Canada's Governor-General, is one of the fields open to women in which they really do have equal opportunities with men.

Dr. Therese Vanier, a girl brought up in Canadian diplomatic circles at home and abroad, chose the field because "I just thought I'd like to do it."

"Medicine is a good career for a woman," said the stately, prematurely-gray doctor, "provided a girl knows what she's wants. You've got to realize it's going to take most of your energy for the next five or six years, though."

And marriage and medicine do mix, she said. "I've known lots of girls who married during their training, but they were the exception. You've got to be tough to do it, both mentally and physically."

Dr. Vanier, now 37, didn't try to mix them. She took a one-way path, entering medical school at the University of Paris. Then she transferred to Cambridge University in Britain where she was one of the first women ever awarded a degree at Cambridge convocation. Other women had won degrees there but they were not awarded at simultaneously convocations.

She took her medical residency in pediatrics, choosing the field because "I like pediatrics. Job a kid, I liked very much."

CHILDREN FRANK

"I get a shot kick out of working with children. They're very amusing little personalities and they get to be false front. Underneath, there's an optimistic side to it. I took hoss of mine saddest to say that no matter what you do 50 per cent of the children you treat are going to get better anyway."

Now at Boston City Hospital she's service in British Institutions rather taking a year of special work in he n a t o l o g y (blood studies). "I have a great interest in diseases of the blood." Dr. Vanier said, "especially those affect children. I'm also especially interested in leukemia."

She has been here since early summer and Boston has made a friend: "I'm very impressed with it—the city, you know."

At a conversationalist, Dr. Vanier is even more gracious than she looks, talking easily and carefully with clipped, easy-to-listen British intonations and inflections.

She received her early education in England in a convent. This accounts for part of her accent. The rest is probably due to the many years she spent in medical training there and in living there from time to time.

Interviewed in a sunny courtyard at Boston City Hospital, she appeared happy and right at home. Tanned and healthy looking, she spoke wistfully of a plot of land she owns in Provence in the south of France.

RETIRE IN FRANCE

"Someday, I hope to build a home there—when I have some money. Now, I just plant flowers and fruit trees. I'd like very much to retire there."

Dr. Vanier lives at the hospital: "It's much easier that way, especially if I want to work in the evening as I often do."

Her day starts at 8:30 a.m. rather than the 9:30 a.m. customary in Britain where she was attached to the Great Ormond Street Hospital, a children's institution.

Dr. Vanier says she has no desire to go into private practice. "I'm too used to hospitals. I'd probably forget to send out bills or something and end up in bankruptcy court."

Before coming to Boston, the doctor stayed briefly in Ottawa with her parents, General and Mrs. Georges Vanier. "I was pleasant being at Government House," she said, "I enjoyed the social part of it. And it was nice having things done for you.

"It was good to get away, though. All my faculties for doing anything for myself would have atrophied."

The doctor was the only girl in a family which included four boys. One is a Trappist monk in Canada; another is an artist in France; a third is studying philosophy in Portugal and the youngest is at the University of Ottawa.

"It's nice having them spread around so." Dr. Vanier said, "especially if you like to travel a lot. I do."

ANDERSON — WOOD

St. George's Anglican Church, Trenton, was the setting on Saturday afternoon, November 26, for a very pretty wedding when Yvonne Elizabeth Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wood, of Tallahassee, Florida, was united in "marriage to Eric B. Anderson, son of Mrs. Madeline Anderson, James St. Trenton.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Kenneth F. Blachford.

The wedding music was played by the church organist, Mr. A. Boyce. On the altar were placed vases of white 'mums.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a floor-length gown of white organza over taffeta. The scalloped neckline was outlined by "flowers," fashioned of seed pearls, falling away at the back of the gown to a low "V" with fabric covered buttons extending past the hipline. The gathered overskirt of organza was dramatized by the embroidered taffeta underskirt and the effect was carried out in the long graceful sleeves of unlined organza. The bridal veil of white net was caught to a tiara headpiece, fashioned of fretted bone, studded with seed pearls. The bride carried a white Bible on which was placed a tiny bouquet of pink Sweetheart roses, with white satin streamers.

The maid of honor, Miss Patricia Bard, of Ottawa, was charming in a street-length dress of turquoise velvet, with a full skirt, short sleeves and a scoop neckline. She wore a tiara headpiece of rhinestones and carried a bouquet of white Shasta 'mums.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Connie Rombough and Mrs. Stanley Fellows, both of Trenton. Their costumes were similar to that of the senior attendant. They carried nosegays of white Shasta 'mums.

Miss Mickey McCaffrey, of Trenton, the demure flower girl, wore a short frock of pale pink French velvet with a gathered skirt and short puff sleeves. The waistline was accented by a wide sash of pink satin with a bow and streamers in the back.

She wore a white flower bandeau and carried a nosegay of pale pink Sweetheart roses and white shasta 'mums.

Mr. Stanley Fellows of Trenton, was the groomsman. The ushers were Messrs. Brent Cuthbert of Ottawa and Richard Hayes of Carrying Place.

For the reception in the Queensway Hotel, the mother of the bride wore a short-sleeved printed silk dress of a rose-jasmine color combination, with carmine hat and gloves. Her corsage was fashioned of tiny yellow roses.

The bridegroom's mother assisted in receiving the guests in a sheath dress of cornflower blue wool, with a matching jacket, enhanced by a white fur collar. Her corsage was pale pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls and border cities, the bride had chosen a mauve sheath of wool with purple hat and gloves and a short black velvet coat with black accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson have returned from their honeymoon and are living at 23 James Street in Trenton until their new home in Glen Miller is completed.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were from Ottawa; Belleville; Toronto; Hastings and Frankford.

Mrs. D. Leslie Named "Miss Stardust"

Mrs. D. Leslie was chosen "Miss Stardust" at the annual Stardust Ball, sponsored by the Belleville General Hospital Nurses' Alumnae, Mr. and Mrs. Les Lee were both presented with gifts.

The dance, held at Club Commodore, was well attended. A delicious buffet, arranged by Mrs. Ruth Bly and her committee, was served at midnight. Many couples found themselves standing on the lucky spot, and were presented with prizes. A draw was made for door prizes.

Prizes were donated by local merchants.

Miss Vija Karaks, president of the alumnae received the guests, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. W. Daschel and Dr. and Mrs. Bruce Creek.

Miss Karaks acted as mistress of ceremonies throughout the evening.

'Modern' Fashion in Japan Now Is for Women to Work

By YUKO NAKAMIKADO

TOKYO (Reuters) — More Japanese women are invading fields of work previously open to men only.

In some cases, the women receive equal wages, but their average income is 43 per cent lower than that of the men.

Before the Second World War, women could become nurses, maids, telephone operators, factory workers, office clerks or typists. If they did, it was usually because they were forced to do so for economic reasons; the daughters of well-to-do families did not, or could not, work.

Today, the pattern has changed. The "modern" fashion is for girls to work. Since the end of the war, better education has opened to women an almost unlimited field of employment.

For the first time in Japanese history, a woman recently became a member of the cabinet. Mrs. Masa Nakayama is the welfare minister in Premier Hayato Ikeda's government. Other women are members of the Diet (parliament). Before the war, there were not even allowed to vote.

INTO MANY FIELDS

Other women have become lawyers, doctors, company presidents and executives, newspaper reporters, television producers, airline attendants, fashion models and fashion designers.

A recent survey made with 470 senior students of four universities in Tokyo showed that 80 per cent wanted to work after graduation. Occupations which attracted them most were jobs in newspapers, magazines, radio and television.

The least popular occupation, with a rating of only 5.8 per cent, was clerical work in government or public corporation offices.

About half the girls preferred to work after marriage.

At present, there are 79,820 girls enrolled in Japanese universities and 90,721 in junior colleges. Before the war, universities were not open to women.

Girls Neatly Circumvent Conventions

FREDERICTON (CP) — Stenographers Sondra Fulton and Marilyn Briggs share everything in an apartment but the memories of a month they spent in Venezuela last summer during which they neatly circumvented one of the country's strict conventions.

They were guests at the Caracas home of Jorge Isaac Diaz, Sordra's fiance. A doctor's son and University of New Brunswick student, he helped her solve the problem of providing a chaperone.

"No unmarried couples may go anywhere unchaperoned but must be accompanied by a friend or another couple," said Marilyn. "This even includes going downtown shopping in the afternoon or going to a restaurant for lunch.

"This is the unwritten code of the Venezuelans and there are no departures for any age. It just isn't done."

However, Sondra took along her own chaperone — Marilyn. Then Jorge found Marilyn a date and the two couples chaperoned each other.

Sondra and Jorge plan to live in Venezuela after their marriage. She said she was impressed by many things in the South American country but drawn the line at cooking. She didn't care for fried bananas, garlic-flavor rice and heavily spiced dishes. When they're married, she says, she will use her own recipes.

Diabetic Spends Most of Time Helping Others

EDMONTON (CP)—When Mrs. M. D. Mutiart was told she had diabetes, she was given a maximum of 18 years to live.

That was 25 years ago.

Since then Mrs. Mutiart has spent most of her time helping others. She is a partner with her husband in Mutiart Foundations, which they established and which does such philanthropic work as giving educational aid to young people, supporting scientific research projects and aiding children's camps.

Mrs. Mutiart was president of the Canadian Diabetic Association during three of its early years and lectured across the country for the association.

She says her many interests have contributed to her present health and she has three rules for living: Accept diabetes as a challenge, not a handicap; watch diet and health habits and believe there is still work to be done.

When Mrs. Mutiart became CDA national president in 1954, there was a national association but few local branches. She set out to organize branches, first consulting doctors in each city she visited from British Columbia to Newfoundland. There now are 34 branches across Canada.

The CDA also has built a large collection of publications available to diabetics in French or English and imported literature in other languages from other countries, for new Canadians.

Camps for diabetic children have been established, diabetics are encouraged to keep in close touch with their doctors and identification cards have been printed for diabetics who in the past were often mistaken as being intoxicated while having an insulin reaction.

Roy B.: How can I keep my mother-in-law a long frequent visitor?

Elaine B.: Now that my life is so empty. Why begrudge her the joy of seeing me?

Roy B. — Things have reached a point where something must be done. My home isn't my home any more, even though we moved 500 miles to make it so.

We're married eight years and have two little boys. Elaine's father died three years ago and her mother lives with an unmarried daughter. Although she has a married son, our boys are her only grandchildren and she does simply go-go over them.

To get them away from her haircuts and manners, I recommend a transfer to a city two miles away. I thought she'd be satisfied with a Christmas visit and perhaps a hello during the summer. But no. Even though the fare is $80 each way by plane, she's been two, and now three, times a month. The last trip was because she just had to see Chippie leave the home for his first day of school.

I have a mother and father, too. They live a few hours away. But my mother has more to do than to come running to see every tooth! If this keeps up, boy, next stop is Ghana

Elaine B. — Now can Roy compare his mother with mine when it comes to the children? Grandma B. has 11 grandchildren, with most of them within a few blocks of their home. And she has a husband, as well as a big job in the ladies' auxiliary of the local hospital.

My mother, who has always adored babies, just has our two now. She would have made a perfect kindergarten but insisted she stayed home with us and then helped Dad.

Now that, she's alone the one thing that helps the smile back in is being with Chippie and Buzz. Roy shouldn't begrudge her this pleasure.

I admit it's disconcerting to have a baby up from such a great distance for such trivial reasons. But she only stays one night. And she'll stop when my sister-in-law has a baby or my sister gets married.

The Council: It's always sad to hear of a woman with a heart that's all pressed up and has nowhere to go! Elaine's mother is winging through the air to the home of her daughter and son-in-law with what amounts to — in the words of a recent book title — "a surfeit of honey."

Roy won't have to move to Ghana. He and Elaine can each let the aid of the other members of the family to siphon off part of Mom's deluge of emotion so that it doesn't drown the B's in a moderate amount of attention and maternal demonstrativeness is pleasant. Too much is dazzling and dizzying, if not cloying.

And of course the best way to siphon off some of the excess emotional energy is to channel it in the direction of young children who are panting for a little Tender Loving Care. This mother, obviously, has no idea of how precious her wares are in the open market!

Naturally there are no little boys like Chippie and Buzz. And like a real grandma, she'll let them know that. But as a make-believe grandma to a few dozen orphan boys, neglected and abandoned and ill children, she can make those hugs and kisses really count.

In his awkward way, Roy is forcing his mother-in-law into a more wholesome design for living. Her pent-up feelings for children were making her obsessive about her own grandchildren. Now she must sign up for some outside activity involving grandmotherless children.

Meaning Of Christmas Theme at W.A.

ROSLIN — One Thursday evening the Woman's Auxiliary held an open meeting in the church hall with guests present from Christ Church, Bellesville; Roslin United, Roslin Presbyterian and St. Paul's Guild with around 100 in attendance.

The president, Miss Phyllis Sills presided and extended a welcome to the guests.

Mrs. K. Geen gave the Scripture reading and Captain Willoughby offered prayer.

The program opened with two pieces given by the Sunday school, "And Can It Be," and a Christmas carol; Miss Margaret Bales gave several Christmas pieces on her organette, a solo, "There Is a Star in the Sky" and Mrs. Dorgest (respecting Roslin United); Mrs. G. Goodfellow gave a reading, "Charity" (St. Paul's Guild); a solo by Mrs. Wannamaker (Presbyterian church), and a reading "The Patchwork Quilt" by Mrs. D. Stewart, Christ Church, Bellesville.

Mrs. Willoughby introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Henderson of Toronto, who spoke on the subject, "How We Can Make Christmas More Meaningful for Our Children, and What Does Christmas Mean to Me, a Holiday or a Holy Day?"

With so many things to do if you plan your work you can have more time for important things. She spoke of the Advent ring and explained its significance and urged mothers to get the family to help in the making of cards, cookies, decorations, so they could get the feeling of giving and thinking of others. She spoke of the making of a Christmas Creche to portray the Bible story.

"Think of God and His love for us and we will have prepared our hearts as well as our homes for the Christmas season."

Mrs. G. Greer thanked the speaker for her wonderful address.

Refreshments were served buffet style by the members of the W.A. and a social half hour was enjoyed.

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Harper Shaw

WHEN BACHELOR GIRLS ENTERTAIN

An interesting letter from a young woman presents a dilemma that is worth discussing. She writes:

"A girl friend and I work together in the same office. We often share an apartment. We both have social obligations that should be paid back and we are wondering how to go about it. What we had in mind was to ask these other women to have dinner with us in a restaurant four evening for the evening without causing them embarrassment?"

It is difficult for a bachelor girl to entertain for a mixed group under such circumstances. A little advance planning will take care of the problem.

First, when extending the invitation to each woman you wish to include, ask her to bring an escort. Since this invitation will probably be by telephone, explain where they are to meet you (say in the lobby of the hotel) and of course the day and the hour. Also make it clear what it is to be worn. For example, dressy afternoon gowns for the ladies and dark suits and white shirts for the men.

As soon as it is known just what the size of the party is to be, it is wise to go to the hotel and have a talk with the head waiter in the dining room of the hotel. Reserve the size table you wish and order anything extra that you might want, such as a bowl of flowers for the centre of the table.

If you plan to order the dinner beforehand, do so at this time. In this way you will know the exact amount of the bill and this can be paid in advance, including a tip to the head waiter and the waiters who will serve you. If, however, you prefer that each guest place his own order, the total amount will of course be in doubt. In this case go to the credit manager of the hotel and apply for a credit card. When the party is over, it is a simple matter to excuse yourself from the table and unobtrusively sign the check (adding tips) which the head waiter will have ready for you.

This may seem a little complicated, but if unattached women are to be successful hosts at a party where payment is necessary, it is the only way to handle things without bringing embarrassment to the gentlemen present.

Hang a sheet of plastic-surfaced cooking on the inside of your bedroom or kitchen door as a message center, on which you can write with pencil or crayon. A cloth serves to erase. The message is perfect for children's rooms, too.

WEDDING

ASHBY — CRAM

MARMORA — The wedding of Geraldine Fan Cram, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cram, of Deloro, to Arthur Clyde (Pete) Ashby, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Ashby, of Peterborough, took place on Saturday November 26th in St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora. The Rev. J. M. D. McLeod performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families.

Miss Patti Savage of New York City, was maid of honor, and Miss Brenda Cram, was junior bridesmaid.

The groomsmen was Mr. Keith Burns and Mr. Jack Cram was usher.

The wedding was followed by a buffet luncheon served at the home of the bride's parents.

Souffles Con't from Last Week

Hot Fruit Soufflé

By Mary Moore

This family is so intrigued with hot dessert, souffles I am going to give you another one this week — then let the matter drop. This one is a hot fruit souffle in which you may use pureed fruits of your choice. It opens up quite a field of experimentation for venturesome cooks.

(The souffles I gave here last week were lemon and chocolate).

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

TUESDAY (Guests)

Apple Juice; Chicken-Dinner-in-A-Dish (see Monday); Generous Salad with Finely Shredded Red Cabbage, Cucumber and Lettuce and Mayonnaise; Blueberry Roll; Lemon-Nutmeg Sauce; Coffee.

HOT FRUIT SOUFFLE:

1-4 cup flour, 3 tablespoons butter, 3-4 cup milk, 1 6-oz. can pureed fruit (apricot, peach, applesauce, raspberry or plum), 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 4 eggs, separated, 2 tablespoons sugar.

Melt butter, blend in flour, then milk. Stir over medium heat until thick. Then add pureed fruit, lemon juice and sugar. Beat 4 egg yolks until thick, add a little of the hot mixture and return the whole to top of double boiler and cook stirring until yolks have thickened a little. Set aside to cool. Beat 4 egg whites, add 2 tablespoons sugar and beat very stiff. Fold the mixtures together. Pour into well-buttered baking dish (or individual dishes — see note) and bake 30 to 40 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. Serve piping hot on hot plates with hot fruit sauce.

Sauce: To 1 cup juice from canned fruit — peaches, pears, pineapple or raspberry — (sauce made with juice from canned raspberries and further colored with red food coloring is beautiful) add 1 1-2 teaspoon lemon juice and heat in top of double boiler. Mix 1 tablespoon arrowroot with 1 tablespoon water and stir into hot juice (buy arrowroot at the drug store but if not available use cornstarch.). Serve hot over souffle. (If desired, add rum flavoring.)

NOTE:

The expert chef's way with these is to bake them in individual casseroles. At the last second these are turned out on hot plates, served at once, with the hot sauce being poured over or passed at table. Elegant!

NOTE NO. 2:

Be sure not to underbake your souffles. We put them in the oven about 20 minutes before announcing "dinner is served". If, when dessert time arrives, the souffle is not quite baked, stir up an interesting conversational topic and make the company wait until the souffle is baked.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Willie Fleming is quite a football player and it follows that British Columbia Lions want to keep him around.

Thus, signing him to a three-year contract may have been the natural thing to do.

It raises some speculation, however, in a sport where long-term financial commitments to players are as rare as positive predictions from coaches.

Some have wondered aloud whether the move foreshadows cases of the same elsewhere in Canada to overcome player-bidding competition from the National and American Football Leagues in the United States—a sort of kind that there's more job security here.

Or is this an isolated case in which the Lions have taken steps to remove something tempting their star halfback to return south?

Chances are it's a combination of both, with emphasis on the latter, with the other considerations that are claimed by the club having only a small bearing on it.

FIRST LONG PACT

Fleming is the first player in the seven-year history of the Lions to be given a three-year contract. Most are taken one season at a time, with an option for the following year.

That Fleming, a 31 - year-old speedster, has earned such an unprecedented offer isn't open to argument in Vancouver. He's been the Lions' most outstanding player since he came here from the University of Iowa two years ago.

This year he scored 18 touchdowns and ran up 1,051 yards rushing in 16 scheduled games, the best any Lion has ever done, and he finished second in the WIFU scoring and third in rushing.

"I guess you could say he's the first player who's ever deserved a three - year contract from us," said general manager Herb Capozzi, but he admitted that the competition from the AFL, which began operating this year, and the well - established NFL had some influence.

Head coach Wayne Robinson, who says the influence of the AFL has lessened considerably since last winter when it was in the embryo stage, said the contract here was a matter "between the boy and the club."

Suggestions of AFL-NFL competition had been exaggerated.

ELIGIBLE FOR DRAFT

However, it seems more than coincidental that the three-year contract was signed at the same time that Fleming's class in uni-versity becomes eligible for the football draft of the AFL and NFL.

Both leagues have regulations limiting their draft selections to seniors and Fleming would be in his class now if he'd continued at Iowa.

The draft selections will be made soon after the end of the U.S. college football season. Some U.S. teams have been interested in Fleming and it was expected that some team would select him just in case he decided to go south again.

They'll Do It Every Time

By Jimmy Hatlo

Bob Armstrong Soon Ready

BOSTON (CP) — Boston defenceman Bob Armstrong has skated for the first time in a month and may be ready for action before the end of the week.

The Bruins, lodged in the National Hockey League cellar, were heartened by Armstrong's hour-long workout Monday. He has been out of action with a broken bone in his foot.

Meanwhile, retired Boston goalie Don Simmons of Port Colborne, who quit rather than be shipped to the Providence farm club, has had a partial change of heart. He now says he'll play in Providence but only if the Reds buy his contract. The Bruins won't sell.

Chances of this now seem remote since Fleming's next four years are committed to the Lions.

"This will save any hassling over contract terms if Willie should have a bad season," said Capozzi, who might have added that it will have the club some argument, too, if Fleming should continue having outstanding seasons.

"And we'd like to feel sure that he'll play out his career with us," Capozzi added.

To which B.C. football fans add a loud "Amen!"

BOXER COLLAPSED

BALTIMORE (AP) — Harold Carter, 30i, Linden, N.J. heavyweight boxer, won a technical knockout Monday night when Warrenell Lester, 181, collapsed from exhaustion at 1:35 in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round fight. Carter decked the exhausted Lester twice in th eighth with swinging harmless right hands before Lester's trainer threw in the towel.

Hearing Probe Startles Ring World

Payoff Made To Hoods

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The International Boxing Club paid $180,000 to two influential persons to help line up fighters for its televised boxing shows, a former IBC president testified Monday.

But Truman K. Gibson rejected a suggestion that the payments were a payoff to guarantee peaceful promotion of the bouts. The payoff description was offered by John G. Bonomi, attorney conducting the hearings for the Senate anti - Trust and Monopoly subcommittee.

Gibson made further questionings today about activities of the IBC's of New York and Chicago, which went out of existence after the Supreme Court found that they monopolized championship bouts and violated anti - trust laws.

The subcommittee is seeking evidence of underworld activities in the prizefight business.

Gibson testified Monday that companies associated with IBC had made payments totalling about $180,000 since 1949 to the wife of imprisoned gangster Frankie Carbo and to Jack Kearns, ex-king of the irrepressible jack of all trades.

HEADED GUILD

Gibson testified Kearns was paid to establish communications with boxing managers at large and stabilize the IBC program. Kearns headed the powerful International Boxing Managers Guild and managers at the time were contemplating they did not get enough money from fight telecasts.

Gibson conceded that getting the guild's good will was a factor in the payments to Kearns but said Kearns earned the money by helping to line up matches for the Wednesday and Friday night fights.

"He did a good deal more than spread good will and cheer for us," Gibson said.

He testified Kearns was known as a bitter enemy of Carbo, the underworld figure who operated for years behind the scenes in boxing.

Carbo now is serving a two-year term for illegally managing and match-making under cover.

But Mrs. Carbo was paid between $40,000 and $45,000—under her former name of Viola Matter—because IBC had to deal with fight managers on Carbo's side of the fence, Gibson said.

NEGATE AL EFFECTS?

He agreed with Bonomi that one reason for hiring her was "to counterbalance Jack Kearns." He said he and other IBC executives hoped to "negate the effect" that might stem from hiring Kearns. "We wanted continuity in our TV series."

Gibson identified a group or more of the best - known U.S. managers—also well known to the police—as friendly or even committed to Carbo.

He also implied that Carbo dictated terms for a 1952 rematch between Jersey Joe Walcott and heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano, who since has retired.

The story brought out under questioning was that the IBC had Marciano's contract, but that of Walcott, Carbo told Felix Bocchicchio, Walcott's manager, that IBC paid Walcott $20,000 and put Walcott into the match.

The result, Gibson said, was that IBC paid Walcott $250,000, as arrangement that "antagonized Marciano and forever alienated him from us."

DENIED BY MANAGER

Meanwhile, in Mount Ephraim, N.J., Bocchicchio denied he ever did business with Carbo.

"I never talked to Carbo about that match for Walcott—or any other," he said. "I did all business with (James D.) Norris who ran IBC."

In Camden, N.J., Walcott said: "This is really a shock. I can't believe it. I think it's a false statement."

Walcott, who had just returned home after training a night work with the Camden city police, was shaken when a news paper man related the testimony given in Washington. He said:

"This is all new to me. I have never had any association with Carbo or with anyone like him. I wouldn't know him if I saw him. To my knowledge Felix has no association with Carbo or with one else.

"I quit the fighting and all I know was that the matches were made. As far as I know the contracts were by the IBC. I'm sure there must be some misunderstanding."

Walcott, 46, former world heavyweight king who retired from the ring after losing a title in the first round in a Chicago rematch, now works with juvenile delinquents.

Approve Sale Kansas A's

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The American League Monday night granted conditional approval to a group of Kansas City businessmen seeking to acquire the franchise of Kansas City Athletics.

A contract of conditional sale was signed immediately after the American League action, which came at an executive session. The contract provides for purchase of all assets by the group, and certain receivables for $3,500,000.

Byron Spencer, a lawyer and Shriner, was the man who signed for the group. Parke Carroll, executive vice-president and general manager, and Ed Volmer, secretary, signed for the Athletics.

Two steps now remain before the sale is completed. These are approval by the present stockholders of the club, and approval by the board of directors of conditions of the sale.

Mr. Barclay says:

"I believe, Sir, that this is a Brandy worthy of the company of true gentlemen."

Habs Trio Leads Points Scramble

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens' Bernie Geoffrion Dickie Moore and Jean Beliveau collected 21 points in last week's National Hockey League action and established a one-two-three leadership in the point-spotting parade.

But the best goal-getting job was done by Montreal's Frank Mahovlich of Toronto Maple Leafs. He scored five goals in his team's three games and added an assist for a 28-point total.

The six points lifted Mahovlich from a 10th-place tie a week ago to a sixth-place tie with Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks.

Geoffrion came up with the most points for the season—three goals and six assists and moved from third place to the lead with his total of 26 points. He has 13 goals and 13 assists.

Moore scored one goal and added three assists to slip back into second place with 36 points on 22 goals and 14 assists.

Beliveau potted three goals—all in the same game—and gathered six assists to help him collect 23 points and move into a tie with Moore for second place.

Two other Montreal players, Doug Harvey and Elmer Lach, are tied for fifth spot with 22 points each.

Harvey has 18 assists and Lach has 13 assists he is only a point behind Moore.

Norm Ullman of Detroit Red Wings failed to get a point and dropped from second to fourth place. He is tied for second with Beliveau.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts.
Geoffrion, Mtl	13	13	26
Moore, Mtl	22	14	36
Beliveau, Mtl	13	23	36
Ullman, Det.	8	23	30

Hay, Chi.	5	18	23

Jeannott Gilbert of Niagara Falls Flyers and Ray Fullen of the Tokyees each have 24 points.

Wayne Dodgeles of Flyers continues to lead the goaltending department with a 2.5 goals-against average. He has held the lead since the season opened six weeks ago.

Hockey Hints

By Lloyd Percival

"UP TO THE MAN AHEAD"

Though Montreal Canadiens are packed with talent, Coach Dick Irvin does not confine his efforts to applauding his players. The astute Blake knows his players must do certain things for they will be able to team in on their skill most effectively. The Montreal coach realizes that a good coach is one who best utilizes the talent at his disposal, game by game.

Blake has always emphasized with the Canadiens a play every hockey player must be taught in age-limit hockey — Get the puck up to the man ahead. This tactic probably creates more scoring situations for Montreal than any other single factor. And it will do the same for any team that learns properly and uses it consistently.

To use this play properly the puck — carrier, the moment he gets possession, should look ahead to see if a teammate is up ahead! If so, the puck should be moved up with the original puck-carrier skating hard after it. This makes the pass in order to get up with the play. The offensive players who are ahead of the puck when possession is gained should work to get free and take the pass. This tactic gets the puck up the ice quickly and often leaves several defensive players behind. It is a far better practice than for the players to wait for the puck carrier to come up — this slows the whole offensive down, giving the defensive team a chance to organize. For more hints send a stamped, self addressed envelope and ask for Hockey Hints, 80 King W. Toronto, for my bulletin, "Gordie Howe, Magic On Skates".

Rod Gilbert Takes Over Junior Lead

TORONTO (CP)—Rod Gilbert of Guelph Biltmores moved into Ontario Hockey Association Junior A'sleg goal scorer when he collected 10 more in three games last Friday.

Statistical statistics which include Sunday's games show Gilbert picked up three points on the scoring spree, Ken Broadhurst, Roddy of Peterborough Petes, of Guelph Royals and Bob Attersley of Toronto Marlboros each collected 26 points and 16 assists and will have to make a big effort to lead Gilbert right when the Petes play host to the cellar dwelling Hamilton Red Wings.

Murray Hall of St. Catharines Teepees, who has been second for the past four weeks, scored 22 goals and 13 assists for 28 points, one more than Gilbert who also has 31 assists.

Larry Keenan of St. Michael's College Majors had the biggest gain. He scored twice and added five assists to bring his season's total to 25 points. Linemate Bob Cunningham of the Royals, scored 13 goals and 14 assists, for a total of 27 points.

Ken Broadhurst, Marlboros' centre, Vancouver rookie George Wood, who appears to have lost his job to Claude Evans, has a 2.74 ruling and Calgary veteran Ralph Bolognese with an ankle injury, is next with a 2.85 average per game.

Western Hockey

VICTORIA (CP) — Calgary wingers Ron Leopold and Lou Jankowski pulled away in the Western Hockey League's battle for the race last week.

Both reached the 20-goal figure by racking five goals on their totals. Leopold also had three assists to boost his point total to 36—20 goals and 16 assists.

Jankowski had 20 goals and 15 assists for a 35 total. Closest rival is Seattle's Rudy Filion with 31 points, followed by Calgary Fielder of Seattle with 29 and Dave Bolonay of Seattle with 28.

Best averages among the goalies: Vancouver's Marc Reaume, 2.74 ruling and Calgary veteran Ralph Bolognese with an ankle injury, is next with a 2.85 average per game.

Former Football Star Leafs Get Ron Howell

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs have again delved into football ranks for a hockey player.

They picked up Ron Howell, star halfback with Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four football union, Monday and hope he will catch on with their National Hockey League club.

Howell, a 22 - year - old 185-pounder, was owned by the NHL New York Rangers and put on skates Monday for the first time this season. He played last year with Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League.

Leafs had fine success with their first venture into football. They lured fullback Gerry James, with Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, to the lines the last few seasons. He didn't set the league on fire, but his rugged style of play was made to order for Leafs.

MAY HELP OUT

"We bought Howell's contract last September," said Leafs general manager Punch Imlach. "He was a good junior prospect and he might still be able to help us somewhere.

"I can't say what plans we have for him at present. He'll work out with us until he's in shape and then we'll take it from there."

Howell plays either defence or right wing and was a prominent junior with the old Guelph Biltmores of the Ontario Hockey Association. His brother, Harry, is a defenceman with Rangers.

The New Yorkers are reported to have ditched Howell because he had applied for reinstatement as an amateur. This requires waivers from every team in professional hockey and Leafs didn't go for it.

In 37 games with Canucks last year Howell scored nine goals and nine assists.

At 6 feet 2 inches, he might not be making his annual December jaunt to the Leaf camp. He is on Toronto's suspended list for non-reporting. Winnipeg Warriors of the WFL have approached Leafs for James' services.

"I told them I would be interested in making a deal for him in exchange for a fringe NHL player," Imlach said, "I haven't heard any more from them."

James, 26 - year - old right-winger, apparently wants to stay in Winnipeg to look after business interests.

Wilson Leads A.L. Race

NEW YORK (AP)—Larry Wilson, of Buffalo Bisons and Bill Sweeney of Springfield Indians have carried their duel through another week in the American Hockey League scoring race, with Wilson still a point ahead.

Each scored three points last week. Wilson has 21 points on 12 goals and a league-leading 28 assists, to Sweeney's 20 points, on 15 goals and 24 assists.

Harry Pidhirny and Jimmy Gamble of Buffalo share the goal scoring lead, each with 16.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A bunch of the boys who like boxing were apparently having one of their regular debates. Anyway the voice on the phone wanted to know when Battling Siki knocked out France's Orchid Man, Georges Carpetier, to win the world light-heavy crown. The answer, September 24, 1922. 1922.

And thereby hangs a tale.

Siki, as ebony Senegalese was the only fighter who had the audacity to fight an Irishman (Mike McTigue) in Dublin on the Seventeenth of March. Youre right. Siki lost.

The colorful Mohammedan-born fighter was found murdered in New York's Hell Kitchen with two bullets in his back. The killer was never found.

Siki's real name was buried in the sands of the Sahara. The records state he was adopted when 12 years of age by a Parisien actress and taken to the Riviera. Two years later the actress was killed and her Senegalese page-boy in a bottle-green uniform was left alone in bewildering circumstances.

He was fifteen when he started to box. He had a brilliant war record, fighting with a colonial regiment in the French army. He won the Croix de Guerre and the Medaille Militaire, two of France's highest honors. His name was given as Louis Phal.

He became a hard drinker. In the ring he was awesome with a leaping lunging style. He drew large crowds when fighting in France.

In the Carpentier fight, the debonair Frenchman toyed with Siki in the first four rounds. He went down several times, the bell saved him. Suddenly he changed into a fearsome fighter. He poured fists into Carpentier's body and to his head. A jolting left hook sent him into the ropes a bloody mess. The referee never bothered to count.

He gave the decision to the Frenchman charging that Siki had tripped him. The crowd went wild. They shouted "crooks, outrage, frame-up." Then the judges went into a huddle—and reversed the decision.

A dramatic change came over Siki. He was the champion of the world of his division. He was supposed to live high. He did. He wore ridiculous flashy clothes. He decorated his ugliness with diamonds. His weekly bills expensive Paris restaurants with a delicate Parisien blonde hanging on his arm. He bought himself a revolver and a pair of lions.

He ambled along the boulevards, his lions on a leash and his blonde on his arm, firing the pistol in the air. He played the emperor and became lazy and fat.

Along came one, Michael Francis McTigue, a good light-heavy from County Clare, Ireland. Siki was in Paris, broke from high living. He readily fell for the Irish suggestion that he should meet McTigue in Dublin, Ireland, on March 17, 1923. The fight went 30 dull, listless rounds. He left his light-heavy title in Ireland.

He came to America in September, 1922. He was billed as a freak, an eccentric fighter who was good enough to knock out any bum he met. He made money —but spent it. Associates came to him and spokesmen he tipped five times the amount of the bill. Once on a Saturday his take was $5,000. On Monday morning he was broke.

In clothes his taste was unusual, but rich, and from time to time he gave away all he had and went home by taxi in his underwear.

He lived for the main part in New York's tough Hell's Kitchen on the west side of the city. The New York policeforced a paternal attitude toward him. Gotham's taxi drivers took a dim view of his antics for one of his favorite pranks was to tour the town, then challenge the driver to fight for double the fare or nothing.

His idol was Luis Angel Firpo. He was told that Firpo once knocked out a full-grown horse with one punch aimed at the submarkkey.

He asked if Firpo had ever bitten a lion, and was told not only had he bitten them but eaten them. This was too much for Siki. He had to find himself a good steel horse.

Obliging jokers supplied two horses, haulers of ice and coal. Siki approached one of the nags and delivered his Sunday punch. Dobbin merely whisked his tail and snorted. Siki tried again—and got a horse-laugh.

Siki had the reputation, in Hell's Kitchen in 1925, of being dangerous when drunk, mild and affable when sober. As he drank more heavily and fought less in the ring, he fought more in the streets and his opponents were a rough and humorless bunch of men.

Then in the dark of the night came the assassin's bullets . . . . .

McFarland, Hawks Take Over Juniors

Pictured above is the new executive of the McFarlands junior hockey club. Bottom row, left to right: president Mayor Harvey J. McFarland; Bob Wilson, chief scout Chicago Black Hawks; top row, Keith MacDonald, manager; Mel Richards, assistant manager; Gordie Bell, coach, and Chris Lockyer, Picton, executive member.

May Develop Junior A, Pros

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The Belleville McFarlands are back in business again.

This time they will wear junior "B" sweaters. There is the possibility the junior B club will mushroom into junior "A" or a professional squad.

It was jointly announced here yesterday by Mayor H. J. McFarland of Picton, and Bob Wilson, Chicago Black Hawks chief scout, that they have acquired the sponsorship of the Belleville junior "B" club.

The arrangements were completed at a joint meeting of Charles Lambert and Maurice Rollins, who sponsored the club for the past four years and Messrs. McFarland and Wilson.

Effective from this date the team will be known as the Belleville McFarlands.

FICTON TIED IN

It was also announced at a special press conference here yesterday that the Picton junior "C" club will be tied in with the new McFarland organization.

The Hawks' Bob Wilson told the conference "We are looking forward to having a direct affiliation with the Belleville Minor Hockey Association in the near future."

Some time ago the BMHA at a special meeting rejected a request for affiliation with the junior "B" club. The Belleville Minor Sports Association later concurred in this decision.

Wilson said that "if and when anything can be done with regard to a building (arena) in Belleville, the Chicago Black Hawks are prepared to give the district the type of hockey it warrants."

In his remarks to the conference, Mayor McFarland expressed his appreciation to the Lambert-Rollins management for allowing him to negotiate with the Black Hawks for the acquisition of the junior club.

He also paid tribute to former manager Mel Richards. "I hope," the mayor said, "Mr. Richards will continue to give us his fullest support."

"We hope," said Mr. McFarland, "that through the new arrangements we may be able to provide the Belleville junior hockey for the fans of Hastings and Prince Edward counties and eventually this to provide the maximum opportunity to the youth of the district who would like to take up hockey as a career."

"We are definitely looking forward to providing a junior "A" club or a professional club for the Belleville area in the very near future," the mayor said.

Jim "Snipe" Matthews, president of the McFarlands senior Booster Club said that the senior Boosters will merge with the junior Booster Club, and the whole will work behind the new organization.

Later Mayor McFarland said he believed the new arrangement was a step in the right direction as far as the hockey youth of the two counties is concerned. "Anything I can do to help in this matter will be gladly done. I hope to see the day when once again a hockey club will bring honor to this city and district. But I shall need the help of all those concerned both in Belleville and Picton. I am sure I shall get it."

Messrs. Lambert and Rollins have carried the weight of junior "B" hockey in this city for the past four years. They did a splendid job despite the fact costs increased yearly.

Present at yesterday's meeting were Mayor McFarland, Gordie Bell, Mr. Wilson, Jack Davidson, Black Hawks scout; L. G. "Red" Doran, recreation director; Bill Brennan, president, Belleville Minor Hockey Association; Jim Matthews; Jack Devine, CJBQ; Chris Lockyer, manager, Picton junior hockey club; Billy Reay, coach of Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds; Bobby Hull of the Black Hawks; Claude Tice, Canadian Press, and this reporter.

Kingston Beats Juniors Score Was 6-2

The Belleville juniors got a hard game off their chest in Kingston last night and went down 6-2 before Kenny Linesman's Frontenacs youngsters.

Mel Richards boys did not display their usual form and could have come up with a better exhibition.

At that they scored the first goal of the game after a minute of play in the second period but Kingston roared back with three quickies before the second Belleville goal cut the margin to 3-2.

That ended the scoring as far as the new "McFarlands" were concerned.

The Frontenacs took over in the final chapter and scored three unanswered goals to wrap up the decision. Three Belleville penalties in the last period did not help their cause any.

The referees handed out 13 penalties, 10 of them going to the Belleville club.

Gary Goyer gave the local club its only lead of the game, scoring after 1.14 of the second period with Moe Hunter and Ron Hull assisting.

Four minutes later Kingston tied the count when Mantrop potted Peter Ford's pass with O'Donnell also helping. They made it 3-1 two minutes later with Shea sinking Harkness' pass.

Ball put the homesters up 3-1 at 11.32, Peter Ford giving him a goalmouth pass. Belleville cut the lead to 3-2 with five minutes to go with Smith scoring on assists from Weston and McGill.

Ball got his second goal of the game a minute after the third period started, with O'Donnell and Brown helping. Kingston made it 5-2 26 seconds later, O'Donnell counting from Howland's pass. The latter player scored the sixth Kingston goal after six minutes with Harkness getting an assist.

Goyer and Smith scored the Belleville goals with Hunter, R. Hull, Weston and McGill getting assists.

Ball paced the Frontenacs with two markers with O'Donnell, Mantrop, Shea and Howland getting the others. O'Donnell also had two assists as did Harkness with P. Ford, Howland, Brown, J. Ford and Mill-off getting singles.

Baseball Commissioner

Must Make Decision

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Commissioner Ford Frick has been called upon to make one of baseball's most difficult decisions.

He must decide whether the American League goes into Los Angeles next year in defiance of the National League and Walter Shelley, owner of Los Angeles Dodgers.

Frick, thwarted by the National in its efforts to include Los Angeles in an expansion program for 1961, put the issue up to Frick Monday night.

"We insist on moving to Los Angeles in 1961," American League President Joe Cronin told the commissioner. "Now it's up to you."

The American League buried the challenge after the National rejected its proposal to engage in inter-league play next year with each league expanding to nine teams.

The National has said it is willing to allow the American to open shop in Los Angeles but not before 1962.

Frick said: "I will take my time and announce my decision at the joint meeting (of club owners) Wednesday. And I assure you I'll do what's best for baseball. I consider the American League proposal to be one of several alternatives."

SPORT PLAN APPROVED

BRANTFORD (CP)—A $500,000 expansion to include new clubhouses, curling rink, swimming pool and children's play area was approved in principle Monday by the Brantford Golf and Country Club. If the plan is approved by shareholders the club will proceed immediately to raise the money—$250,000 with a first mortgage and $250,000 through sale of debentures.

Will Honor Dr. Bannister

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Roger Bannister, the first to run the mile in less than four minutes, will be honored as a "history maker of the century" at two dinners next month.

Bannister, now a London physician, will be honored by the Track and Field Sports Lodge of New York Jan. 22 and by the Boston Lodge the next night.

Bannister made sports history May 6, 1954, by running a mile at Oxford in 3:59.4.

Antonelli Asked to Quit Says Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—James K. McGee, baseball writer for the San Francisco News-Call Bulletin, said Monday Giant owner Horace Stoneham once asked Johnny Antonelli, his southpaw pitcher, to quit. Antonelli refused, McGee wrote.

The pitcher was traded last week, along with outfielder Willie Kirkland, to Cleveland Indians for Harvey Kuenn, one of baseball's better hitters.

McGee said Antonelli's relations with Stoneham had become so strained that Antonelli couldn't pitch for the Giants any longer.

Antonelli, who has business interests in Rochester, N.Y., didn't like the Giant move from New York to San Francisco. After he got off to a poor start here in 1958, McGee said Stoneham asked him:

"Why don't you quit?

"I don't want to flee you, but if you resign, I'd be happy."

Under baseball law, Antonelli couldn't resign or make himself a free agent. He did ask to be traded.

Antonelli's salary was $42,500 a year, McGee said.

Junior Bosses Will Confer With Officials

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hockey Association Junior managers and coaches decided Monday night to meet with referees and league officials in attempt to learn how they officiate league games.

The seven clubs agreed on the motion put forward by Jimmy Skinner, chief scout for Detroit Red Wings who was sitting in for Hamilton Red Wings. He said it was the best way to settle complaints about officiating.

Hap Emms, owner-coach and manager of the Niagara Falls Flyers said he thought 99 per cent of the complaints against game officials were "unjust."

Emms suggested that each Junior A team be compelled to supply its own goal judge, who is over 21 and in no way connected with that club. If a visiting team cannot provide one then the home club should secure both judges. His motion was carried.

DON HILL, LTD. DIAL WO 8-5791

MONTREAL—Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec officiated at the official opening of a new, 17-storey building on historic Place d'Armes here to accommodate the head office of the Bank of Montreal.

The building stands on the site of the bank's first head-office building, opened in 1819 as the first building in Canada especially designed for banking purposes, less than two years after the founding of the bank—Canada's first—in November, 1817. Head-office departments of the B of M, formerly housed in an assortment of accommodation throughout Montreal's financial district are brought together in the new building which adjoins the familiar domed structure of the bank's Montreal main branch.

Capable of accommodating some 2,000 men and women, the $10,000,000 building has Canada's largest and strongest vault facilities. With an area of some 6,800 square feet, the vaults have two doors each weighing 33 tons, which are balanced so precisely they can be swung by a child. The building has a floor space of some 250,000 square feet.

SQUIRT DIVISION

Canadiens blanked Frontenacs 6-0 in squirt division hockey last night. Other results saw Flyers edge Bruins 5-4; Hawks defeat Royals 4-2; Wings bow to the Barons 6-3 and Leafs shade the Browns 2-1.

Mark Acquafredde sparked the Canadiens' win with two goals while Terry Clarke, Roger Dale, Brian Woodley and Bob Mulvihill also scoring.

G. Sero got himself a pair of goals for the Bruins with B. Romain and L. Daffin also counting. G. Hanna scored twice for Flyers with T. Gill, McCormack and B. Curtain getting singles.

Two goals each by R. Mitchell and R. Beaumont accounted for the Hawks' goals with W. Stevens scoring twice for the Royals.

B. Locke had three goals to his credit for the Red Wings with B. Coughlin getting the other. G. Burkitt scored a trio for the Barons with S. Sharpe getting a pair and M. Allore a single.

P. Crassers' two goals provided all the scoring for the Maple Leafs with Slaphoski getting the Browns' lone marker.

MIDGET DIVISION

Rangers defeated Bruins 6-3 in midget hockey last night in a bruising, bumping battle that saw five major penalties handed out for fighting. In the other games, Leafs edged the Red Wings 3-2 and in another battle, Flyers downed Canadiens defeated Blackhawks 8-6.

Ducts and three majors were handed out in this game.

In the Rangers - Bruins battle, Don Robson, D. Radwell, Donald Baldwin, Jerry St. Germain, Jim Rutherford and Don Holmes scored for the Rangers with D. Robson, J. Woodcock, Rathwell and A. Lucas getting assists.

Wayne Barton, Larry Brant and Clayton Boyle tallied for the Bruins with Brant getting a hat trick. Denis Lucas, Hillcock, P. Mitchell and B. Hiscormack were given major penalties for fighting.

Dave Hannah scored three goals as the Canadiens won the game with the Hawks. Carl Doonbour got two with Rob Robson, Leonard Rolfe, and Bob Meens getting singles. Rodgers, Mott, Gilbert and Rabbat were assists.

Jim McGuire and John Onderdonk with McGuire assisting scored the Leafs three goals while Hunter and Bill Lange tallied for the Wings. Peter Search drew an assist.

Pennington Tops E.P.L.

OTTAWA (CP)—Cliff Pennington of Hull - Ottawa Canadiens stretched his lead in the Eastern Professional Hockey League individual scoring race to seven points last week.

Statistics released today show Pennington with 40 points on 14 goals and 26 assists. His seven-day tally, which includes Sunday's game results, was three goals and as many assists for six points.

Tom McCarthy of Sudbury and Fred Hilts of Soo share second place with 33 points each.

McCarthy scored three times and picked up two assists to lead ground on the leader. Hilts had two goals and six assists to tie him to second spot from sixth last week.

BOONE, HOEKSTRA FOLLOW

Eddie Johnston of Hull-Ottawa allowed four goals in three games to drop his 22-game average to 2.39 goals compared with an average of 2.55 in 20 games a week earlier.

Johnston registered one shut out bringing his total to four. His nearest rival in this department is Dennis Dejordy of Soo with two.

Sudbury Wolves lead in penalties for the week with 38 minutes. They lead for the season with 436. Bob Wilson of Soo has been fined by teammate Matt Ravlich to lead in the individual penalty department, Each has 68 minutes.

Will Play Benefit Game For Coach

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — An all-star array of past and present junior hockey talent will play an exhibition game tonight for Max Kaminsky, who relinquished his post as coach of St. Catharines Teepees because of a lung ailment.

Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks will lead a squad of Teepees alumni now playing with the National Hockey League Hawks or Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League. They will be reinforced by three players from the current Teepees' side in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series.

The opposing team will consist mainly of Hawks' players. NHL referee Frank Udvari and linesmen George Hayes and Fred Wicks will officiate.

Kaminsky, who last season led St. Catharines to the Memorial Cup championship, became ill last month. He now is convalescing in Buffalo General Hospital, was on these two questions.

Film Industry Once Again Confronted With Boycott

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—After two years of tinkering with movie morals, Hollywood is getting scared.

The film industry is once again confronted with the hobgoblin of boycott. If there's anything that can create a scare with the movie makers, that's it.

Hollywood faced the boycott threat in the 1920s, when scandals and racy films prompted the producers to hire Will Hays as purifier. Again in the 1930s, a loosening of moral attitudes in films brought public censure. This ended a lightening of the production code, with a close liaison with clerical moralists.

The measure of drift from church - favored morality was demonstrated last week by a statement of the Roman Catholic bishops of the United States.

TERMED CRISIS

"A national crisis"—that was what the bishops called the increase of morally objectionable films from Hollywood. They issued a resolution of this "ineffective" production code. The action of the bishops urges a boycott indecent, immoral and unwholesome films will, following the bishops' statement, have added force next Sunday. On that day, faithful in every Catholic church in the country will be asked to take the pledge.

The motion picture association has largely ignored public reaction in its change of moral attitudes for the screen. But it couldn't ignore the bishops.

"We do not agree . . . we do not agree . . . " the association said in reply to each of the bishops' charges.

The producers agreed that films have been undergoing an evolution to "adult-oriented production," but denied any change of moral standards.

One wonders whether they see their own movies. In Strangers When we Meet, Kim Novak and Kirk Douglas have a blazing adulterous affair and come out of it unscarred and unrepentent. Prostitution is treated in business-like terms in The World of Suzie Wong and Butterfield 8. Homosexuality figures in Spartacus and Suddenly, Last Summer.

Bay of Quinte Basketball

Teachers handed the Belleville Lightfoots a 70-51 setback in Moira Secondary School gym last night in a Bay of Quinte Basketball League scheduled fixture.

Teachers moved into third place in the standing with seven points, one in front of Picton.

Teachers led 9-5 in a close first quarter but it was still close at the half with the score 21-20. They forged in front in the third quarter to take a 57-39 lead.

Woolly was high man for the winners with 28 points with D. Smith getting 16 for the Lightfoots.

TEACHERS — Sisson 6, Woolley 28, Ferry 10, Mutter 10, Bell 4, Bryant 8, Bradley 4, Barber 2.

LIGHTFOOTS — Farnsworth 4, Kane 2, D. Smith 16, Descon 2, Savage 6, Newsome 2, Mathers 4, Reynolds 7 and Scrymgeour 5.

Trenton Wilson handed Northern Electric a 69-49 drubbing in Bay of Quinte Basketball League action last night.

Trenton led 35-31 after a close first half then went on to win by 20 points in the final quarter.

Gordon was the high pointgetter for Trenton scoring 28. Kingston racked up 17 for the losers.

Excessive TV Violence, Brutality Not Yet Curbed

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—More than a year ago, when the TV quiz show scandals burst a dam through which all sorts of crime was unveiled against the major U.S. networks, executives promised all sorts of reforms.

Not only were they going to clean up such unsavory messes as rigged shows, free plugs and payola, but they were going to tackle the matter of TV violence and brutality.

I recall the thinking of one newly appointed vice - president in charge of cleanup about his future activities:

"Of course, there has to be a certain amount of action," he said. "But I'm going to see to it that the excesses are cut out. No more of these prolonged fist fights, when one or two punches would move the story forward, the no more gun battles with a villain pumped full of bullets when one shot would do the trick. . . ."

Well, that was 14 months or so ago.

The broadcasting complex now boast about how they truly and faithfully they are serving the American public welfare with their public affairs and informational shows. But they still are dishing up the same old portions of sadistic battles—long, vicious fights, gun battles, and often grisly glimpses of the dead and dying.

This continued dedication to gory mayhem, and graphic pictures of crime, recently led J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, to condemn the steady diet and relate it to the alarming national crime rate.

"While codes of proper conduct are claimed for both television and movies, their hypocrisy fools the public with a so-called code which even the industries in question do not live up to," said Hoover in a recent address.

Astrological Forecast

BY CARROLL RIGHTER

, Wednesday, December 7

General tendencies: Until mid-evening there is decided confusion whether to act in a generous and magnanimous fashion or to be very devious and angle-wordy in attaining your ambitions. Try to so plan and carry through with your activities that you reduce your ideals to a workable basis. Late tonight think big and get big! Smile.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Things are intent on doing which is creative, helpful or dramatic during the day, a higher - up pins you down to more practical and mundane matters. However, by 9 P. M. you can still carry through as you prefer.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)—You must use much diplomacy today or you could get quite tangled up with home and outside affairs, thereby bringing the wrong people together. Evening is best spent sately at home, relaxing or entertaining there, be kind.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Take no chances with co workers, during daytime and be most careful while driving, also with any printed forms, etc. Stay home, too. P. M. fine for visiting with relations or good friends. Have fun.

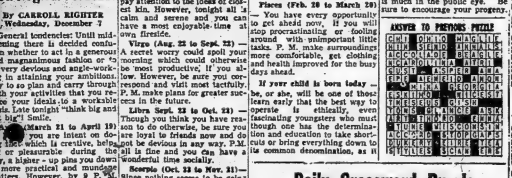
Cancer (June 22 to July 22) — Children (June 22 to July 1) must give in to their temptation to be overly extravagant in search of temporary pleasure that has little merit. Later part of the even'ng is best for going out on the town. Be generous, discriminating.

Leo, (July 23 to Aug. 21) — While all is not as you would like it at home until this early evening, it still behooves you to pay attention to the ideas of closest kin. However, tonight all is calm and serene and you can have a most enjoyable time at own fireside.

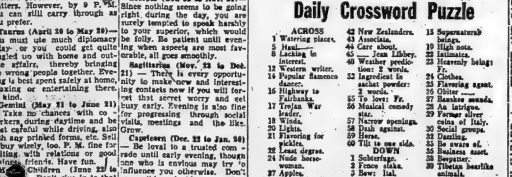
Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — A secret worry could spoil your morning which could otherwise be most productive, if you allow. However, be sure you correspond and visit most tactfully. P. M. make plans for greater success in the future.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) — Though you think you have reason to do otherwise, be sure you do not offend a friend now and do not be devious in any way. P.M. will be fine and you can have a wonderful time socially.

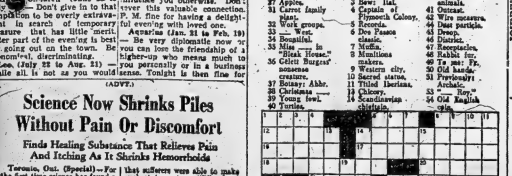
Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21)—Since nothing seems to be going right during the day, you are surely tempted to speak harshly to your superior, which would be folly. Be patient until evening when matters are most favorable, all goes smoothly.



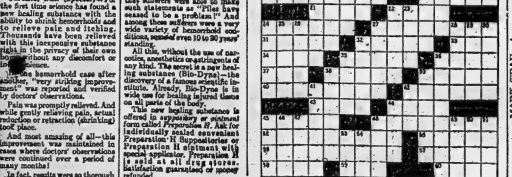
Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — There is every opportunity to make new and interesting contacts now if you will forget that secret worry and eel busy early. Evening is also fine for progressing through social duties, meetings and the like. Grow.



Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Enroll in a weekend course or trade until early evening, though one who is envious may try to influence you otherwise. Don't let your this valuable connection. P. M. fine for having a delightful evening with loved one.



Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Be very diplomatic now or you may lose the friendship of a higher-up who means much to you personally or in a business sense. Tonight is then fine for going out on the town and having a most enjoyable time.



Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — You have every opportunity to get ahead now, If you will stop procrastinating or fooling around, with unimportant little tasks. P. M. make surroundings more comfortable, get clothing and health improved for the busy days ahead.

If your child is born today ... he, or she, will be one of those learn early that the best way to operate is ethically, even fascinating youngsters who must though one has the determination and education to take shortcuts or bring everything down to its common denomination, as it were. Excellent chart for the banker or the big executive who is much in the public eye. Be sure to encourage your progress.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In this hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, extended over 10 to 30 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H. Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Entire Council at Eastview Is Ousted by Aroused Voters

EASTVIEW (CP)—An aroused electorate turned this town's council out of office Monday, lock, stock and barrel.

The entire nine-man council went down to crushing defeat in civic election fought against the backdrop of a provincial inquiry which found instances of gross mismanagement of the Ottawa suburb's affairs.

The Eastview Citizens League, incensed by the revelations, fielded a full slate of candidates and campaigned hard against the last council, arguing that it was not fit to hold office.

Mayor Gordon Lavergne, Reeve Marcel Robert and Deputy Reeve Hector Rolte all suffered decisive defeats. Out with them went the other six members of the old council. All the league candidates were elected.

In a referendum the town, whose population is 25,000, by greater than that of many cities, voted 4,080 to 2,846 in favor of Sunday sport.

REFUSES TO CONCEDE

Mr. Lavergne, C.C.F. p rovincial member for Russell in the Ontario legislature, refused to concede defeat even after it had become clear that he had been rejected by the voters.

"I'll never concede anything," he said at 11 p.m. about 1½ hours after the citizens league had claimed victory for mayor ality candidate Oscar Perrier. "I'm going home with my wife and friends."

Mayor Lavergne con tended during the campaign that the administrative branches turned up by the provincial inquiry were minor and that the Eastview Citizens League was much less than the cost of the inquiry. He insisted that the inquiry was the result of political spite.

Lavergne lost by 4,675 votes to 2,343 in his two-way contest with Perrier. Reeve Robert came last in the three-way scrap with citizen league candidate J. Aldon Bourque, the winner, and Edgar Vian.

Deputy Reeve Rolte was trounced 4,870 to 2,011 by the citizens' league's Wilfred Champagne.

Mr. Rolte now faces a court appearance arising from the election. He is scheduled to appear Thursday charged under the Ontario Election Act with unlawfully displaying a campaign sign on election day. The charge was laid by the citizens' league. It grew out of a large sign which appeared in front of Mr. Rolte's home Monday morning.

ELECTIONS SHOW

Toronto suburb of York Township, whose administration was criticized in the inquiry early this year by Judge Joseph Sweet. The new reeve is Fred Taylor a former councillor who first ran for an inquiry in 1956.

The record turnout may be hung on Cornwall, where 68 per cent of the 22,500 eligible voters went to the polls. Nick Kaneb, a former alderman and a native of Worcester, Mass., defeated incumbent mayor L. G. Lalonge and a third candidate in a close race. Among the Cornwall aldermen elected was Bernard Miller, a nephew of Toronto's Mayor Phillips.

Harry Wambold was another incumbent to lose out. Kitchener voters elected Joseph Meisinger a former mayor defeated by Mr. Wambold last year. Mrs. Bernadette Smith was ousted in Woodstock by W. A. Downing in a top-and-tail race. Mrs. Smith was the first woman mayor in 1952, she was defeated last year after a two-year lapse.

Guelph where David Hastings stepped down after three years after three one - year terms via acclamation, elected William A. Hamilton as mayor. Mr. Hamilton, 59, who headed the Ontario legislature included a portfolio of minister of reform institutions in his cabinet, has been a member of city council previously.

UPSET IN PETERBOROUGH

Peterborough, a longtime federal Conservative stronghold which swept away the first New Party member to the House of Commons in the byelection, changed its mayor also. Donald A. Goodfellow was defeated after two one-year terms by Stanley A. McBride, 41, who served on council for eight years until he tried unsuccessfully last year for the mayoralty.

Among the larger cities, Mayor Michael Patrick picked up his third two-year term in Windsor. Hamilton acclaimed Mayor Lloyd Jackson early and elects its council Wednesday. London, where Mayor Allan Johnston is seeking re-election, votes Dec. 12.

Other cities re - electing their mayors Monday were Chatham, Kingston and Sarnia.

Mayor Garnet Newkirk, 50, who operates a bakery and confectionery store, returned for his second two-year term in Chatham in a three-way race. He is president of the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves, a member of the advisory board of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities and regional chairman of the 11 southwestern Ontario section.

RETAINS KINGSTON POST

Mayor T. Mills, 36, was his second two-year term in Kingston. He defeated A. M. McCormick, 41, a former alderman on city council. Mayor Ivon Walker won Sarnia mayor over his only opponent, William Pearson.

New mayors elected included Ernest Reed, 46-year-old former alderman, victor in a three-way race in Brantford; E. M. Griffiths, who defeated Robert Kerr in Stratford; Galt; and Mrs. Christine Thomas, Scots - born electrician and wife of CCF MLA T. D. Thomas, who edged out incumbent Lyman Gifford in a race that went down to the wire in Oshawa.

There was a offgear for some centres with two-year terms, including Pembroke, Sault Ste. Marie, Stratford, Sudbury and Waterloo. Voting later this month or in January are Timmins, Owen Sound, Port Arthur, North Bay, St. Catharines and Welland.

Mayors received acclamations earlier in Niagara Falls, St. Thomas, and Brantford in addition to Hamilton and Belleville.

WAR NOT

go-ahead for Khrushchev to pursue new negotiations with the West after the failure of the May summit meeting.

Communism, said the manifesto, is the only true peace party "by the force of its example." It called on Communist parties to unite with other plks - minded groups to back Soviet policies instead of continuing the Communist fight alone. The manifesto said: "The fight for peaceful coexistence counters the working class with the broadest vanguard (the Community party), has the opportunity to unite the majority of the people, win state power without civil war and ensure the transfer of the basic means of production to the hands of the people."

But it added that the possibility of "non-peaceful transition to socialism should be borne in mind" and that the form of the struggle depends on the "resistance put up by the reactionary circles."

The declaration also renewed communism's approval of non-Communist national liberation movements in colonial and underdeveloped countries at this stage of history.

This has been official Soviet policy, but some Communists have insisted that Communist aid should be confined to Communist parties no matter how remote their immediate chances of victory.

(Peking has been one of those which has argued for assistance wherever they are. Among those rejected supporting the Chinese Reds at the summit meeting were Latin-American Communist parties—but Cuba was given part small and need outside help.)

Sisters Given Fourteen Days For Assault

CHATHAM (CP)—Two Walpole Island sisters were sentenced Monday to 14 days in jail for assaulting another woman they believed had been dating their husbands.

Mrs. Verna Diane Fisher, 20, and Mrs. Pauline Sandra Jones, 21, were arrested last month after Miss Benota Fisher, 24, was admitted to hospital in Walpool Island of her face and body.

Miss Day said Mrs. Fisher and Mrs. Jones forced her into a car after meeting her on a Wallaceburg street Nov. 12. She said she was kicked and punched repeatedly while in the car, then dragged out by her hair and last at the side of the road.

PC MEMBER CAN

to the committee of the whole house and given first and third reading. The bill provides that a member may accept public monies if authorized by a resolution of the legislature and spells out the circumstances in which a member may accept such payments.

At present, a special legislative act is required before a member can accept public property is expropriated by a government department.

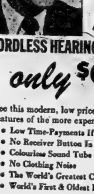
Mr. Frost did not say when Mr. Hoffman would take his seat. It is the duty of the premier to introduce a new member to the legislature.

The liquor control board tabled its annual report in which it said that $350,208,253 worth of alcoholic beverages were sold in Ontario for the year ended March 31, 1960. Beer sales climbed, while sales of wines and spirits declined.

Attention was focussed also on Monday's civic elections in most parts of Ontario.

The Frost said the Municipal Act would be reviewed to determine whether it should be revised in respect to the provisions covering the death of a candidate.

The act provides for the setting of a new nomination meeting when a candidate dies before the election is held. This occurred in Toronto and Ottawa recently.



In Toronto, there was sufficient time for the holding of a new nomination meeting in Ottawa, however, because of time limitations, they decided at the last minute to permit the election to proceed with the name of the nominated candidate.

Mr. Frost spoke on the occasion of the 15th anniversary of the universal declaration of human rights as enunciated by the United Nations. The Ontario department of education has declared this week Human Rights Week.

proval, but Federal Airlines chairman of the CBPMB said he understood his organization was so confident "as we were."

Mr. Frey said that there never has been a ruling on the difference between a grant and a payment for services and added that "there is no payment" about these dealings because the co-operative was short of working capital and the CBPMB board had simply made it a loan.

Mr. McCague charged that the CBPMB had acted in "excess of their authority" and asked why invoices were absent if the payments were for services rendered. He noted further that $8,450 was transferred Nov. 25 to the co-operative for public relations services, and added that this was also an unauthorized payment.

FIRED LAST SNARK

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) A missile was fired Monday—a day when the United States Air Force fired the first missile of its mogey — range Polaris. The Snark flew over the Atlantic on a 5,000-mile training flight. The Snark was the first American missile capable of carrying nuclear warheads.

The Polaris is the most powerful Atlas intercontinental range ballistic missile.

Miss C. Whitton Wins Narrowly Over Sam Berger

OTTAWA (CP) — Charlotte Whitton, a forthright and controversial figure, gained a narrow victory in Monday's civic election for the mayor's chair she gave up four years ago after five stormy years in office.

She won a two-year term over Sam Berger, president of the Ottawa Football Union, in one of the city's closest ballots. The race wasn't settled until about 2 a.m., seven hours after the polls closed at 7 p.m. Two other candidates had contested earlier.

The final tally: Miss Whitton, 36,038; Mr. Berger, 33,832; Controller Ernie Jones, 9,317; retired school teacher Charles Dobe, 2,676.

Miss Whitton campaigned on the "need for a change" at city hall. She also proposed creation of a public utilities commission. Mr. Berger campaigned on the need for such welfare facilities as a new hospital, a home for the aged and a convalescent home.

Delay in the counting was attributed to a new composite ballot introduced for the first time in Ottawa. It listed all offices and questions on one sheet, replacing the old system of a separate ballot for each.

DISLIKES NEW BALLOT

The new ballot may have a short life. At a press conference Miss Whitton proclaimed that "the first plank in my platform is an end to all composite ballots."

Bobby Simpson, star end for the Grey Cup champion Ottawa Rough Riders, won a council seat in his first bid for civic office. He led the polls in Wellington ward, where eight candidates fought for two seats.

For the second time in eight years, Ottawa votes on a turned down commercial Sunday sport. The vote against was 37,831; in favor 36,132.

Sunday Movies More Popular Than Sunday Sport in Votes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sunday isn't going to be the same in many Ontario communities. A growing trend toward Sunday movies, plays and sports was reflected Monday in plebiscites held in conjunction with civic elections.

Movies and plays fared better than sports. Only two of 10 municipalities turned down the proposal. Eleven centres voted on the sports issue and six favored it.

Toronto and Cornwall led the march for Sunday movies. Both went all-out to vote 10,800 for the movie and 2,495 against. Torontonians voted almost 2 to 1 in favor.

The question lost in Kitchener and Newmarket. With returns incomplete the Kitchener vote was about 4 to 3 against. In Newmarket the proposal was defeated 613 to 1,163.

Niagara Falls and its neighboring community of Stamford Township voted 2 to 1 in favor of movies. Windsor and Alexandria, near Ottawa, showed strong support of the byliaw. Oshawa favored it by about 1 000 votes.

The closest winning vote was in Brantford where movies were favored 7,536 to 7,190.

Brantford, however, turned the other way on sports and voted 8,435 to 6,197 to have them.

Wallaceburg favored sports by a close vote and it is in Ontario's suburbs of Eastview by a narrow margin. Ottawa itself after see-sawing back and forth during counting, finally turned down sports by a slim majority. It carried in the Toronto suburbs of North York and Scarborough easily.

Woodstock rejected it by a 57-vote margin. In Guelph and Fort Erie though it lost out by about 1,000 votes. Newmarket also rejected it.

Under 1960 provincial legislation Sunday sports are permitted by local bylaw. Movies, however, still must have an act of legislature to make them legal.

Last spring the legislature legalized concerts, recitals and other musical performances on Sunday afternoon provided they were produced by non-profit organizations. This amendment cannot be used in a municipal vote.

About 36 municipalities have approved Sunday sports since they were first legalized. Some of the centres voting on the issue Monday had asked the electorate to decide before.

Guelph and Ottawa had each turned down the sports bylaw in previous elections.

Nathan Phillips Sets Record By Re-election

By JOHN LesBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Nathan Phillips today started off his seventh and eighth years as mayor a record for equality as Toronto's civic government head.

The 68-year-old self-styled "mayor of all the people" added to his won over four opponents in Monday's municipal balloting at the end of one of the spright liest of Toronto campaigns in the city's history.

His win in heavy voting spelled at least temporary political eclipse for Allan Lamport, long a tempestuous figure in civic affairs, and Mrs. Jean Newman, grandmother and former city controller who sought to become Toronto's first woman mayor.

In a simultaneous referendum, the voters favored Sunday movies, plays and concerts. The vote was 81,821 to 45,599.

With only six of 1,181 municipal polls to be tallied early today, the white-haired Mr. Phillips had piled up 175,373 votes in a five-candidate race, far more than the 53,776 he garnered two years ago in a three-way contest.

LAMPORT RUNS SECOND

Mr. Lamport was far ahead of the previous winning figure of 120,458, which bore Newman's 54,798 was far behind with 79,000. She polled for controller in 1958 but lost to Mr. Allen.

Two other mayoralty candidates polled scattered votes. Tom a Troiskyite, picked up 1,626 to beat out Harry Bradley, previous unsuccessful candidate for board of control, who received 1,496.

The combined vote of 177,504 represented 57.2 per cent of the eligible electorate of 404,557 and was the highest percentage since 48.8 per cent cast in 1954 for Allen. At the last election, 101,601 voted for a 31-percent figure.

A factor stimulating the heavy vote was the addition of 67,000 new electors to the rolls through the extension of the franchise to persons over 21 who have resided here for a year.

Another was a campaigning marked by plenty of acrimony. Mrs. Lamport, 65, however, provided much of the fireworks.

QUIT IN 1954

He quit as mayor in 1954 to become a member of the Toronto Transit Commission, running in Canada's only subway. After six years marked by controversy on that board, he left it recently to try again for the mayoralty with a spending of some $50,000 and as a main platform plank.

Mayor Phillips campaigned largely on his record, claiming credit for an industrial upsurge in Toronto and stressing plans for a modern city hall.

In winning his third two-year term after two one-year terms, Mr. Phillips equalled the first British mayor—even ahead of the long-standing record of seven years in the mayoralty set by the late Tommy Church in 1915-21.

Mrs. Newman's place on the four-member board of control will be taken by Alderman Philip Givens. Controllers Donald Summerville, William Allen and William Dennison were returned. Mr. Summerville topping the slate of 106 candidates for various offices with 110,694.

He and Mr. Allen, who received 110,015 votes, are expected to be provincial directors of mental health, university researchers, representatives of the Canadian Mental Health Association and of the Canadian Association for Retarded Children.

Practically the only criticism came from Dr. R. P. Vivian, Progressive Conservative member for Durham and a former Ontario health minister.

He criticized the scope and wording of the resolution, arguing that a survey of mentally-ill needn't cover the whole country to be statistically accurate. He referred to the cost of a country-wide survey on the magnitude envisaged in the resolution.

Harold Winch (CCF—Vancouver East), quoting British Columbia statistics, said money spent now to combat the scourge of mental illness would be money invested wisely in the future.

Mr. Macnaughton said the federal government's system of grants and other assistance for mental illness, amounting to about $51,500,000 in the last 12 years, is too little and is spread too thinly.

Earl Rowe, former Liberal health minister, recalled that one survey had been made 12 years ago and advised that another now might be made.

SEES WIFE KILLED

DAKAR, Senegal (AP)—Senegalese Spooner stationed himself at a roadside curve outside Dakar to take pictures of a car race. He focused on one car as it flipped off the road, rolled over and slammed into a tree. Spooner rushed to the car and found that his wife, Jacqueline, 27, was the driver. She was killed.

Fowler Suggests Tax Concession To Aid Magazines

MONTREAL (CP)—R. M. Fowler, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, suggested Canadian magazines might be helped through special and well-defined tax concessions.

Mr. Fowler made the suggestion in a brief presented to the royal commission on publications. He added a plea for royal commission on broadcasting whose report is likely to widespread changes in Canada's legislation covering broadcasting.

In his brief, Mr. Fowler said Canadian magazines could probably be helped to compete with American magazines through special mailing privileges and special tax concessions.

Some accelerated depreciation on plant and equipment might help some publishers. Tax concessions to encourage more Canadian magazines could lower costs of editorial material for publishers and thus increase their competitive power.

WOULD LIFT TAXES

Any man or group choosing to incorporate a magazine publishing venture as a non-profit corporation under the Companies Act might be given free mailing privileges and tax-free status. Anyone choosing this option would have to plow profits back into the magazine or distribute them to recognized Canadian charities.

Mr. Fowler said:

"The scheme does not seem to present any serious administrative difficulties. However, it may be impossible to estimate the public cost of the various mailing privileges suggested. Its greatest virtue is that it would probably stimulate small publishing ventures, and variety and experimentation in the Canadian magazine publishing.

"If it served to increase the market for Canadian magazine papers that would be as incidental and not wholly undesirable result in providing some expansion of a domestic industry and greater development for Canadian workers."

American and other foreign magazines entered Canada duty-free. These imports of American magazines represented approximately 75,000 tons of magazine paper a year, none of it from Canada.

SUBSIDIZING IMPORTS

Mr. Fowler said under existing practices the Canadian taxpayer subsidized American magazines. This resulted from the post office handling the magazines at less than cost.

If American magazines provided valuable markets for Canadian-produced magazine paper, this might be regarded as a "national off-set" for the postal subsidy.

He expressed opposition to suggestions that tariffs be used against American magazines.

"Even if we were to increase the tariff on magazines because we cannot shut out the cultural flow from the United States and we would be poorer if we tried," allowances and taxation relief

Executive Suggests Radio, TV Legislation Be Applied To the Magazine Field

MONTREAL (CP)—The royal commission on publications today was asked to consider whether it would be possible to apply the magazine field legislation similar to that now governing the Canadian content of radio and television programs.

The request was made by J. A. McDougall of Montreal, an advertising executive who stressed that he was speaking as an individual and expressing his own views. Mr. McDougall is a vice - president of Cockfield, Brown and Company. He was one of the founders of The Gobind, humorous magazine published in Toronto from 1921 to 1930 until fell a victim of the depression.

Mr. McDougall said there is doubt that Canadian magazines are hurt by American competition with Canadian editions.

"This fact is reflected in the current situation in which while the advertising revenue earned by the Canadian editions of Time and Reader's Digest amounted to seven-tenths of the total revenue of the nine leading truly Canadian magazines," he said.

In seeking ways to help Canadian publications, he said an approach might be to apply legislation similar to that used in the broadcasting field.

"This might result in a rule that in order to publish a Canadian edition and to solicit advertising for it the magazine must be printed and edited in Canada and its editorial columns must include a minimum percentage, 55 per cent for example, of Canadian content. . . .

"The commission might give consideration to the institution of such a policy following progressive pattern of development which would grant to American publisher a reasonable length of time to adjust."

Canadian magazine publishers might also be helped by special depreciation

Russia's Veto May Be Move To Woo Morocco From West

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Russia's veto against the admittance of Mauritania to the United Nations has the aspects of a blunt manoeuvre to woo Morocco away from the West.

The United States is quick to label the veto as a major blunder which will arouse wide African antagonism against Moscow, but a Canadian official suggests the American view may be precipitate and a bit exaggerated.

Undoubtedly, some parts of Africa will interpret the veto as a strike against freedom and independence. To that extent, Russian diplomacy in Africa is bound to suffer loss of prestige.

But in the Canadian's view, Russia may have reckoned that for the present it has gone as far as it can hope to go in its drive for African conquest. Russia has obtained a working relationship with the governments of Guinea and Ghana and the support of some factions in The Congo.

RUSSIAN STRATEGY

North Africa appears more volatile. Morocco, which has ordered the Americans to close their military bases by the 1963 or sooner, has long argued it is the rightful owner of Mauritania. This is how Moscow powers refused to concede.

Mauritania, on the northwest coast of Africa, is an area of some 419,000 square miles, mostly desert, and has a population of 750,000, many of them nomads.

In terms of military strategy, Morocco is valuable for its proximity to Gibraltar, gateway to the Mediterranean. Russia is reported to have provided Morocco with gifts of jet fighters and bombers. And significantly, Morocco warmly hailed the Russian veto and complained bitterly of the lack of western sympathy to Moroccan claims to Mauritania.

Instead of showering its aggressive efforts over the entire continent, Russia may be employing the strategy of piecemeal attack, of concentrating her strength in areas where prospects of success are greatest.

Golden Opportunities Presented To Canadians for Trade in UK

OTTAWA — Canada's prospects of increased trade with the United Kingdom have never looked brighter, according to Opportunity U.K., a new booklet introduced by the Department of Trade and Commerce at the current Export Trade Promotion Conference.

The booklet points out that in the past two decades, when many Canadian products have been excluded from the market due to dollar shortages and import restrictions, the United Kingdom has undergone a momentous economic and social change. Its people's purchasing power has skyrocketed and its consumers have come to appreciate many new goods while losing interest in some of the more "traditional" lines. The majority of British consumers today are quite unfamiliar with the best of new products that Canadian designers and manufacturers have turned their hands to so efficiently in recent years.

"Today, at the beginning of the Sixties", says Opportunity Britain presents herself to the Canadian exporter as a buyer's not a seller's market, but as the world's most typical instance of a salesman's market. In other words, the United Kingdom market now has the money, the willingness to spend it, and the favorable trade policy which add up to a truly golden opportunity for Canadian businessmen.

The booklet may be obtained by writing to Trade Publicity Branch, Dept. of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa.

NATIONAL SURVEY

has arrived when the federal government must take the initiative in the inventory of the mental health program of the state of its mental services."

CITES FIGURES

Later figures, for the year 1958, showed that 47 of every 100 hospital patients in Canada were there for psychiatric treatment and more than 73,000 were in psychiatric hospitals or training schools for mental deficiency.

Besides, there were some 200,000 alcoholics, 2,000 drug addicts and an annual suicide rate of about 1,800.

Dr. Blackwell, intervening late in the day, traced developments in mental health care, saying prospects for treatment are more hopeful than ever before. Recent discoveries such as tranquillizers had revolutionized treatment, giving up "a shift from the negative to the positive."

"I wholeheartedly agree with the spirit of this resolution," said the health minister, echoing the sentiments of more than a score of speakers from all parties.

MERITS STUDY

He said it deserved renewed consideration by his advisory committee on mental health, a federal body that includes the mayoralty candidates next time. As in the last election. Communist candidates fared badly. Mrs. Jessie Jackson, running for board of control, finished eighth among nine candidates. Four aldermanic hopefuls — Ross Magnuski, George Jackson, Mrs. Taibi Kahn and Mrs. Janet McMurray —got nowhere.

HOW WOULD YOU CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM?

THE CARAT WEIGHT of these two diamonds is the same. Neither has visible imperfections . . . yet the actual value differs widely in each gem.

The degree of CLARITY is one the qualities which determines the worth of any diamond. There are more than a dozen categories of perfection which separate the flawless "perfect" diamond from the stone with inclusions — even if these are invisible to the naked eye.

CUTTING — its accuracy and style — controls the brilliance of a stone and greatly affects its value.

The traditional color of a diamond is called white, or colorless. Tinges of brown or yellow, which deviate from this standard, decrease the worth of a stone.

Arab Republic, Ceylon Decide To Quit Congo

West Prepares to Fight Move to End UN Force

CAIRO (Reuters)—The United Arab Republic has decided to pull its soldiers out of the United Nations force in The Congo, it was disclosed today.

The decision was reached after Congo President Joseph Kasavubu last week severed diplomatic ties with the U.A.R. on the grounds of interference in Congo affairs.

The U.A.R. withdrawal was reported today by the semi-official Cairo newspaper Al Ahram and later confirmed by a source in the office of President Nasser.

The newspaper reported that the U.A.R. government decided to pull out of The Congo because the United Nations has fallen under "imperialist control."

Al Ahram said Cairo was consulting other African states over their troops in the UN Congo force—presumably to suggest further withdrawals.

Egypt has about 520 troops in The Congo.

The West African state of Ghana pulled out its 1,200 troops from The Congo after the Leopoldville regime ordered out the Ghanaian envoy. But a Ghanaian army force under a British commander still remained in The Congo.

Ceylon also announced today it will pull its soldiers out of the United Nations force in The Congo, it was disclosed today.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) The Western powers mobilized today to beat back a Soviet move to scrap the United Nations Congo operation and put imprisoned former premier Patrice Lumumba back in power.

The Security Council was scheduled to hear Soviet demands that Congo authorities release Lumumba and disarm the troops of Col. Joseph Mobutu, Congo army chief.

The West headed off an attempt by the Soviet Union's Valerian Zorin, council president for December, to call a stop meeting Tuesday night. The Western powers insisted on at least 24 hours' notice, to give them time to prepare their case.

The Russians gave a clear indication of the line they will take in a statement Tuesday accusing Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold of playing a "disgraceful role" and of serving to the West in The Congo.

BLAME WEST, BELGIUM

The statement said it blamed the Western Big Three and Belgium for "the bloody adventure and money bags" for the latest events in the strife-torn African state. The statement said it will demands:

1. Free Lumumba at once along with other imprisoned members of his ousted regime.

2. Disarm Kasavubu's forces.

3. Set up a special Afro-Asian mission to find out who is financing Mobutu's army.

4. Expel all Belgian nationals from The Congo.

The Russians already have called on Hammarskjold to draw up plans for financial liquidation of the entire Congo operation. This would mean disbanding the 20,000-man UN force sent to restore peace in The Congo.

REFUSE TO PAY

The Russians have refused to pay their share of the cost of the $46,000,000 cost of the Congo operation for 1960 or the estimated $120,000,000 for 1961.

Delegates speculated that the Congo situation would be given top billing in the scheduled meeting between President-elect John Kennedy and Hammarskjold today. Topics included the financial crisis confronting the United Nations as a result of the costly Congo operation.

The U.S. already has made a $10,000,000 advance on payments due to UN funds to tide the UN over until the first of the year.

Kennedy's youngest brother, Edward, arrived in Leopoldville today on a fact-finding mission for the president-elect.

Manslaughter Charge Laid

SMITHS FALLS (CP) — Town employee Gordon Baker, 43, of nearby Lyndhurst, was charged with manslaughter Tuesday night following the death of 49-year-old David Martin of Numogate.

Police said the two men were involved in a fist fight after Martin visited Mrs. Rose Green, who lives in the same house as Mr. Baker.

Religious Leaders and Pub Keepers Unite to Oppose Sunday Drinking

GLASGOW (AP)—A wave of opposition from religious leaders—and saloon keepers— today enveloped a proposal to let Scottish pubs be open on Sunday.

"We are about to open the floodgates of hell," said Rev. Alexander McDonald of the Old Dale Street Free Church of Glasgow.

"Sunday drinking will be another poison on our social system," declared Rev. Tom Allan, president of the Congregational Union of Scotland.

A majority of publicans weighed in with the clergy. They said they don't want to be forced to sell enough liquor on Sunday to compete with whisky sold anyway their barmen would be hooping mad over losing the day off.

The proposal to permit the pubs to stay open for all comers on Sundays came from a government - appointed commission.

Under existing Scottish sabbath laws, the inns may serve drinks only to bona fide travellers—persons who have journeyed 3 miles or more away. Another loophole is the importation of wines from that town bound for their own use.

The commission recommended that the pubs in future should be permitted to serve anybody from 12.30 p.m. to 2.30 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. The commendation must receive approval of Parliament before it can become law.

"It will become law, then — and God help Sir Myer Galpern, a Labor member from Glasgow, "only over my dead body."

Forthright approval came only from the Scottish Tourist Board. "Just what we need to help the tourist industry," said board spokesman Bill Nicholson in Edinburgh. "Overseas visitors just can't understand the present laws."

HARD-HITTING DEBATE OVER EASTVIEW HEARD

Opposition Wants More Investigation

TORONTO (CP) — Another hard-hitting battle developed in the legislature Tuesday night as Progressive Conservative members and opposition forces swamped back and forth over the scarred ground of Eastview, the suburban Ottawa town recently investigated by the department of municipal affairs.

Elmer Sopha (L — Sudbury), speaking in the throne debate, launched the first attack when he rapped the government for failing to determine whether criminal charges should be laid in connection with the mismanagement of the town's financial affairs.

He quoted Premier Frost as saying earlier in the legislature that the ratepayers of Eastview would vote on their own destiny at the polls on Monday.

"The people have spoken," Mr. Sopha said, referring to the municipal elections in which the mayor and council were thrown out of office.

DATA SHOULD ACT

He said the government should not sit idly by and let certain persons "disobey the law with impunity and get away with it."

"If the mayor had been a Liberal, I suggest there would have been some other action," Mr. Sopha charged.

"I demand that the government take some steps to see if the laws have been broken . . . and if they have been broken those people should be called before the bar of justice."

"You are chasing the shady lady but you won't go chasing a shady lady," Leslie Frost Leader MacDonald, referring to the attorney - general's investigation into the recent case of a confessed professional divorce corespondent.

Woman's Whim Makes County Borrow Money

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)—Sarasota County will borrow money to meet today's payroll because of a woman's whim.

Miss Charlie Hagerman, 53-year-old county tax collector, is holding more than $3,000,000 in tax funds until the county commission orders the redetermination of her office completed.

Miss Hagerman told Commissioner Johnson Warren Monday she would not process a requested $100,000 advance until all the work has been finished.

When it was suggested that Miss Hagerman appear before the commission to discuss the matter, she replied:

"I will let them come to me, I believe."

Miss Hagerman said redecorating is still incomplete throughout the courthouse.

Under the law, Miss Hagerman is not required to release any of the tax funds collected during October and November until the work is completed.

But the commission assembly and the tax collector met in operations at this time of year.

White and Negro Churchmen Defy Apartheid to Assemble

The conference was considered one of the most important church meetings ever held in Africa. Among the 87 delegates and guests from South Africa and abroad were 34 non-whites.

Conference sources said racial segregation — mandatory under South Africa law—was not enforced among delegates for the first time since various council meetings started in South Africa in 1903.

The conference has set out to find common ground on the race issue during its eight days of study and discussion. The executive has laid down a five-point agenda covering nearly every aspect of race relations.

One source said "amazing" progress toward a common approach to South Africa's apartheid (racial segregation) policy was expected.

Besides the two of the Afrikaner churches was said to be undergoing revolutionary changes.

Last month a book was published by 11 leading theologians of the Dutch Reformed churches in South Africa's three provinces sparked and called for a new approach to the country's race problems.

The book, entitled Delayed Action, made a major impact because it was by churchmen. Church is supported by the Dutch-descended Afrikaners who back Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd.

However, the three Dutch Reformed churches were expected to line up against any recommendations for sweeping changes in race relations.

Former Lieutenant-Governor L. Briethaupt Dies Suddenly

TORONTO (CP)—Louis Orville Breithaupt, 70, lieutenant - governor of Ontario from 1953 to 1957, died suddenly in hospital here Tuesday after being brought by ambulance from his Kitchener home.

Funeral services will be held Thursday from the Rath-Bechtel funeral chapel in Kitchener.

Following his service as lieutenant - governor, Mr. Breithaupt returned as president of the Breithaupt Leather Co. Limited in his native Kitchener.

In April, 1958, he was installed as chancellor of Victoria University, Toronto, succeeding Lester B. Pearson.

Dr. A. B. B. Moore, president of the university and United Church institution federated with the University of Toronto—said Mr. Breithaupt was "shocked" at the news of Mr. Breithaupt's death.

"He was very interested in, and a loyal friend of Victoria," Dr. Moore said. "He was especially appreciated in his friendship and leadership at convocation."

Premier Frost adjourned the legislature for an hour early in hearing of the death. He described Mr. Breithaupt as "a good citizen and one younger mayor in the city's history.

Mr. Breithaupt entered the family business on graduating from Northwestern College at Naperville, Ill., and the University of Toronto.

First elected as a Kitchener alderman in 1919, he was returned in 1920, 1921 and 1922. In 1925—before his 33rd birthday—he was elected mayor.

Council Won't Pay for Recount

AYR (CP)—Village council today decided not to pay for a recount to write costs of a recount of ballots cast in Monday's municipal election.

Reeve Carl Weitzel polled two votes less than Councillor Howard Freer. There were five spoiled ballots.

Reeve Weitzel announced he would ask Judge D. S. Chambers of Brantford, the district county district community on grounds that municipal clerk Harry Goldie had wrongly disqualified ballots.

Pierre Berton Hints Vaughan Two-Councillors Connected in Land Deals

MAPLE (CP)—Two councillors in the Vaughan Township were questioned at a public meeting Tuesday night about allegations of a possible conflict of interest between their private dealings and public duties.

Councillors Bruce Ralph, a lawyer, and K. W. Anstey, a manager, both of Maple, denied in bad faith.

Mr. Ralph is seeking re-election and Mr. Anstey is running for reeve of this township just north of Metropolitan Toronto. Vaughan's 9,519 eligible voters are to cast ballots Saturday.

Toronto Star columnist Pierre Berton, who lives in Vaughan, told Tuesday that it seemed the two councillors have private interests that could conflict with their public positions.

He said Councillor Ralph while in office considerable legal work for two land development companies in the township. Councillor Anstey had had a close business association with a key figure in several land development companies in the township.

Mr. Berton, a socialist editor of The Star, said the companies have sought approvals, agreements, and, in one case, subsidies from the council.

Mr. Ralph said he had never voted in the interests of any of his legal clients.

Mr. Anstey said he has never been associated with any company having dealings in any way with the township.

Castro Sending Trade Mission To This Country

Cuba Badly in Need Of Huge Dollar Loan

HAVANA (AP)—Premier Fidel Castro today named a high-powered commerce mission to go to Canada in an effort to expand trade between the two countries.

Makeup of the mission, whose departure date was undisclosed, suggested that they may be after a badly needed dollar loan. Castro's dollar reserves are virtually exhausted and Cuba technically would be in the red if it paid up outstanding obligations.

With the U.S. sugar market closed to Cuba, the dollar earning future is dark.

Minister of Economy Regino Boti was named to preside over the 11-member delegation. It includes three officials from the Bank of Foreign Commerce which handles all imports—and two from the National Bank of Cuba, including assistant Dr. Jose Miguel Irisarri Gamio.

Also named to the delegation was the chief of the national tourism institute, Eduardo Castro Garcia. His inclusion hinted at efforts to find a new market in Cuba for Cuba's empty resorts.

It was disclosed Tuesday that the National Bank of Cuba's balance statement listed uncollected gold and dollar holdings on Oct. 31 at $91,100,000 against outstanding obligations of $91,600,000.

Cuba's reserves were depleted to about $24,000,000, financial experts said, by recent furious buying abroad to prevent the U.S. embargo on shipments to Cuba.

Castro apparently hopes Canada will support the United States in trade relations. Canadian banks in Cuba are the only foreign financial institutions not nationalized.

Ernesto (Che) Guevara, Cuban National Bank president, is touring the Far East in hopes of picking up loans and trade agreements. His only announced success so far has been a $60,000,000 loan from Red China and increased sugar trading with that country.

Castro's announcement that it would not join in the U.S. embargo on exports to Cuba has

Trapped Miner May Lose Foot, Part of Leg

TORONTO (CP) — Alah Rose, 27, who was trapped for three days in a Timmins gold mine two weeks ago, was told Tuesday by doctors he will have to lose his right foot and part of his leg. He accepted the news calmly.

His kidneys also were injured by his ordeal, the slim, but doctors believe they are beginning to take over the task of cleaning his bloodstream of poison. An artificial kidney has been used periodically.

FLEMING WILL PRESENT BABY BUDGET DEC. 20

House Steps Up Law-Making Pace

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons stepped up its law-making pace today.

The speed came despite opposition complaints that Conservative backbenchers are talking too long about government anti-unemployment measures approved by everyone. The $½-hour sitting saw these strides taken:

1. The House approved—without a vote—the government resolution for bringing in a bill to increase federal aid for provincial vocational training schools. Debate on the bill itself will be held later.

2. The assembly heard Trade Minister Hees sketch the plan drawn up by a national productivity council, a 25-member body set up by Ottawa to increase industrial efficiency and make Canadian products more competitive on world markets. The proposal remains at the resolution stage.

In another significant announcement, Finance Minister Fleming said he will present his pre-Christmas baby budget at 8 p.m. EST on Tuesday, Dec. 20. Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Parliament's Yuletide recess will begin after the next day's sitting.

Opposition Leader Pearson immediately asked about this arrangement, saying it will leave only one day for debate on the budget's supplementary proposals before Christmas. This would mean the conclusion of the debate after the House reconvenes on a date which Mr. Diefenbaker said he will announce later.

Although Mr. Pearson didn't mention it, the post-recess budget —which can last six days under experimental House rules—could conflict with the Liberal rally scheduled for Ottawa Jan. 9-11.

The productivity council, as outline by Mr. Hees, has the same body proposed by Mr.

New York Faces Possibility of Paper Blackout

NEW YORK (AP)—New York City faced the possibility of a newspaper blackout tonight while federal mediators launched a final effort to avert a midnight strike of truck drivers and other deliverers.

Talks between the newspaper and mail deliverers unions and the city's five publishers continued today.

The union said its 3,068 members on nine metropolitan dailies will walk out if the deadline passed without a satisfactory work contract. The union is seeking $9 wage increase over two years—$5 the first and $4 the second—and other improvements, insluding reduction of the work week from the present 37½ hours to 35. The deliverers now get about $100 a week.

A spokesman for the New York City Publishers Association said no specific money proposal had been made by the newspapers.

Two years ago the city's newspapers were shut down for 19 days by a delivery workers' strike.

Duke, Duchess Said Hunting Stolen Jewels

LONDON (AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor arrived from Paris today to do their Christmas shopping. But an informant said they also have in a hush-hush mission in search of jewels stolen from them in 1945.

Early this year Scotland Yard said the Windsors were hopeful of recovering the jewels. Family heirlooms, worth $84,000, stolen from them on a visit by house guests at Ednam Lodge near rural Sunningham 15 years ago.

Early this year Scotland Yard caught a burglar who police said confessed stealing the royal jewelry. He is serving a prison sentence.

YOUNGSTERS WILL BE GIVEN CHANCE TO TALK TO SANTA

The youngsters in Belleville will again this year be able to talk to Santa Claus. Arrangements have been made by the Belleville Recreation Committee. To accomplish this, a bank of some 30 telephones will be taken over at the Bell Telephone office, and with the assistance of service Club personnel, and many volunteers, some 2,000 calls are expected to be made. Information cards have been distributed to the local schools, telling dates and time a boy or girl will wishes Santa to call — the preference could be Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday, December 13, 14 or 15, between the hours of 6.00 and 8.00 p.m.

Others wishing Santa to call may make arrangements by dropping into the Recreation Centre or calling WO 8-5481, ext. 26.

Y.'S MEN'S CLUB OPENS CHRISTMAS TREE' MARKET

Although the weather might not show it there are other signs about the city that the Christmas season is close to hand. The local Y's Men's Club is once again in action selling good quality spruce and Scotch pine Christmas trees. This year they are located on the lot behind the old Post Office building on Pinnacle Street. The trees vary from four feet to seven in height.

Net proceeds from the sale of these trees goes towards youth work in the community.

CAR THEFT CHARGE IS WITHDRAWN

A charge of car theft against 16-year-old Ralph H. Townsend of R. R. 1 Halloway was withdrawn, when it appeared yesterday before Magistrate Perry Wills in city magistrate's court.

A similar charge against 16-year-old John Roger Shelly of Toronto was reduced to joy riding and, on his plea of guilty, was remanded one week for sentence.

The charges arose over the weekend when a city resident reported his car had been stolen and later saw two youths in charge of it.

Criminal Offenders Must Be Fitted to Return to Society

Kiwanis Club Members Told

The only way the public can get real protection from a criminal is when an attempt is made to fit him for a return to normal society on completion of his prison sentence, Kiwanis Club members were told Tuesday at their weekly luncheon meeting.

The speaker was Keith Cossey, supervisor of the Toronto office of the John Howard Society, who was introduced by Jim Jarvis and thanked by Byree Hall.

Mr. Cossey said the public has a responsibility to criminal offenders. It isn't good enough to shut a man in prison and forget about him. Until the day he is to be released. Instead, the public must support the trend toward rehabilitating offenders for the time they are where they can live normally in a community, not off it.

"The fact is, as it is practised in Canada, considers all men criminals. This would seem so, on the days long before Confederation, the eye-for-an-eye, tooth-for-a-tooth theory of personal vengeance was practised. This was modified by physical or mental torture and later by paling prisons and work houses. Still later came the penal colonies and a liberal application of the death penalty, even after the Mayflower landed, the settlers in Newfoundland began to realize that the ends of justice would be better served if offenders were isolated with a Bible for a companion. From this the penalty was reduced to banishing and, on his plea of guilty, was remanded one week for sentence.

The charges arose over the weekend when a city resident reported his car had been stolen and later saw two youths in charge of it.

It has only been since the 1930s that Canada has become interested in rehabilitating prisoners. Merely sentencing an offender to a prison is inadequate, it must make him change his ways and be better. He has to be helped.

MUST KNOW CAUSE

It has become important to know what drove a man to a life of crime, said Mr. Cousse. Once the cause is found, a cure may be developed.

An example of how Canadian penal institutions have changed in the past 100 years, Mr. Cossey said that in 1860 16-year-old inmates of Kingston Penitentiary, which was built in 1833, were flogged for as much as giggling. This sort of punishment has since gone by the board and no longer is practised.

Today, minimum security prisons are coming into their own, Mr. Cossey, B.C., allows prisoners to leave the institution occasionally to stage plays for the public, another, at Jorsville, Ont., allows a prisoner's family to live with him once-a-month. At Kingston Penitentiary, many of the restrictions involving mail, food, etc., are rescinded and it now is possible for an inmate's family to visit him more often.

But still offenders, for the most part, are subjected to maximum security prisons where only about 10% of those convicted should be sent. Once in penitentiary, a prisoner spends months in a cell with bars on it, from communicating with another prisoner, being in fact, an abnormal society where he has no rights at all. He has to live by the rules and regulations of his own decisions; he is subjected to regimentation and he becomes institutionalized as a person; he does not have the opportunity to learn to deal with frustrations and, if he does succeed off, he gets into trouble; he builds up a resentment against authority because there is too much of it; he develops a hatred of the law and the administrative machinery of justice.

"The public has a right to protection from offenders", said Mr. Cousse. "But it also has a responsibility to see that these same offenders are able to return to society as law abiding, responsible citizens. This is only when an offender returns to society, and is living and working normally beside his neighbor".

Madoc Co-op Association Hears Reports and Speaker

Approximately 175 members of the Madoc Co-operative Association attended their annual banquet held in Trinity United Church last week. Guest speaker for the banquet was Rev. Eli Ewen, assistant production sales manager for the United Co-Operatives of Ontario.

The Association auditors' report showed a profit of $231,521 with a net saving of the year before patronage dividend of $17,156.

During the past 10 years gross sales of the Association had increased by over $100,000.

Directors elected were E. J. Meaver, Albert Empey and Donald Chapman. The secretary's report was read by Earl Sager. A six per cent dividend, payable in 20 years, was approved.

Mr. McEwen, substituting for Hamish McLeod, production manager, gave an excellent talk leaving plenty of food for thought with his listeners. He spoke briefly on the Sales Department of the United Co-Operatives formed only two years ago. This department offered a program of better services to co-op members. Its research department investigated and must be convinced that any new patented handled must have an economic value. Soil and crop will be sampled and necessary fertilizer supplied. The speaker reminded the members of their responsibilities and said today's problems presented a real challenge. Members should not rest on their laurels, but should get on the ball and do something about these problems.

He referred to a recent address by Professor Campbell, Agricultural Economist at Guelph Agricultural College, who said farm income was low in comparison to

Northern Municipalities Except One Agree to Pay Part of Right-of-Way Costs

With one exception municipalities in northern Hastings and members of the county road committee have agreed to share in purchase costs of road right-of-ways required for rebuilding the Madoc-Tweed county road.

Yesterday a letter bearing the signatures of all members, save agreeing to share the right-of-way costs was read before council. Warden Earl Sager called it the "finest voluntary gesture" seen since he had been a member of county council.

Other councillors whose municipalities are within the county road system, echoed the Warden's feeling, noting that the gesture would do much to improve public relations.

The one exception to the offer, is Tudor Township where the costs was Reeve Patrick Fitzgerald of Montesque township.

Reeve Fitzgerald said he thought the entire county should benefit the new road and felt it only that the cost of rehabilitating should share in the costs.

Reeve J. N. Brown of Beaverton went as far as to say that it was unfortunate the road had not been built years ago. Lack of a good road from the north to the Lake Scugog millions of dollars in business over the years, he said.

It is also had that the Hastings County road lost out because nobody had the foresight to see the road was 50 years ago", he said.

Several years ago an initial two miles of the Madoc road was rebuilt as far as Foxboro and it was announced the remaining 17 miles would be rebuilt over a three or four-year period.

remaining 17-3 mile stretch will be built.

At the last meeting of council it had been suggested the entire county share in the right of way costs, the argument being that road benefited the entire county. Legally only those municipalities within the county road system would be liable for these costs.

Reeve Fitzgerald objected when the matter was broached at the last session and yesterday he still felt he had taken the proper stand. Despite his present stand, however, he still had an open mind on the matter he said.

ALL WILL BENEFIT

But other councillors were unanimous in their feeling that the entire county would benefit by the new road and felt it only that the cost of rehabilitating should share in the costs.

Reeve J. N. Brown of Beaverton went as far as to say that it was unfortunate the road had not been built years ago. Lack of a good road from the north to the Lake Scugog millions of dollars in business over the years, he said.

It is also had that the Hastings County road lost out because nobody had the foresight to see the road was 50 years ago", he said.

Board Gives Progress Report On School Accommodation

Members of the Belleville Public School Board, as well as the nervous parents of children now attending schools in the crowded areas in public school buildings, were relieved waiting with interest, and some anxiety, the construction of additions to the King Edward and Prince Charles Schools and the building of the Harry J. Clarke Senior School in East Belleville, at progress report at this time will probably relieve some of that interest.

From the Public School Board's report, Mr. Ross Ferguson, Construction at the additions to the King George and Prince Charles Schools, two rooms that may be a few days off schedule. But the work is going forward steadily and the architects are confident that the accommodation will be ready for occupancy when school opening on January 3, 1961.

Mr. Harry Farmer of Wooler, Reynolds: The long awaited approval from the Ontario Municipal Board for the provision of sewer and water services on Victoria Ave., in the area around the Harry J. Clarke Senior School, was received by Mr. Reynolds at city hall this morning. Weather permitting, it is expected to be forward at an accelerated pace.

THE KING GEORGE ADDITION

The two rooms now being added to the King George School were approved for the purpose by the Ontario Department of Education. The north section of the city, in fact, these rooms will serve the following areas: The King George School became overcrowded, and it was found necessary to remove grade from the building at school opening in Sept. 1960. Both King George and Prince Charles will be filled to capacity, and the board is investigating this need to provide a suitable kindergarten classroom and one additional room. The back-farm conditions of the northern part of the city still have to be met by construction in the Parkdale district when a site and services can be secured.

THE PRINCE CHARLES ADDITION

As with the King George School the addition of two classrooms at the Prince Charles School provides for immediate needs only. The senior classrooms at the Queen Mary School are overcrowded and basement accommodation is being used for regular class purposes, while at the Prince Charles School one class is being conducted daily in the auditorium-playroom. The long-term needs of West Belleville must be met by the acquiring of a new site and construction of another building when circumstances are right for the purpose.

THE HARRY J. CLARKE PUBLIC SCHOOL

Through the initiative of T. A. Andre and Sons, the general contractors, this building is further on than conditions might warrant. Before a contract could be awarded, this contractor took the risk of commencing contruction without any guaranties of payment, so that the construction of the foun-

Cattle Breeding Group Creates Two New Posts

As a result of recent changes in the organization of duties and responsibilities within the staff of the Quinte District Health Unit, the post of Unit manager, Dr. J. M. McLean, announces the creation of the two new positions.

The first position is that of supervising public health veterinary services. Dr. J. B. Parliament who joined the staff one year ago takes on the responsibilities in this case.

In this position, he will be responsible for all matters relative to the production of serum by the Association. In addition he will be responsible for the providing of a sterility service to the patrons of the business.

Dr. Parliament is a 1958 graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College, Guelph. Like his earlier life involves a farm background in Ontario County where he was born with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

From 1953 until 1959 when he joined the staff of the Quinte District Cattle Breeding Association he was employed by the Waterloo Cattle Breeding Association at Waterloo as veterinarian.

The second position announced is that of supervising of herd area and maintenance which is being filled by the former herdsman for the association, Harold Hancock. He is responsible for the maintenance of sires, buildings and equipment of the association. Mr. Hancock is well known to livestock breeders in Ontario, in that he was formerly employed as herdsman for Chiscroft Farms at Stouffville for 17 years. He has been herdsman for the Quinte District Cattle Breeding Association since 1949.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Togetherness was the keynote of a quiet stock market today with all sections moving hardly a fraction.

On index, industrials were up .05 at 499.90 and golds were up .03 at 98.56; base metals were off .05 at 157.33, and western oils ceased .04 at 78.78.

The 11 a.m. volume was 328,000 shares compared with 342,000 at the same time Tuesday.

Maher Shoes led industrials up 25 cents—one point gain at 26. Calvary Power, Canada Cement and Massey-Ferguson each added 12½ cents. Dominion Glass was off two points at 98, Great Lakes Paper off ¼, Price Bros. and Dominion Tar each off ¼.

Giant Yellowknife helped the gold index with a 20-cent gain at 12¾. Camp bell Red Lake dropped ¾ and McIntyre-Porcupine was off ¼.

International Nickel led base metals lower — off ⅜ at 54⅝. Geco added ⅛ at 12.

Industrials rallied at the close of light trading Tuesday to put a more cheerful complexion on what would otherwise have been a depressed market.

On index, industrials were up .44 at 499.73 and Western oils scored a gain of .26 at 78.74.

Volume was 1,578,000 shares compared with the 1,837,000 shares traded Monday.

Among papers, International dropped 1⅛ at 30, while Howard Smith gained ⅛ at 34¾, and Great Lakes and Consolidated Paper both improved ¼ at 38¼ and 40½.

Golds continued to creep lower following the reduced demand for the metal on the London bullion market and Dominion Scottish Hollinger and Kerr Addison all went down.

International Nickel paced the decline in base metals, off 50 cents at 54 bid, with Castle and Falconbridge both off ⅛ at 13¾ and 26½. Grpo and Labrador both improved ½ at 18½ and 18¾.

Senior uraniums, t o o, were lower, led by Rio Algom with a decent drop of at 27.50.

52 Applications Received For Courthouse Caretaker

Fifty-two applications have been received for the position of caretaker at the new Hastings county courthouse.

The number of applicants was noted yesterday at the December session of council during the first afternoon of what is expected will be a three-day session. Applicants will be screened by the county finance committee before an appointment for the position is made.

Reeve Douglas Spencer of Tweed, chairman of the finance committee, said council hopes a house caretaker would be expected to clean the various offices of the courthouse daily, and also to look after the grounds.

He would be sworn in as constable and have charge of prisoners to help with outside caretaking and cleaning of the corridors. Prisoners would not be used to clean any offices, it was stated.

Salary for the position is $4,700 with $100 per month to be charged the caretaker as rental for an apartment, which he and his family would occupy.

Reeve J. N. Brown of Bancroft warned that the caretaker's position would not be an easy job and would be no place for an old man. He said it could not be considered a political appointment and councillors must forget their relatives and friends and make certain the right man was chosen.

Hard-to-e housing and apartments for senior jail officials will be a thing of the past with the appointment of a new jail governor at Belleville.

On direction from the reform institutions department the new governor will be charged $100 per month for house and will no longer be allowed to board prisoners.

The change was the outcome of lower superannuation payments, which were applicable under the previous system. Payments were calculated on the salary received with no account taken for the free accommodation. His resulting in a lower pension. The possibility of a change in the county jail system was also indicated in a letter from the department which asked that no major renovations to jails be made in view of the possibility of a change in the system.

Earlier this year the possibility of a combined jail for up to three counties was discussed in council. However, up to this time there has been no definite action, although it was then stated a change to the combined jail system was being considered.

Sea Cadets Learn to Shoot On Rifle Range

TRENTON — Sea Cadets of RCSCC "Trent" have a new and interesting hobby. Bert Curtis, who instructs the cadets in rifle drill, seamanship and drill, has taken on the job of training them in marksmanship. Through the courtesy of the commanding officer of the RCAF Station Trenton, Group Captain. D. J. Williams, the cadets and their instructor are allowed to use the indoor rifle range at the Air Station every Saturday afternoon.

The area officer has given his permission for any cadet scoring 90 on a target to be given his marksmanship badge (crossed rifles) worn on the sleeve.

Mr. Curtis reports that the cadets are keen and "shoot" pursuit, and that they are making good progress.

The corps is seeking new recruits. Any teenaged boy who would like to join the organization is invited to attend the weekly drill at the Community Gardens any Tuesday night.

Enjoy Dinner

TRENTON — The Quinte executive of the provincial division of the Canadian Corps of Commissionaires held a dinner at Gilbert Hotel Monday night. The club is a branch of the Canadian Legion (No. 579). Fifteen members attended the dinner.

The club is seeking new members. Ex-service women may apply for membership by contacting the president of the club, Mrs. Lesley Elliott, at EX 2-7948.

High School Activities

TRENTON
(By Sandy Brown)

Exams are over and the students are once more settling down to the regular routine. Moans and groans can be heard from all quarters.

"Only thirty study hards!" cry some.

Others just sigh. The majority walk around with sick smiles on their faces.

Oh well, there's still Easter.

School Christmas cards will go on sale this week at noon hours. The sale is under the supervision of the Student Council at a suggested price of 15 cents a dozen. The cards have a white background with pink and gold streamers gracing the front.

The newly formed school choir is under the direction of Mrs. Marion Spencer and Miss Millne made its first appearance at the commencement last week. Despite the newness of the group, the members presented a very enjoyable program. An appeal is being made to the boys of the school to join the choir. Their masculine voices are needed to create a well-rounded impression. Old Man River was not written for a woman to sing.

The annual Christmas semi-formal dance is to be held on Friday, Dec. 16. The Student Council has decided that the boys will not be required to buy corsages for their dates. It has been suggested that the girls wear their Christmas party creations instead of corsages. The orchestra for the dance has not been chosen yet, but social rep. Bob Hilliard has announced that the choice is narrowed down to two. Tickets will probably cost $2 a couple. The decision is not final, however. Out-of-town guests will receive invitations which may be obtained from the vice-principal, John Garrett.

The Student Council has been discussing the idea of awarding merit bars from now on. Sports clubs and other groups to outstanding students. Perhaps the attainment of a certain number of bars, the student would be given a merit crest. This idea is still in the early stages of discussion.

Congratulations to Barbara Brownson who was chosen the prettiest girl in Trenton High School and will ride in the Chamber of Commerce's Santa Claus parade on Saturday as the official Snow Queen.

Merchants Lack Much Interest In Santa Parade

TRENTON — Douglas Whitley, president of the Chamber of Commerce, announced to a meeting of the Chamber merchants' group of the chamber that the chamber was not "broke," and that secretary H. B. Smith had not been paid his usual duties for the past two weeks gratis.

"As to the Santa Claus parade," said Mr. Whitley, "Not one merchant, outside of those entered a float in the parade last year, nevertheless, in spite of this lack of interest, we expect to have the best parade in the city, thanks to people in Brighton, Belleville and local service clubs."

Mr. Whitley advised the merchants to capitalize on the parade by advertising specials for Saturday morning, Dec. 10, the day of the parade, and to place placards in their windows advertising specials for that day as a crowd is expected in downtown Trenton.

Mr. Whitley said that the newly elected Snow Queen, Barbara Brownson, would ride on the Chamber of Commerce float, which is being prepared by chamber members.

Obituary

MRS. GEORGE WESSELS
Trenton

A funeral service was held in the Weaver Funeral Home at Trenton on Monday for Mrs. Etta Wessels of 16 John St., who died in Trenton Memorial Hospital on Saturday. Mrs. Wessels was 84.

The service was conducted by Rev. G. A. Puttenham.

Interment was in Frankford Cemetery.

She was a member of the United Church.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Alice Dade and Mrs. Dorothy Wait, both of Trenton; two sons, Charles of Carnilton and Grant of Frankford; 11 grandchildren and 21 great-grandchildren. She was predeceased by her husband, George.

Merchants Decide to Remain Open Til 9 p.m., Dec. 12-23

TRENTON—Retail merchants here are hot on the trail of those responsible for inserting a notice in the local newspaper to the effect that stores would remain open until 9 p.m. every night except Sunday, from Dec. 12 to Dec. 23. A survey of the merchants has so far failed to disclose who inserted the ad.

At a special meeting of the merchants last night, at which a committee was formed to investigate the store hours question the merchants voted to remain open until 9 p.m. the week preceding Christmas.

The store hours as set up by the committee are as follows:

Dec. 19-23: stores open until 9 p.m.

Stores will be open all day Wednesday, Dec. 14 and 21.

Stores will remain closed, Monday, Dec. 26 and Tuesday, Dec. 27.

Stores will be open Tuesday, Jan. 3.

The sub-committee of the retail merchants committee which was set up to make inquiries into such questions as Monday versus Wednesday afternoon closing and a town-wide 5.30 p.m. closing, is comprised of the chairman, Walter Gartner, and members Ray McCauley, Harold Pearce and Walter Lathbier.

The decision to remain open until 9 p.m. for the days preceding Christmas Eve, was made after all merchants had been assured that Belleville ,merchants would also abide by these hours.

Jim Holmes brought up the subject of the stores closing the Tuesday after Boxing Day. He said his attitude was that by Wednesday people would have changed their minds about returning gifts, Children would have played with toys or worn their new clothing and shoes, and it would be too late for the annual rush to exchange the Christmas loot.

SHELVE DECISION

At one point in the discussion, it was decided to shelve the decision on the Tuesday closing until the merchants could find out what Belleville merchants mean to do.

Ian Gardiner suggested that the Trenton stores could close Tuesday and Belleville merchants look after the exchanges.

One group favored stalling a decision on stores closing the Tuesday after Boxing Day until it could be learned what Belleville stores would do.

"Why wait for Belleville?" asked Fred Stanley. "We should make our own decision. I'm in favor of closing Tuesday."

"What are the grocery stores going to do?" asked one merchant.

"The grocery stores will do what they want anyhow", said snoober.

"We've confused the public all fall", said F. J. Aziz. "I think we should stay open on Tuesday. The chairman called for a show of hands, and the majority were in favor of closing on the Tuesday following Boxing Day and remaining open on the Tuesday following New Year's Day.

He Defends Fat

Cheers for Dr. Harold Sprague! The former president of the American Heart Association is sceptical about claims that high-fat foods are responsible for heart disease. While research scientists studying hardening of the arteries have been placing emphasis on the influence of high cholesterol levels in the blood, Dr. Sprague maintains that cholesterol is synthesized in every body tissue except the brain. Some may take this to mean that only a fat-head enjoys fat, but we insist on the opposite interpretation—and so, too, does Dr. Sprague, if we read him loud and clear.

"Dietary fat," he says, "has been very naughty word, leading to the burning of cook books and atrophy of taste buds." Take away the fat and what one has left may be food but is certainly not tasty.

This is a fact about which a tremendous number of people appear to be ignorant. Even before the cholesterol scare, the number of people who spent their grocery shopping time in attempting to buy meat which would be as tasteless as possible was alarming. We have a feeling that Dr. Sprague must be right in his doubts about the deadly effect of animal fats; the way the average Canadian housewife hunts for lean meat not even a sparrow could get enough fat off of the beef roast to harden an inch of artery. The unfortunate part about this is that, with the development of the supermarket technique of pre-packaged joints, the person who likes to taste his meat has a hard time discovering a joint with enough fat on it to give it flavor.

We would like to think that Dr. Sprague's pronouncement will provide at least a partial remedy to his situation, but the hard truth of the matter is that most people eschew fat because they don't like it, rather than because they are afraid of it. The talk of fat inducing high cholesterol levels has increased the demand for unduly lean meat, it is just being used as an excuse for indulging a pre-existent preference. Otherwise as little attention would have been paid to this claim as to the possibility, much discovering a joint with enough fat on it to give it flavor.

Cars Will Get Smaller

Le Jour of Paris reports that European automobiles, while they may seem small to North Americans, are due to become even smaller. The reason—traffic congestion in Europe's old cities, most of them with narrow streets.

"Statistics reveal that in Paris traffic," reports Le Jour, "70 per cent of all cars have only one person inside; 20 per cent have two and only 10 per cent three or more."

Le Jour quotes an authority to the effect that "waste space in cars is dangerous because it leads to traffic jams."

Remedying this condition by making cars smaller, however, has an obvious drawback. Even if 100 per cent of the cars carried four or two passengers—90 per cent of the time, it would still be true, in Canada anyway, that almost all car owners would occasionally wish to carry more passengers.

Cars, like Hydro plants, have to be built to meet peak load requirements. A few moments' effort trying to devise a solution to the little problem posed above will convince most that this puzzle is not so easy to solve as it might appear. How about trailers to hitch on small cars when there are more passengers? Excellent—but when carrying this heavier load, wouldn't a more powerful engine be desirable, especially when we remember that it is generally on the longer trips, at highway speeds, that the whole family goes along, while it is on the short trips downtown, when power is not so important, that cars are most likely to carry only one or two people. Everybody should have a small car for errands and then hire a big car for trips? Sounds fine—until we visualize what would happen on the first hot Sunday, when every family in town would want to go to the beach for a picnic. The only workable solution which comes to mind is for every family to equip itself with two cars—that would keep the auto makers happy—but it would also overwork the bankruptcy courts.

Any suggestions?

THE MOTE AND THE BEAM

The following notice is printed gets low grades. She is so sure Above the desk of a secretary he is a brilliant child that it whom I know: Welcome to Miss- never occurs to her to make Mo—We Never Make Mis- him turn off the television set takes. She is joking, of course, and the misspelling "mistears" is deliberate.

But there are quite a few people whose attitude reminds one of that sign — and they are not joking. Their most recognizable symptom is their absolute confidence that they know best about everything, as they generally choose to demonstrate by being illogical, prejudiced, and confused as possible.

You can probably recognize a few typical examples. One is the mother who scolds her sixth-grade son's teachers because he

Another is the politician who dismisses widely, that he can solve the nation's economic problems. It does not seem to bother him that the state he has been running is going bankrupt.

Still another is a neighbor who lays down the law to me about the care of my lawn and shrubs. His own yard, of course, is badly neglected.

This whole situation is perfectly summed up in the Bible: "Why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considered not the beam that is in thine own eye?"

Ontario's Energy Resources

By HON. ROBERT W. MACAULAY
Ontario Minister of Energy Resources

ARTICLE 45—FART ONE

With cheap energy, a country has the chance of achieving and maintaining a high living standard. The availability of cheap, abundant energy, combined with the ability to utilize it, is the essential key for an advanced economy. Let us see where Canada stands in this respect!

COAL

Nicely — eight per cent of Canada's coal comes from Pennsylvania, Kentucky and Virginia, with the remainder principally from the Maritimes. This is divided into two grades. American coal is superior for the industrial purposes for which it is largely used in Ontario. Secondly, U.S. coal is produced for as little as half the Maritime cost, and is shipped only a few hundred miles, culminating in the short water haul across Lakes Ontario and Erie. The Maritime coal must travel 1,200 miles and more. It is shipped by rail, during the season when inere is no water transportation.

In recent years the relative cheapness of U.S. coal deteriorated because of the competition of other fuels such as oil and natural gas. Ontario's peak year's use of coal supplied more than 67 per cent of Ontario's energy needs. By 1939, this proportion had fallen to 28.1 per cent, and by 1970 it will probably be down to about 15 per cent of the energy requirements. It does not mean necessarily that in 1970 less coal will be used in Ontario, that coal will probably have a smaller share of a larger total market. Coal will be a substantial factor in demand in Ontario for electricity generation and it is still widely used as the most economical fuel for offices, apartment buildings and large institutions.

OIL

Ontario was the birthplace of the oil industry in North America, in 1857. However, in 1959 Ontario's consumption of oil and oil products came from Canada. Ontario's own oil production so far has been in small fields which are now pretty well worked out. Ontario would only produce enough crude oil to last three days out of each 365. Even this small amount is eight times the province's 1951 production.

More than half of the energy used in Ontario today is provided by oil. In 1959, every man, woman and child in the province used 17.4 barrels of oil, and the per capita consumption for Canada as a whole during 1959 was 17.2 barrels — the second highest in the world. Canada's use of the petroleum used in Ontario is in the form of motor gasoline, fuel oil and aviation gasoline. Heating accounts for another third of the oil used in Ontario homes, and the balance of the oil used in Ontario industrial and raw materials for the province's manufacturers, who secure their feed-stock for goods produced in Canada.

The substantial use of petroleum has revolutionized agriculture. Ontario's oil bill is the fact that Ontario possesses the largest concentration of oil refineries in Canada, with a capacity of 253,000 barrels a day, compared with 78,000 barrels in 1948.

NATURAL GAS

Ontario has produced natural gas since the beginning of this century, but the production of 17 billion cubic feet per year would have only filled Ontario's needs for 70 days of the year. In fact, the 1959 rate of consumption, and the same proportion would keep only 34 days at the 1960 rate of consumption, if only Ontario's 1958 production of Alberta through the Trans-Canada Pipe Line which is the longest pipeline in the world, stretching over 2,300 miles. By 1970, Ontario's consumption in Ontario had risen to 83 billion cubic feet, and for 1960 our consumption of natural gas will run around 110 billion cubic feet. It is estimated that by 1970 Ontario will be using 500 billion cubic feet per year, the energy equivalent of 10 million tons of coal or more than 25 per cent of our energy requirements, compared with one per cent in 1950.

Natural gas, through its cleanliness and adaptability, has become, since 1956, and has become particularly useful in Northern Ontario, where industrial development is sometimes difficult by somewhat limited by high fuel costs.

Part two will appear tomorrow.

Congress adjourned on Sept. 1 and its members hustled home to campaign for themselves and, in the case of many senators whose terms do not run another year, in behalf of their party. The Congressional Record, which chronicles the proceedings of the house and senate, kept its columns open for three weeks after the adjournment to permit the lawmakers to register any afterthoughts.

Extensive afterthoughts, too. Each page in the Record costs $80 to produce.

THE REX BEACH MEMORIAL

Rex Beach (1877-1950) was among the first pioneers of the writers of fiction whose name became known throughout the world and Canada. He first went to Alaska to find gold but there found it within himself through the financial successes of his literary productions which made him a millionaire many times over a thousands.

Rex Beach was a big athletic man who wrote strong, virile stories. He was also one of the gentlest and most generous of men, generally beloved by all who knew him. Plans for the Rex Beach Memorial at the completion — this year — of the Rex Beach Auditorium located at the south end of Varsity Hall on the campus of Notre Dame College, at Wilcox, Saskatchewan.

Rex Beach's first Rex Beach had visited Notre Dame of Canada twice and, in 1935, had contributed to its curiosity his collection of mounted big game trophies and other memorabilia of his travels.

Subsequently, he willed to the college a substantial sum of money.

Father Athol Murray, founder and president of this Canadian institution of learning, called in Australian artist Norman Rea to paint the walls of the thirty-foot square Rex Beach Room of rough stone into which they inserted numerous Indian stone axes and arrow heads. There are bronze commemorative plaques and a bust showing Rex Beach holding his canoe. Also assembled in the room are many personal relics and photos — contributions made by the author of this Talk, a long time friend and admirer of Rex Beach.

Like the Will Rogers Ranch in Oklahoma, it is felt The Rex Beach Repository in Canada will — in time — become equally well known. Meanwhile the student body and the Rev. Father Murray, an ever inspiring teacher, leader and friend, Notre Dame of Canada they manufacture a enthusiasm. The students are encouraged, and supported, and will be among the efficient citizens of tomorrow.

Aussies Pick French Plane

Brockville Recorder and Times

The Australian Air Board, according to The Christian Science Monitor, has approved the recommendation that the air force replace with the French Mirage III delta-wing jet fighter rather than the United States F-104G Starfighter.

Advantages of the Mirage over the Starfighter, as seen by an Australian air force commission which carried out a study of the two planes, include: a more simplified design which should simplify the base's maintenance problems; a better performance of Mach 2.2, compared with the Starfighter's Mach 2 (representing multiples of the speed of sound.)

The Mirage, which is 30 per cent cheaper fully equipped than its U.S. counterpart, can also take existing airfields in Australia, whereas expensive alterations would be required to carry the Starfighter.

Deciding on the Mirage fighter, Australia — which uses American Sabres at the moment — joins Israel in using French aircraft. The Israelis have been using French fighters in border skirmishes with the United Arab Republic.

To Your Good Health

VARIETY OF THINGS CAN CAUSE BACK PAIN

Dear Dr. Molner: You have mentioned "spastic colon" several times and I would like to know more about it. What causes it? What is the usual treatment, and how successful is it? Is surgery avoidable in most cases? — Mrs. C. C.

Others write, "is spastic colon a form of colitis?" "Is it incurable?" "Are there any medications for it?" And so on.

A lot of things can be done for a spastic colon. Some the doctor can do. However, some only the patient can do for himself.

Usually the most effective single part of treating a spastic colon is to convince the patient that if he will relax, and give his poor old colon a chance to operate normally, and if he will learn to understand this organ, things will improve.

A spastic colon is not colitis, even though we often speak of the former as spastic colitis. This is a misleading and inert term. The word colitis really should be reserved for describing cases in which there is real inflammation or infection of the bowel. Colitis produces a bloody diarrhea or chronic disorder of the colon ulcerates certain characteristic changes: X-ray; stool examination and cultures to detect bacteria or other microorganisms making organisms; examination of the lining of the bowel with a proctoscope; more recently, biopsy of the bowel membrane.

The purpose is to rule out other possible conditions. Incidentally, disease of the gall bladder and appendix must also be ruled out.

In this manner it is possible to make certain that the patient really is that of a spastic colon and not something else.

For a spastic colon, as not a diseased colon. It is a colon which lightens up responsibly, and does not conform to the rhythmic, wormlike motion of a well-behaved one.

There is no "cure" answer to the cause. Many sufferers were born with a tense nervous system, which is reflected in a spastic colon — or "nervous" or "irritable" colon. There are lots of names for it. The word "neurosis" is also used sometimes.

Some victims have false ideas about bowel activity." They abuse the colon by use of laxatives which it don't need, or by enemas or purgatives, which, forced into responding to these artificial stimuli instead of being governed by the natural rhythms of the body, becomes "nervous" or "irritable."

Such abuses as excess alcohol, coffee, tobacco are factors. So is fatigue. So is too much anxiety or tension.

Many people are actually allergic to certain foods and must avoid them. Others must improve the amount of roughage in the diet. Most of us, and must stick to a meat bland diet.

And some people can lay the blame for their pain that they have horrible eating habits — gulping meals, not chewing and eating in a hurry.

I will write about treatments tomorrow.

Dear Dr. Molner: Are there two types of epilepsy? — Mrs. F.

There is the "grand mal" type of violent seizure, there is the "petit mal" which is less severe. Both can happen more often. There are also other kinds of differences in type. And, I might add, similarities in cure of the various types. Epilepsy may be inherited — but not in the majority of cases it isn't.

The scruffiest, shoddiest, shabbiest, phoniest hundred acres in the whole of Manhattan is the corner of New York City lying between 42d and 43d streets and Times Square, and know in song and story as Broadway. It is the theatre centre of the world, which swarm each night at eight o'clock and after, like the ants of thousands of tourists and nocturnal citizens. Incredible number of local residents. Overhead, gaudy moving neon signs blaze on the roofs of the theatres, glowing having a garish light on the scene like that of the carnival alley at the fall fair. The sole difference is that everything on each other's heels amid the colored assemblages of the dull, the commonplace and the corny, is made of junk.

Groundhog Up a Tree

Ottawa Journal

Mr. Hees has taken to the use of homely anecdotes to illustrate his points and for a brief illet, they are better than statistics.

Describing the urgent need of the Canadian farmer for markets, the trade minister was reminded of the groundhog with a hound, on Mr. Diefenbaker's right, who usually climb trees but this one did. Canada's salesman, Mr. Hees thought, were called on to make a new product.

Abraham Lincoln had a story to fit every problem and Sir John A. Macdonald could turn an audience into beaming approval. He told of the Irish immigrant who contrive to keep their standard of living. Mr. Hees has set himself a high mark.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

MMMM—GOOD — Exhibition cheese at the British Empire Dairy Show being held at city hall this week went on sale in packaged form yesterday with officials reporting a splendid response. Two visitors to the show, Kathleen Lonergan and J. L. Kubas, of Trenton, sample a bit of cheese before making a purchase.

Poor, Careless Sanitation On Milk Supplying Farms Has Effect on Cheese Quality

In the keynote address of the 82nd annual convention and British Empire Dairy Show which commenced yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Quinte, Roy Hoffman of Cotterville, president of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers Association indicated that cheese makers were faced with the problem of poor or careless sanitation procedures on the milk supplying farms having a definite effect on the quality of cheese they were producing. Mr. Hoffman called for more rigorous government inspection of farms in order to bring sanitation methods up to an acceptable standard.

His words were re-echoed by a succession of speakers, all authorities in their particular field of the cheese industry, who lamented the recent decline in the keeping qualities of Canadian cheddar cheese. "We have gone back" said J. F. Robinson of Kemptville, explaining that the quantity and quality of premium cheese had diminished over the past season.

He described the new milk quality program of the Ontario government but advised that the program would not be truly successful until the cheese makers rejected the poor grades of milk offered by some farmers. This, he noted, would greatly simplify and support the farm inspection program and keep the work connected with it down to a minimum. There are some 9,000 farmers in east and central Ontario and the task of making two or more inspection trips to each during the course of the season is an almost impossible task.

Mr. Robinson noted that complaints about the quality of Canadian premium cheese from the export markets were increasing and that action was necessary to cure the situation as quickly as possible.

The question as to whether Canadian cheese makers would be able to maintain their position of the export market was also emphasized by H. S. Gilles, supervisor of grading for the federal Department of Agriculture. Canadian cheese has gone much to enhance the value of Canadian cheese in the world market he noted but added that he felt it was time to carry out changes in cheese grading standards, which were developed in 1923, and modify them to keep up with modern manufacturing methods.

MUST MAINTAIN QUALITY

Canadian cheddar cheese sells at premium prices on the world market, Mr. Gilles added, but only as long as the quality is maintained. Recently there has been considerable trouble with cheese which was graded as premium under the present system (when it is 10 days old) dropping in quality before it is shipped to export customers. A two-month waiting period before grading was suggested.

The seriousness of the situation has progressed to the point where export buyers are refusing certain registration numbers because of poor quality. These numbers are placed on blacklists by the buyers and it is extremely difficult for a factory to have its number released from the blacklist once they have sent out a poor or inconsistent batch of quality cheese.

Mr. Gillan offered several possible solutions to the manufacturers outside of altering the present grading system. A standard procedure for making cheese from hand-dipped milk was suggested, He suggested that the cheese maker take every possible care and make every possible effort to eliminate any possible factor in his plant or process which might contribute towards even the slightest lessening of the quality of his cheese.

One of these variables occurs in the starter or culture used in cheese making and Dr. D. M. Irvine, professor and head of the department of science at the Ontario Agricultural School, Guelph, had a great deal of information to offer on the proper handling of same following the results of his survey.

The technical aspects of handling cultures, the importance of keeping them free from bacteria and foreign material and the methods of ensuring this state, temperature control and plant sanitation were covered by Dr. Irvine. His report indicated that there is a great deal of improvement needed in these respects by many of Ontario's cheese makers. With proper plant sanitation methods and the careful and exacting care of the starters or cultures the majority of the current problems on quality would be eliminated.

SHOW PRAISED

J. G. MacMillan, grader in charge for the Department of Agriculture in Belleville, spoke briefly, complimenting the association's executive for putting on a fine show. He reaffirmed the opinion of numerous other people in crediting the sale of prize cheese to the public as having a major contribution to making the show more popular.

Dorothy Batchelor, home economics director of the Poultry Products Institute of Canada, added a different note to the afternoon's addresses with a talk on product presentation as it is currently practised by a great many manufacturers today. The importance of creating a favorable "image" impression on the consumer through a subliminal approach through both advertising and packaging techniques was discussed.

It was suggested that possibly the cheese industry might find some new products to put on the retail market which would involve the use of cheese.

Warden Earl Sager of Hastings County was on hand to greet the convention delegates at the opening ceremonies. He commented on the extent to which the cheese industry had contributed to the prosperity of the county and expressed his hope that the industry would continue to improve. Warden Sager suggested that the Department of Agriculture would be fully justified in taking a close interest in seeing that the industry was supplied with a good grade of milk from the suppliers.

Mayor McLean Haig of Belleville also greeted the visitors and commended the association on the excellent display put on this year as well as on the availability of prize cheese to local individual purchasers. His Worship mentioned that the cheese industry had played a large part in Belleville's development over the past years and trusted to its continued success.

The convention was opened by the Reverend R. D. MacLean, head of the Belleville Ministerial Association. Following the invocation Mr. MacLean gave a short address and urged those present to be the best cheesemakers in the eyes of God.

Seize Big Still Near Cornwall

ALEXANDRIA (CP) — Two men and a woman were remanded for trial until Feb. 14 when they appeared in court Tuesday on charges laid in connection with the seizure of a still and 370 gallons of illegal liquor last week. They pleaded not guilty.

RCMP and provincial police who raided a farm near this town 30 miles northeast of Cornwall reported the still could turn out 50 gallons of alcohol a day.

Albert Charles Lacrabonne, 30, of Montreal has been freed on $2,000 bail, Roger Lebourg, 35, of Montreal and Christiane Bourquin of nearby Martintown are free on $1,000 bail each.

All three face charges under the federal Excise Act of illegal possession of a still and illegal possession of alcohol. They also are charged under provincial law with possessing alcohol not obtained from a licensed vendor.

A quantity of Quebec wine was seized in the raid.

Investment Representative Speaks To Chi Rho Club on 'Money'

Guests at last Wednesday's meeting of the Christ Church Chi Rho Fellowship included the Energetic Club of Holloway Street United Church, which came in a body to hear investment representative Oriel Griffiths, of Rose, Knowles Limited, speak on the subject of "money." The talk was most informative and the subject most attentive.

"The small investor needs to be careful," said Mr. Griffiths, stressing an obvious truth that is often overlooked by those people who seem to insist on buying stocks when they are high and selling them when they are low. "The number of people who do this, unintentionally, is quite startling, pointing up the need of professional management. They do not need to invest a few more dollars into the penny stock gamble in the hopes of making a killing.

BUYS MODERATELY

"The common sense investor buys in moderate amounts, pays for it and collects the dividends. He buys into good business in good times, and times and markets change. Without mental strain, he thereby gets an average of three important elements—good values at reasonable prices; diversification in companies, and diversification in timing," said the speaker, in reference to mutual funds.

"Mutual funds are one way for the investor, with considerably less than the $50,000 nestegg required by professional management experts, to get expert help." Mutual funds are a contract rather than a stock and are registered with the Security Exchange.

BACKLOG FILLER ADVISABLE

But whether one makes use of the professional management of a mutual fund, a much less personalized arrangement than the "Investment" professional manager, or buys stock from individual companies on his own, it is advisable to have some of one's backing in what Mr. Griffiths calls "the third pillar" (cash in the bank or readily liquidated bonds is the first, insurance the second.)

"When you consider less than 5 per cent of all Canadians over 65 are wholly self-supporting and, that the dollar has declined over 50 per cent in real purchasing power in the past 20 years, it seems to me that financial planning for retirement years is the biggest problem facing us." Charges Regime Allowed Crooked Stock Sales

FREDERICTON (CP) — A charge that New Brunswick's former Progressive Conservative government permitted fraudulent stock-selling operations for political benefit derived from a "show" of industrial expansion and activity is contained in the report of an investigator released today.

David M. Dickson, acting securities administrator who conducted the investigation under the Security Frauds Prevention Act, recommended consideration be given to laying of criminal charges against principals of the companies involved. Information and advice for this was being made available to the attorney-general.

The hearings last July and August were ordered by Liberal Premier Robichaud, also attorney-general, who said he had information that investors, mostly from the United States, had more than $7,000,000 to fraudulent stock-selling operations.

The companies named were St. Stephen Nickel Mines Limited, Casaux Investments Limited, Trans-Nation Minerals Limited, Kennamet Development Corporation Limited, L. J. Powis and Company Limited, Seaboard Industries Limited and Atlantic Investments Limited.

The report said it was "impossible" to come to any conclusion other than that the former act administrator, G. Roger Logan of Saint John, N.B., was subjected to interference both by then government members and the former public utilities board.

All members of the board, the province's investment licensing body, were replaced by Mr. Robichaud after election of his Liberal government last June.

Individuals included in the investigation were A. J. Gerry, Kenneth H. Gregory, Francis A. G. Powis, Dennis A. Miller, Allan Champagne and Harold (C. Ansel.

The report said assets of the companies investigated had been impounded and would not be released until clarification of settlement.

Forced to Use CPR Tracks

WINDSOR (CP)—Wreckage of 12 cars on a CNR freight train, derailed early night and two miles east of here, is forcing CNR trains entering or leaving Windsor to use CPR tracks.

The derailed cars are from Stratmodity prices. And he feels the evidence points to a continuation of the inflationary tendencies of the present economy. "How you invest your money depends on your specific requirement, as well as your temperament. Some people play the market personally, others want professional management and, in the long run, the common sense approach of the cautious buyer over-ruthered counterpart."

At the conclusion of the address Mr. Griffiths answered a few questions and was thanked by Herb Cavaller who also extended an invitation to Mr. Griffiths to stay for the remainder of the program.

The club then played a games period, after which refreshments were served.

Jim Rapino, of the Energetic Club, expressed thanks on behalf of his organization, to the hosts and Archdeacon J. B. Creegan, of Christ Church, closed the meeting with prayer.

EFFECTS NEGLIGIBLE

LONDON (Reuters)—The British Medical Research Council reported today that radiotherapy and X-ray examinations have "extremely small" effects on human reproduction. The report, based on three years' research, said it did not consider any curtailment of X-ray treatment was necessary. However, the report found that X-rays have been used "indiscriminately" in some cases.

END OF AN ERA — The end of a railroading era which saw its heyday in Belleville more than a quarter of a century ago, is currently being witnessed with the demolishing of a major portion of the Canadian National Railways roundhouse. The arrival of the oil burning diesels made the extensive roundhouse accommodation unnecessary and all but nine of 27 stalls are being demolished. Picture shows a section of the old roundhouse going under the wrecker's hammer.

CASTRO SENDING

ben hailed by the Castro regime as a friendly gesture.

Castro's internal problems also seemed to be mounting on three other fronts: Religious, labor and armed opposition.

Church officials today blamed Communists for a shattering bomb explosion in a Roman Catholic church whose pastor is a leading critic of the Castro regime.

CHURCH DAMAGED

The attack, first on a church since Castro's feud with Roman Catholic officials began, took place just after Tuesday night's vesper services. None of the 50 persons inside was injured. But pews and flooring in the Our Lady of Charity Church were extensively damaged.

A small red flag was left inside the bombed church.

Several other bombs exploded in Havana's residential areas during the night, marking an intensified campaign by anti-government factions.

An increasing number of armed insurgent, including many of Castro's own soldiers, have taken to the mountains of western and central Cuba.

The latest defection was reported in Pinar del Rio province where Capt. Ciodomiro Miranda Mediela and a band of men took large supplies of arms and ammunition into the mountains.

A force of 2,000 militiamen was reported to have been sent to chase them.

There were indications the Castro regime failed in an attempt to persuade labor to work today — a national holiday in memory of Gen. Antonio Maceo, hero of the Independence war against Spain—and contribute the day's pay to the workers' social fund.

Government newspapers had given prominent play to a report that today would be a work day.

Manhattan Official Faces Loss of Post

NEW YORK (AP)—Manhattan borough President Hulan Jack faces automatic ouster from his $25,000-a-year job after conviction on conflict-of-interest charges involving a $4,400 deal.

Jack, a West Indies emigrant who fought his way to the top in New York's Democratic machine politics, is the highest Negro elected official ever to hold office in the United States.

He was found guilty Tuesday by an all-white jury stunned Jack. 55. His lawyer said that he would appeal but that Jack would not resign.

Markets it plain that any public officeholder convicted of a crime automatically forfeits his job.

A spokesman for Governor Nelson Rockefeller said it was his understanding that with the conviction, Jack now is out of office and that no action by the executive council governor is necessary.

Jack could receive jail sentences totalling three years, plus fines of $1,500. He will be sentenced Jan. 16.

Specifically, Jack was found guilty of twice violating the city charter by permitting Sidney Unger, a lawyer and real estate operator, to pay $4,400 to redecorate Jack's Harlem apartment. At the time Unger was seeking city business, which needed board of estimate approval. Jack was a board member.

RECOGNIZE CASTILLO

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain has instructed ambassador to El Salvador Geoffrey Kirk to recognize the revolutionary government headed by Col. Miguel Angel Castillo, a foreign office spokesman said today.

TURN-AROUND — Roundhouse turntable is being retained along with nine of the roundhouse stalls which will be used for maintenance of diesel engines. In the heyday of railroading the Belleville roundhouse boasted over 40 engine stalls. One section of the roundhouse was razed many years ago, and now most of the remainder is being torn down.

Five Killed As Gas Truck, Train Collide

NASHUA, N.H. (AP) — A crowded passenger train and a loaded bottled gas truck collided at a grade crossing today, touching off an explosion and fire that killed five persons and injured more than a dozen others.

The dead included the truck driver, his wife and their two small children, and one of the passengers aboard the train, a Boston and Maine Railroad self-propelled diesel car bound from Lacoula to Boston.

Bits of the truck, loaded with small tanks of commercial gas used by householders for cooking, were blown in all directions.

The resulting blaze soon seized into the single-car train which carried about 40 passengers.

ONLY A MEMORY for thousands of Canadians of the pre-diesel age is the old steam locomotive seen above rounding a curve on twin ribbons of steel north of Belleville. Dieselization of the railways has taken place during the past ten years, the last steam locomotive passing through Belleville about two years ago.

This - - - and That

By HARRIETT STEVENS

You have heard it said, as the most of us have, that the school and the teaching should be left to the teacher, and the home and the parents should stay out of the picture. Some parents do honestly and sincerely believe that there is no need for Home and School or Parent-Teacher Associations. If they have come to that conclusion by reason and observation, it is at least better than the parents who do not participate through lack of interest and understanding. # #

For whatever reason, it is a fact that only a small percentage of parents do participate; a large of parents do participate; a Home and School membership which consists of one-fifth of the possible parents is considered a good membership. Smaller schools in rural areas probably have a higher percentage membership because these districts are not so highly organized as the larger centres.

The parents who do not participate for definite reasons may say: "If anything is wrong, or if I am not satisfied, I will go directly to the teacher." This is fine, but there are many parents who would not do this on their own but who are led to do this by joining the Home and School Association. Even if the numbers of these are few, they are enough to justify the organization. The possibility of preventing many difficulties from arising is also an element to consider.

HOME CRITICISM

To be fair, we have heard of Home and School Associations which give reasons for criticism. In a school in another city, an association raised money and then used it to buy expensive ties and coffee services for the meetings. Programs are often arranged which have nothing to do with the aims and objectives of the organization. This often happens through lack of experience, or from the fact that the right people are not taking the responsibility.

The child, the pupil, the student is the centre of and the reason for the existence of the association; this should never be lost sight of. There are enough problems arising, enough aspects of the child in school to provide programs for all meetings.

In this district, we are lucky to have a central organization, the Home and School Council of Belleville and district; we are also fortunate in having many fine school principals who are an invaluable help to both teacher and parent and to the association which brings them together. The spring workshop sponsored by the Council does much to help and train executive members and to give guidance in planning inspiring programs.

To the parents who are indifferent to the problems or who do not know they exist, participation in Home and School can be a real education. In this day and age when there is so much activity for children and adolescents outside the home, it is very important for the parents, whose interest should be most vital and continuing, to acquaint themselves with all the other influences which are bearing brought to bear on their children.

SOME PARENTS

ANTAGONISTIC

Despite the emphasis in recent years on the importance of a close relationship between school and home, a good parent-teacher relationship is easier to describe than to achieve, as even educators now admit. A professor of education at Columbia University says: "All too many parents feel uncomfortable with or even antagonistic toward their children's schools. Teachers, too, rarely feel for parents the warmth and concern needed for getting people working toward the same goal. Both sides proceed to feel."

A genuine meeting of minds is very difficult to achieve. If it is to be overcome the adults will need to deepen their acceptance of each other. Genuine acceptance goes beyond tolerance and involves appreciation for whatever human struggle the other person represents.

Sacred Concert

The citizens of Belleville and district will have the opportunity of hearing a sacred concert presented by Italian musicians Ralph Mori and Lou Fasano of Minneapolis, Minnesota, this Thursday night at the Alliance Church.

The Sutera Twins are known widely across Canada and the United States for their outstanding musical talents and have made many sacred recordings and have composed their own song "Heights of Happiness."

Among the many musical numbers to be featured on Thursday night will be "How Great Thou Art," with special choral arrangement; "The Love of God," vocal duet; electro-chord solo, "Whispering Hope"; "It is No Secret"; a dramatic reading, "The Last Hymn," and violin solo, "The Holy City."

Intell-Staff Holds Party

The staff of the Ontario Intelligencer held its annual Christmas party in the AMAP auditorium last Saturday night.

Approximately 40 members of the staff and their guests enjoyed dancing to the rhythms of the Phillips orchestra.

Novelty and other dances were held with prizes given to the various winners.

At midnight delectable refreshments were served by the dance committee consisting of Mrs. Chambers, VI Foster, Ron Kavacer, George Colpitts, Bess Sheppard and "Doll" McFadden, who also acted as master of ceremonies.

TALKS DEFENCE

Yuletide Decor Explained at Contact Club

The Contact Club of Christ Church held an excellent meeting on Monday evening in the parish hall.

President, Doris Stewart, opened the business portion of the meeting at which time a new member, Ann Tryndal, was introduced.

Following correspondence and thank-you notes read by secretary Lillian Mahony, a report on the "peanut compaign" was given by June Woodley.

"Christmas Idea Night," was in the theme of the meeting.

A festive red cloth-covered table was set up and held a splendid array of decorations, gifts and various wrapping ideas.

Florence Lennox, a talented creator of decorations for all occasions, explained how to make many of the items on display. Florence showed how door wreaths, table centre-pieces, tree ornaments, kissing rings, holiday aprons and gayly wrapped gifts require but little expense and are beautiful.

An old sun hat was given a new look when Florence covered it in a colorful door wreath using bought of pine, pine cones and red ribbon; pipe cleaners, and coloured felt which became gay little pixies; juice cans, tree fungus, oat hulls, milkweed and other common articles associated a brilliant appearance with the use of gold paint and sparkle dust. A snow house, made from chicklets, gum drops, life-savers and peanuts was most attractive as were many other pieces of decorations.

Mary Fletcher, cleverly showed how to make adorable felt boots and worked with the girls at creating poinsettias and displayed many ribbon ideas in Christmas wrappings.

Barbara Cooke also availed the girls of her talents in paper craft. What pretty balls can be created from 16 squares of paper! An idea of Barbara's very most acceptable — that being the individual wrapping of top and bottom of children's parcels, to enable mother to remember who the gift is from and also to preserve a prettily wrapped box top for a while.

An enjoyable evening was brought to a close by serving of refreshments by the hostesses Margaret Dack, Edith Pringle and Mary Stones.

Next Monday will see the closing party of Contact Club for the year 1960, which has been a truly successful one.

JWC Bridge Group Holds Opening Party

An opening party for the University Women's Club Bridge group, convened by Mrs. J. L. Acton and Mrs. J. E. Pugh, was held recently at the home of Mrs. Pugh, 22 Charles St.

The winners were Mrs. H. T. Floyd, high; Mrs. E. M. Townsend, 2nd; and Mrs. T. Sheridan 3rd.

Among new comers, who have joined the Bridge group were Mrs. J. Cunningham; Miss Christine Brown; Miss Mary Evans; Miss Beth Klein; Miss Dorothy Mahon; and Miss Lillian Wallace.

ACTIVE SUPPORT

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A female lawyer thinks women should actively support the increasing number of their sex in public affairs. Speaking at a dinner meeting of the Soroptomist Club in London, Miss Evelyn Harrison, QC, said that women "should give all their support to those who are capable in civic and federal fields."

MELDRUM—LUCK

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, was the setting for a recent lovely wedding when Patricia Joan Luck, of Belleville, daughter of Mrs. Stanley Luck, of Belleville, and the late Mr. Luck, was united in marriage to Norman Leigh Meldrum, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Meldrum. The Reverend R. D. MacLean, pastor of the church, officiated, before a background of bronze and white chrysanthemums.

Traditional wedding music was rendered by the church organist, Mr. Edgerton Boyce.

The radiant bride, given in marriage by Mr. A. Bannon, wore a full-length bridal gown of white peau de soie trimmed with chantilly lace at neck and on the graceful skirt. The bodice featured a large white back bow, and long "pointed sleeves. She wore a double crown of seed pearls and sequins with shoulder-length veil of illusion tulle, and carried a white Bible crested with white gardenias and white stephanotis.

Her attendants were Miss Carol Price, of Scarborough, as maid of honour, and Miss Margot Passey of Toronto, and Miss Doreen Luck of Belleville as bridesmaids. All were gowned alike in emerald green velvet featuring tulip bodices, full skirts, accented by two small green roses at waist backs. They wore headdresses of green ocque feathers, matching green velvet gloves and green shoes, with pearl necklaces and pearl drop earrings. The flowers were Classic bouquets of white daisies, misted with blow-dried 'mums, and tied with yellow satin ribbons.

The bridegroom's bridesmaid, Miss Heather Meldrum, of Belleville, sister of the bridegroom, was attired in gold-toned, Fawcett velvet with bandeau of gold velvet and net, long velvet shoes, and carried a bouquet of bronze and white 'mums misgled with baby-breath. Her gown was fashioned on similar lines to that of the senior bridesmaid.

Mr. Tom Gibson of Toronto attended the bridegroom, while Messrs. Ray Bannon of Toronto and Joe Meldrum of Belleville ushered.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held in the church lower auditorium where the bridal table was appointed with silver candelabra with tall white candles and centred by a three-tier wedding cake. The bridal bouquets added a lovely nuptial touch.

The bride's mother, wearing a gown of turquoise peau de soie satin, with matching shoes and hat, and white gloves, with corsage of yellow roses, received the guests. Assisting in the receiving line was the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in green peau de soie satin, with matching shoes and gloves, with American Beauty toned hat, and corsage of American Beauty roses.

For the honeymoon to Florida for two weeks, by motor, the bride chose a royal blue ensemble with black leather shoes and bag, with winter-white hat and gloves, and corsage of white gardenias.

Guests attended from Toronto, Scarborough and Agincourt.

Showers were held honoring the bride, previous to her marriage, by Miss Margot Passey, of Agincourt; Miss Carol Price, of Scarborough, and by the Misses Marilyn Huddleston, Barbara Payne, Mary Pearce and Maly Lou Cook of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. McElrum are residing at 335 Charles Street, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Barry Elgin Harris are shown signing the register following their marriage in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss MacLean, pastor of the church when Marlene Helen Ackley of Belleville, daughter of Mrs. Veronica Ackley, of Bancroft, became the bride of Barry Elgin Harris, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elgin Harris. Pink gladioli and white chrysanthemums adorned the altar rail, and white satin bows marked the guest pews.

Mr. Egerton Boyce, church organist, rendered the traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Alex Cunningham of Belleville.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Vernon Ackley, was lovely in her bell-erina-length bridal gown of white silk organza, featuring taffeta fashioned with molded bodice having a Sweetheart neckline and tiny cap sleeves. She wore a matching tiara of sequins and simulated pearls with elbow-length veil of illusion tulle, and carried a bouquet of red roses. A necklace of pearls with matching earrings completed her ensemble.

Miss Marion Ackley, of Bancroft, was her sister's attendant, wearing a yellow nylon net gown over taffeta in ballerina length with matching headdress. She carried a bouquet of white 'mums and yellow roses.

Mr. Ralph Harris, of Belleville attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Roy Crocker and Mr. Sydney Ambrose, both of Toronto, were ushers.

The reception was held in the church parlors to which the ladies of the church catered.

The bride's table was prettily appointed with white damask, and centred by the traditional three tier wedding cake, nestled in white tulle. Two candelabra with lighted pink candles, and the bridal bouquets added a lovely nuptial accent.

Kiwanis LA. Sponsors Yuletide Supper

The Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary held its annual Christmas pot-luck supper at the Kiwanis Centre last Thursday when they entertained 18 members of the Kingston West club.

After the delicious supper was enjoyed, the guests were welcomed by president Reta Clemens, and each one was introduced.

A short business meeting followed with the Christmas welfare work as the business on hand.

The birthday draw was won by Kay Horton.

After the reading of an appropriate poem by President Reta, the meeting was closed.

The remainder of the evening was spent playing games and singing Christmas carols, until lunch served at 9.30 give each lady a gift from under the Christmas tree.

SEAT IS ON

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP)—"Ladies and gentlemen, the boat is on!" announced Mrs. Gordon Conant, president of the Oshawa and District Historical Society at the third annual meeting. She also signified by saying that the Henry House Museum — volunteer staffed and equipped by members of the society—now had a furnace in operation.

(Photo by William E. Riley, Belleville.)

HOMAN — KUGLIN

White and yellow Shasta chrysanthemums, interspersed with ferns, formed a lovely setting in Eastminister United Church, Belleville, for a recent very pretty, afternoon wedding, when Janice Helen Kuglin, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Kuglin, of Williamsford, Ontario, became the bride of Harvey Ball Homan, of Corbyville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Selden Homan. The Reverend Harold Linderman, of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, officiated. White velvet bows designated the guest pews.

The traditional wedding music was rendered during the processional and during the signing of the register, Miss Rita Wilcox, soloist accompanied by the organist, Mrs. G. H. Rogers, sang "The Lord's Prayer", while during the recessional, "Now Thank We All Our God", was rendered.

Given in marriage by her father, the lovely bride wore a bridal gown of white silk velvet to street-length with full, gathered skirt and fitted bodice bevved at high bateau neckline with a "V" back, and full-length lily-point sleeves. Her elbow-length silk illusion veil was held by a white velvet coronet headdress, and she carried a bouquet of red carnations, interspersed with green fly.

She was attended by Miss Catherine Gould, of Belleville, as maid of honour wearing a street-length gown with full, gathered skirt, and fitted bodice, in brilliant blue velvet, featuring a "V" back and front neckline and three-quarter length sleeves, with matching velvet coronet headdress and shoes. She carried a crescent bouquet of yellow Shasta daisies, with green ivy and blue velvet streamers.

Miss Elizabeth Kuglin, of Foxboro, niece of the bride, was bridesmaid, wearing a similar gown in seeng color as that of the maid of honour, with similar headdress and shoes and bouquet.

The bride's mother was attired in a floor-length gown of Royal Lavale, of Belleville, while Mrs. Selden Homan, mother of the bridegroom, was attired in a figured brown wool sheath with lightbeige hat, gloves, brown accessories and corsage of yellow carnations.

For the wedding trip to Quebec, Vermont, Mass; and New York, the bride chose a dark-beige sheath of wool, with dark-brown accessories, brown Harris tweed coat, brick-red hat, and corsage of custard - colored carnations.

The bride, prior to her marriage, was entertained by Miss Catherine Gould, at a kitchen shower, which was attended by her classmates of Belleville General Hospital, of 1957.

Mr. and Mrs. Homan will make their home in Corbyville, Ontario.

TO LAY OFF PILOTS

MONTREAL (CP) — Transcanada Air Lines said Tuesday a number of its pilots with less than three years seniority will be laid-off for six months starting next February. The number is unofficially estimated as 104.

Front Road W. A. Elects 1961 Officers

The Front Road Women's Association held its December meeting at the home of Mrs. Thomas Brown and Mrs. Clinton Brown.

There were 13 members, two children and three guests present. Also in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Hoult.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. Clifford Reid, Mrs. Claxie, secretary-treasurer, gave the financial report.

The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. Thomas Whillie, and her theme was in keeping with the fast-approaching Christmas season. With Grace McMullin as pianist, the singing of an appropriate hymn opened the devotion. Mrs. Gedden Bradshaw read the Scripture lesson taken from Isaiah 9-7.

Mrs. Whillie had many fine selections to be read concerning the birth of Jesus, "Christ's Birthday" was read by Mrs. Gordon Hoult, followed with "The Road to Bethlehem" read by Mrs. Myrtle Greatrix. Mrs. Hugh McMullen gave a selection entitled, "That's Why He Came," and it served as a timely reminder to everyone what is the true meaning of Christmas is.

"Quietly, Secretly," a short poem, was given by Mrs. Clifford Reid.

Mrs. Whillie took charge and gave a lengthy reading on "He Came Himself," which was very much enjoyed. She also played several recordings of Christmas carols.

Mrs. Clifford Reid once again took charge and thanked the members for turning out and also the Brown's for opening their home for the meeting. She complimented Mrs. Whillie on her devotional period and she thought it left everyone with the true feeling of this Christmas season.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Mr. Gordon Hoult, student minister of the charge, conducted the elections of officers for the coming year: president, Mrs. Clifford Reid; 1st vice-president, Mrs. E. Preston; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Fred Ing; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Roy Claxie; pianist, Mrs. Hugh McMullen; card convener, Mrs. Hugh McMullen; sick convener, Mrs. Thomas Whillie; auditors, Mrs. Thomas Whillie and Mrs. Clinton Brown; press representatives, Gedden Bradshaw and Mrs. Walter Taylor. Mrs. C. Reid thanked the ladies for re-electing her president and asked for the same co-operation in 1961 which she had received in 1960, which has proven to be a good year. She also thanked Mr. Hoult for conducting the election.

The ladies were invited to the dining room for tea, where the table was tastefully decorated for the festive season.

After lunch a social hair hour was spent. Mrs. Myrtle Greatrix supplied the afternoon tea in humorous outing by reading, "My Lady-And-Or Her Got-Up-And-Went."

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three deacons, three ordinary souls and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, advice and answer, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers

Mrs. Y. O. — He condemns his sister's behavior toward her mother.

Peter L. — My sister doesn't have to be told to take in that gulf from Mother.

Mrs. Y. O. — I'm not really in this picture and maybe that's why I can see it more clearly than Peter and his sister. I'm just their aunt by marriage.

I can't interfere too much, but I see Peter making a bad mistake. His mother's family is a spirited little woman for all her 75 years. Evidently her daughter-in-law couldn't stand her and there's been a complete estrangement for the past four years. Although Peter remains very attentive to their mother, his sister has always been doing the right thing.

I've lived a long time and I've yet to see anyone who can cut a mother out of her life and not suffer. I think Peter, in his sorrow for her is gone, Ina will have such terrible guilt feelings that she will go to pieces.

Peter would do better to try to bring the two together again. The mother has many fine qualities that I've seen, although I self to "behave" with Ina if Peter set up a home. But instead he continues to provide fuel for Ina's befs. This is dangerous.

Peter L. — My aunt only knows the situation from me. I have no row up with my sister and I know what's behind this. There's no question but that Mother favors Fredrica and I was it. As a child I loved Fredrica. But as I grew up, I realize what fi did to my sister.

I know my sister has never been a happy person. Maybe part of her problem is that she feels herself, but being with my mother was making her worse. During each visit they'd shout at each other and very would flare. I was I who told Ina sh; didn't have to subject herself to that torture any more. And, as Aunt Yelli said, I think Ina is perfectly justified.

I visit Mother regularly. She's sweet and decent to me, never more so since I've been contributing to her support. I think this separation is right. Mother had it coming to her for her treatment of Ina.

• • •

The Council: Here we have the tendency of many people more or less on the sidelines of a dismal slug-fest that isn't getting anywhere.

Mrs. O. is wise to be forcing Peter to examine his position as judge, arbitrator, mediator in family relations. This is a great responsibility and, as a principal, Peter should disciplinally himself if he wants to make certain he's pursuing the most wholesome course.

Can it be that Peter derives certain unhealthy satisfactions from the impasse between his sister and his mother? Ina's the one who left Peter's home and, may run through his mind. And if he feels hostile toward his mother, perhaps he finds that Ina's version of her mother's puts certain links into our every life which bind a mother and child. And a deliberate renunciation may get at this "coming to her," as he puts it, while keeping the family bonds clean.

No, Peter would be doing more if he could see that he's worried — alone or with his clergyman or doctor — toward a rapprochement with their mother. Maybe puts certain links into our every life which bind a mother and child. And a deliberate renunciation may get at this "coming to her," as he puts it, while keeping the family bonds clean.

Else he'll have Ina on his hands with belated remorse and perhaps recriminations against him for pulling her into an unhealthy "peace."

Young Couple Honored by Community

CENTENARY — A number of friends and neighbors met at the church hall on Friday evening to honor Mr. and Mrs. R. Nobes, (nee Marilyn Christopher), on their recent marriage.

Marilyn and Bob have grown up in Centenary community, and have been active in church and Sunday School.

The Rev. R. Rickard acted as chairman and after extending the best wishes to the young couple and was pleased to learn they are making their home in Centenary.

Merle Christopher sang two solos, accompanying with the guitar. Mrs. Harold Hancock played a selection on the piano. Readings were given by Mrs. C. Dehne, Mrs. E. Hart, Mrs. B. Harder and Mr. D. Plumpton.

Marilyn and Bob were asked to take chairs at the table, and R. Edmondson read an address and several gifts were presented, lunchtiny two end tables, a coffee table and beautiful vase; also several kitchen articles. Bob on behalf of the choir Mrs. C. Dafoe presented them with crystal sherbets and plates.

Both bride and bridegroom were members of the choir and for the past year Marilyn has been choir leader. On behalf of the Young People's Union, Mr. D. Plumpton presented them with crystal sherbets and plates. Bob is president of the Y.P.U. and both have been valued members for some time. Other lovely gifts were given by relatives and friends.

Both Marilyn and Bob thanked the many friends for their kindness and hoped they would visit them in their new home.

Refreshments were enjoyed by all.

Gift Christmas Fruit Cakes

By Mary Moore

On Monday of this week I mentioned to you that I would be giving you the recipe for a fruit cake to be baked in 1-pound vacuum coffee or nut cans.

Obviously you may bake this cake in any kind of pans you like but the 1-pound cans make it convenient for wrapping and delivering or mailing.

The batter will fill three 1-pound cans full or four 1-pound cans three-quarters full. The total amount of baked cakes weighs 3 pounds so you see a 1-pound can holds about 1 pound 10 oz. of this heavily fruited and nutty cake. It is a dark cake not black-dark but brown dark.

Dinner Menus

WEDNESDAY

Breaded Veal Cutlet; Curried Rice; Creamed Frenched Green Beans; Buttered Tomato and Cucumber Salads with French Dressing; Lemon Snow with Custard Sauce; Tea.

GIFT FRUITCAKE:

1 cup salad oil, 1 1-2 cups firmly packed brown sugar, 4 eggs, 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, divided, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 2 teaspoons allspice, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 cup unsweetened pineapple juice, 1-3 cup grape or raisin juice, 1 cup chopped dates, 1 cup chopped pineapple, 1 1-4 cups diced citron peel, 1 1-3 cups whole candied cherries, 1 cup seedless raisins, 1-2 cup currants, 1-cup chopped dates, 1 1-4 cups coarsely chopped walnuts, 1 cups chopped unblanched almonds (8 oz.).

Combine salad oil, sugar and eggs and beat vigorously with spoon or electric beater for 2 minutes. Sift 3 cups of the flour with baking powder, salt and spices. Stir into the oil mixture alternately with the pineapple juice. Mix remaining cup of flour with fruits and nuts which should be in very large bowl. Pour batter over the mixture, blending well. Turn into 4 or 5 well-oiled 1-pound coffee cans, lined on bottom only with buttered wax paper. Place on centre-rack in oven. Set a pan of water on lower oven rack. Bake at 250 deg. Fahr. for 3 1-4 hours (raising temperature to 275 deg. Fahr. during last 3-4 hour.) Cool on pans. Coffee cans may be wrapped in red, blue or gold aluminum foil or lid may be put on cold cakes and outside painted with gold or red cloth.

NOTE:

If you bake your cakes in 4 coffee cans there will be room for decoration on top. See my notes on glazing and decorating Friday, December 9th.

Centenary WF Holds Fine Tea, Bazaar

CENTENARY — Many ladies travelled to Centenary to attend the annual Christmas bazaar and tea.

Although the weather outside was most autumn like, once inside the church hall, one felt the Christmas atmosphere. The hall was beautifully decorated with perforated gold panels and red and gold poinsettias with gilded bells in the windows.

Each of the basaar tables was dressed with red streamers, gold tinted cones and evergreen.

The guests were received by Mrs. Roy Rickard, wife of the pastor and Mrs. Elwin Hart, president of the Women's Federation.

Mrs. Reg. Edmondson was treasurer for the afternoon.

The bountiful bake table with its home-made breed and buns, cakes and dainties was convened by Mrs. Fred Aikens with Mrs. Dawson Douglas and Mrs. William Calvert assisting.

Mrs. Phil Ray and Mrs. Ralph Lonzy at the apron table, displayed aprons of all sizes and colors of beautiful prints and materials.

Mrs. Byron Harder headed the novelty table, where one could buy novelty dolls, Christmas decorations and many novelties.

The ever-popular candy booth was convened by Mrs. Albert Christopher and Mrs. Malcolm Nobes in conjunction with the "touch and take" table, where many surprises awaited those who dared to "touch."

Mrs. Keith Johnston was in charge of "the country store," with its splendid array of produce.

Mrs. Percy Sutherland received the guests into the tea room.

The entrance to the tea room was attractively accented with a lovely decorated Christmas tree on either side, with multi-colored glowing lights.

The tea table with its cover, bordered in gold coin dots, looked beautiful centred with a gilded Christmas tree, flanked by two red candles. Behind the tea table was a back drop featuring a candelabra which reflected a glow of light upon the table.

The quartet-tables reflected the same motif and looked so gay with their Christmas serviettes.

In one corner of the tea room stood a ghost tree with its bare white limbs supporting red Christmas bells and beset with small evergreens which added to the Christmas atmosphere.

Mrs. John Ewing, Foxboro, Mrs. Walt Deeves, Wesley and Mrs. W. Bailey, Aikens, along with Mrs. Robert Hart, Mrs. Roy Thrasher and Mrs. Fred Aikens poured tea.

Those serving were: Mrs. Robert Nobes, Mrs. Wilmot Shortt and Mrs. Lloyd Pearson with Mrs. John Best replenishing the tea and Mrs. Harold Hancock replenishing the plates.

Mrs. Edgar Ray convened in the kitchen, with Mrs. Gilbert Sills, Mrs. Roy Thrasher, Mrs. Jack Emerson and Mrs. Bernard Mory assisting.

Sincere appreciation is expressed to all who helped make the bazaar and tea, another successful event.

Novelty Sweater

By VERA WINSTON

Fringe is used to very telling effect on a white orlon novelty weave sweater. The fringe is laced through three vertical bands at the hem and comes in black or brown, ending in three tassels above a blending tone tweed skirt.

This type of pullover sweater is great for college or suburban wear and can be worn over slacks or shorts.

Honor Students Feted By Banquets

RAWDON — On the evening of November 21st, a banquet was held at O.A.C., Guelph, in honor of those students who were eligible for scholarship awards.

The Dorothy Futcher and Ontario Women's Institutes' Scholarships provide provincial scholarships which are rotated as follows: the east region has a scope of subdivisions one to six; the north region covers subdivisions 7 to 12; the south region, subdivisions 17 to 24, and the west region subdivisions 7 to 16.

This year the awards for these two scholarships were given to the north and the east regions for 1960. The Trent Valley W.I. is part of the east region.

Miss Mildred Morton held the highest average of any of the 85 students who entered MacDonald Institute this fall with a mark of over 80 on nine papers. This was an outstanding achievement to have such a high academic standing.

Mildred entered MacDonald Institute at Guelph in September, beginning her first year of a degree course in B.H.Sc. Her parents are Rawdon.

SECOND BANQUET HELD

Mrs. L. G. Lymburner, Port Colborne, president of Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario, Miss Helen McKercher, director of the extension branch of the Home Economics Service, and members of the provincial board and the staff of MacDonald Institute, held another banquet at the Royal Hotel, Guelph, on November 3rd.

The awards were presented by the F.W.I.O. president to five girls. They were the Misses Lorraine Wright of Matheson, Ont.; Helen Marrison, Beaverton; Catharine Lounsbury, Seamaville; Anna Langton, St. Thomas, and Mildred Morton, Harold R.R. 2.

Mildred is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Morton of Rawdon Township. She was formerly a student at the Stirling - Rawdon District High School under the direction of the principal, John L. Good.

Miss Ethel Chapman, editor of the Home and Country magazine, handled the publicity for the Province of Ontario, as Mrs. P. G. McCaldin, provincial public relations officer, has been ill for the past few months.

Each year there are five annual awards for students who enter MacDonald Institute, Guelph.

Mildred is receiving the congratulations of her friends on her outstanding success, arising from her work in grade 13 at the local high school.

Hardheaded Reporter Fears Biography Being Killed Off

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Isabel Ross is a jolly little blonde Scots-woman who looks like the last person in the world to hang crepe.

But—she's worried these days about the survival of something close to her heart: Biography.

"I'm afraid it's going to be killed off," she said recently as her latest book — Silhouette in Diamonds, on the queens of Chicago society, Mrs. Potter Palmer et al—hit the presses. "Everybody is writing his own biography, or having it ghosted.

"This terrible urge of self confession that's rampant," she sniffed, "is going to affect the whole biographical period."

"And besides, nowadays nobody keeps diaries, or even writes letters you can call letters. There are no more charming epistles being penned in violet ink and tied together by a ribbon to be discovered by a biographer."

This might make Miss Ross sound like a lavender-and-old-lace type. The truth is, she's been a hardheaded reporter since about the First World War. For years she covered the news events for the New York Herald Tribune, and she's still the tireless reporter in researching her books.

"I go after biographical facts the same way I would cover a story," she explained. "I study the historical scene, read books of the period, travel extensively and interview innumerable people."

CAME TO CANADA

Miss Ross left Scotland after finishing school, worked on Toronto newspapers for a while, then joined The Herald Tribune in 1919. On an assignment in 1922 she met and married Bruce Ray of the New York Times, and they're still a happy couple.

When their daughter arrived in 1933 she quit newspaper work to stay home with the baby. She tried writing novels, and her first one, Promenade Deck, became a best seller. It was made into a movie called Three on a Honeymoon, a fact she has learned to live with.

After a spate of novels the old reporting urge got the upper hand. She wrote Queen of the Press, a book that swept more than one impressionable girl into a newspaper career.

A biography of Elizabeth Blackwell, the first American woman doctor, followed, and that led to a procession of famous Civil War ladies: Mrs. Jefferson Davis, Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant, Rose O'Neal Greenhow, Clara Barton, Kate Chase.

Writing about people who have lived—and hence interviewable—descendants has its moments, but Miss Ross said she'd still prefer working on subjects in the 17th century. There would be no cut-raged family feelings to consider.

Women's Institute

BONARLAW W. I.

BONARLAW — The W. I. held its recent regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Gordon Webb with a splendid attendance and visitors.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. Myrtle Caulfield was in charge of the meeting, and opened in the usual manner.

The theme was on health, and the roll call included a common illness, which was well responded to.

Mrs. W. J. Barlow gave the report of the card party held at the home of Mrs. Cassidy, with $11.25 realized.

It was decided that as each charge of Christmas gifts would be held at next meeting on December 28th at the home of Mrs. Bert McCoy.

"Happy Birthday" was sung to Mrs. W. McInroy and Mrs. Spry.

Mrs. G. Burkitt, Reg. N., gave the topic on 'High and Low Blood Pressure'.

Humorous readings were given by Mrs. Wallace McInroy, Mrs. John McKeown and Mrs. Gerald Burkitt.

Mrs. George Thompson and Mrs. J. McKeown, Mr. C. Burkitt, put on contests.

The hostess and assistants served lunch.

They'll love a swarm gift smart.

Coat Variety

By VERA WINSTON

Coats take many forms, shapes, lines and lengths this season.

For example, here's a highly original model, a textured wool topper done in either winter white or a brilliant red, set off by licorice black buttons. Decorative seaming and dropped shoulder seams lend interest to this attractive model, the sort of thing that can be worn over tailored or more dressy clothes.

Women's Institute

RIVER VALLEY W. I.

STIRLING — On December 1st, Mrs. George Heasman was hostess for the Christmas meeting of River Valley Women's Institute.

The home was decorated with evergreens, pine cones, wreaths and special Christmas ornaments. There were 22 members, six visitors and 13 children, in attendance.

Mrs. Roy Tucker, president, was in charge of the meeting. She opened with "The Institute Ode" and the Mary Stewart collect in unison. Mrs. Phillip Conley officiated at the piano.

The roll call was centred on the thought, "A Christmas I'll Always Remember." Many different versions were given.

VARIOUS REPORTS

Mrs. George Heasman gave her report and presented a full financial picture. The proceeds of the pie social and three euchre parties in November were $62.50. These four evenings were convened by members of the group of agriculture and Canadian industries and thanks were extended to them. The president also gave a resume of the conventions who had donated prizes.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave a report of the morning and afternoon sessions of October 11th at the Trent Valley area conference, held in Orillia Opera House. The two speakers were Mrs. L. G. Trewhella of Port Colborne, F.W.I.O. president and Mrs. Jon. W. A. Goodfellow, Codrington.

Mrs. Roy Tucker, Woodman of the "Promises for Friendship Jar," sent a message which was read and the jar was passed around for the voluntary gift of pennies. This fund is used by A.C.W.W. for extension work in countries where it is needed most.

Some discussion took place re a sale at the Hickson sale barns at Hoard's on December 26th. Mrs. E. C. Hay-Ellis said her group will make the plans.

4-H CLUB WORK

Mrs. Gerald Brooks gave a resume of the girls' 4-H Club activities, which are attending the class and one more meeting will be held in January. The theme is, "Working With Wool."

Mrs. Allen McDonell gave a brief message re the service training group and their achievements on, "Window Treatment." The class has nine ladies enrolled.

Mrs. Ross Bush reported re the silver tray which is to be framed, in lieu of a Christmas exchange, when the members decided sometime ago to donate their 50 cents to a special fund. Over $17 was realized at this meeting and a committee was appointed to do the buying of a special Christmas gift. They were: Mrs. Ernest Carr; Mrs. John Carr, and Mrs. Phillip Conley.

The next meeting will be held on January 5th at the school kitchen, with Mrs. Gerald Brooks, as hostess. The meeting will be based on "Canadian Industries".

Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave a four reports. She summarized the executive meeting of West Hastings district W.I. held in Belleville, when plans were made to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the district. It will be held April 20th at 2 p.m. in Walbridge Orange Hall, and it is hoped that each of the seven branches will be represented.

Speaking on "Public Relations" she told of her opportunity to give a message on Institute work at the Federation of Agriculture banquet, and also gave an outline of her plans for a radio broadcast on December 9th.

In reporting for "The District Worksheet", on the theme, "Eat to Live", it is hoped to have more material early in the new year and the February meeting is based on that subject.

Mrs. MacMullen friendship link secretary sent a parcel of 108 corsages to Abbot's Leigh W.I. These were made by 16 ladies, and their names and a Christmas card were enclosed in the parcel. She displayed clippings that she had received from England and several newspapers. The papers were carried home by those who wished to read the English news.

FINE PROGRAM

The program was convened by Mrs. Allen McDonell and centred on "Citizenship and Christmas", the motto was entitled, "Give your child good books", and this was most informative.

Carol singing of "O' Come All Ye Faithful", and "Silent Night" was led by Mrs. Percy Usman.

The convener read a story entitled "A Grand Old Piece to Grandmother's House at Christmas. This was followed by a poem about "Santa Claus" for the children.

A contest, "Christmas Dinner 1960", was of interest as well as a brain teaser. One group had all answers correct. A box of nuts was the prize which all enjoyed.

The convener closed her program with two poems, one of which was "God Bless you All".

The president voiced thanks and the guests were introduced, after which the meeting closed with "The Lord's Prayer", in unison.

Pearled Perfection

By ALICE VALDEN

Luscious, lovely, gleaming cultured pearls of top quality are real heirloom treasures, as well as the perfect accessory to complete a beautiful ensemble.

Setting a new length of elegance is the matinee necklace, the pearls gently graduated.

Expressive of the trend for the tasteful yet lavish ornament is the pearl and jeweled golden sea branch pin offset with the deep blue of sparkling sapphires.

A 1961 calendar received from Germany by the convener was displayed.

TREAT FOR CHILDREN

Miss Mary Thomas recently donated $10 to be used for a special treat for the children and to assist with the Christmas menu. Thirteen small children received a large "Santa Claus Book" and a red stocking filled with goodies. The children formed a line by the chesterfield and after they received their gifts they said in unison "Thank You Mary".

The hostess and "the citizenship and education group", served sandwiches, relishes, cheese, fruit jellies, cookies, Christmas cake, grapes and candy also tea and coffee.

Mrs. Ernest Carr voiced thanks for the hospitality, program and refreshments and the group enjoyed a social half hour.

PHONE CAMPAIGN

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP)— Women got to work after the Junior Chamber of Commerce here announced it would drop plans for a candidates night because of lack of interest in previous years. Women voters began a telephone campaign and now have been in touch with more than half of the electors here.

The Experts Say

Canadians Are Sentimental But Do Not Want to Show It

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — The simple messages on greeting cards indicate our approach to easier living, says Donald Porter, president of a Canadian greeting card firm.

He says Canadians are as sentimental as ever but "they just don't want to show it."

No matter what the sentiment is, however, the etiquette of card-sending remains the same.

"Never type the envelope," Mr. Porter says. The address should be handwritten and the return address also handwritten unless it is imprinted on the card.

The card should be put into the envelope with the fold at the bottom so that the picture and message are right side up when the card is removed.

Common sense and the postal department set the mailing dates for cards but Mr. Porter says Christmas cards should really be there a few days before the holiday."

Informal greetings for friends and relatives may be signed either "John and Mary Brown" or "Mary and John Brown."

FATHER'S DAY

If the names of the children are added, the father's name should be first, followed by the mother and then the names of the children starting with the oldest. The family name, such as "The Browns," may be written above the individual names.

The plural is formed by adding s except in the case of names ending with ch, s, x or z. In those cases the plural is formed by adding es. However, "if as doesn't sound right, as in "The Haynezes," it's advisable to use "The Haynes Family."

It's not correct to use an apostrophe when indicating the plural of a name. It would be wrong to write "The Brown's."

A card addressed to a doctor should read "Dr. and Mrs. Tom Brown."

The use of colored ink adds a gay note to cards and is correct. Green and red are most popular but any hue may be used if it harmonizes with the color scheme of the card.

Mr. Porter says cards should reflect something of the sender's personality or surroundings. For his sister, who lives on a farm, Mr. Porter chose a country scene.

Inevitably people receive greetings from persons to whom they didn't send cards. There are "thank you" cards to send in return for Christmas wishes.

St. Andrew's Guild Elects 1960-61 Officers

WELLINGTON — St. Andrew's Guild held its annual Christmas meeting, at the home of Mrs. B. A. Evans last Thursday evening. Mrs. J. B. Leversedge was co-hostess.

The Rev. J. J. Rogers opened the meeting with prayer. There were 13 members and one visitor present. A card of thanks is to be sent to Mrs. Clarence Bovay of Belleville, for the lovely gifts she sent to be sold at the bazaar. The secretary and treasurer gave their annual reports.

A slate of officers was presented to Mr. Rogers by Mrs. D. Boyle who conducted the election of the officers for 1961 who are as follows: Mrs. B. A. Evans — president; Mrs. Colin Ladd — vice-president; Mrs. D. Murphy — secretary and Mrs. J. Rogers — treasurer.

It was decided that the Guild donate $100 to the church extension fund.

A Christmas bake sale will be held in the Town Hall, December 15th at 2 p.m.

Gifts are to be sent to Archie McCullough and Foster Bailey at Christmas.

A supper with bridge and euchre party following is planned for January 20th. A Valentine tea is to be held February 14th and the date was set as November 9th, 1961, for the annual Christmas tea and bazaar.

After the meeting closed, a buffet lunch was arranged on the dining room table where was a real Christmas feast.

After refreshments the usual Christmas exchange of gifts took place.

HOW DO YOU RATE AS A GUEST?

Parties galore are in the planning stages now for the exciting weeks ahead, during which we will celebrate both Christmas and the New Year. Since one of the greatest courtesies that can be extended to us by our friends is to be asked to break bread in their homes, it would seem wise to take further stock of how we behave when filling the role of guest.

One deplorably bad habit is to fail to answer an invitation immediately. The least one can do to show appreciation for the thought, whether declining or accepting, is to acknowledge any invitation that requires an answer within twenty-four hours after you receive it. This is particularly important if you are invited for a meal, whether it be luncheon, dinner or a buffet. This time of year, with so many parties going on, it is only fair to the hosts. After all, they have to make plans ahead if the function is to be a success.

The unpardonable rudeness is to wait until a day or two before the party to let those who have been kind enough to include you in their hospitality know whether or not you intend to come. Soon your fellow hostesses would be scratched off the list forevermore! They just deserve it.

There is another way in which guests can prove to slip up. Too often they wander in late, insulting the intelligence of their hostess by offering stupid reasons for their tardiness. Obviously no real effort has been made to be on time. Actually, unless an emergency causes you to be late or when you have been asked for a definite time, it is an unpardonable affront to the hosts. Incidentally, a dinner hostess, for example, should never wait longer than fifteen minutes for those who are late.

While on the subject of dinner parties, it might be well to mention as infraction of the rules of good taste that is indulged in by far too many hostesses. They allow food to be passed to them before it is presented to their guests. Now, I'll grant that there has been controversy about this. I have never been able to understand why. It would seem very obvious that it is rude for a hostess to be served first.

Consideration of her guests should be her main concern, and helping herself first would most certainly not indicate this. A hostess should always be the last woman to be served when other ladies are guests at her table.

* * *

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Question . . . My wife has one bad habit that annoys me very much. It's a small thing, but here goes! She sets a pretty table for dinner every night, but insists upon placing bottles of catsup and mustard on the table. They look awful, but she won't listen to my plea that she do away with them. She does this every we have company.

Mr. E. W. L.

Answer . . . Why don't you stop at a department store on your way home and pick up a china set just made to hold the contents of these ugly bottles? I agree that the bottles themselves do not add to the beauty of any table, but these china containers are very attractive and will take care of your problem, I'm sure!

Russian Dam-Power System For Warming Arctic Possible Test of Our Sense of Humor

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Soviet proposals for a Bering Strait dam-and-pump system to warm the Arctic raise doubts whether the plans "is put forward seriously or as a means of testing our sense of humor," says a special report on the project for the Canadian government.

"If the scheme it to be taken seriously—and I think there is just enough to warrant taking it seriously—it should be studied by an international scientific commission which would have to attack many moths before the compelling results can be presented," says M. J. Dunbar, associate professor of zoology at McGill University and a director of the Arctic Institute of North America.

His Preliminary Report on the Bering Strait Scheme, requested by the department of northern affairs and national resources, was released recently.

The recurring Soviet proposal is that a dam be built across the 53-mile wide stretch of water between Alaska and Siberia. Giant pumps would be used to dump Arctic Ocean water into the Pacific, hastening the flow of warmer Atlantic water, into the Arctic from the east and raising temperatures in the ice-covered sea.

MAY BE IMPOSSIBLE

Some of Prof. Dunbar's conclusions:

1. It is "very doubtful" that the scheme is possible on mechanical grounds. Existing natural circulating in the Arctic Ocean by currents "is such to dwarf anything we can do at present."

2 If it did prove feasible, the scheme would have far-reaching impact, partly bad. Northern climate would develop higher temperatures and more snow and rain, probably nourishing another glacial advance.

3. The important improvements would be on the Soviet side.

4 Marine life would change most significantly at commercial quantities of cod and other fish ranged northward.

5. A Bering Strait dam alone —without pumps—would block off an inflow current from the Pacific and reduce the outflow elsewhere to affect the eastern Canadian Arctic and Greenland.

Prof. Dunbar emphasizes that the conclusions are only tentative and preliminary and "perhaps the building of a working model would be useful."

WOULD REVERSE FLOW

The Arctic Ocean, with its heavy lid of permanent shifting ice, is largely land-locked. One entry is the Bering Strait with its northward current. Another northward Atlantic current enters north of Scotland and the saltier and warmer water submerges on impact to form a submarine blanket many feet thick.

Meanwhile, southward currents exist on both the Greenland coast and through the Canadian archipelago which drive thick floes with tremendous force between the sounds and straits.

Finally, there is considerable runoff from land into the Arctic Ocean.

The concept of a Bering Strait dam was raised as early as the 1890s and resurrected by the Soviet Union with official backing after the Second World War. The latest Soviet scheme would reverse the pumping flow—south rather than north

The dam itself presumably needs only time, financial and energy, says Prof. Dunbar. He assumes the necessary pumps to speed up the Atlantic inflow of water would have to be most considerably more powerful and efficient than those now existing, perhaps atomic powered.

For example, he calculates that it could take up to 870 years to change the inflow using 1,000 pumps about 35 feet in diameter and each capable of the tremendous job of moving some 220,500 pounds of water a second.

SOVIET DAM PLAN — A report to the Canadian government has raised doubts about the feasibility of Soviet proposals for a huge dam between Siberia and Alaska to warm the Arctic.

The Soviet plan calls for a dam to be built across the 50-mile Bering Strait. Giant pumps would draw Arctic Ocean water into the Pacific and increase the flow of warmer Gulf Stream water (solid arrows) across the North from the Atlantic Ocean.

It suggests the warm flow (broken arrows) across the North Pole would melt the now-permanent ice cap and open the Arctic Ocean to navigation.

The preliminary report to the department of northern affairs and national resources questions the mechanical feasibility of such a huge undertaking and warns that another glacial advance could be started by warming the Arctic. (CP Newsmap).

Latin-American Countries Are Magnets for Those Seeking Export Markets

OTTAWA (CP) — Latin-American countries in general, and Cuba in particular, appear to be magnets for Canadian companies seeking new export markets.

Businessmen attending the government's last export-promotion conference are flocking to the desks of Canadian trade commissioners from Latin-American countries.

Most of all, they want to see Roger Parlour, the government's trade representative in Cuba—a country that has aroused widespread interest among Canadian exporters since the United States government embargoed American shipments to the island republic.

The export conference has brought to Ottawa 111 Canadian trade commissioners to be available for private talks with Canadian businessmen waiting in a service room nearby. For the average commissioner, this means perhaps a dozen interviews daily.

HAS BUSY SCHEDULE

But conference officials say the Massachusetts-born Mr. Parlour will be having 18, 17 and 18 half-hour private views daily throughout the two-week conference.

Officials also report crowded appointment books for the other 30 trade commissioners from 11 other Latin-American countries.

Canadian firms—nearly 1,100 will be attending the conference —are reported strongly interested as well in markets in the United Kingdom, Russia, Japan and Australia.

Three trade commissioners in European capitals Monday told a press conference the same story: There are plenty of sales opportunities in Europe if Canadian producers have a quality product and use some sales effort.

CITES LARGE MARKET

Robert Thomson said there is scope in Austria for sales of almost anything "from wheat to asbestos to drug freezers." And even though Gotrman and Italian factories were nearby, this factor could be offset by aggressive salesmanship.

Mr. Thomson's sales field also covers five Communist countries in Central and Eastern Europe. He said the Communist countries were seeking to develop their agricultural and industrial economies and this meant sales possibilities for livestock breeding animals and seeds and for industrial raw materials—even for industrial machinery if it's good.

G i y a Woollam, agricultural counsellor in The Netherlands, told reporters that the foreseen sales opportunities in that country for pulp and paper products and many types of manufactured goods.

T. J. Monty, trade commissioner in Portugal, said Canadian exporters face strong price competition. There was a need to improve productive facilities in Canada to match the growing efficiency of European factories.

QUAKE IN PORTUGAL

LISBON (AP)—An earthquake was registered in southern Portugal Monday night. Reports from Olhao said the tremor was so violent that people ran from their houses.

DEW LINE RIGGES — Lashed by bitter wind and driving blizzards, these huts at the RCAF's Cape Dyer Dew Line outpost on Baffin Island are almost buried under snow. The huts were used by construction workers when the radar site was being built. They have since been replaced by more modern buildings better suited to the climate. Mountains are rounding this site rising 8,000 to 9,000 feet above Davis Strait. (CP from National Defence).

Area Around Lonely DEW Line Post So Barren Even Hardy Eskimos Avoid It

By GERRY McNEIL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — The rugged aspects of northern life are nowhere more evident than at Cape Dyer, site of a DEW line outpost on the western coast of Baffin Island.

This cheerless radar station, 1,500 miles north of Montreal, is located in an area so barren and so devoid of life that even the hardiest Eskimos avoided it.

A few Eskimos live there now but they are employed at the station and have been brought in from other parts of the big East ern Arctic island.

RCAF and civilian workers find their one-year hitch lengthy, despite ample indoor comforts. Outdoors, nature offers little beyond good fishing and rugged scenery.

Camp Dyer stands on a 2,500-foot mountain that plunges almost sheer into Davis Strait. Other mountains rise 3,000 and 4,000 feet high around the base.

NOTHING BUT ROCK

The area is treeless because of the solid rock. Lichen, arctic cotton and a few tired flowers struggle for life in boulder-strewn surroundings.

"Even a few months here can be tough," said FO Peter Conroy, 31, of Ottawa, in a telephone conversation with a reporter at St. Hubert RCAF base near Montreal.

An hour before the conversation, another worker at Cape Dyer had to make a hurried run for his snowmobile when a polar bear turned on him as he took pictures.

"There are a lot of bears around this time of year," explained FO Conroy. "Davis Strait hasn't frozen yet and they're landlocked until it does.

"Later, they'll go out on the ice."

The bears, like most northern natives, aren't fussy eaters and will take what they can get. That's one reason for not venturing often from the base.

LIKE GARBAGE

The usually-hungry creatures frequent the nearby garbage dump, nicknamed as a result Federal Electric Free Shacks after the firm that built the DEW line posts in the early 1950s.

"We can't bury the garbage or we would," said FO Conroy.

Only a few arctic fox and other small animals roam in the area and the polar bears are part - time residents. Eskimos never settled there because hunting is so poor.

There are Eskimo settlements at Pangnirtung, about 125 miles east and the site of an RCMP post, and Padlopiq Island, about 25 miles north, but separated from Cape Dyer by mountains as high as 8,000 feet.

Despite the isolation, an underwater cable to Newfoundland and a scatter-wave system permits telephone conversations to be made easily with the outside world.

If the Cape Dyer radar records suspicious objects, North American Air Defence Command headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo., can be put on the alert in seconds. The telephone link also extends to other DEW and Pine Tree line radar stations and to RCAF and USAF bases throughout North America.

Apart from the defence aspect, it's reassuring to be able to call the outside world when a 100-mile an-hour gale is blowing and a great white face is peeking hungrily in the window.

Carmel

CARMEL — There was a good attendance at church on Sunday a.m. also at Sunday School.

There are several cases of flu and mumps around.

A large crowd motored to town on Saturday to see the Santa Claus parade. Santa also went to the hospital to see the sick ones.

All will be glad when Dennis Hopkins is able to be home again. He is in hospital at present.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Noonan have returned from their wedding trip and are now in their home, a pleasant evening this past week was enjoyed by all and made the young couple welcome. All wish Harvey and Helen rich blessings.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Pilchett and Miss Bessie Hollinger called on their sister, Mrs. H. Dafoe. They all attended the Alliance Church to hear the Rev. Mr. Palmer at the Sunday morning service.

On Sunday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Carman Dafoe and family were guests of Mrs. E. Zufelt, Stockdale.

Mrs. J. Reynolds is with her granddaughter for a while.

Mr. Beaudrie who has been in hospital is home again.

Mr. and Mrs. George McDonald, Point Anne, had their baby christened at Carmel church on Sunday morning.

Mr. C. Gowthorpe is home on leave for a time. He will be leaving again in another week to be gone for some time. Always glad to see Tommy.

GRASS TYPES

Eighty - one general and 450 species of grass are native or have been introduced to Canada.

Sheep Industry To Be Assisted By Governments

OTTAWA (CP) — A new federal-provincial program designed to stimulate the sheep industry was announced Monday by the agriculture department.

It will provide varying levels of financial aid in transporting commercial ewes and lambs to be kept for breeding purposes and for setting up demonstration flocks at points across Canada.

The department requires legislative approval in several provinces while new lamb marketing authority to enter the plan.

Monday's announcement says the federal government will match provincial government contributions toward transport costs, up to a maximum Ottawa share of 50 per cent.

It is understood Ontario would pay one - half of the shipping costs.

Aid will be given on shipping sheep within Eastern Canada, from the West to Eastern Canada, and from Quebec to the Atlantic provinces and Ontario.

In order to qualify for aid, the sheep must be purchased by producers for breeding purposes and each shipment must be approved by provincial agriculture departments. There cannot be fewer than 100 ewes or ewe lambs in any one shipment and the minimum shipping distance will be 200 miles by the shortest route.

POPE TO BROADCAST

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — Pope John is to broadcast his third Christmas message to the world at 2 p.m. EST Dec. 22, it was announced Monday.

SARNIA (CP)— Nicholas Plain, 84, a former Sarnia Indian chief, died Monday night in hospital here. He was chief of the Sarnia Indian band for a total of nine years.

WELLINGTON

14 Confirmed By Bishop at St. Andrew's

WELLINGTON — The Anglican Church of St. Andrew's, Wellington, was filled last Sunday afternoon when the Rt. Rev. K. C. Evans, Ph. D.D.D., Lord Bishop of Ontario, made his annual visitation to the parish of Wellington and Hillier.

The rector of St. Andrew's, the Rev. J. Rogers, presented 14 confirmants to the Bishop, who administered the Apostolic Rite of Holy Confirmation.

In his sermon, Bishop Evans spoke of Leaders of Abyssa, who perished when Hero's light failed, and compared him to Moses, who became his chose to follow the inner light of God survived 80 years in the wilderness. He challenged the congregation to choose as Moses did, not the uncertain and undependable ways of man, but rather to walk faithfully, "as seeing Him who is invisible."

Those presented to the Bishop for the "Laying on of Hands" were: Brenda Burjoy, Rosemary Brown, Edith Bird, Pauline Burt, Suzanne Callow, Reta Mae Irvine, Evelyn Middleton, Fay Middleton, Bonnie Reed, Linda Springtine, Barry Greatrix, Borden Greatrix, Benny Burley and Robert Chalk.

Following the service, the ladies of Christ Church Guild, Hillier and St. Andrew's Church, Wellington, assisted by Mrs. G.A. Hyde of St. Andrew's, served at an informal reception held in the Town Hall.

ONLY THING TO LOOK OUT FOR IS SCENERY

The Way of the Worry-Free

The eyes of children brighten at the prospect of a trip by train.

For trains have charm—a strange mixture of majesty and friendliness and magnetism.

To a child, there's a wonderful freedom in a train—to move about, watch the enchanting scenery, discover the wonders of the water cooler, sample the fabulous wares of the candy man.

Ask the mother who rides with Canadian National Railways—why does she? Many will be her reasons —privacy, roominess, comfort, assurance. She will tell you that she leaves anxiety behind, that for her it is the way of the worry-free.

Even Dad gets a holiday—from long hours, behind the wheel, the battle of the crowded road, the fatigue, the tension.

For each in his own way it is this feeling of freedom and assurance that is making so many of today's motorists say: "Take it easier—take the train".

END BELLEVILLE BOY SCOUT AUXILIARY
By CHRIS MAGOAT

It is always nice to be on the good side of the weatherman. This was more than amply demonstrated recently when the ladies of 2nd Bellerville of Boy Scout Auxiliary. The occasion was the second annual "Coffee Party" to be held by this group of ambitious women.

The beautiful fall weather united a warm friendly group of customers to partake of the "Coffee Break" served in the cheery atmosphere of the gaily decorated Parish Hall. The colors of 2nd Bellevile of yellow and green added a gay note to the sunshine flooding the room. The tables, with their green cloths, centred with a coffee carafe were grouped for easy conversation. Colorful Scout serviettes added their own special significance.

Mrs. William Yates as convenor and her assistants, Mrs. A. Wagner and Mrs. R. E. Dafoe and their co-workers must be congratulated on their excellent "with a smile" service. The "Coffee Break" consisted of hot rolled or muffins wit hjam and superb coffee.

Upon entering the parish hall the guests were warmly welcomed by the president of the Auxiliary, Mrs. H. Halliday, and in the absence of treasurer, Mrs. J. Reid, Mrs. J. Johnston received the tickets and sent any youngsters on their way to the nursery provided by Mrs. Ray Pringle and Mrs. F. B. Henderson. The kiddies were provided with toys and like mummy, had their "milk and cookie break".

A happy jolly, rosy-cheeked Santa standing near the home oven bake table extended greetings. Here the tempting array of cookies, tarts, cakes of all sizes and pies caught the eye of the ladies and gentlemen.

Following on around the room, one's eye was caught by the colorful array of homemade jams, jellies, pickles, then on to the new innovation of the coffee party, the addition, of the delicatessen department. Here the late shopper could take home a complete meal including frozen pies, sausage rolls, meat pies, macaroni and cheese casseroles to fruit salads.

Tray that would be the joy of any little girl were soft cuddly "Raggedy Ann" type dolls, stuffed bows with long flowing mane; a floppy-eared dog and a perky black leatherette pussy cat. A few soap and wash cloth dolls also were made up with talent Pantry Shelf table with Mrs. J. Hodgson, Mrs. William Lowther and Mrs. H. Cooney as convenors.

A striking addition to one corner was the replica of Christ Church done in pink icing, soap flakes for the roof and cookies for windows and doors. This was designed and executed by Mrs. E. Ingraham. It was indeed a work of art and brought forth many exclamations of admiration from the guests.

The name behind the scenes workers are certainly not to be forgotten, for their untiring efforts helped make this 1960 Coffee Party the success that it was. These included Mesdames I. Blaker, J. Foster, G. Colwill, E. F. Grimm, G. Gray, J. Fleicher, W. Parsons, W. M. McCormick, H. Burley, E. Ingraham, G. Bongard.

It was a pleasure to welcome ladies from the following auxiliaries — Avondale, Canadian-Corbyville and 1st, 3rd, 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th of Belleville.

Many thanks are extended to Mrs. J. Hodgson for her fine report.

AVONDALE CUBS

This lively Cub Pack has had a very busy month of 11 according to the interesting report received from A.C.M. Bea Wilson. December, the most important event of recent date was a "Go-Go" Ceremony. Scouters Norm Wilcox and Len Furney welcomed the following boys into the troop — Brian Hardesty, Don Outred, Ross McDougall, Roger Wilson, Gary Cameron, David Christopher and Donald Wyatt. Welcome to becoming a Queen's Scout, the step from the comfortable safety of the Cub Pack to the strenuous and demanding duties of a Scout Troop, is the most important event in Scouting. This is the one ceremony that parents should attend but will be proud to see you there and it is a thrill you will never forget. It is about the only ceremony you can show their appreciation to the leaders who have given so many night to train your boys.

Cub Gary Cameron was the successful winner of the best decorated basket on apple day.

BADGES AWARDED

Cub Bobby Sills received the Artists badge and Cub Dennis Pralick the Entertainers badge.

The regular Cub meeting and Hallowe'en happened to be the same day this year and despite the tempting to go out for treats, 23 cubs attended the pack meeting. Four chums were initiated — David Sumner, Allan Isaacs, Ian Jarvis and Tommy Wright. The games they were duly inspected to see that every mask or white paint was removed.

MR. DePAUL

A beautiful morocco leather wallet, inscribed with the Boy Scouts crest, was presented to Mr. DePaul for his help and leadership to the Cub Pack.

After this pleasant affair the evening was brought to games, dipping for apples, singing and generally having a lot of fun.

We pass this on as a suggestion for a wonderful idea to leaders of Packs and Troops for next Hallowe'en night.

Signalmen Say Life Is Nice In the Congo

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ELISABETHVILLE (CP)—Canadian Army signalmen attached to the United Nations force say life is pleasant, though dull, in this hot, dry capital of the Congo's Katanga province, some 5,000 feet above sea level in the heart of Central Africa.

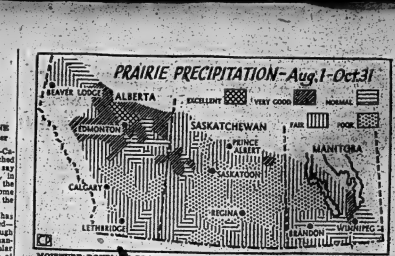
Their biggest complaint has been the difficulty—now solved—of getting mail regularly through Canadian Army and UN channels. This was due to irregular UN flights from headquarters at Leopoldville, 1,450 miles northwest of here.

In one 32-day period, the detachment received only two mail deliveries, compared with an average of five a week in Leopoldville. The signalmen here got around the difficulty by renting a post office box and by using regular mail services. Now, by using both facilities, they get mail from home in four days.

The Canadian contingent is concerned, the Canadians have little to do apart from an evening at the movies. Arrangements have been made to take weekend trips to Northern Rhodesia.

CLOSED CLUBS

There are many facilities for officers of Belgian, such as a golf club, riding academy, archery range, swimming pools and the like, but UN troops are not welcome in them.



The signalmen dress in civilian clothes—tie and coat—for dinner almost every night. Food in hotel dining rooms and restaurants is good and varied.

Some days they have been invited to European homes for supper, but Belgians now are aloof toward UN troops, mainly as a result of an anti-UN campaign in the press here.

The Canadians say they have met hostility on the part of the Congolese and get along well with Belgians. This appears to puzzle the Belgians.

"They can't understand how we can be friendly with the natives," said Cpl. Danny MacDonald, 33, of Edmonton, a cypher clerk in the detachment. "We treat them as equals and get along fine."

MacDonald has been nicknamed the "welfare officer" by his fellow-signalmen because he's always handing out gum and candy to youngsters who hang around the UN offices and the signalmen's quarters.

MOISTURE DOWN ON PRAIRIES—Fall precipitation over Canadian grain lands was less this year than in all but three of the last 25 years.

The company said fall rain across the provinces in August, September and October averaged 69 per cent of normal compared with 148 per cent of normal in 1959. (CP Newsmap)

Stewart Udall Of Arizona In Cabinet

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect John Kennedy will fill a third cabinet post today by formally naming Rep. Arizona Democrat Stewart Udall of Arizona interior secretary.

Kennedy already has chosen Governor Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut for secretary of health, education and welfare and Governor Luther Hodges of North Carolina for commerce secretary.

That leaves seven cabinet openings still to fill. Kennedy said Tuesday night he expects to announce his selection for state secretary soon.

That was on his arrival from Washington to spend a night of sorts on the town. He dined with an old friend, banker Charles Spalding, at a restaurant and then laughed and applauded at a Broadway play The Best Man—built around a political convention.

Today it was back to business as usual.

TALK TO DAG

The president-elect had a breakfast engagement with Dag Hammarskjold, secretary-general of the United Nations, to discuss pressing world problems involving the peace of mankind.

He had a luncheon date with David Cassidy Gore, British delegate at the UN who is a friend of many years.

Udall is a westerner tapped for a spot that usually goes to a westerner because of the interior department's responsibility covering reclamation, forests and Indian affairs. A 40-year-old Texas lawyer, Udall has had a long-standing interest in the problems of Indians.

Kennedy is flying back to Washington tonight.

Many Purchases Made on Basis Of Brand Symbol

TORONTO (CP) — Men: Remember why you married your wife?

A Chicago marketing specialist doubts you can — at least, with any degree of accuracy.

Louis Cheskin said Tuesday, 95 per cent of the decision made in love—or in the supermarket — are at the subconscious level. Only five per cent are made consciously or rationally.

Mr. Cheskin, director of the Color Research Institute of Chicago, told the Packaging Association of Canada 95 out of every 100 shoppers unconsciously make their purchases on the basis of the package, the brand symbol or the color.

"About five per cent are aware of product quality," he said, "and they consciously disregard the psychological factors such as design, color and other brand symbols that have no direct relationship to the quality of the product."

"Many a man marries a girl because he became infatuated with her cute nose or her blonde hair. But what is the reason he gives for marrying the girl? Her remarkable character."

Girls Admit Spending Night In Apartment

HAMILTON (CP)—Three teenaged Toronto girls told a preliminary hearing into morals charges against a Hamilton man that they entered inscriptions in a "beatnik Bible" before spending two nights in the man's apartment.

The girls, one 13 and the other two 14, were assisting in a hearing of charges of carnal knowledge and indecent assault against Arthur Paul, 29.

The three girls told the court they ran away from home and came here where they were picked up by three boys Nov. 19. They said they spent the night in a car with the boys and were taken to Padbury's apartment the following day.

They said they signed their names and wrote a thought in a black book which Padbury described as a beatnik Bible.

GIRLS TESTIFY

The girls testified they left the apartment on Wednesday and went to nearby Stoney Creek, where they became lost. They asked directions at the home of Stoney Creek Mayor John Watson, who called police.

The police searched Padbury's apartment the next day. Photographs of his room showed artificial flowers entwined through a bedspring leaning against a rose-mone's skull on the bed, photograph records nailed to the wall and a few paintings.

Padbury has asked for trial by judge and jury. The hearing was adjourned to Thursday.

30 Attend IOOF Banquet, Reception

STIRLING — Mr. Earl Foxe, Department Commander Fairbanks Militant and Mrs. Foxe, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Fraser, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hulin, Mr. and Mrs. George Carlton, and some 30 members of the local I.O.O.F. in Stirling and their wives, attended a reception and banquet in the Masonic Temple, Campbellford, on Monday evening, in honor of the Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Ontario, Mr. Ralph E. Yager.

The reception was for District 45, which comprises lodges from Stirling, Madoc, Thomasburg, Tweed, Springbrook and Campbellford.

The guest speaker, Grand Master Yager, gave a most impressive and lengthy message of Odd Fellowship." His slogan is "Progress With Determination," and he hopes to have 1,000 new members, in Ontario, this year. He stressed the C. P. and T. fund, the Odd Fellows' Home in Bracebridge, Ontario, and other special items and said all were worthy of consideration by all lodge members.

At the close of the proceedings the group enjoyed dancing with Bruce Barram's orchestra providing the music.

Elected Trial On Three Charges

TORONTO (CP) — A leader of Toronto's Chinese community pleaded not guilty Tuesday in court to three charges of conspiring to smuggle Chinese into Canada.

George Chan denied making false statements in an affidavit. He elected to be tried by judge and jury.

Lee Ling, 78, a laundryman from Kingston, was the first man Chan when he applied for his Canadian citizenship in 1951. He said he asked Chan to file application of entry for his grandsons.

Publisher Forced to Stop Distribution of Magazines In U.S. Because of Duty

MONTREAL (CP) — A Canadian publisher said Tuesday he was forced to stop distributing a photographic "house organ" in the United States because of a duty levied on it by the U.S. customs department.

Michael Resin, Montreal publisher of the monthly Photo Age, said in a brief to the royal commission on publications the customs department slapped a five-per-cent duty on his magazine—then titled Photo Digest—when it exported it to the United States.

He described the publication as a "house organ" since it was sold to photographic dealers who gave it away to their customers.

In Canada, he said, the national revenue department has classed the publication as a magazine for sales tax purposes since it contained a minimum of 40 per cent non-advertising material.

"This was our experience with the free flow of ideas north-south," he said.

SUGGESTS COMMISSIONER

Mr. Resin suggested a Canadian magazine commissioner be appointed as a liaison be-tween the government and publishers and that a tariff be placed on foreign magazines based on whether a magazine of the same "class or kind" was published in Canada.

He suggested that the tariff be based on the foreign magazine's advertising rate in Canada, but made it eligible for second-class Canadian postal rates a regular subscription with a Canadian address.

Concert Pianist Files $300,000 Damage Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — Canadian concert pianist Glenn Gould filed a $300,000 damage suit Tuesday against Steinway and Sons, piano manufacturers, claiming he suffered physical injuries at the hands of a Steinway employee.

Gould, of Toronto, also named the employee, William Hupfer, chief technician for Steinway, a defendant.

Gould said that on Dec. 1, 1959 he was seated in the office of a Steinway executive when Hupfer approached from behind and "wilfully or recklessly or negligently brought his forearms down with considerable force on the plaintiff's neck and left shoulder, driving the plaintiff's left elbow against the arm of the chair in which he was sitting."

The suit said Gould has "extreme and unusual sensitivity to physical contact," of which the Steinway Company and Hupfer had been apprised.

COMPLAINED TO COMPANY

Gould, who said he performs exclusively on Steinway pianos, claimed that before the alleged incident in the executive's office he had complained to the company of the "unduly strong handshakes and other demonstrative acts of the defendant Hupfer toward (the plaintiff."

He said that he demanded of Steinway he "protect" him but the company retained Hupfer in spite of requests by the plaintiff, and "wilfully, recklessly or negligently failed or refused to restrain his activities."

As a result, the suit said, Gould suffered injuries to his neck, shoulder and spinal discs and impairment in the use of his left hand, which prevented him from engaging in concert and recording performances.

Gould claimed that to date he has spent $1,000 for medical expenses and lost $21,400 in earnings.

House Briefs

WILL TABLE REPORT

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister Starr said Tuesday a new report from the unemployment insurance advisory committee will be tabled in the Commons as soon as he has had time and a chance to deal with it. The report dealt with the state of the Unemployment Insurance Fund after a full year of increased contributions from workers, employers and government.

MAKE TWO FLIGHTS

Two flights by United States U-2 aircraft have been made over Canadian territory since last May when a U-2 came down deep in Russia, External Affairs Minister Green said in a written reply. Requests for the flights were similar to those made for earlier ones and conducted in accordance with a 1952 cabinet regulation, he said.

NOT APPROPRIATE

Postmaster - General William Hamilton said it would be inappropriate for action on postage rates for, second-class mail while the royal commission on publications is considering related matters. He was replying to Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur).

ACCUSES MINISTER

No restrictions have been placed as yet on what institutions of higher learning are eligible for government loans to bona fide student residences, Works Minister Walker said, J. W. Pickersgill (L—Bonavista - Twillingate) immediately accused Mr. Walker of retreating from a position taken earlier when the legislation was passed by the Commons.

NO CUBAN RESTRICTIONS

Trade Minister Hees said he is unaware of restrictions now being applied by U.S. firms against their Canadian subsidiaries selling goods to Cuba.

DECLINES COMMENT

Defence Minister Douglas Harkness, acting minister of agriculture, declined Tuesday to comment on reports the government may lower the support price for butter or make deficiency payments.

Members Given Same Rights As Citizens

TORONTO (CP) — A bill amending the Legislative Assembly Act to give members of the legislature the same common rights as ordinary citizens was given third and final reading Tuesday night.

The bill, rushed through without opposition, gives members freedom of action on public matters and enter into a contract with the government under justifiable circumstances.

Previously it was illegal for a member to accept public contracts, even if his land was expropriated for a highway or a Hydro project.

Premier Frost told the legislature that the bill was one that could be interpreted to prevent a member from accepting a land award or payment for the loss of his property through expropriation.

The amended act now lists the statutes under which a member may act and gives members of the provides that a resolution is all that is necessary to enter into a contract with a branch of the government. Formerly a special legislative act was required.

It was the Legislative Assembly Act which was cited in the case of the illegibility of Phillip Hoffman (Sudbury Conservative) in his seat this session because as a retired civil servant he had owing him more than $2,000 in accumulated holiday and sick pay benefits.

Mr. Hoffman has still not taken his seat, but the attorney-general's department has ruled that he may retain the legislative seat as soon as Mr. Frost desires to introduce him.

Mother Guilty Of Feeding Pills To Daughters

CLEVELAND (AP) — A juvenile court jury Tuesday convicted Mrs. Lillian Fratantonio of charges that she mistreated her "sleeping beauty" daughters by secretly feeding them sleep inducing drugs.

Judge Albert A. Woldman said he will order psychiatric examinations for Mrs. Fratantonio, 28, who was accused by the prosecution of bringing her two daughters close to death by feeding them barbiturates which kept them in prolonged coma.

The girls, Bonnie Lynette, 4, and Venita, 5, now are in custody of a church home.

Judge Woldman continued Mrs. Fratantonio's $1,000 bond and put her in custody of her husband, Vincent.

The key element in the state's case was a statement in which Mrs. Fratantonio confessed to the druggings. Police later repudiated it, and denied from the witness stand that she had made such an admission.

But the prosecution drew from her the admission that she had written her initials beside one answer in the statement, after changing it from "yes" to "yes, but it was in love." The question was whether she had used an eye-dropper to administer the drugs.

A year ago last September, prosecutors began a similar trial on prolonged comas. In July the grand jury investigating the juvenile sleeping happenings in Venita's specialists were puzzled by the cause of both sisters' illness.

Venita was in the hospital had blood tests made for the presence of sleep-inducing drugs that supposedly are obtained only by prescription from a physician's pad. The children were isolated and began to improve immediately.

Multiple Use Of Parklands Seen in Bill

TORONTO (CP) — Two bills dealing with the "multiple use" of provincial parklands were given first reading in the Ontario legislature Tuesday.

One proposes a bill to amend the Provincial Parks Act, Lands and Forest Minister Spooner said his department is developing a program to make better use of recreational lands for the benefit of more people.

The act would permit cabinet-in-council to pass regulations making provincial parks available for recreational activities and for commercial purposes. Under management control, would be one of the new activities permitted in provincial parks.

The "multiple use" of parks will include winter sports eventually, Mr. Spooner said outside the legislature. The department will employ a skiing expert, probably from Europe, to take charge of winter sport.

The second bill provides for enlargement of Algonquin Park by 167 square miles through the incorporation of Bruton and Clyde townships in Haliburton County. The total acreage will be increased to 1,912 square miles.

The traditional hunting and fishing rights are to be maintained in the new township, although hunting will still be prohibited in the rest of the park.

Mr. Spooner said Mr. Scott said duck hunting was permitted in the new area, but hunting near Oshawa and deer hunting would be prohibited in certain parks in the fall of 1961.

Mr. K. Is Ill, Unable to See Cyrus Eaton

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Nikita Khrushchev today was under doctors' orders to stay in bed until he shakes off a feverish attack of influenza.

The latest report on the Soviet premier's illness was relayed to Canadian-born industrialist Cyrus Eaton who left Moscow today after chatting with Khrushchev's wife, Nina.

Mrs. Eaton said Mrs. Khrushchev told him the 66-year-old premier was "in bed ill—with a chest cold and slight temperature."

"The doctors are not allowing him to get up," she reported. "He sent me a nice letter and a message for me to get a touch of influenza, I think."

Calm Restored Around New Orleans School As Police Keep Demonstrators Block Away

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Police action holding women demonstrators a block away from an integrated school brought outward calm today around entrances to the building.

Twenty-three white children entered the William Frantz school Tuesday, the largest number since a boycott emptied the street of some 50 pupils Nov. 14 following enrolment of a Negro girl in the first grade.

A school board member said a complete white boycott by about 200 white pupils of McDonough No. 19 elementary school was still in force because parents do not want to incur the wrath of their neighbors. Three Negro girls are in the first grade at McDonogh.

Ill feeling over attendance of his daughter at the Frantz school prompted James Gabrielle to give up his job with the city sewerage and water department. He said he was quitting Dec. 15 because fellow workers heckled him.

Mrs. Gabrielle has escorted her daughter to the school since the current began. She was also threatened with an egg by booing demonstrators Monday.

A visitor to the scene, Swedish-born Dr. Brigitta Steene, a woman assistant professor of English at the Calgary branch of the University of Alberta, was the target of an egg thrower Tuesday. Pickets questioned her say she had no objection to inter-racial marriages. The egg missed her but hit a reporter. The teacher later denied making such a statement.

As Miss Steene was escorted away by police, the demonstrators shouted: "We'll get you a nigger to marry. We'll get you Luther King."

Rev. Martin Luther King, formerly of Montgomery, Ala., and now of Atlanta, is a Negro integration leader.

Tension over the integration order has been confined for several days by the arrest of the schools, and the home and Methodist Church of Rev. Lloyd Foreman who has refused to withdraw his daughter from Frantz despite threats and insults.

A 24-hour police guard of Foreman's youngsters has been ordered after vandals splashed paint on his home, set window boxes afire and damaged an air conditioning unit. The Foremans are living with friends.

'White Paper' on Pensions To Be Presented to House

TORONTO (CP) — A "white paper" on pensions will probably be presented to the legislature before the public standing committee for discussion during the current session, Premier Frost said today.

Speaking to a CCF bill to establish a pension pension scheme for civil servants in Ontario, Mr. Frost said he was most anxious to have a uniform pension plan put into effect, but the subject was highly complicated.

He said the bill, introduced by Kenneth Bryden (CCF—Toronto Woodbine) and before the legislature for second reading, was not workable in its present form.

He adjourned the debate "until the white paper is ready."

Mr. Bryden said a portable pension scheme would be more desirable on a nationwide basis, but if the federal government declined to participate then Ontario should establish a plan of its own.

Liberal Leader Winternreyer called for the government to show some "statesmanship" and introduce pension legislation immediately.

The "white paper" is being prepared by a special committee of university professors and advisers, appointed by the government nearly a year ago.

Arthur Reaume (L — Essex North) became involved in some good-natured bantering with Mr. Frost when he called the premier a collector of ancient history.

He asked Mr. Frost way the premier spent so much time thinking about getting a new

British Lords Approve Bill About Judges

LONDON (CP)—The House of Lords Tuesday night passed a bill, requiring compulsory retirement at the age of 75 of Canadian judges in Superior Courts. The bill already has been passed by the House of Commons and now needs only the assent of the Queen to become law. The two houses of the British Parliament passed the bill at the request of the Canadian Parliament.

Americans See It as Essential Afro-Asian Diplomats Be Spared Racial Segregation

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Something close to a shudder shakes the frames of United States diplomats when stories of racial discrimination hit the headlines.

U.S. representatives at the 15th General Assembly of the United Nations give the impression they are keeping their fingers crossed on the discrimination question.

With the growing importance of African and Asian countries and the bitter struggle between the Soviet Union and the U.S. for Afro-Asian favor—the Americans see it as essential that visiting diplomats, at least, are spared racial irritations in New York.

U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth promptly demanded an inquiry by the Federal Bureau of Investigation when it began. "I am here with diplomatic status now. So I have no trouble. But I was a student in the U.S. for five years, and I could write a book about discrimination."

When one African minister complained of hotel service, the U.S. delegation got to it before it might be automatically included in the restaurant checque.

"Strangers sometimes feel they are being discriminated against when it is just a matter of misunderstanding," said one African. "I am here with diplomatic status now. So I have no trouble. But I was a student in the U.S. for five years, and I could write a book about discrimination."

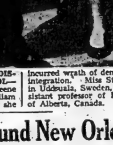
"Strangers sometimes feel they are being discriminated against when it is just a matter of misunderstanding," said one African.

WAS PUSHED AROUND



But the Africans were more disturbed by an incident in which a Ghanaian diplomat, observing the U.S. election night, was invited to President Eisenhower, was pushed around by security officials and called a "nigger."

At UN functions and receptions, the men of the world's every hue from around the world seem to find themselves in happy harmony. Bilingual Canadians, particularly, are in an enviable position in making friendships sometimes with amusing results.

At the annual Canadian reception, a diplomat approached an attractive Negro girl and asked her which of the two countries she hailed from.

"Me?" she said. "Heck, I'm from Brooklyn."

"Just a Second"

"I think Henry must be getting old. He actually looked at his watch before he looked at the waitress."

Wanted Mother To Know He Was In Trouble Again

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Police say a gunman, surrounded by a small army of peace officers, picked up a telephone at a bank and dialed information and called his mother in New York.

"Hello, mom," officers quoted Edward Patrick Cosgrove as saying. "I'm in trouble again."

Officers arrested Cosgrove, 28, and Henry Ackaray, 36, as they held six employees hostage in the bank. They surrendered meekly.

Police said the two gunmen forced their way into the bank before it opened and, after a time lock opened the vault, collected $20,000. But a silent burglar alarm tipped police and more than 30 officers surrounded the building.

Cannot Drag Ont Auditor Into Politics

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Frost said Tuesday Ontario's auditor will never be "dragged into politics" and will remain a non-party watchdog of provincial finances.

Speaking during the discussion of provincial auditors estimates, Mr. Frost said he was pleased that auditor Harvey Colman had been complimented for his action of being adviser to members of the legislative opposition.

Liberal Leader Wintermeyer said the auditor should not be a "glorified bookkeeper" but should be a watchdog of finances who could keep the opposition with up-to-financial information if required.

"If members of the House could go to him, it would be helpful until he was dragged into politics," said Mr. Frost. "His job is to wrap the government over the knuckles when there is something wrong."

CCF Leader MacDonald urged that the provincial auditor inspect the books of all government agencies and commissions. Some government agencies are operating privately.

Provincial Treasurer Allan said Mr. Colman was prepared to enlarge his staff if it was deemed wise to audit more government bodies. This year, for the first time, provincial audits were performed on the International Transport Company at Sault Ste. Marie and the Star Transport Company at Timmins, both government agencies.

Seventeen new countries were admitted to the UN this year and the U.S. delegation tried to anticipate complaints by discussing the problem with hotel and restaurant owners, urging their cooperation.

But that didn't prevent a wild and wooly evening early in the session when Cuban Premier Fidel Castro stormed out of his hotel in Manhattan, charging illness, and moved to another establishment in Negro Harlem.

Some African delegates ran into rebuffs and arguments in restaurants because of their unfamiliarity with the tipping system. They were accustomed to the European system in which a the tip is automatically included in the restaurant checque.

"Strangers sometimes feel they are being discriminated against when it is just a matter of misunderstanding," said one African. "I am here with diplomatic status now. So I have no trouble. But I was a student in the U.S. for five years, and I could write a book about discrimination."

"Strangers sometimes feel they are being discriminated against when it is just a matter of misunderstanding," said one African.

WAS PUSHED AROUND

But the Africans were more disturbed by an incident in which a Ghanaian diplomat, observing the U.S. election night, was invited to President Eisenhower, was pushed around by security officials and called a "nigger."

At UN functions and receptions, the men of the world's every hue from around the world seem to find themselves in happy harmony. Bilingual Canadians, particularly, are in an enviable position in making friendships sometimes with amusing results.

At the annual Canadian reception, a diplomat approached an attractive Negro girl and asked her which of the two countries she hailed from.

"Me?" she said. "Heck, I'm from Brooklyn."

"Just a Second"

"I think Henry must be getting old. He actually looked at his watch before he looked at the waitress."

Lord Lyon, King of Arms For Scottish Court, Asked To Grant Canada New Flag

OTTAWA (CP) — Who is the Lord Lyon, King of Arms of the Scottish court of chivalry?

Whoever he is, the Canadian MP put a bill before the Commons Tuesday asking him to grant Canada a new flag.

Actually, the Lord Lyon is an active hereditary judicial authority with power as royal commissioner to grant and matriculate coats of arms to "virtuous and well deserving" Scotsmen and to the creation of officers of arms of Scottish connection.

Whoever he is, he has a Scots connection, the bill was drafted with the Lord Lyon in mind by John Smith (PC—Lincoln) by a legal authority on parliamentary privilege. It is similar to the way in which Canada got its coat of arms.

His bill came up during the one-hour period reserved Tuesday for private members' bills. But it went to the end of the order paper, leaving little discussion that was largely whimsical in the House of Commons.

"The appreciation of our flag for flag-waving is definitely on the deteriorating in the minds of some Canadian people," Mr. Smith said in explaining what he called a distinctively Canadian flag.

"Why, the hill results of colonialism," said Mr. Herridge.

He contended the Parliament of Canada should decide what a distinctive Canadian flag is.

"How in the world are you going to get the Lord Lyon, king of arms, in Scottish court chivalry, to design a flag that is 1897 saw the start of the Klondyke Gold Rush. So let's make figures for our Numbers Game today.

Using all four digits each time, only one of each and no other figures at all, "ou mu&s op the expression for the successive numbers starting at "one."

Any arithmetical sign may be used and as many unnecessary or factorial: this does not bar the simplest.

For example, you can give 2 as 12-9-2. You could show 17 as 17 (9-8).

100 is very difficult, and the limit without a break seems to be 110.

I shall be interested to comment on any lists that readers may care to send me.

Alcoholism Showing Strong Upward Trend in Australia

By IVAN O'RILEY

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — Alcoholism is showing a strong upward trend in Australia.

Scientists and industrialists are working together in an effort to discover the immediate cause of the increase.

Industrial leaders here were surprised recently to learn that at least six out of every 100 of their work force are alcoholics.

And many more workers are incipient alcoholics.

A foundation for research and treatment of alcoholism, with headquarters in Sydney, has launched a program to seek the cause and treat the disease.

The Australian climate, both social and geographical, is one factor which has been considered.

BLAME EARLY CUT-OFF

Communal drinking by men in crowded bars is a legacy of the gold rush days of a century ago, perpetuated by the legend of the hard-drinking miners.

Paradoxically, one of the main factors blamed for heavy drinking, however, is a move specifically designed by temperance interests to limit drinking: Legislated ending drinking hours at 6 p.m. Critics claim this results in a "swill" in the last hour of drinking time, with most participants reaching varying degrees of intoxication daily.

Alcoholism is proving a drain on the Australian community both in the field of crime prevention and in wasted man-hours.

According to police statistics, much of Australia's increasing petty crime is due to vagrant alcoholics who have to steal the price of the next drink.

Australian industrial leaders were told recently that alcoholism among their workers is costing them directly more than £40,000,000 ($89,600,000) a year. Officials estimated absenteeism alone costs £200 ($448) a year per alcoholic.

Canada's most successful sound

Just about all of us feel a pleasant glow of national pride in the exciting success story of youthful Canadian Peter Munk, P.Eng., and David Gilmour, who engineer and design Clairtone Stereophonic high-fidelity units... and it looks as though the story is going on and on. From a national design award in 1959, to international acclaim at the largest dealers' show in the United States this summer, Clairtone units have met with immediate and enthusiastic acceptance. Recently-opened offices and showrooms in the U.S. make Clairtone the only Canadian electronics company in that country, and already these distinctive Canadian models are on sale in the United Kingdom. From all over the world, in fact, have come inquiries about Clairtone... an exciting tribute to Canadian craftsmanship which is unparalleled in the electronics field.

We invite your attention to The Empress, The Princess and The Countess models shown here. Within the timelessly styled, hand-rubbed walnut or teak cabinets (unmarred by gilt or chrome or maker's crest) are skilfully engineered components that provide new clarity and truth in sound reproduction. Mr. Munk's patented "Resotone Cell" linings enrich sound to a dramatic degree. And Clairtone has anticipated electronic developments of the future with an electronic stereo balance meter and facilities for stereo radio broadcasting.

Truly, your Clairtone is designed for today AND tomorrow.

TRAP BIG BEAVER

OTTERVILLE, Mo. (AP)—The "grand-pappy" of all beaver, largest ever trapped in this area, was taken last week by Henry Mollitor, a farmer living near Otterville. The animal weighed approximately 90 pounds, was five feet from the tip of the nose to the end of the tail and its tail was eight inches across. Its buck teeth were between an inch and a half and two inches long and an inch wide. Most North American beaver average about 35 pounds when full grown.

MARMORA

Scout Troop Receives Year's Badges

MARMORA — Last Thursday was a red letter day in Scouting for the Marmora troop when the Scouts received their 1960 year's badges in Marmora High School auditorium. It was also parents' night.

Pride in the group was shown by leader Jack Coulthard (Skip), and his assistant, Ernest Harvey, when five Scouts received their Queen's Scouts Badges. They were Michael Auger, James Bedore, Anthony Galloway, James Goodchild and Wayne Vanrolleburg. Qualifying badges are ambulance badge and the St. John intermediate certificate.

This group also had its path finders badge, cyclist-A cords, athletes and fireman's badges.

Terry Horne won the first class badge. St. John intermediate was awarded to four besides the above named five. Fourteen won the fireman's badge; eight the pathfinder; 19 athletes and 10 bushlymen. Five were presented with their second class badge.

Jack Connor, assistant district commissioner on training for the Trent Valley District, was present and presented the Queen's Scouts badges.

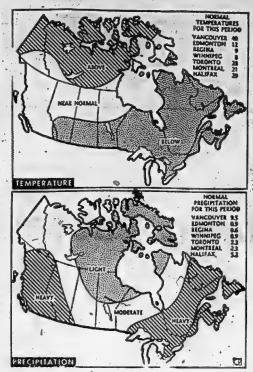
100 ATTENDED

Around 100 parents and interested persons attended the meeting and program which followed.

A bridge was built and erected in 45 minutes without nails, using rope. Simultaneously a group learned the alphabet in flag positions.

A movie film was shown in a classroom by Herb Parish of the boys' summer activities at Crowe Lake, and visitors judged the craft work shown, which included woodwork, oil paintings, black and white and leather.

WOODWORK PRIZES



Brian Lummiss won first prize for his woodwork. Mr. R. E. Neal made the presentation. Second prize for woodwork was awarded to Walter Davidson; Mr. Ted Galloway presented this prize.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Scouts served a bountiful lunch to the school kitchen, and all returned to the campfire where the program was carried out in true Scout form.

Messrs. Coulthard and Harvey are to be complimented on their untiring work with this group.

TOWN TOTAL

In 30 years, 1,870 rural towns have arisen in the Dominican Republic.

GETTING COLDER — Below-normal temperatures are expected for most of Canada during December, according to the 30-day outlook of the United States weather bureau. Only British Columbia and the northern Prairies will have seasonal temperatures.

Map shows predicted temperatures and precipitation across the country for the month. Tables give normal readings for various centres.

These maps are based on predictions of the weather office which says its monthly outlook is not a specific forecast and that a change in weather pattern may produce major errors. (CP Newsmap.)

TAKE UP POSTS

OTTAWA (CP)—Three eighth Canadian Army teams this month will take up posts in the northern United States as part of the army's warning network to Canadian areas in case of nuclear attack, army headquarters said Monday. The teams will be located at the regional headquarters of North American Air Defence Command at Madison, Wis., Great Falls, Ont., and Tacoma, Wash.

WARRANTS ISSUED

PARIS (Reuters)—Arrest warrants were issued Monday night after Pierre Lagaillarde, and four other Algiers rebels failed to appear at their trial. The five —all out on bail—were absent when a military court resumed hearings of internal security charges against 19 persons arrested after the anti-Gaullist settlers' uprising in Algiers last January. Lagaillarde is a member of the National Assembly.

MONCTON, N. B. (CP)—When Premier Louis J. Robichaud took his seat at the opening of the new Brunswick legislature last month it was a historic moment for the Acadian descendants of the French pioneers from British days who settled along the marshlands of the bay of Fundy in the 1630s.

After three centuries of adversity, expulsion, poverty and "forced assimilation," the Acadians "reign" domiglion, the Acadians were at last taking their place as leaders in the land they refused to give up.

Small in stature but big in ideas, "Little Louis" Robichaud is the first Acadian to be premier of the province. The first was Peter J. Veniot who succeeded to the office on the elevation to the Senate of the premier in 1923. But Mr. Robichaud, 35, is the first to gain the office by an election.

For nearly a century 300,000—Acadians living in the Maritimes it was a moment of satisfaction. They had multiplied until no quarter, third person among 600,000 New Brunswickers is an Acadian. "La revanche des berceaux"—the revenge of the cradles—was all but complete.

EXPELLED IN 1755

In 1755 the British thought they had solved "the Acadian problem" by expelling them from the country. Today the descendants of the Brétons are solving it in their own way by sheer force of numbers.

Nevertheless, Louis Robichaud decides that his Liberal party triumph in last summer's provincial election was a French victory.

"There is no racial or religious problem in New Brunswick now," he says. "Our people are too mature for that."

However, it is a fact that of his 30 Liberal supporters in the 52 - seat legislature have French names. And eight of the 16 seats they gained from the rival Progressive Conservatives in the election were in predominantly Acadian districts.

The way the word Acadian has stuck is symbolic of the pride they take in their ancestry. It comes from Acadia, or Acadie, a name early explorers gave the territory that now forms the provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

The first Acadians, most of them from Brittany, came to Nova Scotia after the 1632 treaty of St. Germain-en-Laye, which restored Acadia temporarily to the French during an interval in the long fight with Britain for colonial supremacy.

DIKED FUNDY MARSHES

The men carved out farms by diking the Bay of Fundy marshes. About 45 women came later to be wives of the pioneers. They were the ancestral mothers of most of today's Acadians.

When Britain recovered Nova Scotia in 1710 the French tried to persuade the Acadians to leave their hard-won lands and move to French territory. Few did.

The British, particularly the American colonists in Massachusetts, suspected Acadian sympathies in the continuing struggle with France. The Acadians, fearful they would be made to fight against fellow Frenchmen, balked at taking an oath of allegiance to the British Crown.

A massacre of 150 British soldiers in the Acadian village of Grand Pre heightened British feeling against them. In 1755 Charles Lawrence, British governor of Nova Scotia, ordered the Acadians expelled from the province lock, stock and barrel.

There is no accurate figure of how many were driven from their lands but in five months at least 3,700 men, women and children were taken away by ship. They were distributed in British colonies along the east coast of what is now the United States.

REFUSED TO STAY

The British thought the Acadians thus scattered would be absorbed in the English communities where they were landed But they were wrong.

The Acadians stayed where they were taken. Some obtained boats and returned to Nova Scotia. Others trekked overland to Louisiana, then a French colony. Thousands of their descendants, known as Cajuns, still live in Louisiana, clinging to their language.

A group of 200, the "heroic caravan," walked 600 miles through the woods to establish themselves in what is now New Brunswick. These formed the nucleus of the Acadian revival.

Rev. Clement Cormier, president of St. Joseph's University here, says the next hundred years were worse for the Acadians than the "expulsion itself." They were scattered and lived a hand-to-mouth existence.

Gradually things got a little better. Their resurgence in culture, education and politics began about 1860.

Rev. Camille Lefebvre, a priest transferred from Quebec, found their condition pitiful. Few could read and write. With help from the Roman Catholic bishop of Saint John, N.B., he collected money, got donations of labor from the men of the district and built St. Joseph's College at Memramcook, about 15 miles from here.

CULTURAL REBIRTH

"The renaissance of Acadian culture started with the founding of St. Joseph's," says Father Cormier. "It educated the future leaders of the people. They founded newspapers, wrote books and encouraged the Acadians to improve their situation."

There are five Acadian colleges in the Maritimes now. St. Joseph's, the largest, has assumed university status, has about 300 students in arts and science courses and is developing a modern campus on the outskirts of Moncton. Its recent growth is typical of Acadian advances in almost every field.

But the Acadians' greatest success has been in populating the land from which they were exiled, Although education and a fierce nationalism contributed to the Acadian revival, the cradle holds the real key. Young Acadians generally marry younger and have larger families than their Englishspeaking neighbors. They formed only 16 per cent of New Brunswick's population in 1871. By 1951 the proportion had grown to more than 30 per cent and their numbers to almost 300,000.

Halloway

HALLOWAY—Congratulations and best wishes are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Don McMullen who were married November 26th, in Foxboro United Church. They will be residing in Belleville.

Mrs. Horton and family, of Tamworth, visited with her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Vance, recently. Mr. and Mrs. Donald Vance were Friday evening callers at the same home.

Those from here who attended the Couples Club rally, held in Picton, last Sunday included:—Mr. and Mrs. Gene Kelly; Mr. and Mrs. Freddie Wellman; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morgan; Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Hobson, and Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lewis, Mr. Terry and Dwight, Belleville, spent Sunday afternoon and evening with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Snider.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Hobson attended the Canadian Club meeting, in Belleville, on Tuesday evening.

Little Shelley and Laurie Robson have been quite ill at their home and hope they are much better by now.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald McMullen spent Saturday supper hour and evening with Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMullen.

Callers at the Vance home, on Saturday evening, included Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Laing and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lee Vance.

Mr. and Mrs. Doug. Pyrah, River Valley, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wardhaugh, Trent Road, spent Saturday and Sunday evening, respectively, at the Robson home.

Mr. and Mrs. George Reade, and Andrew, spent the supper hour on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Snider.

FORECAST WANTED

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister Roberts Monday asked Ontario secondary school boards for five-year forecasts of their building needs to speed proper planning by his department.

CAMPBELLFORD

Cost of Red Cross Work Discussed

CAMPBELLFORD — Mr. de la Franier, treasurer of the Ontario division of the Canadian Red Cross Society, was a guest speaker at a meeting of the Red Cross Society, held at the home of Mrs. Stuart Hazell, president of the Campbellford - Seymour branch.

He informed the group that the cost to the Red Cross for supplying blood to the Campbellford Memorial Hospital totalled in $1,500 per year. It costs the Campbellford people nothing. The cost of handling each bottle of blood is approximately $4.50.

Mr. W. R. McAdam; also of the Ontario Division, attended the meeting, which was held to discuss, and try to overcome, the difficulties encountered by the branch, owing to lack of funds. Last March it was not possible to arrange for the annual campaign and now the Red Cross is struggling to continue with all its programs in Campbellford, until March, 1961, when an extensive campaign will be conducted.

Hospital visiting will be temporarily discontinued, with the exception of the annual Christmas visit with its carol singing and special gifts.

Mrs. Hazell said that money is particularly needed to replenish the loan cupboard service, which contains wheel chairs and hospital beds, free of charge, to all who require nursing. With the increasing winter illness and the consequent need of more home nursing, the loan cupboard items are in use nearly all the time, and the need for more of them is acute.

The swimming and water safety program was carried out successfully last summer, and booklets on home nursing and first aid have been distributed to the night school classes.

The diaper service has not been used for some time, but is in readiness in the event of fire or other disaster.

In view of all this work done in Campbellford, Mr. McAdam felt the people of the district would surely support the branch this coming March.

Mr. Gordon Oder, manager of the Bank of Montreal, kindly offered to act as campaign chairman and plans a wide canvass, including Hastings, Trent River and Havelock. All these towns use the Campbellford loan cupboard, blood donor service and otherfacilities.

Cross-Canada Survey

Canadians Shove 126,276,421 Through the Betting Windows With Big Increase in Ontario

By KEN KELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadians pushed their cash through the betting windows in record amounts, wagering $126,276,421 on horse races in 1960.

However, wagering declined in three of the five provinces with data using. And Ontario, where wagering jumped to a record $69,225,665 from $54,862,940 in 1959, more than accounted for the $5,588,830 Canada - wide increase over last year.

There were 436 days of racing, 11 more than last year, on 18 tracks. Figures do not include harness racing.

A cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press showed that while Ontario, with its season unchanged at 196 days, and Alberta set records, there was a severe drop in betting in British Columbia attributed to strikes and unemployment, while Manitoba and Saskatchewan had smaller declines.

But all remained confident of 1961 prospects, Racing next year will include a 40-day meeting at Blue Bonnets in Montreal, the first running races in Quebec since 1954.

The 81-day meeting at Toronto's New Woodbine for the second straight year topped all tracks in wagering with $37,940,-966. The two-day meet at Estevan, Sask., was smallest at $2,-218.

ALBERTA SECOND

Alberta, which replaced British Columbia last year in second place, reported wagerings of $15,-554,380 followed by B.C. at $11,-203,286. Manitoba at $7,006,534 and Saskatchewan at $1,096,257.

Provincial governments collected $7,566,504 in taxes which vary from a high of 12 per cent of total wagerings in B.C. to 7 per cent in Manitoba, six per cent in Ontario and five per cent in Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The federal government collected about $631,282 as its fee of one-half of one per cent for supervisory services such as track patrol, photo finish; saliva tests and RCMP surveillance. Prize money totalled $5,853,900, down from $5,534,725 last year.

Accurate attendance figures were unavailable in most provinces where race meetings often are held in conjunction with exhibitions and fairs. But Ontario's tracks reported record attendance of 1,597,075, up 96,825 from last year.

Magistrate S. Tupper Bigelow, Ontario Racing Commission chairman, said 1960 "was the best year racing has ever had in Ontario—from every aspect."

AMERICANS HELPED

New Woodbine's betting record was $2,130,843 higher than last year. Fort Erie, which draws big crowds from Buffalo, N.Y., just across the border, had wagerings of $28,741,809 in its 87 racing days, up from $28,520,171.

At Toronto's Old Woodbine betting rose to $23,623,870 from $22,-023,336 in 48 racing days.

In Alberta, where there were 21 more racing day this year, meetings were held in Edmonton, Calgary, Millarville and High River. This was the first meeting in High River where two races were held each day of the two-day meeting.

Edmonton headed the Alberta list with $9,194,548 wagered in 95 racing days, five more than last year's $8,139,955. Calgary's 36 days, four more than last year, chalked up betting there to $4,-240,474 from $3,199,360 last year.

Millarville again had a one-day meeting with $16,812 wagered, down $22,174.

Alberta's record total was $2,-273,152 higher than the $13,581,-186 last year.

WORST IN FIVE YEARS

British Columbia reported its worst wagering year in five years with a drop of $1,502,819 from last year's $12,707,207. Seven tracks operated for 104 racing days, one less than a year ago.

At Lansdowne Park, 10 miles south of Vancouver on Lulu Island, betting dropped to $4,902,-694 from $6,120,881 and at Exhibition Park in east-end Vancouver on the Pacific National Exhibition grounds it was down to $3,672,207 from $6,337,181.

Bad weather for both spring and summer meetings plagued Exhibition Park where betting was 10-per-cent lower and attendance down nine per cent. On May 21 conditions were so bad that jockeys refused to ride after the fifth race, breaking the track's 50-year record of racing, rain or shine.

Secretary Walter Geoghegan of the Ascot Jockey Club, which operates the park, said "We end with an improvement in general business conditions our 1961 racing season will show improvement over 1960, especially if the weather improves too."

REGULARS ABSENT

Massey White, secretary of the B.C. Turf and Country Club at Lansdowne, said: "If anyone out here starts working, things will improve. The carpenters, painters and plumbers are the biggest fans. This year they didn't show up."

Unlike the other big B.C. tracks, Sandown Park at Sidney on Vancouver Island, which is considered Victoria's track, had a better year this year due to good weather and a new ferry system from Vancouver almost to the track.

Betting rose 16.34 per cent and attendance 33.54 per cent to give Sandown a record of $954,752 compared with $820,593 last year.

Exhibition and Lansdowne each held 49 racing days and Sandown 14, unchanged from last year.

Betting at other B.C. tracks with last year's figures bracketed: Prince George $5,705 (nil); Williams Lake $68,078 ($4,-134); Vernon nil ($7,722 ($34); Dawson Creek $28,000 ($3,000).

Bad weather washed out a day at both Prince George and Dawson, which held two racing days; Williams Lake and Vernon each held three, one less than last year in Vernon's case.

Manitoba's only racing was at Assiniboia Downs, just outside Winnipeg, on 42 racing days, unchanged from last year. Betting dropped $218,456 from $7,224,987 last year despite a one-day betting record of $317,255 set on the final day. The previous record was $296,520 set July 1, 1959.

A. G. (Scotty) Kemp, track general manager, said "racing is only scratching the surface and has a tremendous future." An other 43-day season is planned for next year.

In Saskatchewan, where racing officials say crowds and betting depend on such factors as crops and availability of farm credit, betting declined $216,906 from last year's $1,913,250, despite an additional racing day at Estevan.

Regina's nine - day meet had betting of $1,061,247 against $1,-156,020 last year. The figures for the other meetings, with 1959 figures bracketed: Saskatoon $606,-056 ($725,066); Prince Albert $28,-636 ($31,055); Estevan $2,218 ($1,-060).

Cooper Verdicts Miteff

LONDON (AP)—British heavyweight champion Henry Cooper, blood streaming from his face, survived a last round knockdown Tuesday night and was awarded a 10-round decision over Argentina's Alex Miteff.

The crowd of 12,000 in Wembley Stadium booed the decision with a mixture of boos and cheers after a rousing finish by the left-hooking Argentine, who up until then had been outpunched and out - boxed by Cooper.

Cooper, 183½, world's fifth-ranked heavyweight, appeared headed for an easy, decisive victory before Miteff, 211½, connected with a left hook to the head that spun him around and dropped him to the canvas.

Blood streaming from a cut that was opened near his right eye, Cooper pawed his way to his knees, then staggered to his feet when the count reached eight.

Miteff rushed in on the reeling Briton and Cooper lurched drunkenly around the ring, desperately trying to avoid a knockout. Apparently over - anxious, Miteff couldn't land a solid blow and Cooper tied him up and lasted out the round.

Until the 10th, Cooper had scored repeatedly with a straight left jab that seemed to confuse Miteff.

Tiger Beaten By Giambra

BUFFALO (AP) — Joey Giambra of Buffalo, the seventh-ranked middleweight boxing contender, won a 10-round decision over Ralph Tiger Jones Tuesday night, knocking down the durable Jones twice in the process.

Giambra used his left hook in series to knock Jones down for the mandatory eight count in the second round and again in the fifth.

Giambra weighed 158 and Jones, the veteran campaigner from St. Albans, N.Y., weighed 159. The decision was unanimous.

Two Toronto boxers were defeated in preliminary fights on the card.

Irish Champ Licks Canuck

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Eddie Beattie, Scottish-born holder of the Canadian lightweight boxing title, suffered a technical knockout Tuesday night at the hands of Spike McCormack, champion of Northern Ireland.

Beattie, of Hamilton, who has had more than 20 fights since he underwent a hole-to-the-heart operation 2½ years ago, was bleeding freely from a cut nose when the referee stopped the bout in the seventh round.

Until then it had been a fairly even match with both fighters scoring well. The bleeding nose was obviously bothering the Canadian champion in the late rounds. When his seconds were unable to close the cut he made several desperate bids for a knockout. But the Irishman seemed to improve as the fight progressed and always managed to stay out of trouble.

The fight, scheduled for eight rounds, was held at Wembley Pool as a preliminary to the heavyweight contest in which Britain's Henry Cooper defeated Argentina's Alex Miteff.

Beattie came to British several months ago. In his only other fight here, he was outpointed by Phil McGrath. He had originally hoped to get a fight with Dave Charnley, the British champion.

Cuban Scores Major Upset

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Doug Vaillant, Cuban lightweight champion, scored a major upset by winning a unanimous decision over Len Matthews, the top-ranked U.S. contender, in a 10-round feature boxing match Tuesday night.

Vaillant weighed 136, Matthews 137.

It was Matthews' first loss this year after eight victories. He and Vaillant fought to a draw last April 22 at Miami Beach.

STAKES ANNOUNCED

NEW YORK (AP) — Yonkers Raceway announced Tuesday a stake and special event program for 1961 calling for more than $3,000,000 in harness racing purses.

There are rates with foreign entires, including the $50,000 United Nations trot next April, the International pace series in May, and a world championship for four-year-old trotters in September.

The two richest races on the program, each with a $100,000 purse, are the Yonkers trot Aug. 10 and the Cane pace Sept. 8, both for three-year-olds.

DARK DENIES REPORT

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Manager Alvis Dark of San Francisco Giants Tuesday termed "completely false" newspaper reports that the Giants have offered four players for Ed Bailey, Cincinnati Reds' catcher. He acknowledged, however, that the Giants discussed a possible trade with Philadelphia Phillies. This deal, he said, fell through. Dark declined to identify the players involved.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Just about the "happiest fella" in these parts the other day was Picton's genial chief magistrate, Harvey J. McFarland. He was given back his job as mayor of the Prince Edward County town and set himself a hockey club.

As is now known, Mayor McFarland in conjunction with the Chicago Black Hawks, has taken over the sponsorship of the city junior "B" hockey club. He is the president of the new organization which will take the Picton junior "C" under its administrative wing.

HARVEY J. McFARLAND

The acquisition of the new Junior 'B' club, henceforth to be known as the "Belleville McFarlands" could mean the dawn of a new hockey era for the city and district.

It could also mean the demise of senior hockey here. We believe that Mayor McFarland will concentrate his efforts on his new organization and that both the Belleville and Picton junior clubs will benefit greatly as a result of the new set-up.

He said at the meeting "We hope through the new arrangements to be able to provide the best in junior hockey with the idea to give the maximum opportunity to the youth of Prince Edward and Hastings counties who would like to take up hockey as a career."

"We are definitely looking forward to a junior "A" hockey club or professional hockey for the Belleville area," he said.

This statement is not too far-fetched. The other day "Hap" Emms, manager of the Niagara Falls Red Wings, said in a published statement that he would like to see Belleville, Kingston and London, Ont., 'in junior "A" ranks next year . . . and I shall do my best to help them."

Hockey fans hereabouts know what Mayor McFarland did for the senior hockey club that wore his colors and bore his name.

With the co-operation of various organizations here and in Picton we are of the opinion he will go all out to provide fine junior club for the two centres which will get the fullest assistance from the Black Hawk organization, and, we hope, from the minor hockey associations of Belleville and Picton.

The Belleville McFarlands Booster Club, as its president Jim "Snipe" Matthews has announced, will amalgamate with the junior booster organization and get behind the new hockey set-up.

Mayor McFarland is sincere in his desire to help the hockey youngsters of the district and he won't spare the horses, so to speak, to achieve this end. And we do not' believe there would be a happier man in Canada than the Picton mayor should one of the youngsters developed in his hockey organization, make the goal of every post-minded boy, the National Hockey League.

Bobby Hull flew in from Chicago to be present at the meeting. The National Hockey League scoring champion appeared to be in the pink of condition. He received a heart-warming welcome from one of his erstwhile fans, the mayor of Picton.

We talked with Bobby for a while and asked what the Black Hawks' chances were to win the Stanley Cup.

Bobby smiled and said: "If confidence will win it, then the Hawks are as good as in. The boys are brimful of it and that's what wins hockey games and trophies."

Billy Reay, who managed the McFarlands during their world championship sojourn in Europe, and now is the coach of the Eastern Professional League Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds, a new farm club of the Hawks, was also on hand renewing old acquaintances.

The conversation got around to Bobby Hull. Reay paid him a stupple but sincere tribute.

"In my opinion," he said, "Bobby is one of the greatest hockey players of all time. I believe that some day he will prove he is the greatest."

American League To Put Team In L.A.

O'Malley Ends Opposition

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Despite last-minute snags, the American League's six - week struggle to complete its expansion program for 1961 was expected to reach fulfilment today with a new team in Los Angeles.

Walter O'Malley, owner of the National League's Los Angeles Dodgers, ended his opposition to another team in that city with a surprise peace proposal Tuesday.

He agreed to allow the new franchise holders—Bob Reynolds and actor Gene Autry—to operate in his territory in 1961 provided they meet certain conditions. All but two conditions were acceptable.

The disagreement revolves around O'Malley's insistence that the new team, to be known as the Angeles, agree to play its 20-season Wrigley Field the first two years. Then he wants them to sign a three-year lease on Chavez Ravine, the park being built for the Dodgers, with O'Malley cutting in on the radio-television income.

The new Los Angeles owners refused to be bound by such an agreement. They want to play only one year in Wrigley Field. They feel free to play anywhere they like if Chavez Ravine isn't ready. The park is expected to be completed in 1962.

OPPOSE CUT

Reynolds and Autry and their group also are opposed to giving O'Malley a cut of TV and radio income.

The stipulations seems observers said, were regarded as enough to forestall a peaceful settlement.

Most owners felt, however, a satisfactory arrangement would be worked out before a joint session of American and National League club owners today, thus making it unnecessary for commissioner Ford Frick to cast the deciding vote.

Reynolds and O'Malley, each supported by club owners, conferred into the early hours today in an effort to settle the problem.

Meet Wings Tonight

Blues Seek Upper Berth

New York Rangers are hoping for a comeback that would put them in the race for a National Hockey League playoff berth.

As the NHL season enters its 10th week, Rangers are nine points out of fourth place—the last playoff spot.

They won two, won three times and tied once in their last five starts—their best spurt so far this season.

Rangers looked anything but pushovers in their 3-0 defeat Sunday when they outskated, outchecked and outshot the Red Wings for a 4-1 triumph.

They have another go against the Red Wings tonight, this time in New York's Madison Square Garden.

In another game tonight, Montreal Canadiens hope to open the gap between themselves and the rest of the league when they take on the injury-riddled Maple Leafs at Toronto.

Canadiens, looking more like the team that won five consecutive Stanley Cups, have won five games in a row and opened up a five-point lead atop the league standings.

They have 34 points while Toronto and Detroit share second place with 29 points and Chicago Black Hawks are fourth with 27.

Rangers have 18 points, one more than the Leafs and Boston Bruins.

Canadiens' coach Toe Blake said Tuesday he is not contemplating any lineup changes for tonight's game against the Leafs. That means Charlie Hodge, barring a last-minute change in plans, will again be used in the nets. Ailing Jacques Plante has been practising daily with the team, but his knee is bothering him.

The Leafs will be without defenceman Carl Brewer who suffered a knee last Saturday; defenceman Tim Horton, who has a stomach ailment; forward Red Kelly and forward Brewer who suffered a cracked ankle last Thursday; and forward Larry Regan who has a leg injury.

Kearns to Be Called

Probe Committee To Quiz Basilio

WASHINGTON (AP) — Carmine Basilio, former welterweight king, moves from the ring to the hearing room today to face a Senate subcommittee hunting for an underworld taint on boxing in the United States.

John G. Bonomi, special counsel to the Senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee, said he planned to question Basilio about possible relationships with James D. Norris and Frankie Carbo.

Both names have been mentioned frequently at the hearings. Norris was co-owner of the International Boxing Club, dissolved by court order on monopoly grounds. Carbo is a gangland figure now in prison for underworld matchmaking and managing.

In addition to Basilio, the Senate will hear from Jack Kearns, colorful manager - promoter who handled Jack Dempsey, former world heavyweight champion. Kearns is said to have received at least $137,000 from Norris enterprises for goodwill services among managers.

Before getting to them, Bonomi ordered more testimony from part-time lawyer Herman Hyselmire the Mink) Wallman of New York.

Wallman made no attempt to conceal a friendship with Carbo when he began testifying publicly.

Dying Tuesday. He said Carbo conducted 1BC matchmaker, as Carbo's man and made it easier for Wallman's fighters to appear on IBC cards.

NAMES PALERMO

Alleged racketeer Frank (Blinky) Palermo was named as the undercover manager of Sonny Liston, top-ranked heavyweight contender.

Joseph P. (Pep) Barone of Allentown, Pa., is Liston's manager of record. But Bonomi told the subcommittee Palermo is "the important one" to deal with in seeking about with Liston.

"Correct," said Gibson, former executive of the IBC.

Gibson testified he paid $5,000 to Palermo May 15, 1959, for his services in helping to sign Liston for IBC matches.

Palermo is awaiting trial with Gibson, Carbo and others in California on a charge of trying to muscle in on the earnings of former welterweight champion Don Jordan. Palermo has been ordered to testify later in the hearings.

Senators Estes Kefauver, subcommittee chairman, reserved decision on a plea by counsel for Heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson that Norris is in heart disease patient whose life might be endangered if he is required to testify publicly.

Golden Golf Nets Palmer Over $80,000

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP)—Arnold Palmer, the golden boy of professional golf, probably could use a heavy green he has putted on the tournament trail this year with something even greener on it—money.

So far, the star from Ligonier, Pa., has won some $80,000 in golf winnings and his time record.

Official records of the United States Professional Golfers Association show Palmer has played 36 tournaments, won eight and placed sharply critical at 20 times.

In second spot on the money list is Ken Venturi of Palo Alto, Calif., who has picked up $46,400. Third is Billy Casper of Twosota, Fla., with $46,300.

WILL JOIN WINGS

EDMONTON (CP) — Forward Bill Diachuk, 26, of Edmonton Flyers, one of the most colorful players in the Western Hockey League, will join Detroit Red Wings of the National League for a trial, General manager Bud Poile announced today that Diachuk will join Detroit in Montreal tomorrow and play for Red Wings against Canadiens Saturday night. Brian Smith, who has been with the parent Red Wings, will come to Flyers.

Tennis Star Declares War On Papers

PERTH (AP) — Fiery Earl (Butch) Buchholz declared war on photographers and imposed a personal ban on newspapers today in a new outbreak of "war of nerves" in the tense Davis Cup tennis campaign.

"I am mad, I am really mad," the 20-year-old St. Louis ace fumed after seeing a picture on the front page of a morning newspaper which showed him tossing a racquet during practice Thursday.

"I was down on one of the side courts all by myself practising my service. I was not bothering anyone and this guy sneaks up and takes a picture like this.

"I consider it an invasion of my privacy. It is an attempt to make a big issue out of nothing. I will smash the camera of the next guy who tries to take my picture while I am playing."

David Freed, captain of the United States Davis Cup team, sought to calm down his singles star before today's opening ceremonies matches Friday with Italy.

"You concentrate on playing tennis," Freed said. "I will see that you are not bothered again.

Australian papers have been sharply critical of the Americans' court deportment since they arrived last month aiming at recovery of the Davis Cup from Australia.

Benefit for Kaminsky

Teeps Tie Black Hawks

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League and St. Catharines Teepees past and present, played to a 3-3 draw Tuesday night in an exhibition hockey game watched by the second crowd of the season.

The total receipts of $3,785, less $150 in expenses were turned over to Max Kaminsky, former Teepees coach who is in hospital in Buffalo with arthritis in a severe case of pleurisy.

Kaminsky resigned as coach of the Ontario Hockey Association Teepees early this season after guiding the team to the Memorial Cup last spring.

The "Kaminsky Aces" is expected to approach the $5,000 mark when all donations are added to the gate receipts.

CAME FROM BEHIND

Black Hawks, coached by former Teepees coach Rudy Pilous, came from behind twice to draw with the Teepees. Terry Sawchuk were handled for the game by Bobby Dixon coach Frank Eddolls.

Both of the 'grads' goals were scored by present members of the junior "A" club.

Duke Harris gave the Teepe a 1-0 lead in the first period and less than four minutes later Tod Sloan scored on a scramble rush which carried him around defenceman Elmer Vasko.

Murray Hall gave the Teepe their second lead midway in the third period on a pass from the defending NHL scoring champion Bobby Hull. Billy Dea, on loan to the Hawks from Buffalo, cashed in Phil Maloney's corner passout to again tie the score with less than seven minutes remaining to play game.

Teepees had a slim 37-36 edge in shots on goal.

Yanks Reject Dodger Offer

ST. LOUIS (AP)—New York Yankees said Tuesday they have rejected a proposal from Los Angeles Dodgers to deal pitcher Johnny Podres, outfielder Duke Snider and another player for catcher Elston Howard.

The Yanks and Dodgers still have not begun formal negotiations but it was reported Howard will not be included in the talks.

Jimmy Brown Tops N.F.L. Groundgainers

NEW YORK (AP) — Fullback Jimmy Brown, of Cleveland Browns is the first player in the National Football League's 41-year history to gain more than 1,000 yards a season for three years.

He picked up 125 yards against Washington Redskins last Sunday for a 10-game total of 1,057, league statistics showed today. It gave him a 1,000-plus total for the third time in four years in the league.

Steve van Buren of Philadelphia Eagles and Joe Perry of San Francisco '49ers are the only other players who have gained more than 1,000 yards in two NFL campaigns.

Brown, who smashed for 1,527 yards in 1958 and 1,329 in 1956, currently has 5.2 yards a carry this year for a 149-yard lead over runnerup Jim Taylor of Green Bay Packers.

Hornung has scored 13 touchdowns and kicked 13 field goals and 35 converts for 152 points. He already has eclipsed the record of 138 set by end Don Hutson of Green Bay Packers in 1942.

Petes Drop 4-1 Verdict To Hamilton

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — In the only Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game Tuesday night Peterborough Petes lost a 4-1 decision to Hamilton Red Wings.

It was 3-0 for Wings in the first period, and 4-0 going into the third.

Hamilton drew five of the penalties in fast, clean play.

The win, Wings' second, tied Hamilton-with Marlboros, each at the bottom of the standing with nine points. Petes remain tied with St. Catharines "for fourth place, two points up on the tail-enders.

Petes' tally was by Claude Larose.

League Future in Doubt

Kelowna Packers Calls It Quits

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP) — Another team has withdrawn and the future of the Okanagan Senior Hockey League, once the home of world-rated senior amateur clubs, is in doubt.

Kelowna Packers called it quits Monday night at an emergency meeting when only 50 per cent of its players voted to continue.

OSHL president Bob Gilhooly has called a meeting for tonight between Vernon and Kamloops, the two remaining teams. He said it is up to the teams to decide whether they will continue.

Five teams held franchises as the 1960 OSHL season opened. Merrit Grand - Luckies withdrew early in November, Penticton Vs. world champions in 1955, quit last week.

Kelowna's withdrawal brought to five the number of senior clubs in Canada to fold this year. Winter Dunlops and Belleville MacFarlands withdrew from an Ontario Senior Hockey Association earlier this year.

TALKED OF FOLDING

Vernon has talked of pulling out of the OSHL and so has the Kamloops team.

Mertill found operating costs too high and reverted to an intermediate status. Penticton faced a $2,000 deficit when it gave up.

All of the OSHL clubs operated on a co-operative basis with players splitting the profits after bills were paid. Merritt, Penticton and Kelowna made little profit and all had several players out of work.

In 10 years since the league was formed, OSHL teams have won one world, two Allan Cup, six Western Canada and seven B.C. championships.

Russia and in 1955, Penticton Vs swept to the world title by crushing Russia 5-0.

Two years ago the Kelowna team made an extended tour calling Russia 5-0.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary Stampeders frustrated the attempts of Vancouver Canucks to take over first place in the Western Hockey League Tuesday night when they scored four goals in the third period to beat Edmonton Flyers 6-4.

Canucks remained a point back of Calgary with a 3-0 victory over the Warriors at Vancouver.

Canucks fired all their goals in the second period. Goaltender Claude Evans, formerly with Kitchener Beavers of the Eastern Professional League, picked up his first shutout since joining Vancouver last Friday.

Calgary scorers were Gerry Ehrth, Lou Jankowski, Wally Hergesheimer, Sid Finney, Jim Brown and Ron Leopold. Don Poile, Bob Gosselin, Gordon Sirois, Len Haley and Ed Diachuk accounted for the Edmonton goals.

At Winnipeg, Danny Belisle scored the opening goal and insurance goals were added by defencemen Ralph Keller and Dave Duke. Evans had to earn his shutout as Winnipeg fired 31 shots at him.

VANCOUVER (CP) — George Wood, 22, was handed his unconditional release Tuesday by Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League.

The rookie goaltender was the WHL's leading goalie with an average of 2.74. He had played 11 games, one of them a shutout and eight of them victories.

Claude Evans, 27, who has played in every league, now has the Canucks' goaltending job. He has played in two games since joining Vancouver last week.

General manager Coley Hall and coach Art Chapman were satisfied with Evans' work in the two games as Canucks lost to Edmonton 4-3 and then stopped Calgary 3-2.

Both Hall and Chapman feel Woods needs more experience.

Hull Shades Montreal 4-3, Extends Lead

MONTREAL (CP) — League leading Hull - Ottawa Canadiens edged Montreal Royals 4-3 Tuesday night and increase their Eastern Professional Hockey League lead to 11 points over second place Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds.

Billy Carter, Terry Gray, Bob Eliott and Glen Sonmor scored for Hull-Ottawa, registering its ninth successive victory.

Walter Bradley, Roger Sawicki and Reiji Denis scored for the last failing Royals, in last place with only sixteen points.

Royals goalie Claude Cyr, replacing the injured Claude Provencher, had a shutout going for half of the game as Royals moved into a 2-0 lead on goals by Bradley and Sawicki.

Carter ended the shutout bid at 19:32 of the second period and Gray tied the score at 17:40.

Eliott put the visitors into the lead at the 19 second mark of the final frame.

DENIS STOLE PUCK

Provencher had to be replaced after he cut off the tips of two fingers with an electric planer. He will be lost to the club indefinitely.

Cyr has been a regular goalie in the National Hockey League Montreal Canadiens' organization. He played a few games with the Royals last year, and two seasons ago played a few game with the parent Canadiens.

Provencher took over the job for Royals when Charlie Hodge was called up by Canadiens recently.

PLAYER FINED

NEW YORK (AP)—President Maurice Podloff of the National Basketball Association Tuesday fined Jim Loscutoff of Boston Celtics $300 for "gross misconduct" in a game at St. Louis, Nov. 29. The fine, one of the largest ordered by Podoloff, followed a referee's report of a gesture made by Loscutoff.

Would Oust Boxing From Sports Scene

OTTAWA (CP)—Hope that the government's plans for aiding amateur sport will ignore boxing was expressed Tuesday night by Senator F. W. Gershaw (L—Alberta), consulting doctor from Medicine Hat.

The activity should be limited, stated Gershaw, said the 77-year-old senator. He was commenting on the Senate on the brief mention in the throne speech of aid for amateur sport in Canada.

Boxing is said to be the mainly art of self defence, Senator Gershaw said, but at a time when nations were seeking to ban war, surely personal combats could be ruled out at the same time.

Boxing risked "muddling the mind." Serious injuries could result to kidneys, brain, hearing and sight. Most Canadian universities banned or discouraged it.

"Wrestling isn't so dangerous but you still see some pretty revolting things there too," he concluded.

Amerks, Aces Play 4-4 Tie

QUEBEC (CP) — Rochester Americans and Quebec Aces played to a 3-3 overtime tie in an American Hockey League game here Tuesday night before a crowd of 4,766.

Defenceman Jim Morrison, acquired recently from New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, scored twice for Aces and drew an assist on the third goal scored by Jackie Leclair.

Dick Van Impe, Steve Kraftcheck and Gerry Ehman scored for Rochester.

Referee John Ashley called six minor penalties, three against each team, Kraftcheck's goal came while Morrison was serving on of Quebec's penalties.

The game was held up on several occasions as fans littered the ice with debris in protest of some of the calls by Ashley. Ed Chadwick stopped 35 shots in the Rochester net while Gerry McNeil of Aces blocked 22.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RICHTER

Thursday, December 3

General tendencies: Now you have a fine day for early Christmas shopping for those of whom you are most fond and with whom you wish to make quite an impression. Fine day also for putting your creative skills across and for getting the good will of all higher-ups, executives, authorities. Enjoy unusual pleasures and amusements tonight.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — The day hours are ideal for making new and important contacts or for learning about modern methods, etc., that will help you in your career. Evening should be spent reaching greater rapport with loved ones. Be kind, gentle.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — If you are thoughtful with closest of kin, you now can establish greater harmony within the home. Get your Christmas budget set up nicely. P. M. Have friends in for a jolly evening. Be generous and warm – hearted with everyone.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — A day for action. Get together with associates, shop for Christmas gifts, visit with congenials and show your affection for them, etc. Evening is then fine for dashing about socially and having a real ball. Forget any worries you may have.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Elevate your consciousness to the highest you can conceive and then be out making your dreams come true. You will find that higher – ups are most co operative and you can make real strides forward in your career. Fix real estate too.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Get in touch with persons vital to your personal or business life and reach a greater accord with them. The evening is also fine for progressing along social lines. Be with the right people, make fine new contacts. Grow.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — Spend more time thinking about the desires and needs of those closest to you today, and then quickly do the things that will help them most. Evening should be spent having the sort of fun you most enjoy or appreciate.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) — Nice day to do that shopping in the company of good pals, or take a little trip. Also, be sure your records are in order. P. M. fine for going about socially — making progress through interesting people.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) — The ideal day to discuss any problems you may have with higher-ups who will be only too glad to help you solve them. Then be busy with social affairs tonight so that you can advance more quickly through the right contacts.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) — The right day to meet interesting people, get any new ventures started, study new things, whatever is progressive. Evening is then fine for attending social functions, meetings, etc. — combine business with pleasure.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — A fine day and evening for conferring with others, experts and getting ideas that will help you to clear up all of your problems most wisely, whether of an intimate or business nature. Learn to live more wisely, be more practical.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — If you will get together amicably with whomever you wish to work out any new or established ventures, you can have real success now. P. M. ideal for having dinner out, indulging in sports or going to the theatre, etc.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Be the sort of co-worker that others will appreciate now—take that chip off your shoulder. Co-operation will work wonders. P. M. get abode in fine order, put finishing touches on wardrobe, and take health treatment needed.

If your child is born today — he, or she, will have very little difficulty with big projects since the mind is a most powerful one. However, you must early teach to be more dynamic, since the tendency is to loll around in luxury from earliest years. The chart is fine for any work before the public, especially in the entertainment field, or for any position connected with government, civics, etc.

FLEMING WILL

December at the October unemployment conference in Ottawa. The government will give it $150,000 a year and any other contributions the council gets from private industry.

HAS FIVE FROM EACH

Heading the council will be an executive director. The members will include five from industry and commerce, five from labor, five from agriculture and other primary industries, five from the general public and four "technically qualified persons from scientific departments of government."

Appointments of the council will be for three years.

Mr. Hees said the council's aims will be to promote improved production and distribution methods, improved management techniques, maintenance of "good human relations" in industry, use of industrial training programs and retraining plans to meet changing manpower requirements, extension of applied industrial research, and dissemination of technical information.

HOPES NOT PUT ASIDE

George McIlraith (L — Ottawa West) said he hopes that the government's plan is not an indication of an attitude that current economic problems facing Canada "can be put aside or sidetracked" through the council.

He said that if this were the case, the government could "escape responsibility for the wrong economic policies which they may have pursued in the past three years and for not adopting other economic policies to meet the new conditions which exist in economic fields today."

It is conceivable that Mr. McIlraith may be the only Liberal speaker on the resolution stage of the productivity measure. The Liberals followed the procedure on the vocational training proposal and on the remaining four bills—since passed—to amend the national housing act and extend government guarantees to bank loans for small business.

WINS PRIZE

MONTREAL (CP)—Michael C. Ogus, a fifth year student at the University of Toronto school of architecture, Tuesday was awarded the $500 grand prize in the Texaco of Canada national service station design competition.

HARD-HITTING

later Warrender have said they are still investigating the Eatview report, drafted by departmental officials and released Nov. 17, to see if governmental action is required.

Mr. Frost charged the opposition with perverting justice "to the ends of dirty politics." He said Mr. Sopha was trying to suggest that criminal charges be laid against Mayor Gordon Lawrence (PC — Russell). There was nothing in the report that said Mr. Lawrence should be investigated, he added.

"The last statement of the prime minister casts a personal reflection on all members of the opposition," Liberal Leader Wintermeyer said. "I expect that it be withdrawn."

Mr. Frost said he had not wanted to cast aspersions — he asked all members of the legislature. But he added that the Sudbury member had given every indication of "the perversion of justice."

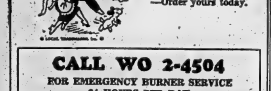
He cautioned Mr. Sopha to "tread softly."

Mr. Sopha charged the premier with using his own "mantle of integrity" to cover the misdeeds of those around him.

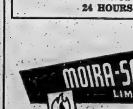
"I have never cast a cloak of integrity over anybody," Mr. Frost replied. "I have never owned a cloak."

Mr. Sopha took issue also with a statement by the premier that he acted as a "prosecutor" in the royal commission investigation of the Niagara Parks Commission of which Mayor Minnie Daley is chairman.

"I have the highest esteem for Mr. Daley and I said so at the hearings," Mr. Sopha said. "But I said they (the park commissioners) carried out their duties without attention to the laws or good business practice."



WAS EXONERATED



The royal commission exonerated the parks commission from any wrongdoing.

"You went out with a Bible in one hand and a dagger in the other," Mr. Frost charged.

He reiterated a previous statement that a member of the legislature should not attempt to question a fellow member's integrity, unless the member is willing to resign his seat if the allegations are proved groundless.

"I have no duty to protect any of the honorable gentlemen opposite," Mr. Sopha said.

Stop Dragging Feet PM Warns Subsidiaries

Must Play Their Part In Fight for Exports

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker has told Canadian subsidiaries of United States firms, in effect, to stop dragging their feet on the problem of exports.

He also said Canada must realize the demand on national earnings from non-resident investment and "resolve the conflict between non-resident control and the national interest."

Mr. Diefenbaker spoke Wednesday night at a dinner attended by businessmen and Canadian trade commissioners. The trade commissioners have been brought here from many parts of the world to tell the businessmen how best to expand their markets abroad. The two-week trade-promotion course began on a Monday and the Leeds and Frontenac Telephone Company.

Mr. Diefenbaker, in one of his most outspoken statements yet on the problem of American economic penetration, said it has been contended that some Canadian-controlled companies in Canada are holding back on exports—"in connection with the corporate affairs of their foreign associations."

CALLS FOR EXAMINATION

"I am not saying whether that view is justified or not, but I call on the subsidiaries to re-examine their policies in the light of the national interests and the citizens of Canada and to do everything within that power to build up that export trade."

The day was past when Canadians could regard the "purely consistently large" deficit on trade with the United States might be offset by surpluses earned elsewhere.

Canada must expand its exports to the United States, reduce the demand on national earnings from non-resident investment and reconcile the conflict between non-resident corporate interests and the national interest."

Canada, he said, have to realize that they must invest in Canada's future.

For some years trade department officials have been encouraging Canadian subsidiaries to seek greater freedom to export, in which they have had little success. subsidiaries had succeeded in obtaining such freedom except applications the right to serve world markets from Canada.

EXPORTS VITAL

"I again call on management to recognize the importance to Canada that export business is necessary for the success of their Canadian operations. It should be interested in keeping the economy of Canada healthy and vigorous and significant."

Mr. Diefenbaker compared the "phenomenal growth" of European exports to the U.S. during the past decade with the "more modest" increase of about 20 per cent in Canadian exports.

The prime minister said exports to the United Kingdom have been increasing markedly while those to the U.S. are down from $900,000,000.

In the first 10 months of 1960 Canada sold only the equivalent of $600,000,000 a post-war record, 29 per cent more than in the comparable period last year.

Mr. Diefenbaker praised the U.S. and Canadian trade officials for forthcoming tariff talks under the General Agreement on tariffs and Trade.

"Never before has the United States taken the initiative and explained vast reductions over sixth a broad range of products. Never before has Canada responded to this U.S. displayed such a "forward-looking policy."

Congo Attempts To Slap Embargo On UN Supplies

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters) — The Congo government has tried to stop supplies to whole United Nations action in The Congo" by clapping an embargo on the transport of strategic supplies, UN officials here claim today. Ji Rikhye of India said today.

He told a press conference the head of the Congo security department has given orders to the Ostend Company, which controls all surface transportation in The Congo, to carry only medical and food supplies for the UN without authorization from the security authorities.

"We are not prepared to accept this decision at all," Rikhye said.

"It is the most serious challenge to date to the working of the UN here."

The UN notes for 90 per cent of its transportation of Congo, a semi-state-owned monopoly. The next UN transport by Ostend was due by river next Tuesday.

Rikhye said at a news conference last week by the president of the ruling student council, Muslim Nomboon, he was not satisfied with so far.

Rikhye said the Congolese explained they wanted to give priority to the movement of Congolese civilian goods.

SAYS ORDER NECESSARY

Victor Nendaka, head of the national security police who issued the order, told reporters:

"The United Nations is a political body. The economic needs of The Congo must take priority over it. We need our transportation facilities to feed the Congolese population."

Timmins Favors Sunday Movies In Close Election

TIMMINS (CP)—Electors of Timmins returned former-Mayor Leo Del Villano to office and voted in favor of Sunday movies in Wednesday's municipal election.

Final returns early today after a tight election - night count showed Mr. Del Villano, 46, mayor for the past two years, won an 85-vote majority over Councillor Elmer E. Shilton, 51. The tally was Del Villano 3,400, Smith 3,315.

In a three-way race, incumbent Mayor J. R. Brunette, 60, polled 2,836. Mr. Brunette also had an eight one-year terms in the 1940s.

Near the end of the night Mr. Smith said he probably would need a recount if the margin against him were less than 100.

The vote for Sunday movies, plays and concerts was 5,238 with 4,565 against.

In the race for the six-seat council, a candidate's name for voters. All five of last year's councillors were re-elected. The sixth seat was won by Simon J. Mainville, installed as a councillor last year after a controversial recount. At that time, Mainville lost out by 25 votes to Councillor A. G. Couture, who placed fifth in Wednesday's election.

Councillors: Joseph J. Evans, 3,826; Emile L. Clement, 3,432; J. P. Hartman, 3,281; Angus MacDonald, 3,080; A. G. Couture 2,718; S. J. Mainville, 2,627.

HAYDEN STANTON, PC MEMBER FOR LEEDS, DIES

Had Long Municipal Life in County

KINGSTON (CP) — Hayden Stanton, 62, Progressive-Conservative member of the Commons for Leeds, died in hospital here early today.

Mr. Stanton had been in hospital three weeks and had undergone a stomach operation.

Mr. Stanton, a farmer living at Seeley's Bay, had represented Leeds since 1953, winning the seat from the Liberals and holding it in the elections of 1957 and 1958.

He had been a Leeds councillor for two years and reeve for eight years, in 1953. He was warden of the united counties of Leeds and Grenville.

He was chairman of the Leeds and Grenville health unit for four years and was a director of the Ongwanada tubercular sanatorium.

For 17 years he served on the board of education and for 12 years was a director of the Leeds and Grenville Farmers' Co-operative and the Leeds and Frontenac Telephone Company.

He was born at Crosby, Ont. Mr. Stanton's death left the Commons membership at 265 servatives, 50 Liberals, eight C.C.F., one Labor Party member and two vacancies.

The other vacancy was created by the appointment of Chief Defence Minister Pearkes as lieutenant-governor of British Columbia.

Mr. Stanton was chairman of the Commons standing committee on agriculture.

A member of the United Church, Mr. Stanton also was prominent in the affairs of the Masonic lodge.

Surviving relatives include his wife, the former Blanche DeLong of Seeley's Bay; a son, Ralph, of Seeley's Bay; a daughter, Mrs. Robert Latimer of Ottawa; and a brother, Clair, and a sister, Mrs. Ernest Moore of Seeley's Bay.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Royal Bank Nationalized By Cuban Govt.

HAVANA (Reuters) — The Royal Bank of Canada here was nationalized today by the Cuban government, the bank's agreement said to be accepted in principle by the bank.

The bank's assets, worth $125,000,000, its liabilities and staff were taken over by the National Bank of Cuba, whose representative here is the Royal Bank's head office in Aguiar Street this morning as delegate manager.

The Royal Bank is the Bank of Nova Scotia were the only remaining U.S. banks operating in Cuba. It whereby all Cuba's banks were nationalized.

The Royal Bank's supervisor, H. M. Grindell, said today this week's nationalization announcement and two days ago the bank agreed to accept a takeover.

PLOTS TO HALT

HAMILTON (CP) — The city's new Georgian marble city hall was visited by 5,000 people Wednesday night as gleaming symbol to the structure to congratulate the electorate on the results of Wednesday's civic elections. City architect Stanley Roberts designed the boomerang-shaped building, said he did so with the public in mind and explained that its shape represents the goddess of prosperity with the arms outstretched towards the people.

Secret Sky-Spy Gear Is in Orbit In Satellite Over Arctic Regions

VANDENBERG AFB, Calif. (AP)—A Discoverer satellite containing secret sky-spy gear of a sensitive nature day was placed in orbit Wednesday.

A 20-pound capsule will be ejected over the Arctic, possibly today or Friday. If all goes well, it will be snagged by air force planes over the Pacific near Hawaii.

In it are bits of human tissue and human bone marrow. Scientists will test them aloft to learn how radiation affects them — a lifeand-death matter for future men in space.

Also aboard the capsule were algae, blood cells, spores, gamma globulin, albumin, gold foil and various kinds of film.

The capsule's delicate propensity included long-range cameras that scan the earth and television devices to detect rocket firings.

It will be snagged by specially equipped long-range planes over the Pacific near Hawaii.

A rocket-type engine with 180,000 pounds of thrust — 15,000 pounds more thrust than used in past launchings — boosted the 2,190-pound satellite into orbit after a spectacular firing loader and brighter than any of the 13 earlier Discoverers which achieved orbit. Circling the globe every 97 minutes, the satellite was travels as far away as 450 miles.

Bomarc Value Cut if Canada Will Not Store A-Warheads

McGUIRE AFB., N.J. (CP) — The vice-commander of the U.S. Air Defence Command says the tactical value of the Bomarc-B missile will be reduced by half if "downgraded c o n s i d e r a b l y" if Canada decides to reject American atomic warheads for her two squadrons.

Brigadier-General Robert M. Lee, in discussing Bomarc operations with reporters, said the Bomarc does not store warheads in peacetime, "our operational readiness" proceed to the extent of the time it would take to get the warheads into Canada in the event of an emergency."

"I would imagine," he added, "that Canada would want these warheads if an emergency occurred."

Lee and a group of other American Air Force general officers today conducted reporters on a tour of the fully operational squadron manned with 56 nuclear-tipped Bomarc-A missiles, the predecessor to the more powerful range Bomarc-B. The air force plans to add 14 Bomarc-B weapons to this squadron when the more powerful missiles arrive.

Under current production plans, the first Bomarc-B missiles will be installed in Canada's can bases next summer. All told, there will be 10 squadrons, eight in the United States and two in Canada. Of the seven details to sky three squadrons will be made up entirely of B models. Other squadrons will have a mixture of A and B types.

Canada would get her first B models in the spring of 1962. These would be installed at North Bay. The Mont Laurier, Que., base would start getting its missiles later in the year.

Bomarcs, conceived mainly to intercept manned aircraft, can be loaded both with conventional and atomic warheads. Brig.-Gen. Gilbert L. Pritchard, head of the New York air defence sector, said Bomarcs have a mixture of value with a conventional warhead. But the effective range with the weapon would be "downgraded considerably" with a conventional charge.

All Will Crumble if Forces Quit Congo - - Hammarskjold

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — Dag Hammarskjold has declared that "everything will crumble" in The Congo if United Nations forces are withdrawn.

The UN secretary-general declared himself against bitter Communist criticism Wednesday night at a meeting of the Security Council, called by Russia to deal with the Congo situation.

Earlier in the day Czechoslovakia announced it is pulling its 21 men out of the UN Congo force. Poland and the United Arab Republic have already announced they will draw their small contingents from the 20,000-man force.

The Soviet Union and Guinea, who has been trying to undercut the UN Congo operation in every possible way, tried to take the floor to reply to Hammarskjold but the Security Council voted to adjourn despite his protests. He gets a chance when debate resumes today.

Hammarskjold spoke Wednesday night as the council opened debate on the rival East and West resolutions on the arrest of Patrice L u m u m b a, deposed Congo premier.

Denying he had compromised the principles of the United Nations in The Congo for political advantage, Hammarskjold said: "Paris, Dec. 16-18.

BILL LAMBASTED BY OPPOSITION BUT SUPPORTED

Vocational Training Act Under Attack

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberals displayed in the Commons Wednesday how far the opposition can go in lambasting a government proposal — and still avow support for the principle.

The proposal was Labor Minister Starr's vocational training bill which, among other things, increases federal payments toward the cost of building, equipping and operating provincial schools for train unskilled workers.

Paul Martin (L—Essex East) opened the government at a caustic attitude toward the problem of unskilled laborers who needed full-time training, and was "a national task which is not in any way being met by this measure." But he said he will vote for it. It would give a few people jobs.

Leon Crestohl (C—Montreal Cartier) was more stronger in his condemnation. The bill, he said, is an "insult" to the government problem. It represented "a colossal failure" in the federal department's vocational training program. It was "a perfunctory move to get votes."

Mr. Starr and his Conservative supporters listened quietly to the criticism. But when Mr. Crestohl finished, Edwin W. Brunsden (C—Medicine Hat) observed that the Liberal MP took a great deal of credit for himself and wondered why he opposed it.

"I beg your pardon," Mr. Crestohl said. "I am not opposing the legislation at all. I'll support it, how useless it is, and how much it lacks."

Trenton Craft Searching Area For Two Crews

TRENTON — Aircraft from RCAF Station Trenton today were searching 30 miles south of Smyrna, Lake Ontario, for two CF-100 jet interceptors which collided at 6:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Public Relations Headquarters at Ottawa identified the missing men as F-O R. G. P. Leon, 25, Hillcrest Park, Ottawa, and F-O J. R. Tawse, and his observer, F-O J. Neilson, 25, Hillcrest Park, Ottawa, and his observer, F-O J. Neilson; F-O M. L. McLean, 28, Sherbrooke, Que., and F-O Ronald Tawse, 25, Hillcrest Park, Ottawa, and his observer, F-O J. Neilson, 25, whose wife also lives in Ottawa.

An RCAF spokesman said at 10:30 a.m. today no bodies or survivors had been found. Both aircraft from RCAF Station Trenton, Ontario, are based at Uplands.

A total of six aircraft from 103 Composite Unit, Trenton, RCAF Station Trenton, and a U.S. radar post in Quebec participated in the area after the jets collided during a routine practice flight over the Val d'Or area of Quebec.

A de-icer RCAF ground search party has been located by helicopters from Quebec lands and forests despite the fact that it is 30 miles from a lumber camp in the area. At least, the parties were about five miles east of Holmes.

Economists Want Coyne Ousted As Bank's Head

Twenty Sign Request For Action by Fleming

TORONTO (CP)—A letter was to arrive on Finance Minister Fleming's desk today asking immediate removal of James Coyne as governor of the Bank of Canada.

The letter, sent Wednesday, bears signatures of more than 20 economists from at least three Canadian universities.

Some members of the University of Toronto's political economy department, author of the letter was circulated, said Wednesday night they had refused to sign it.

Associate Professor S. G. Triantis said signatories were in a minority and added the letter gave no concrete reasons for asking Mr. Coyne's removal.

H. I. Macdonald, an economics professor, said the letter was "sort of silly" and "said nothing substantial." He said it seemed to him to be "a political document."

A. C. Ashforth, who retired this week as president of the Toronto Dominion bank, said Mr. Coyne is doing a competent job.

The text was published here Wednesday night but Mr. Coyne declined comment. He said he would be seen contents of the letter. "I'll say, I am not sure."

"We are facing serious economic difficulties in Canada both in our domestic economy and in our trade and financial relations with other countries.

"The undersigned economists feel that Canadians as a whole have lost confidence in the ability of the Bank of Canada under its present management to take the proper role in ameliorating and resisting these difficulties.

"Recent public statements by the governor of the Bank of Canada have seriously shaken our faith in the wisdom and competence of the bank's management. As professional economists we are deeply concerned and distressed by the economic reasoning contained in these public statements. The reasoning does not appear to us to approach that level of competence which is a necessary foundation for successful central bank policy."

The letter does not elaborate on the "statements." But it continues:

"Moreover, we feel that the public interest is harmed by the Bank of Canada have not disclosed publicly their analysis of difficulties and uncertainties' of the financial market or sufficient awareness of the true state of the economy in general.

"Such disclosure surely we are justified in expecting that the Bank of Canada should act as a stabilizing force in the economy and not as one whom actions lend to increase the uncertainties and financial difficulties.

"For these reasons you then, Mr. Minister, to ask that steps should be taken to alter the management of the Bank of Canada.

We plead you should appreciate the gravity of the situation and that you should act without delay."

The signers are believed to comprise 10 to 12 University of Toronto economists, seven from McGill University in Montreal and a similar number from the University in Ottawa, of which Mr. Coyne is chairman of the board of governors.

Mr. Coyne, whose seven-year term expires in 1961, has been condemned in the last year that Canadians are living beyond their means.

He has said Canada's heavy deficit because of payments with other countries is evidence of this. He called for more trade abroad, more saving at home and replacement of imports with domestic manufactures.

Laotian Regime Ready for Rebels Of Left or Right

VIENTIANE, Laos (Reuters)—Right-wing rebels in Laos appeared to be dropping on Vientiane late today, it was reported. Leaders were praying for an expected leftist assault.

By mid-afternoon about 60 paratroopers of Gen. Phoumi Nosavan's forces had landed six miles east of Vientiane.

Machine-gun nests were set up on the steps of the headquarters of neutralist Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma, who called on both right and left this morning to begin cease-fire talks.

Early today, army units loyal to Prince Souvanna carried out an anti-leftist demonstration in the hope of paving the way for peace talks with the rebels.

LEFTISTS LEAVE CITY

But the move immediately brought a protest from Communist Pathet Lao chiefs who had come to Vientiane three months ago for peace talks. They threatened to break off contact.

So did Capt. Kong Le, leftleaning leader of a paratrooper force, by which installed the neutralist premier in power.

Souvanna had ordered Le to arrest a number of leftist youth but Le was believed to have refused to carry out the order.

The paratroop captain later joined the Pathet Lao in one of the Pathet Lao leaders. Police reportedly are also operation full-scale security precautions in case Le led the Pathet Lao forces in a sub attack on the city.

International Plowing Match Will Be Held Near This City Next Year, October 4-7

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

BANDS TO STAGE JAZZ SESSION

The Boys' Athletic Society of Quinte Secondary School will sponsor one of the biggest dances of the year on Friday night, it was announced today.

The dance will feature the Oshawa Bluejays and Belleville's Fabulons, with a jazz session staged by both groups from 10.30 to 11.30 p.m. Dancing will start at 8.15 p.m.

The winner of the 53-piece set of 7 dinnerware from O'Connor's Jewel Box on Wednesday, December 7, was Mrs. Eileen Baker, 84 Ridley Street, Belleville. (Advt.)

Dates for the 1961 International Plowing Match to be held north of Belleville next year are announced. Oct. 4-5-6-7, members of Hastings county council were told Wednesday by Dr. J. Russell Scott, chairman of the county plowing match committee.

The big plowing match is to be held on the 4th concession of Sidney, west of Highway 14 with the acreage intended for the match already having been readied.

Dr. Scott told council that next year's plowing match, to be held in the Belleville area for the first time is being held a week earlier than customary and is also being held during the last four days of the week, instead of starting on a Monday.

In passing, Dr. Scott complimented Sidney township Reeve Harleigh Hamilton and his committee for overseeing a bee to put the plowing match acreage in shape.

"The plowing match committee is very pleased with the results of the bee and we wish to express our appreciation to local municipalities and contractors who loaned their gear for the purpose," he said.

Local contractors, including the H. J. McFarland Company; Mel Berlinguet; Lentherics and Wilson Concrete, loaned heavy equipment to rout out fences and move soil while making the plowing match site one big field.

Earlier during the session, Reeve Hamilton expressed his appreciation to contractors and others who had assisted at the bee.

VALUES INCREASE

Property values had been increased by at least $4,000 by the work, he said.

Deputy-Reeve Harry Pound of Thurlow, also a plowing match committee member, said the council the committee had purchased plowing match equipment such as grass seeder, fertilizer box and various other items from this year's plowing match at Lyn in Western Ontario. The equipment had been purchased for $1,700 and would be sold only to operators of the 1961 match.

Reeve Charles Long of Tyendinaga said next year's match would represent a splendid opportunity to advertise Hastings County. He suggested a special booth advertising county products, booth advertising countryside-county and manufactured products.

It was thought that the National Film Board might be approached to prepare a brief, 10-minute film setting out the county's products, this film to be shown at the plowing match.

This aspect of advertising the county was already under consideration by the match committee, Clerk-Treasurer Eric S. Denyes said. However, he said the committee would appreciate any further suggestions.

Handel's Messiah To Be Presented At St. Andrew's

Handel's Messiah (The Advent and Christmas music) will be presented Sunday evening, in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church by St. Andrew's choir under the direction of Egerton Cope, organist and choir leader. The four soloists, all members of St. Andrew's choir, are Mrs. Ivan Rollins, soprano; Mrs. Vincent, contralto; Mr. Alex Cunningham, tenor, and Mr. Harold Williamson, bass.

An offering will be received which is to be given to the Healey Willan Scholarship Fund, the chairman of the fund being Sir Ernest MacMillan.

For the more than forty-five years Canadian music, especially that of the church, has had its champion in the person of Dr. Healey Willan, and his compositions are known and performed throughout the world. He is one of the few musicians to have received the Doctorate of Music, conferred by Trinity University, Toronto, and the only composer to have had the honor to have been commissioned to write music for the Coronation Service of Queen Elizabeth II.

In his four decades as organist and choirmaster at the Church of St. Mary Magdalene in Toronto, Dr. Willan maintained a level of liturgical music which has been unsurpassed. His choral work has been an inspiration to countless musicians and his influence on the trend of church music in churches has been profound. In 1952 Dr. Willan was earned the title "Dean of Canadian Composers."

In honor of Dr. Willan's 80th birthday in October, the Royal Canadian College of Organists, which he has twice been president, has established the "Healey Willan Scholarship Fund."

The proceeds of this fund will be used annually to promote talented, young church organists to pass the exams of the college.

Keith Chambers Will Run Again

Municipal elections are nearly over for another year, but already a two-way fight is shaping up for the 1962 reeveship contest at Madoc.

Keith Chambers, who was defeated this year by a 111-vote majority by Councillor Reeve Tom Bursaide, said Wednesday in a telephone interview that he definitely be a candidate next year.

"This year was the first time I had contested the reeveship," he said. "Anyone who is really interested in the municipality should not give up just because things go sour in one election. I will definitely seek the reeveship in 1962."

S. O. Graham, chairman of the board of directors of Trenton Memorial Hospital, accepts a cheque for $2,000 from Mrs. Harold Keefer, president of the hospital Woman's Auxiliary, as a social evening Wednesday, sponsored by the auxiliary.

Woman's Auxiliary Presents $2,000 Cheque to Hospital For New Addition Fund

TRENTON — A few months ago the Women's Auxiliary of Trenton Memorial Hospital launched its 200 toward the building fund for the new addition to the hospital. The auxiliary set out to collect $2,000 by a shoe drive ago and last night a dinner party at the Legion Hall. Mrs. Harold Keefer, president of the W.A., presented a cheque for $2,000 to S. O. Graham, chairman of the board of directors of the hospital. It is hoped that the remaining $3,000 will be paid well within the three-year limit set by the W.A.

Mr. Graham expressed the thanks of the board for the great interest the W.A. has shown in the work of the hospital.

Convener of the evening was Mrs. D. J. MacDonald, who was assisted by Mrs. Eben James, Mrs. W. R. Fairels, Mrs. C. Allan and Mrs. J. T. Owens.

Mayor James MacDonald and Mrs. Eben James conveyed a committee which was responsible for the decorating scheme in the auditorium.

Mrs. Keefer, Mrs. Thorne Spear and Miss S. O. Moores, hospital administrator, welcomed the guests.

In charge of refreshments were Mrs. C. Allen and Mrs. J. T. Owens and their committees of Mrs. J. Bowman and Mrs. W. J. McGuire.

Mrs. R. H. Smithrim and Mrs. George Leeman convened the attractive candy table. Clayton McGuire was in charge of the euchre tables.

Of special interest to the bridge players was a prize for the high score at the table. Mrs. Thorne Spear, chairman of the ways and means committee and vice-president of the W.A., was in charge of prizes and draws. She presented the prize to the euchre winners. Mr. Graham and Mrs. MacDonald gave prizes to the winners of the draws.

Mrs. W. A. L. McDonald and Mrs. D. J. McDonald were in charge of arrangements for the grand draw. Mr. Graham drew the lucky name for this draw. The winner was Bruce Ireland.

The auxiliary members thanked all who donated prizes or helped in any way with this successful evening's entertainment.

Carols Featured At Dec. Meeting Of RCAF W.A.

TRENTON — The singing of traditional Christmas carols and a fashion show were features of the regular monthly meeting of the RCAF Women's Auxiliary at Bradley school this week.

Mrs. Beriner Carter sang several solos and models in the fashion show were Kay Craig, Ruth Lloyd and Robbie Russell. Mrs. Fashion commentary was given by Helen Fraser.

An announcement was made to the effect that while the arts and crafts section of the auxiliary had met with considerable success this season, it would be necessary to secure new members at the beginning of the Council Will Continue With 1960 Executive

TRENTON — The Community Co-ordination Council decided last night to carry on its work under the leadership of the 1960 executive and to hold an election of officers next fall rather than at the beginning of 1961.

Officers are, President, Tom Bedford; vice - president, Al Perry; secretary, H. B. Smith. Club representatives are, Mrs. Fay Jeffrey, Business and Professional Women's Club; Gordon Carr, Kinsmen; Fred Preston, Rotary; Nostrand Sprague, Legion; H. McCaughey, RCAF Association; Ron Thornton, Community Gardens; Louis Knack, Legion.

Feb. 6 has been set aside as the tentative date for a joint dinner meeting of the four local service clubs. The Rotary Club will act as host and provide entertainment.

Mrs. Jeffery said that the B. and O. Club members wished to join the council as they felt the council could prove helpful in future years.

An effort will be made to find a central answering service system where people could call to check clearance for tag days and fund-raising drives and other community events.

Year-end for some of the classes, particularly in the leathercraft and flowercraft divisions.

Mrs. J. D. Arbuckle, W.A. president, conducted the business portion of the meeting. She said that blood donor clinics would be held at 8 Repair Depot and RCAF Station, Trenton on this week.

Mrs. L. Saunders reported that the toy bingo held in November was a success. Volunteer help from members of the service bingo being held Dec. 19 in the S-HQ recreation hall.

Mrs. G. Frose reminded the members that all ticket money from the sale of curling books and slacks should be in by Dec. 15.

During the social part of the meeting, lunch was served by Mrs. E. Irvine and her committee.

MEMORIAM

ASSELSTINE — In memory of our dear husband, father and brother, who passed away December 1st, 1951.
Sadly missed by wife, son, daughter and sorrow
Into a new world of tomorrow;
You are just as near today,
As on the day you passed away.
Your memory remembered by his wife and family.

SMITH. — In loving memory of our dear husband, father and brother, Cecil Smith, who passed away December 8th, 1955.
Sleep on dear heart, sleep on and take your rest,
God knew best.
To the happy days of yesterday,
Always remembered by wife and family.

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to extend sincere thanks and appreciation for the many acts of kindness, words of sympathy and the beautiful floral tributes received from relatives, friends and neighbors during the case of our mother, A very special thanks to the doctors and nurses of the Kingsport and RCAF Hospitals. CHEESE FANCIERS ALL — Above may be seen three who were in attendance at the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Convention banquet yesterday evening. From the left are: Harold Montgomery of Monkland, winner of the British Empire Grand Championship award for the highest placed cheese; the Reverend Richard D. Jones, of Toronto, national director of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews and the guest speaker, and Roy Huffman, Corbyville, outgoing president of the associ...

Delbert Rowe of Halloway Head of Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association

Delbert Rowe of Halloway was elected president of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association following yesterday afternoon's convention session at the Hotel Quinte. Mr. Rowe succeeds Roy Huffman of Corbyville, who will be immediate past president for the coming year. Mr. Rowe will also hold the post of treasurer.

Elected vice president was Harold Elliott of Foxboro and Mrs. A. Matthews of Belleville continues as secretary of the association.

Elected to the executive as directors were Claude Reid of Harold, Ivan Rine of Eldorado, Harold Kingston of Harrowsmith, Don Deline of Ivanhoe, Orval Ray of Tweed and Doug Reid of Consecon.

Prior to the election of the above officers over 50 members attended the afternoon session of the association's 32rd annual convention C. A. Milligan, MP for Prince Edward Lennox, was the first speaker of the afternoon. He gave a very interesting address on the manner in which the dairy industry should make its presentations to the government.

BALANCE WHEEL

Paying tribute to the cheese industry as the "balance wheel of the dairy industry," Mr. Milligan expressed his feelings that credit was certainly due to those who are attempting to maintain the production of a quality product.

Speaking on the government's relationship with representative bodies, he said that it was only too willing to consider any brief presented to it. But, he cautioned, these briefs should be sound, to the point and specific in their requests and proposals.

Mr. Milligan expressed the opinion that there should be more equality in the government support given various businesses and that now was the time for strong thinking on the part of the dairy producers if any changes are to be made. There should also be a greater degree of participation and incentive on the part of the individual member of a farm organization, with suggestions coming from the grass roots up, not from the executive from down, he suggested.

Referring to the immediate problems of the cheese makers, Ross Rankin, manager of the Ontario Cheese Manufacturers' Association felt that makers should give 100 per cent moral, as well as financial help to the efforts of those trying to help the industry.

Citing the current problem of maintaining the quality of maturing cheese, Mr. Baxter indicated that very strict control was needed at the receiving end on the milk from the farms, as well as a total clean housing program to ensure the very best possible grade of milk being used for cheese.

The milk supply must be pooled and old and worn machinery should be replaced with modern equipment if the quality of Canadian cheddar cheese is to be maintained, he said.

DAIRY DIRECTOR SPEAKS

The next speaker, Mr. J. L. Baker, director of dairying, Ontario Department of Agriculture, spoke about the dairy industry in general. He said that the cow population had decreased somewhat over the past year. An outline of the various boards and associations within the industry and their functions was given.

Referring to the cheese industry in particular, Mr. Baker expressed his feeling that the problem of the quality of milk used in cheese making was up to the individual producer. However, they should make a check on the quality as it was received at the plant. It was also suggested that there might be a central control laboratory to check on the quality of milk.

The final speaker was Mr. Stevenson was Mr. O. R. Irvine, head of the dairy division of the Kemptville Agricultural School. Mr. Irvine gave the technical results of several projects conducted during recent months. These included a survey covering the composition of Ontario cheddar cheese as compared with a similar survey made in 1950), the results of an experiment on vacuum ...g cheese at various stages in its processing to obtain the best degree of openness, and also the results of experiments carried out to determine the effects of spores on the production of cheese which turn off-flavor when they ripen.

Mr. Irvine mentioned the need of a test by which the quality of organisms present in cheese whilst in the vat stage could be determined. Then, through observation and experimentation, it could be determined what the proper amount of control of organisms might be in order to be sure that the mature product would be of high quality. A question and answer period followed.

The morning session included an address by Mr. J. M. Bain, director of milk products branch of the Department of Agriculture, from Toronto, some remarks by Mr. Ross Baxter, and a lengthy question and answer session during which any cheesemaker could query any of the government experts present. The session was under the chairmanship of Mr. H. M. Martin, grader with the Department of Agriculture in Belleville.

BANQUET HELD

The annual banquet, held at the Masonic Temple yesterday evening, was attended by a capacity and close to 150 persons were in attendance to hear the guest speaker, Reverend Richard D. Jones, the national director of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, and view the presentation of awards.

Mr. Jones gave a very interesting address, stressing the harmony and satisfaction of community life based on the acceptance and recognition of people of different faiths, races and color. His point was emphasized by some very interesting examples.

QUINTE SECONDARY
By Lynda E. Overy

Last week was a shooting one at Quinte. Wednesday the students of grades 9 and 12, barred their arms and were shot by Dr. Metcalfe of the city health department, as administered the new type TB detection test. On the local radio station they were in evidence as we students were shot by local photographers.

Under the auspices of a local merchant several talented young pianists of Belleville and district have been competing in a contest for the past few weeks at the local radio station. We are proud and happy to report that one of our grade 12 students, Bruce Johnston, tied for first place with a BCI student, Roger Ling. These two students will go compete and the winner will be announced later. Congratulations to both of these students. Best of luck, Bruce!

Quinte's Glee Club have been hard at work practising for their candle debut on Saturday, December 12. We are looking forward to hearing them.

Saturday morning saw many of our chunky boys out on our famous rink. Quinte's hockey and skating rink which we hope will provide us with a good deal of fun in the forthcoming winter months.

Most of us are eagerly awaiting the Christmas holidays. Quinte at present are in the throes of Christmas shopping, Christmas cards and planning all the marvellous things we are going to do. Yes, Christmas is coming and our otherwise bright horizon and that is—your report card.

United Appeal Fund Reported At $62,724

A. S. Robb, campaign chairman of the 1960 Belleville United Appeal, yesterday held a final luncheon meeting with his divisional chairmen to endeavor to obtain a close estimate of the final results of this year's campaign.

The total amount reported as by yesterday noon was $52,724, slightly below last year's total and far below the $80,000 objective. However, additional contributions have been promised and, when they are received, it is expected the final total will reach about $63,500, or slightly in excess of last year's total.

A final report is expected when the fund holds its regular monthly meeting Dec. 19.

The divisional breakdown follows: national organizations $1,-285; railways $407.50; special names $4,565; residential $9,-668.95; payroll giving $23,654.88; public service $1,947.80; professional $1,000; special gifts $9,-381.28; total $62,724.76.

The board's estimate of contributions yet to be received, national corporations $1,200; payroll giving $2,000; private names $300; other businesses $225; total $1,775. Estimated final total for the 1960 campaign: $64,499.76.

Good Progress Being Made In Renovation of New School

The public meeting of the Belleville and District Association for Retarded Children was held on Tuesday evening at the Belleville School for Retarded Children.

Association president Mr. Alvin Parkhurst, presided and reports from the committees were received.

The education report given by Mrs. Arthur Ward, chairman, thanked the Lion Club and association members for working at renovation and repair work at the school. The laying of new tile floors has completed the classrooms. By Christmas the windows will be dressed with new drapes of unbleached cotton. On Thursday, Dec. 22, a Christmas party will be held for the school children.

Mrs. R. Coulombe, chairman of the Retarded Adult Program Committee, reported that the last party held for the group was very enjoyable and of great interest to the three visitors from the Kingston Association, which is preparing to begin program work with young adults. Monday afternoon is reserved for the group for bowling at the Bowl-O-Drome, courtesy of Mr. Bill Brennan. A Christmas party is planned for Sunday afternoon, Dec. 11, at the school.

Two local girls attending the Ontario Hospital School, Smiths Falls, have been adopted by the Belleville Association, reported Mrs. A. Green, of the institution committee. The girls will receive Christmas and birthday presents and letters and cards during the year.

Mrs. L. Johnston, 31 Southwood Crescent, has started a homecare committee for mothers of retarded pre-school children.

SWIMMING ASSOCIATION

Swimming at the Albert College pool is enjoyed by the school children, reported Mrs. Alvin Parkhurst, recreation chairman. The children use the pool on Wednesday afternoon and are learning the basic fundamentals of swimming. The Belleville Shrine club has invited the school children to its Christmas party, December 17th.

Mr. Frank Follwell, chairman for two years of the association's building committee spoke about the improvements and changes that should be made in the future to hold more successful campaign. Mr. Follwell expressed thanks to all who gave of their time and talent for the campaign held in October.

Musical entertainment was provided by two members of the retarded children group, Gordon Wetherall played a number of tunes and Christmas carols on the piano, and George Coulombe sang "Silent night", being also played the piano.

Mr. T. A. Macbold showed slides he had taken of the school children while swimming at the school, at home and while at school in the class room and on the school bus.

A raffle was held for a doll and wardrobe and the ticket of Morris Foley, 313 Bleecker Road, South, Oshawa, RA 5-5315 was drawn. Special thanks to Mrs. W. Warren for the doll and making the wardrobe and to Mrs. R. Johnston for the sale of the tickets. $160.00 made from the raffle was used to purchase a special heater for the school bus.

Harriet Stevens of C.J.B.Q. will speak at the next public meeting in January.

County Council Members Tour New Building

With plans now calling for the official opening of the new county museum complex at the January session, members of Hastings county council at the conclusion of their Wednesday session went on an inspection tour of the nearly-completed building.

Earlier in the year it was expected the building would be completed in time for the December session of council. However, construction was delayed and the opening is now scheduled for the third week in January.

The new county building, costing over more than half a million dollars, will house all county administration offices as well as the council chambers for county council, and main courtroom for the county.

Plans call for razing of the present 100-year-old courthouse when the new building is completed.

Flexible Policies

The New Party held a seminar at Montreal over the weekend. Those present were cautioned against inflexibility. Harry Welsgias, assistant research director in Canada of the United Steel Workers of America, said he hopes the New Party will be "neither socialist nor free enterprise." This will cause eyes to pop. Yet, in a very real sense, there is nothing new about a political party standing on such nebulous middle ground.

Nobody in his right senses could call either the Progressive Conservative party or the Liberal party socialist—although both have been charged, at times, with sponsoring socialistic legislation. By the same token, neither of these parties is unequivocally pledged to free enterprise, no matter what lip service may be paid to this principle. They, like other so-called "free enterprise" parties in most of the democratic nations of the world, have long since concluded that there are certain areas in which the public interest demands that curbs be placed on the freedom of enterprise.

For instance, here in Canada, and even more strikingly in the United States, there is legislation against combines. But besides these curbs on free enterprise imposed on businesses in the interest of the consumer, there is a host of other curbs which are the direct result of the insistent demands of businessmen themselves. Laissez faire capitalism is as dead as a dodo in that part of the world which governs itself by democratic procedures. If Mr. Welsgias is adding anything new to the situation, it is in his suggestion that socialism and the Fabian-type gradualism envisioned by the CCF in its Regina manifesto, be recognized as out-moded, too.

The result, if Mr. Welsgias has his way, will be the creation of three political parties which, having rid themselves of what he describes as "doctrinairism," or the "blind adherence to slogans of old principles and policies without regard to changing needs, new problems and different circumstances," could easily find themselves in a state of constant flux and political jockeying for the position which appeared most popular with the majority of voters. True, the New Party considers itself a left-wing party, but it is not at all certain that this claim will be invulnerable.

If there proves to be a short anchor for the party's political life, it will probably be its association with organized labor. Now labor generally occupies a position left of centre today—but there are occasions on which even on which labor's stand has been anything but liberal.

Two questions come to mind. Has Canada room for three parties which have no fixed and firm principles, but which are "flexible" in their outlook—opponents might substitute the word "opportunistic?" Sounding we doubt it. The room for manoeuvring is too small once parties have ceased to be "neither socialist nor free enterprise." As long as the New Party was pledged to reasonably clear-cut socialistic principles, as it was in the Regina manifesto, it was obviously desirable that there should be two other parties opposing socialism, providing the voters with the opportunity of alternatives in the selection of a government.

But, with the gradual acceptance of social security measures by both the Progressive Conservatives and the Liberals, and the apparently pending disappearance of any pledge to socialism when the New Party takes the place of the CCF, we may well see the stage set for a struggle in which the party will be out. The natural tendency of the unbiased observer would be to tag the New Party for this fate—but politics are such an uncertain game that this result can hardly be considered a certainty.

Meanwhile it is just possible that a few diehards, on the right as well as on the left, may be mentally debating the question of whether flexibility does not involve a rejection of principles—and whether there might be room for a party which was doctrinaire enough to take a stand and stick by it, regardless of how the majority of the day felt about the matter.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

Last year the owners of a small business decided that it was not being run efficiently. They hired a new manager — a sloppy, vicious, aggressive man — and sat back with pleasure as they watched him make a decisive reorganization of the firm. The new man seemed well qualified in training and experience, and they admired the forceful way in which he set to work to make making changes in the operation of the business.

Today the owners are looking for another manager. The business, though reorganized and more efficient, is worse off than before. This new man, who had so much to offer, lacked one vital quality: courtesy. He treated everyone badly. Employees cring-ed and eventually quit. Customers who were offended by his brusqueness or insulted by a occasional outright rudeness took their business elsewhere. The manager just did not like people especially speaking, and he took no trouble to hide the fact.

Courtesy to others is a vital element in human relations. It is not, as some insensitive people claim, a form of hypocrisy. It is as necessary to smooth relations as oil is to an uncooked engine—and serves much the same purpose.

True courtesy is not just a superficial veneer. It springs from a sincere realization of the dignity and worth of our fellow human beings. It is a recognition of humanity.

Ontario's Energy Resources

By HON. ROBERT W. MACAULAY
Ontario Minister of Energy Resources

ARTICLE 45 — PART TWO

Electricity is what is known as a secondary form of energy that is to say, it is produced by converting a primary form of energy such as coal, oil, natural gas or falling water. Until recently Ontario has relied largely upon sources of falling water within the province to drive the generators producing the electricity.

Therefore, as Ontario at present produces roughly as much electricity as it consumes, it can be said to be self-sufficient in electricity. This marks electricity off from coal, oil and natural gas, which, as we have seen must largely be imported, either from other provinces in Canada, or from abroad.

In Ontario, electricity is almost entirely produced by the publicly owned Ontario Hydro with a capacity of over 8 million horsepower, and marketed mostly through municipally owned utilities. Some private municipalities are served directly by Ontario Hydro. There are also 17 industries and other consumers in remote or sparsely-populated districts who are connected.

METHODS CHANGING

The methods of generating electricity are changing in Ontario. Until recently gogeration was almost entirely by utilizing the energy contained in falling water, with the exception of two generating stations, one in Toronto, the other in Windsor, which produce power driven by steam turbines, with coal as the fuel. However, with the recent completion of the St. Lawrence Power Project, the possibility exists that water power resource in Ontario has been exploited to the point where it will meet only about of its new power development from water power to thermal production of electricity, with coal, oil or gas, whichever is the most economical, as the fuel providing the steam, to drive the turbines which drive the generators.

This shift will be accomplished by the addition of existing thermal power stations and building new ones. By the end of 190 the Hearn plant in Toronto will have a capacity of 1,200,000 horsepower, and the Lakeview plant near the western edge of Metropolitan Toronto will have a capacity of 2,400,000 horsepower by the mid-1960's, making it the largest in the world.

By 1980, conventional thermal generation by coal, gas or oil, is expected to total almost 11 million horsepower. The Ontario Hydro's estimated total resources will be about 30 million horsepower. Approximately one third will be generated from hydro-electric resources, and the remaining two thirds may be supplied by generators for which the steam is provided by the heat from nuclear reactors. Nuclear fuel is a convenient fuel such as coal, oil or natural gas.

NUCLEAR GENERATION

Heat to provide steam to generate electricity may thus be obtained from the fission reactors which works by fissioning uranium in a nuclear reaction. Uranium is in fact the only energy resource which we as a province have in abundance, which in fact is so abundant that it is doubtful if we can ever use all that we can produce. Our mines at Elliot Lake near Blind River produce 74 per cent of all the uranium mined in Canada. Extensive deposits of uranium ore are produced in the Bancroft area.

At present the Canadian uranium deliveries to United States and Britain are being carried on running on a reduced or stretch-out basis, and after 1966, the market is very uncertain. Some use will be made of uranium in the Douglas and construction will be incorporated in a second nuclear power station, of 200,000 kilowatt capacity (270,000 horsepower), which is to be completed for Ontario Hydro of Canada Limited in 1965. This will be known as Candu, and will be situated at Douglas Point on Lake Huron.

When CANDU is fully operational, Ontario Hydro will buy its fissionable fuel from Canada in public utility, owned by the provinces of the province and it is run for them as a business concern. Therefore, Ontario Hydro is committed only to carry a cost equivalent to that of buying and operating a conventional generating station. Any excess will be carried by Ontario Hydro's research and development as a public responsibility. AECL at present hopes that CANDU will be commercially competitive

COAL STILL KING

It is important to make it clear that Ontario Hydro's interest in any given method for generating electricity is a purely commercial interest. Ontario Hydro is proposing to burn millions of tons of American coal in the next few years in its generating stations, because at the moment, American coal provides the cheapest fuel for generation than any other energy sources. Over any other energy sources. Over the next 20 years, coal and natural gas become the economical fuels for generating electricity in Ontario, then Ontario Hydro will use these other fuels.
